Evangelist W. D. Bass, whose home is at Corinth, Miss., writes as follows from Jackson, Tenn., under date of March 19: "I am in the second week of a fine meeting in Trinity Church, of which Rev. C. L. Smith is the pastor. Many are being saved and the Christian people are being built up and strengthened. We expect to close next Sunday night. Rev. R. A. Clark is doing an excellent work in this city as the pastor of First Church, and Dr. H. G. Hawkins is having fine success as the head of the Memphis Conference Female Institute. Brother Mecoy, presiding elder of the Jackson District, and the other Methodist pastors here have attended our services when they could. My next meeting will be in Florida."

Rev. A. W. Hoffpauir reports as follows concerning his work at Covington, La.: "We have a good people to serve and the Lord is wonderfully blessing my labors among them. Our Sunday schools are doing a fine work, and our congregations are increasing. The members of our Ladies' Aid Society were very thoughtful of us recently and sent us quite a lot of groceries, which of course were greatly appreciated. I have been somewhat hindered in my work by the inclement weather and the illness of my wife, who for five weeks has been suffering with a nervous breakdown, and who requests the prayers of your readers that she may be restored to health and strength, if it be the Lord's will." We are sorry to learn of Sister Hoffpauir's affliction, and we trust that she will begin to improve physically at an early date.

GEORGE ARTHUR, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bernard was born in New Iberia, La., on Nov. 25, 1912, and died March 3, 1915. A shadow has fallen upon this household, and one of its sunbeams has been shut out. How dark is that shadow, and how yearningly the heart seeks after its sunbeam! Light alone comes from the words of Jesus, who smilingly says, "Suffer little children to come unto me." The Master had need of him and sent his chariot of winged angels, and took him home. Let not your hearts be troubled; a heavenly mansion has received your darling boy, and ere long you shall learn the full import of those blessed words, "What I do, thou knowest not now, but shall know hereafter."

ALFRED S. LUTZ.

Mrs. GEO. VEST (nee Harriet L. Reynolds), was born on March 16, 1839, and died on Jan. 17, 1915. She was a life-long resident of New Iberia, La., and early in life joined the Methodist Church. Her father's home was one of the stopping places of the early circuit riders and they frequently preached in her uncle's cooper shop. She often told of the experiences of the old-time preachers and loved to speak of what a deep impression was made by the labors of Richmond Nolly as he traveled the Attakapas Circuit. Her family had done what they could to encourage him in his arduous labors. Her whole life was given for the uplift of humanity. She was a woman of prayer, a lover of the Bible, and an ardent and enthusiastic Methodist. As a devoted wife, mother and grandmother she made the household radiant with joy, but never lost an occasion for impressing the truth that all genuine happiness must be founded on strictly religious principles. She is survived by her husband, nine children, thirty-nine grandchildren, and fourteen great-grandchildren.

ALBERT S. LUTZ.

Mrs. JENNIE CAGE was born on Oct. 15, 1884, and died on March 6, 1915. Since an All-wise God in his wisdom has seen fit to take her from our peaceful, happy home circle, we bow in sorrow and humble submission. She had no fear of death, but grieved for the loved ones she was leaving behind. Hers was a truly noble character, loved and honored by all who knew her. She lived a happy useful life and died at peace with God and all mankind. Her devotion to her home and family, and her unselfish thoughtfulness for others enhance our loss. Even in her last illness she was much concerned about the comfort and welfare of her devoted nurses. We miss her sweet counsel, sunny disposition, the familiar footsteps and cheerful voice, but we are comforted in the firm belief that she is happy in a better world above. The funeral service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. C. H. Herring in the home. Sleep on, dear loved one, in the arms of your Savior. Even now when I think of the angels I seem to see your face, and know that one day I shall see you again in the company of the redeemed.

N. S. CAGE.

Mr. G. W. LAWSON was born on April 27, 1835, near Knoxville, Tenn., and in 1839 moved with his parents to Mississippi, who settled near Bear Creek, Tishomingo County, making their home in that county till the fall of 1857, when he was happily married to Miss Emily Rhinehart and moved to Arkansas. He returned to Mississippi in the year 1860 and continued to be a citizen of that State until death at Pleasant Hill on June 16, 1914. Of this marriage were born seven children, three of whom preceded him to the better world and four of whom are still living in or near the old home. His wife died in 1872 and in 1874 he married her sister, Mrs. Lucinda Hughs, who also preceded him to heaven on Dec. 23, 1912. Both of these good women were noble and true, but we knew Aunt Lucy best. She was the best woman we have ever known. He professed faith in Christ in 1857, while quite a young man, but remained out of the Church till 1872 when he united with the Methodist Church and was a faithful member as long as he lived. Uncle George's life was well spent, and his children have lost a true father, the community a useful citizen and the Church a strong and earnest member. He will not soon be forgotten.

J. R. JAMES.

SIDNEY JOHNSON SPAIN, eldest son of Major Johnson and Emma Josephine Dodd Spain, was born near Springdale Church, Attala County, Miss., on January 15, 1882. He was converted at the age of twelve years at Springdale Church and united with the Methodist Church in Kosciusko, Miss., during the Cates meeting in 1908. For a number of years he had been a faithful and efficient steward of his church. He was generous, and ever willing to do all he could to promote the interests of his Church and advance the kingdom of his Lord. He had been engaged in the mercantile business in Kosciusko about ten years, having been the senior member of the firm of Spain Brothers. On December 24, 1905, he was happily married to Miss Texanna Temple, who, with four little children, survives him. On February 11, 1915, the angel of death called him home. He had frequently expressed himself as ready to go and had made his peace with God and his fellow-men. The funeral service was conducted at the Methodist Church in Kosciusko by his pastor, Rev. J. B. Randolph, assisted by Rev. W. A. Roper, the Baptist pastor. We laid his remains to rest in the city cemetery to await the resurrection morn. We extend sympathy to the bereaved family.

JOSEPH B. RANDOLPH.

On March 6, 1915, Mrs. L. KINLER died at the residence of her son, Emile Kinler, in New Orleans. Alford Kinler, her other son, also her two daughters, Mrs. Troxler and Mrs. Mongrue and several of her grandchildren were present when she breathed her last. Her remains were brought home to Luling, La., and buried from the Catholic Church in the St. Charles Cemetery across the river, beside her husband, who died many years ago. There were born to her nine children—four of whom remain to mourn her death. Her grandchildren numbered thirty two, and her great-grandchildren fifteen. Mrs. Kinler was born and lived here all of her long life of eighty-two years, when from old age the silver cord was loosened, the golden bowl broken, and the wheel broken at the cistern, and the dust has returned to the God who gave it. She has gone down as the stars, to rise on some brighter, fairer shore. Fold the worn hands tenderly over the still heart that shall never more throb with anguish or thrill to the touch of joy. She gazes now with undazzled vision on the "great white throne, and Him that sitteth thereon." She has gone from earth to bloom again in that bright clime where—

"Verdure and blossoms never fade,
And fields are eternally fair."

Over the quiet grave may the white roses bloom and the spring violets grow!

A FRIEND.

IN MEMORIAM.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, at Lecompte, La., wish to express their deep sense of loss in the death of one of their members, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Johnson, which occurred in New Orleans, La., on December 26, 1914.

We wish to bear testimony to her sincere Christian life, and the encouragement that her membership with us engendered. Always with a sweet sunshiny smile, even after sorrow came into her life, did she welcome all the members. We miss her, oh! so much, yet bow to the will of the Father and know that she now lives and reigns with Jesus, in the home not made with hands. We thank God for the association of this beautiful Christian life. Therefore be it resolved:

1. That we extend deepest sympathy to the sorrowing loved ones, and we pray that the "Holy Comforter" may abide with them.

2. That these resolutions be placed on the records of our Society, that a copy be sent to each member of her family, and that a copy be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. Anna Cox Lyon, Mrs. W. H. Jones, Mrs. A. C. Collins.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING
Save your Hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.
Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.
There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.
Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

FRECKLES
February and March Worst Months For This Trouble—How to Remove Easily.
There's a reason why nearly everybody freckles in February and March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.
Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from your druggist and apply a little of it night and morning, and in a few days you should see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they will stay all Summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if othine fails.

DR. HOLDER IN ARKANSAS.

The Rev. Arch, C. Holder of Shreveport, La., and Mr. I. N. Price of Cincinnati, O., have recently closed the most successful revival in the history of Malvern, resulting in about 350 conversions in three weeks.

Dr. Holder preaches an "entire gospel," without fear or apology, yet in love and reverence, making a definite appeal to all classes; especially does he impress the delinquent church member. His sermons to "men only" are free from anything objectionable. He believes in heaven and hell, and is very persistent.

Of the many evangelistic singers we have had in Malvern, Mr. Irvin N. Price stands first, having not only command of the technical side of his work, but singing with the spirit and understanding as well. He is very successful in organizing and leading a large choir, and his solo work brings many requests for repetition of his best songs.

These men work just as hard at the last as at any other time; and their intelligent, sane efforts for the salvation of sinners will commend them to any pastor or church.

BROOKHAVEN METHODISM.

Dear Doctor Meek: After a few years stay in Jackson, Miss., the itinerant wheel turned and I am at Brookhaven, Miss. The people, although they hated to lose Brother W. H. Lewis, gave me a most cordial welcome. My work is very pleasant. I have a kind people and I am sure a more cultured community can not be found in our Conference, for it is here that Whitworth college has done such fine work for our Church. I don't think I have ever known a finer student body than this institution now has. It is superb. Brother Decell, of Wayneshoro, recently held a meeting here with fine results. The teachers and student body are with us every Sunday at the 11 o'clock hour, and what a fine company of listeners they are! No State can boast of a finer class of women than Mississippi and no school can excel Whitworth in the culture and development of its daughters. Dr. Cooper is an inspiratiou to any preacher — so loyal and helpful in every way. He and a part of the faculty are constant at prayer meeting. It is my conviction that no man is doing more for the Church than Dr. Inman W. Cooper. Brother L. E. Aiford is agent for the college and is doing well. I commend his work to the brethren. The improvement here was quite a surprise to me. Whitworth is destined to yet greater things.

No one need be the least trouhled when he sends his daughters here. They will have the best of care. The religious atmosphere is fine; the health conditions are splendid; and I can't see how such good board can be given for the price.

Altogether, we are justly proud of Methodism in Brookhaven. Rev. Robert Selby is earnestly at work looking after every interest of the Church in his district. He is making full proof of his ministry. My official board, composed of fine business men from the different walks of life, are giving me their loyal support. A majority of my board of stewards attend Sunday school and prayer meeting and have assured me publicly and privately that they would give me their best support, and they are doing it. I am talking for the Advocate and hope to send you some new subscribers and renewals soon.

J. M. MORSE.

IMPROMPTU.

Dear Brother Meek: I am solicited hy some of my ministerial hrethren to write for the Advocate, and solicited by some of the laity to preach for them; but the trouble is that I can only write with a pencil, and printers and editors do not like pencil written manuscripts, while as to preaching, my Conference has decided that I am too old and infirm to preach, and the pulpits are generally closed against me. So I can but refuse. I am trying to mix you up a little batch today for the paper, and if it proves unpalatable and unworthy of a place among choice dishes, just throw it out at the kitchen door.

I have been the recipient of more good reading matter the present winter, it seems to me, than ever before. Not more in quantity, but the quality has kept my emotional nature stirred continually. I was brought up a Calvinist and was proud of my indoctrination and dignity; but alas! I visited the Methodist class and experience meetings, when a youth and took to their manner of worship, and it seems that I imhibed their spirit and enthusiasm.

In 1884 I followed a popular preacher, who was said never to shed a tear. He was dry-eyed at all times, at all places, and under all circumstances. Can you diagnose his case?

About thirty years ago I had a presiding elder who was very earnest and spiritual and when he sometimes choked with emotion while preaching and a shower of tears would fall, he would beg his auditors to excuse him. This old superannuate is not so considerate and polite as that; and when he feels a storm rising he does not pull down the blinds and windows, and slam the doors, but gives the storm the right of way and lets it roar. The Methodists are called the noisiest Christians in the world. If this be true, they are the most spiritual. If the earth had no fire in it, there would be no eruptions. God's people in truth, of every name, have pent up fires within them, and eruptions frequently occur. Our Lord was emotional. His sacred bosom heaved and he wept. Paul says that by the space of three years he ceased not to warn the Ephesians "day and night" with tears. Jeremiah prayed thus: "O that my head were waters and mine eyes a fountain of tears," etc.

I give these quotations to justify Methodists, and especially this Methodist. I shed tears of joy over your boldness and readiness to rap every heterodox head that pops up around you. God bless our Advocate, and may all of our preachers and readers work and pray for its support! What an excellent editorial that was in the last issue on "Our Superannuates." I felt before I finished reading it that all of the old helpless ones in the patronizing Conferences would have more sympathy and friends than they have ever had! God hless our editor and all of the Advocate readers!

Olla, La. H. ARMSTRONG.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

The Sunday School.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney.

Maben is close to the best, Brother J. A. Wax, the superintendent, will take up the three points lacking and will then have a standard school.

The veteran superintendent, Brother Frank Lamb will re-organize his school at Tomnolen and endeavor to do better work than ever.

Rev. J. J. Baird, of Brooksville, reports that his school comes up to the standard. His Teacher-training class has 23 members and the Home Department has 20. Good for these excellent people.

Children's Day gives the young people an opportunity to do public service in the Church under a trained leader. Some of our people say that it is more difficult to get the children to take part in the program now than formerly. So it is not easy to induce the older people to attend and take part in the prayer meeting. The need for the day and the training it will give the children is greater to-day than ever in the past.

It should be made plain to all the people that every dollar of the money collected on that day is invested in the Sunday school work of our own Conference for our own people, even the one-fourth we turn over to the General Board comes back to us in the service rendered by the General Secretaries. If our people see the case clearly they will not contribute merely an incidental sum, but will invest an amount worthy of the cause.

Something has been said before of the high class work being done in the Eupora church. After visiting this school and becoming acquainted with the situation, it is easy to see why such excellent work is being done. The secret of it is, the preacher and the superintendent have been reading some of the best books on Sunday school work. All of our leaders are readers of books that stir the mind and heart. This school not only comes up to the standard of efficiency, but the individual classes are doing standard service.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Mr. R. A. Maddox.

The Field Secretary has just finished the schedule of work in the Seashore District. We are well pleased with the work of that district. Great interest was manifested; the congregations were as large as could have been looked for.

The Long Beach Sunday School has taken on new life. This is all due to four organized classes. There is a contest on between the young people in the organized classes. Organization always tends to make the machinery run smooth. If you have never tried it, give it a trial at once.

The Sunday school of the Galloway Memorial Church, of Jackson, now has 59 taking the Teacher-training Course; 19 in the Legion of Honor Course, and 40 in the Advanced Course. The superintendent, Brother J. C. Cavett, tells me that they have graduated a class every year now for about five years. You will find plenty of workers in that Sunday school, too. If you can not get 59 in a Training Class, try to get some, anyway. Five would be better than none.

The Jackson District is the next to be worked by the Field Secretary. His dates are as follows: Canton, March 18-19; Mendenhall, at D'Lo, March 20-21; Pelahatchie, March 24-25; March 26-27, blank so far; Madison, March 30-31; Florence, April 1-2; Terry, April 3-4. Then the Secretary will go to the Hattiesburg District, beginning at Eucutta April 11-12. The other dates in this district will be given later.

The Five Cent Assessment.

I would like to call special attention to this collection. The Board needs the money. What are you going to do about it? I hear of many saying they do not think they should pay this assessment. Did you ever stop to think it was made by the Conference and not by the Sunday School Board? Is it loyalty to take the collection, or is it disloyalty? What do you say?

ERUPTIONS CAN BE STOPPED

by internal blood purifiers because they are caused by blood disorders. However, Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, Itch, Scaly Patches, etc., cannot because they are parasitic skin diseases. It takes a positive skin remedy like Tetterine to destroy the germs and heal the surface. Dr. W. S. Fielder, Electric, Ala., says "I never use anything else but Tetterine in all skin troubles." 50c at druggist or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

Mr. Moody used to say that the Christian Law of giving is this: "Give till you feel it; then go on giving till you don't feel it."

Rheumatism and Kidney Complaints Cured.

There is now being manufactured a preparation called Hyde's Rheumatic and Kidney Remedy which has been proven beyond a doubt to be an absolute cure for Rheumatism and Kidney Troubles. All we ask is for you to give it a trial. Recommendations and testimonials furnished on request.

Will be sent prepaid on receipt of one dollar. Hyde Rheumatic Co., Ellisville, Miss.

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE.

Don't stay gray! Here's a simple recipe that anybody can apply with a hair brush.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.

Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy is Home-Made

Easily Prepared in a Few Minutes. Cheap but Unequaled

Some people are constantly annoyed from one year's end to the other with a persistent bronchial cough, which is wholly unnecessary. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make you wonder what became of it.

Get 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any druggist, pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end. It also loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflammation in a painful cough with remarkable rapidity. Ordinary coughs are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, winter coughs and bronchial asthma.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup mixture makes a full pint—enough to last a family a long time—at a cost of only 54 cents. Keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant. Easily prepared. Full directions with Pinex.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its ease, certainty and promptness in overcoming bad coughs, chest and throat colds.

Get the genuine. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., 235 Main St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

THE TROUBLE IS NOT INSIDE.

The myriads of parasitic germs which cause Tetter, Eczema, Ringworm, Itch, Acne, Salt Rheum, etc., cannot be killed internally. They live and feed on the surface and must there be treated. Tetterine is the common sense treatment that has scientific principles to back it up. E. A. Kennedy, druggist of Brooklyn, Fla., says: "Tetterine has cured quickly and permanently several stubborn cases of tetter that came under my personal knowledge. One of 15 years standing." 50c at druggist's or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

SEVERE RHEUMATIC PAINS DISAPPEAR

Rheumatism depends on an acid in the blood, which affects the muscles and joints, producing inflammation, stiffness and pain. This acid gets into the blood through some defect in the digestive process.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the old-time blood tonic, is very successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It acts directly, with purifying effect, on the blood, and improves the digestion. Don't suffer. Get Hood's today.

GIFTS FOR McTYEIRE SCHOOL.

Miss Helen Richardson, Principal of the McTyeire School, writes as follows: "About three weeks ago one of our patrons called and before leaving said that he and his mother wished to give us $5000 and more next year. This came without any solicitation on my part. I have recently been to Peking, where, through mutual friends, I had the privilege of visiting Li Yuan Hang, the Vice-President. Our Father had gone in advance and prepared every step of the way. Truly, it was like a fairy tale. As the Vice-President showed me around the palace, meeting first his wife, then the children, and finally into the very room where Emperor Kwang Su died, it seemed like a dream. I told his Excellency about the work of McTyeire School and its development. He had heard much of this through friends. He said that the development of such a school should not be arrested because of a lack of funds, and that he would be glad to assist. I am to send him subscription blanks."

IMMIGRANT WORK AT GALVESTON.

Last year 4271 immigrants entered Port Galveston. The war in Europe has cut off Galveston's greatest source of immigrants. Prior to the outbreak of hostilities there was a steady stream of Germans, Russians, Bohemians, and other immigrants from Northern Europe. The principal work done by our port missionary since August has been that of handling the refugees from Mexico. During 1914, including immigrants and refugees, our missionary handled some 12,000 people. He assisted 96 men in finding homes and work, and 17 girls and women.

FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH.

Two years ago the village of A., numbering 172 souls, became Christian. Since then hardly a day has passed but they have gone through the fires of persecution. The avowed object of the people is to either drive them back into heathenism or drive them out of the village. To this end all of the landowners have banded together. They have blocked the roads going to the bazaar; they have forbidden vendors to sell them anything on pain of gaining their displeasure; they have destroyed their crops, cutting down unripe barley and stealing their sugar cane and pulse. Several of the Christians were beaten—one so severely that in fear of his life he has fled to a different village.

Two weeks ago the landlords deliberately uprooted and carried away seven maunds of peas. Were a farmer at home to have seven acres of his wheat crop stolen, it would be tantamount to the loss they suffered. Last week they burned several dollars' worth of straw. Two days ago they cut down fourteen maunds of unripe barley and in the same night stole peas, but were detected and fled. One man, however, was caught and stands self-condemned. What will happen to him I know not. What has happened to the Christians I know, and my heart leaps with joy at their long-suffering through it all. The headmen of the village have tried to stop this persecution; the collector and I have endeavored to bring them to a better mind; some Mohammedans, formerly inveterate enemies but now friends, have expostulated with them, but all to no purpose. "Either leave Christianity or leave the village" continues to be their ultimatum.

The above mentioned Mohammedans sing the praises of these Christians, saying they have never seen such long-suffering patience under such unjust persecutions and frankly confess that they would not have endured it. The Christians themselves beg us to help them if we can, but add, "If you can't, we will continue to suffer for Jesus. They may kill us, but they cannot take Jesus from us. To him will we be faithful even unto death."—Selected from "The Mass Movement Era," published in Lucknow, India.

MISS GOLDING OFFERS HERSELF FOR FOREIGN WORK.

Miss Ethel Goiding, who is now principal of our Orphan Home School, has offered herself to the North Mississippi Conference Woman's Missionary Society for the foreign field. Miss Goiding is a capable, consecrated young woman of splendid attainments, and we feel sure she will prove to be the woman we need for our foreign scholarship.—N. Miss. Builetin.

FROM MT. OLIVE AUXILIARY.

Mrs. J. R. Ellis writes: "Brother W. J. Ferguson, our pastor, kindly gave the Sunday night service, February 14, to the Woman's Missionary Society. The officers for 1915 were installed, with the pastor as leader. This beautiful "Installation service" consumed about twenty minutes. Mrs. Ferguson, then, with well chosen words, and in a most pleasing manner, gave an inspiring and instructive talk on "Woman's Work in the Church." Special music had been prepared for this occasion.

The weather was very inclement, but a large congregation assembled, and all seemed deeply interested in the 'woman's service.'"

THE COUNCIL DAILY.

Have you forgotten to send in your subscription? If so, let this notice serve as a gentle reminder. You cannot afford to miss the issues of this splendid little paper, for, remember, the annual meetings are preceding the Council meeting this year, and that there will be no reports brought from the Council by your secretaries, unless they send out a written message upon their return. The value of the Council Daily, for that reason, is more pronounced than ever before. Don't put off until to-morrow, but subscribe TO-DAY. Send to Mr. Geo. Thornburgh, care of Masonic Temple, Little Rock, Ark. Price 25 cents.

SOME WHO ARE HELPING.

Dear Dr. Meek: Probably some few of our members do not know just what the Mississippi Conference is doing for the cause of Missions and a little information at this time would be of interest. How many know that a leading church is supporting a medical missionary in China, raising for this purpose the neat sum of $600 above the annual assessment? Then a district, by no means the strongest, maintains a native preacher by contributing the modest sum of $150. One of our best Sunday schools gives each year $260 for the support of Huchow Hospital.

Think of a Sunday school of one of the smaller stations taking care of the financial support of an entire circuit! And that's not all: another provides for the support of a native preacher in Japan, and still another pays the salary of a Bible woman in the same field.

Two Sunday schools on a small country charge with only an average attendance have taken a $50 scholarship in the Lambuth Memorial Bible Woman's Training School in Japan. A League provides a scholarship in the Soochow University—an institution which is doing great things for the religious leadership of the Church.

An adult men's Bible class contributes each year the nice sum of $100 for the support of a native Chinese preacher.

Two consecrated ladies give $25 each: one for the support of a chapel in China, the other for a scholarship in the Anglo-Korean school.

And so the work goes on. But I believe there are others who are ready to help and who will do as much or more this year. The world needs the Gospel of our Christ for its uplift. Ancient religions everywhere are yielding. Let us have 50—yea, 100—new specials at once. H. MELLARD,

Conference Missionary Secretary.

CALOMEL IS MERCURY! IT SICKENS! ACTS ON LIVER LIKE DYNAMITE

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and Doesn't Salivate or Make You Sick.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work!

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful tonight and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

It takes so little to make a child happy, it is a pity grown people do not oftener remember it, and scatter little bits of pleasure before the small people, as they throw crumbs to the hungry sparrows.—Louisa M Alcott.

Cured His Rupture

Confederate Veteran Used the Brooks Appliance and Cured Himself at Home.

Taken From a Photograph of Mr. Henry D. Banks—R. F. D., No. 11—Commerce, Ga.

Mr. Banks writes—"I am sound and so well that I can plow or do any kind of heavy work. I can truly say your Appliance has effected a permanent cure. I was in a terrible condition and had given up hope of ever being any better. If it hadn't been for your Appliance, I would never have got well. I am 70 years old and served three years in Eckle's Artillery of Oglethorpe Co. I hope God will reward you for the good you are doing to suffering humanity."

Brooks' Appliance, the modern scientific invention, the wonderful discovery that makes life worth living, for ruptured people, will be sent on trial. No springs or hard pads. Has automatic air cushions, Binds and draws the broken parts together as you would a broken limb. No salves. No lies. Durable, cheap. Sent on trial to prove it. Full information and book on rupture, mailed free. Write today. C. E. Brooks, 2023B State Street, Marshall, Mich., U. S. A.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation. If you write to me, Eugene M Pullen, Carpenter, 1000A Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS.

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you—Drink more water.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acid so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent-lithia-water drink.

Heart Disease Almost Fatal to Young Girl

"My daughter, when thirteen years old, was stricken with heart trouble. She was so bad we had to place her bed near a window so she could get her breath. One doctor said, 'Poor child, she is likely to fall dead any time.' A friend told me Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy had cured her father, so I tried it, and she began to improve. She took a great many bottles, but she is spared to me today, a fat, rosy cheeked girl. No one can imagine the confidence I have in Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy." A. R. CANON, Worth, Mo.

The unbounded confidence Mr. Canon has in Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is shared by thousands of others who know its value from experience. Many heart disorders yield to treatment, if the treatment is right. If you are bothered with short breath, fainting spells, swelling of feet or ankles, pains about the heart and shoulder blades, palpitation, weak and hungry spells, you should begin using Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy at once. Profit by the experience of others while you may.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

MEETING OF THE LOUISIANA WOMAN'S CONFERENCE.

The Annual Conference of the Woman's Missionary Society of Louisiana was held in New Orleans, March 3-5.

Miss Belie Bennett was the guest of honor, and her admonitions, instructions and information, must result in inspiration to those who were so fortunate as to be present. Her talks were so helpful that we begrudged the time that had to be spent with business details and reports and felt like "moving and seconding" that the entire meeting be turned over to her and conducted as an Institute.

We were exceedingly fortunate in having a number of workers present: three deaconnesses, Miss Isles, Miss Abbott and Miss Walker, Mrs. O'Beirne our very own missionary to Mexico, Miss Nutt, superintendent of the work at St. Mark's Hall, and "The Angel of the Slums," Mrs. Lily Meekin, of Mary Werlein Mission. These all rendered valuable service, and the results chronicled in their several reports showed that the seed sowing had been carefully done, and we could but ask, "What will the harvest be?"

Dr. Werlein, in whose church our meetings were held, said he doubted if a single minister in that city could show a better report than did Miss Nutt.

The delegates were taken in automobiles to these two missions, and Miss Nutt and Mrs. Meekin were "at home," though we thought we had left them at the church. The character of work done at each place is vastly different, but equally important, and we feel sure that every guest went away with her "heart strangely warmed," and a desire to obey the Master's command, "Sell that thou hast and give to the poor."

Dr. Werlein, Revs. W. W. Drake, W. W. Holmes, W. E. Thomas, A. J. Gearheard, and Drs. R. H. Wynn and R. A. Meek, represented the "Brethren," and did it well.

Some fine papers were read, notably the one by Mrs. Alvis of New Orleans on "Our Opportunity With Our Servants," but since their publication in full was requested, we make no further comment. Mrs. C. C. Miller of Monroe, spoke at length on the Negro question, bringing out some fine points, while exhibiting a picture of her childhood home, and "black Mammy."

Three ex-presidents were in attendance, Mrs. Lyon, Mrs. Carre, and Mrs. Kennedy, all as enthusiastic and interested as when they held the reins of government: This is as it should be, for a true "worker with Him" never forgets that it is for him.

The noon Bible lessons conducted by Miss Nutt, Mrs. O'Beirne, and others, on "The Upper Room" experiences, were particularly helpful, and satisfied the "heart hunger," as the bountiful lunches prepared and served in the basement of the church, by the Methodist ladies of all the churches, did the appetites of the body.

The following officers were elected in conformity to the new by-law: President, Mrs. Abel Bliss; first vice president, Mrs. W. T. Cunningham; 2d vice president, Mrs. R. H. Harper; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. P. Hoit; recording secretary, Mrs. J. C. Calhoun; treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Holmes; publicity superintendent, Mrs. A. G. McKinney; superintendent of supplies, Mrs. A. F. Godat.

Verily "it was good to be there."

Mrs. A. C. McKINNEY.

GETTING IT DONE.

By W. W. Williams.

Now that the Graded Literature has been introduced in so many of our schools, next comes the question of getting the work done by the pupils—the home work, hand work, memory work, etc., in order to carry out the purpose of the system. Some say "the pupils just won't do it." They have not been in the habit of doing it under the old system and some have never had a thorough, simple explanation from the teacher of how it should be done. Still it is very easy indeed.

This work begins in earnest in the Primary Department, and as the teacher in that department, I first selected a girl about fifteen years of age to assist. I gave her a teacher's book and I took one. I took an ordinary table large enough for all the pupils to get around it, putting benches or chairs entirely around it. Next I sawed off the legs so it would be low enough for them. When the study period came I went into the classroom with the lesson so well prepared that I needed nothing but the Bible, leaving the book at home. I told the story to the class the very best I could, then followed a brief discussion, several being asked to repeat the story. After this I gave instructions as to how the hand work and home work should be done. Before I took charge of the class, however, the assistant had assembled it, had called the roll, had taken up the collection, and, in fact, had attended to all the business. She assisted in keeping them quiet and gave as much attention to the lesson as any member of the class. After the story was finished the papers were given out for the lesson I had just taught. In this department the lesson is taught before any papers are given out. Short pencils were then passed around and the assistant directed the hand work and I left the room. After that, the pencils were taken up and coloring crayons given out and that work done. The pencil work, of course, is usually the copying of the memory verse, etc. After this the papers were taken up, each pupil having written his name on the paper. The papers were passed to me and then the assistant gave them a little drill on the Memory Verse, requiring them to memorize it. Then there was a short prayer and the class came out into the main school to their allotted bench for the closing exercises of the school. During this interim I examined the papers, criticised and offered suggestions, and then returned them to the pupils. The pupils took them home and put them in their folders, making a book of them. Next Sunday there is a five or ten minute review on last Sunday's lesson before the lesson for the day. If any of the home work has not been done, the assistant is instructed to visit the one who failed and see that it is done.

If a pupil is absent, a card is mailed. If absent twice in succession the assistant is instructed to call the coming week. This assistant in time develops into a teacher and one of the best kind. At the same time she learns as much or usually much more than if she were a nominal member of a class.

But now, after having for several years used the Graded Lessons, this work is much easier. When I get one from an Intermediate class to go back as assistant, the work is perfectly familiar to her, as she has been over it before. Of course, telling the story does not take so long as teaching a Bible class, so there is plenty of time. Fifteen or twenty minutes is long enough for the story; the children cannot concentrate so long and are glad to do the hand work for a change. The same method is followed with the Juniors, until they are drilled well enough to do it at home instead of in the school.

Six months of this kind of work will be on exhibit in Baton Rouge in April at the State Sunday School Convention.

RED LETTER DAY FOR THE OKOLONA METHODIST CHURCH.

Sunday, March 14, was a "Red Letter" Day for our Church. The morning service was conducted in the usual way with a sermon by our pastor. At the close of the service, the pastor announced that he wanted to have a church conference for the transaction of a little business. Everybody expected a money talk of some kind, as that is usually what a church conference means. Brother Brown had given to fifteen members of the congregation slips to be read as follows:

No. 1: "Am I a Methodist?" No. 2: "I am, and I love my Church." No. 3: "I am glad to do my part in the Church." No. 4: "Nearly 100 Methodist churches burned last year." No. 5: "Were they insured?" No. 6: "Most of them were." No. 7: "It would be a calamity if ours should burn." No. 8: "Is ours insured?" No. 9: "Yes, but we owe $85 for it. No. 10: "When is it due?" No. 11: "It is past due and must be paid for at once, or we will be at the mercy of the flames." No. 12: "I move we pay it now and all go to dinner." No. 13: "I second that motion." No. 14: "I'll start it with $5. No. 15: "I'll give $5."

So, as he called the numbers, the slips were read, and then followed subscriptions as fast as the Secretary could write them and in exactly seven minutes the amount was raised. The congregation took it as a kind of a joke and all left for their homes in a good humor with themselves and their neighbors and hoping there would be another collection soon.

The service at night was one that will long be remembered. We advertised a service for "Strangers and Visitors." Posters had been placed in all of the hotels, in the post-office, in the railroad shops, and other public places, and the members canvassed the town inviting non-churchgoers to the service, and they came. The regulars were on hand, the "trunk members," Jews, the railroad boys, and the strangers visiting the town. The auditorium and nearly all of the Sunday school room were filled. The choir had prepared special music which was enjoyed greatly, and then Brother Brown preached a short sermon from Hebrews 13:2: "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers; for thereby some have entertained angels unawares." He showed us plainly that we should be careful to entertain strangers for their sakes, for our own sakes, and for Jesus' sake. Three joined the Church as a result of the service. At the conclusion of the service, we spent about ten minutes in meeting the strangers and assuring them of our cordial interest in them and each one was presented with a card inviting them to "Cum-Sum-Mo." We all left the church feeling that we "had made a Sabbath day's journey toward the Promised Land."

We like our new pastor and his new way of doing things, and we believe that he likes us. As a preacher, he delights us. He preaches the old-fashioned Gospel that Peter preached on the day of Pentecost. There is no new way of doing that, and no other kind of preaching will bring lost men to Christ.

J. M. HALEY.

MAKING CHURCH ROOMS FIT.

When a now famous London merchant first started in business he was able to buy only a very small stock of merchandise. He advertised that his store was so small that two men wearing overcoats could not turn 'round in it at the same time, but that the little goods the store held were the best that could be had in the whole world.

The public at once appreciated the efforts of a man so keenly alive to the eternal fitness of things, and soon he had to begin renting more space and tearing out walls. It was not long before his store occupied the whole block.

If churches used the same judgment in adapting their buildings to requirements they would be much more successful than many of them are. So far as possible an auditorium should never be larger than an audience. To try to enthuse a small gathering in a large auditorium is like trying to heat a barn with an alcohol stove.

While it is impossible to expand or contract the size of an auditorium to fit the audience on all occasions, James G. Wilson's Rolling Partitions make it possible to do this on many occasions and to come very near it on all occasions.

These Rolling Partitions, which act on the principle of a roll top desk, can be pulled down from a horizontal roll at the ceiling or pulled out from a vertical coil box or post at the church pillars in a few seconds. In this way the main auditorium of a church, equipped with these partitions can be reduced to the size of the rotunda. The partitions will shut off the galleries and the outer corridors.

Where class rooms for Sunday schools are desired still more partitions will further divide the galleries and corridors into smaller rooms.

This arrangement not only makes things cozier and sermons and Sunday schools more effective, but it oftentimes saves money for fuel to heat an entire church when only a small part of it is needed, to say nothing of the heartaches the minister might have if he had to look at vacant pews.

There are many churches that do not yet know of the great advantages to be gained by the use of these Rolling Partitions. If they will only write to the makers, asking for "Partition Catalogue 4-C" it will be mailed free. The J. G. Wilson Corporation, 3 West 29th Street, New York.

AN EASTER THOUGHT.

By Rev. W. A. Hays.

O why am I here? do I sometimes ask:
Why the bitter tear and the toilsome task:
And why the short round of life's little day
That ends 'neath a mound of cold, senseless clay?

Wouldn't it be better not ever to be,
To feel no fetter and no sorrow see,
Know no transient joy shadowed by a cloud,
Be no blind fate's toy nor yield to the proud?

But then from out the gloom there comes a reply:
There's life beyond the tomb—the soul cannot die;
You're on the way to God, though often in strife;
One day that mound of sod will burst out with life.

Decatur, Miss.

A BRIEF EASTER MEDITATION.

The events of our Lord's earthly life should be considered together, not apart. They blend into harmony and support one another, and are stronger as connected portions of one shining chain than as detached and separated links. The miraculous beginning of Christ's existence in the flesh was, in a sense, a prophecy of his superhuman career amongst men and the mighty miracle with which it was to close. The incarnation of the Divine Son, so far as it related to our planet, was a grand unity—beginning in the manger at Bethlehem, developing and progressing as the God-man grew and matured at Nazareth, giving out its sublime teachings and blessed ministries in the various provinces of the Holy Land, sounding the deepest depths of suffering in the garden and meeting death sublimely on the cross, reposing in the darkness of the tomb, and finally rising triumphantly from the dead and reascending to be with the Father, carrying victoriously above a glorified humanity. It is out of a fragmentary study of theology and the Sacred Scriptures that most of the doubts of men are born. The cure for unbelief is a larger, fuller knowledge.

But while this is true, we do well to celebrate at times specific incidents in the life of our Lord, so as to place special emphasis upon them. His birth, his death, and his resurrection are deserving of the repeated commemorations that are given them. It would be strange indeed if Christianity did not make much of these outstanding occurrences in the Savior's earthly history. Of all such celebrations, however, the Eucharist alone can lay claim to the Master's sanction. The others were born of human gratitude and love—are the creations of redeemed men in their efforts to honor Him, whose humiliation and suffering to save humanity is the wonder of both earth and heaven.

Easter should be an occasion of holy and rapturous joy. It speaks to us of the victorious Christ, with sweet messages of hope upon his holy lips, and the keys of death and the grave swinging at his girdle. Its fitting symbol is the empty tomb, through which the myriads who have linked their destinies with Jesus will march into the Celestial City to be evermore with their Lord. Bishop Marvin said that that glorious home-coming will be the "day of days, even in heaven." And so perhaps it will. There we may see again the dear vanished faces that still live in our memories, hear again the sweet voices that have long been hushed, and clasp again to our bosoms, radiant with immortal life, the pulseless forms that we have laid beneath the sod. With the living and unconquerable Christ as our leader and friend and elder brother, and this precious hope of meeting again our departed loved ones to cheer us, well may we dry up our tears and join in singing the glad songs that tell how nineteen hundred years ago our Lord vanquished "the king of terrors" and won life and immortality for man.

"Ring, happy bells of Easter-time!
Our happy hearts give back your chime.
The Lord is risen; we die no more;
He opens wide the heavenly door;
He meets us, while to him we climb,
At Easter-time."

PRESIDENT WILSON AT THE BALTIMORE CONFERENCE.

The session of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which met in Washington, D. C., on Wednesday, March 24, and which adjourned last Monday, seems to have been in many respects a most memorable one. It was presided over by Bishop Candler, whose presidency produced a profound impression. One of the addresses on Christian Education was made by Dr. A. J. Lamar, who forcefully presented the claims of that great cause. Perhaps the most interesting day of the Conference was Thursday, March 25, when President Woodrow Wilson favored the body with his presence and was given a hearty reception, after which he made quite an impressive address. He spoke in part as follows:

"I have the feeling, as I look upon you, that I have had in many other church conferences, that I am looking in the faces of men and women who are not interested in the temporary things but are interested in the permanent things, who give very little thought, I hope and believe, to the things that separate us and give a great deal of thought to the things that unite us,—things that are good not only for the healing of this nation, but for the healing of all the nations.

"This is a council of peace, not to form plans of peace, for it is not our privilege to form such, but to proclaim the single supreme plan of peace, the revelation of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Because wars will never have any ending until men cease to hate one another, cease to be jealous of one another, the world needs to get that feeling of reality in the brotherhood of mankind which is the only bond that can make us think justly of one another, and act righteously before God himself."

THE NEW TESTAMENT EXCLUDED.

The Supreme Court of Louisiana, in an opinion handed down on Monday, March 22, upheld the Jews in their opposition to having the Bible read in the public schools of Caddo Parish, declaring that under the Constitution of the State such a practice cannot be enforced against their wishes. The full text of this opinion has not been published, and the syllabus of it which has appeared in the daily papers lacks much of being clear and definite as to what points are covered by it. It seems, however, that the Court held that the parts of the New Testament which teach the Trinity and the Deity of Christ are violative of the conscience of the Jews and cannot be read in the public schools of the State. The fair inference seems to be that other parts of the New Testament and the Old Testament might legally be used. The claims of the Catholic who joined with the Jews in bringing the suit were set aside, apparently on the ground that he did not make it clear in what respect his religious faith was trenched upon. Whether it would be possible for him to set up more specific contentions and secure a different verdict, we do not know.

This opinion of the highest Court in the State makes the New Testament a sectarian book in Louisiana, so long as the present Constitution is in force, unless the Court should at some time reverse itself, which is not likely. As we see it, this decision is much to be regretted. The space is not now at our disposal to set forth what we conceive to be its true significance and the probable effects of the policy which has now been given legal sanction, but we hope to do so in the near future.

HIGH GROUND.

In an address delivered to the Indiana Democratic Editorial Association in Indianapolis, on February 4, Hon. W. J. Bryan made the following utterance: "I urge you, therefore, editors, to find the moral side of every question and then help to put the Democratic party on the moral side, for the moral side is the side that will ultimately win."

This is high ground which Mr. Bryan here exhorts the editors of his party to take, and it is certainly a wholesome optimism which he evinces in holding that truth must finally triumph. Manifestly, our distinguished Secretary of State belongs to quite a different school of public men from that of the noted United States Senator who several years ago declared that "purity in politics is an iridescent dream." There has been a remarkable awakening of the public conscience and a cleaning up along many lines since Mr. Ingalls made that memorable declaration.

It is the religion of Jesus Christ—its grace as well as its truth—which is needed to transform the life and conduct and character of the nations, whether nominally Christian or avowedly heathen.—Bishop Hall.

BECAUSE HE ROSE.

Lizzie De Armond.

Because He rose, a glad new day is breaking,
White lilies blossom by the open tomb,
O'er vale and hill a golden light is gleaming,
The sleeping earth awakes to joy and bloom.
The violets in quiet nooks are hiding,
The ice bound streams in sunlit meadows run,
The robins sing upon the budding branches,
The victory of life is fully won.

Because He rose, the winter of our sadness
Has passed away before the breath of spring;
The prisoning ice has melted from our heart-doors,
The living Christ new hope to all doth bring.
His touch of grace has lifted us triumphant
Above the doubts and fears that would enthrall;
Because He rose, we see the heav'nly vision,
Respond with joy unto His loving call.

THE EVIDENCE CONVINCING.

Dr. Thomas Arnold, professor of history at Oxford (England), speaking once of the certainty of the historical evidence on which the resurrection of Christ rests, said: "Thousands and tens of thousands have gone through it piece by piece, as carefully as ever judge summed up in a most important legal cause. I have myself done it many times over, not to persuade others, but to satisfy myself. I have been used for many years to study the history of other times, and to examine and weigh the evidence of those who have written about them, and I know of no one fact in the history of mankind which is proved by better and fuller evidence of every sort, to the understanding of a fair inquirer."

ITS NATURE NOW UNKNOWN.

We do not know the nature of the resurrection life. From a seed we cannot tell the nature of the plant that will grow from its life. From the larva we cannot foresee the beauty of the image, till the butterfiy spreads its wings. From the fading leaf we could not understand how the life of the tree is advanced, not only in spite of the blight of dissolution, but also even by the fading of the leaf. The fact of the better life beyond this vale of tears cannot be disputed. The process we may safely leave with our Heavenly Father, till we shall know even as we are known.— Rev. A. William Lewis, in Christian Work.

THE POWER OF AN ENDLESS LIFE.

Two pre-eminent holy days there are in the circling Christian year, Christmas and Easter. If the first with its jollity and gifts is beloved of children, the second has a peculiar place in the hearts of those who have ceased to be children, who have met both the maturer joys and the sorrows of life and whose journey is steadily on toward the sunset. Granted that Easter holds no great inspirations for the sensualist, for the evil liver, for the mentally or spiritually inert, it will ever be for the man of earnest life and clear thought a high festival of light and gladness.

The hope that glows in myriads of human hearts at this season springs from the conviction that there is something in these human lives of ours that shall survive that ultimte earthly experience we call death. It is a confidence that men have always held. You cannot eradicate it any more than you can the primal instincts of hunger and thirst. The scholar Sayce tells us that "Food and drink were offered to the Babylonian dead as they were to the Egyptian, and the objects the dead man had loved during his lifetime were deposited in his grave. His seal was attached to his wrist, his spear or staff was laid at his side, and at times even dates or fish or poultry were buried with him, lest he might feel hungry in the darkness of the tomb. The child had his favorite toys to play with, the woman her necklace of beads. The water jar was there filled with the pure water for which the dead thirsted."

It is no new thing, this hunger for immortality and this confident expectation of it. We of the 20th century simply share the conviction of men in all lands and in all ages that death does not end all. Tennyson's words in "In Memoriam" are a universal confession:

Thou wilt not leave us in the dust,
Thou madest man—he knows not why—
He thinks he was not made to die;
And thou hast made him; thou art just.

In this conviction is a boundless power. We begin to live well when we live as immortals. A new dignity comes upon man when he thinks of himself as a forever creature. We can make the best of disappointment, stand failure with braver heart and be comforted in sorrow in the thought of a nobler realm of experience beyond this present.

Half the sorrow of life comes from the sense of pitiable incompletion. The worker finds the tool scarce fitted to his hand when he must drop it. The author lays down the pen forever with his greatest thoughts unuttered. Auspicious friendships are severed. Happy homes are broken in upon. Love is constantly defeated in its objects. Splendid purposes are thwarted. At times the world may easily appear as a chaos untouched by rhyme or reason. Naught but faith in an intelligent and benevolent Creator who has fashioned man as one "not made to die" but for a vast and an eternal career will give us courage in the face of every problem.

The songs and the flowers of Easter summon us anew to the realization of a transcendant fact. We are heirs of immortality. Who with that heritage is willing to live wholly for the gain or pleasure of the moment? Who will rest satisfied with present victories, or be unwarrantably cast down over temporary defeats? Let the old Grammarian in Browning's noble poem teach us:

Others mistrust and say, "But time escapes;
Live now or never."
He said, "What's time? Leave now for dogs and apes.
Man has forever."

—The Christian Intelligencer.

THE WORLD AT EASTER-TIME.

By C. A. Battle.

Jesus Christ, our Savior, conquered death by rising from the dead over nineteen hundred years ago. In spite of the precautions taken by the Roman government to guard the tomb by sealing the entrance and placing a stout band to keep watch, Christ rose from the dead early on the Sabbath and an angel sat at the door of the sepulchure saying to those who came and inquired: "He is not here: for he is risen, as he said." All Christendom will rejoice at this time over the glory of the resurrected Lord, for through this stupendous fact men know they have immortal life.

Such a mighty ministry ought, from its very nature, to have a savory and wholesome effect upon the human race by way of smoothing out its path, settling its difficulties, lifting its aspirations above the merely temporal, and bring peace and happiness over all the earth. Every individual, in coming under the influence of the gospel, should be converted from an existence of a miserable product of the natural world into a being of supernatural aspirations. That was the purpose of Christ's death and resurrection.

His mission has been verified very largely by the product of the past centuries. All the world has felt the touch of Christ's influence except a few benighted countries which it seems to have been impossible for the missionary to reach. Some parts of Mongolia, Manchuria, Central Asia, and many parts of Africa are open, but have not been occupied by Christian missions. Tibet, Nepal, Bhutan, and Afghanistan are closed to all Christian work. French Indo-China and the French possessions in Africa are not occupied by missionaries because of government opposition. But the vigor and conquering spirit of the Kingdom have been manifested in such a way that the world realizes that Christianity will never be satisfied until every nation has had the opportunity to hear and accept the gospel.

What has shocked the millions who believe in the risen Lord, however, is the state of almost universal belligerency that so suddenly darkened the horizon of Christendom about eight months ago. Such a state of affairs was hardly thought to be possible among the civilized nations. Today Germany, Austria, Turkey and their allies are in deadly conflict with England, France, Russia and other small nationalities. The Christian State of Belgium was ravished by three millions of invading Germans; then took place the terrific Battle of the Marne which was the death-knell of the hopes of the Kaiser to become the conqueror of the world. But in the East about Warsaw and Przasnysz the Germans battered against an army of Russians consisting literally of millions of men. Russia at the same time was advancing in Austria, taking the fortifications of Przemysl in Galicia. The news comes also of the combined fleets of France and England bombarding the Dardanelles with fearful loss to their great ships by floating mines. There seems to be no indication when the conllict will cease, since the armies of France and England are drawn up against those of Austria and Germany in the West, and the gigantic army of Russia is opposing those of Germany, Austria-Hungary and Turkey in the East. The English channel is sown with mines, the North Sea is a submarine arsenal, and hundreds of ships are being sunk in this warfare.

Besides all this, Japan is making excessive demands upon China which threatens the national respect of the latter nation. This is a source of anxiety to the nations. Mexico seems to be in a worse state than ever before. An American has been slain and all foreigners are threatened within the bounds of that torn and blood-stained republic.

Such is the condition of the world at this moment, at this Easter time, when the resurrection of our Lord is being celebrated in our churches and homes. The spirit of the Master is grieved at the rivers of hate and envy and vengeance that are being allowed to run free. A year ago the world was at peace save for the trouble in Mexico, which appeared to be in a fair way toward solution. But now these calamities have overtaken civilization. Christianity, however, has not been discredited in the least by such conditions. The rulers of the nations, the rich of earth, have as a class always refused to abide by the spirit of the Master. They hold sway in the temporal affairs of men and it is within their power to bring into existence almost any kind of conditions. Diplomacy, backed by selfishness, is the god of nations. When that fails, warfare is the last resort. One should never think that all the millions of people involved at present in the wars are favoring them, or are even in sympathy with them. Just a few of those in power can bring calamity upon the whole world. Somebody is responsible for this condition, but it does not seem to be the masses of people in Europe who have brought this catastrophe to pass. One ruler among the great powers may by his arbitrary acts bring about a state of chaos. One ruler may be bearing the sins of the millions as they slay others. Certainly two rulers could throw the world into convulsions.

The question has often been asked: "Has Christianity failed?" Evidently it has failed to reach some one heart, at least. But this spectacle is presented to our notice every day. Should one of the many of the godless men we meet upon the streets at any time be placed upon a responsible throne, he would perhaps immediately become the cynosure of all eyes for his tyrannical and radical acts. The present war is an evidence of the disaster that may result from leaving even a few men without the bounds of the Kingdom of God. Every drunkard, every thief, should be Christianized. They may work disasters in their limited spheres that are proportionately as hurtful as those wrought by a king or an emperor who is not a Christian. We need never be surprised at the anomalies taking place in the moral and spiritual world as long as there are men, even though they be few, who are without Christ in their hearts.

Baton Rouge, La.

THE NEW ORLEANS POSTAL SERVICE AND ITS NEW QUARTERS.

By Rev. A. J. Gearheard.

On March 1, 1915, Hon. Joseph Voegtle, postmaster of New Orleans, Hon. George V. Fuchs, assistant postmaster, and Mr. John W. Fagan, superintendent of malls, bade farewell to their old domicile in the Custom-House building on Canal Street and moved their effects into the new two-million dollar, white marble post-office building on Camp Street, just one block from the Advocate office. It was our privilege to meet Mr. Fuchs, Mr. S. M. Angell, acting custodian of the building, and Mr. H. M. Robinson, Superintendent of the 12th Division of Railway Mail Service, whose headquarters are in New Orleans, and with these gentlemen personally to inspect this magnificent structure and by them be informed as to how Uncle Sam transacts business in his largest establishment in the South. Having been born on a farm in Missouri, and having ridden daily to a little country post-office and waited patiently for the mail after the arrival of the morning train, and since then having had a varied experience with post-offices of all sizes, from medium down, it is not surprising that the line of questions we were prepared to ask about the new post-office building and the work of its force tended to show our own ignorance rather than to call forth information that would instruct the public. But my hosts were polite and well-posted men, and after two hours in their presence, I felt as if I really knew a little about the post-office business.

Here are a few statistics: There are 45 colored letter carriers, 115 white carriers, 6 colored clerks, 209 white clerks and 15 women, besides the officers of the post-office, who are constantly employed in handling the mail that passes to and from the people of New Orleans. These persons work in the main building, three lettered substations, and 31 numbered stations that are scattered throughout the city. In order to keep the building clean and safeguard the health of its swarm of workers, 25 persons are constantly engaged in caring for the appearance of the structure; water is filtered four times and then run through coiled cooling pipes and distributed to scores of sanitary fountains throughout the structure; individual lockers and individual shower baths are provided for every workman, and the color line is strictly drawn; lounging rooms, dining and lunch quarters, a free library and reading room, and rest rooms are conveniently located for all the employees. There are distributed throughout the building 400 cuspidors, 124 of which are brass, all placed on rubber mats. Thus, the "don't spit on the floor" sign is re-enforced by a suggestive convenience to spit elsewhere. Every room in the building is an outside room, and daylight and fresh air are everywhere. On dark days and at night the whole building is turned into a white glow by hundreds of electric lights concealed and distributed by the indirect lighting system.

This great institution is a money-making one for the United States. It seems strange that such a force is maintained when the largest amount that can possibly be charged for any article sent is $2.40 and the major part of its income is derived by the sale of one and two cent stamps and the sale of money orders. Yet this business is immense. More than 20,000 letters are received every hour of the 24 of each day, and a stamping machine that cancels 750 stamps per minute is kept in constant action. A force of ten men are kept busy day and night doing nothing but assorting these letters in order to feed them to this stamping machine. The Postal Savings Bank, under the same direction, also comes in for its share of attention. There is now $200,000 on deposit here, and more than 1000 persons are regularly patronizing this branch of the post-office.

Accompanied by an inspector (always an inspector eyes the stranger in the building, and so well planned is the building that one can be watched by hidden eyes at every angle of the structure), Mr. Angell piloted us from the ground floor to the top of the building. We saw the offices of the United States Marshal, of the Weather Bureau, the Bureau of Animal Industries, and other governmental institutions that are domiciled in the structure.

Possibly of more interest than any others, were the three great court rooms that are located on the second floor. These rooms have been constructed with a view to beauty as well as serviceableness. The light distribution is artistic. Great balls of fire supported on brass eagles shed the main light throughout the United States District Court room, while here and there are clusters of smaller lights always reflecting their rays on the predominating emblem, the brass American Eagle. The floors are inlaid with cork, the pews are quarter-sawed oak costing $75 apiece, and the great windows lift themselves above the third floor, making the hall up stairs a gallery where visitors can look down on the court below in action. In the room of the Federal Court of Appeals, the American Shield is the predominating emblem, while in the United States Circuit Court, the fiery brass serpent is the prevailing one. In all three, the walls are constructed of black gum wood which is mounted in solid column panels from the floor to the ceiling. The United States District Court room is said to be the most beautiful hall of justice in the United States.

Before touching the last item of large interest, it is well to mention that this whole building is kept at an equal temperature. Brass thermometers are visible almost everywhere, and each one registers in one room, which is the chief engineer's office. The engineer is able to raise and lower every window in the building from his room. A great clock, known as the Master Clock, the case of which cost $300 and the pendulum $75, is connected with a clock in every room. As it ticks away the seconds, every clock in the building automatically records the time.

Our last visit was to the desk of Mr. H. M. Robinson, Superintendent of the Railway Mail Service in Louisiana and Mississippi. Under him are three chief clerks, who are located at New Orleans, Meridian and Memphis. Employed by him are 600 clerks, and his department is indeed a post-office on wheels. These 600 clerks ride every day 10,291.54 miles on steam railroads, 77.69 miles of electric roads, and 503.5 miles by water. They handle every piece of mail that enters or leaves Louisiana and Mississippi, and so perfectly are they trained for this work that it is a rare thing that a letter is lost or a mail pouch is delayed or sent astray. These clerks are, in a sense, the slaves of the United States. They know no regularity in the hours of their employment, their lives are hung by a thread every hour they work, they never know a holiday nor a holy day, and yet from the standpoint of efficiency, they perform their tasks with as much precision while trains cover miles over varied roadbeds as do the clerks working in steam heated buildings surrounded by every modern convenience. And this is the more amazing when it is known that almost 50 per cent of these clerks are colored men.

Now and then a letter is lost, but the railway clerks are seldom found at fault. Most letters go astray because the writers fail to address them legibly or completely. Mr. Robinson said that if he could issue one order that would make the United States railway mail service next to perfect, it would be directed to the senders of letters and not to his clerks. It would be: "Write your own return address plainly on every letter you send; fully prepay every package, and address the letter full and plainly." He said that his division was so well operated that every three months new maps of all the States are distributed showing every post-office and rural route; new train schedules are issued showing the time made by every mail train in the United States, and every fault or failure of any person or system is handed down as a lesson to every clerk so that future conduct and service may ever grow better and swifter.

We take off our hat to the gentlemen who have charge of the new post-office building in New Orleans. Their courtesy is only surpassed by the efficiency of the service they are rendering the people of Louisiana and Mississippi as the employees of Uncle Sam.

THE HOLMES STORE

OF NEW ORLEANS

is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

COLLEGE WOMEN AS MOTHERS.

It is a matter of observation that often the college woman makes the best mother. She may not be the happiest girl of her mother's flock, the most popular belle in society or the most domestic or adaptable bride, but when she has children all the inherited lore of motherhood, supplemented by a trained, disciplined mind familiar with facts, is hers.

The college woman does not stupefy her infant with drugs, nor bind it with bands or iron-threaded linen, nor feed it with pork fat or sugar, nor dose it with herb tea, nor dress it like a doll, nor "show it off" to strangers. She studies that individual child, and all the lore of her college days becomes transfigured in mother love. As her children grow older the college woman travels on with them exultantly, finding new joy with every year and growing young in heart and sympathies as times goes by. And you may be sure her girls will all be college girls and her boys all college boys unless there are some who are better without such training, in which case she will know enough not to force the wrong sort of educational experience upon unwilling or unappreciative learners.—Woman's Home Companion.

No man is so absolutely and deeply happy as he who makes the one question of his life, "What is God's will concerning me?" and the one endeavor of his life to follow that will when it is revealed.—Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, D. D.

TAKING STOCK.

Every year the careful business man takes stock. He does it in order to take a square look at himself as a business man. He does it in order to have reliable information upon which to base his plans for another year's work. It is a good thing for a Christian to do the same in relation to the year's labors for the Master. It is a good thing for the Church to do in relation to every enterprise in which she is engaged. The merchant who finds that he is losing money on one line generally closes out that line, unless it is a feeder for his other business lines. But when he finds that a leader brings him customers who purchase articles on which he makes a profit, he continues that leader even at a loss to his business. I knew a merchant who sold sugar at a half-cent per pound less than wholesale cost. He did that in order to get trade.

I propose now to take account of stock as a Church. We have our department called the Sunday school. It is a great department. We find that it not only pays all expenses, but it is returning to the Church large sums for missions and feeding the Church with large numbers of members. Good for the Sunday school! We will enlarge our business of promoting the Sunday school and will make it even greater during the next year than it has been during the past year. There is the Epworth League. It is a little hard to get clerks to handle the line, but on the average it has been a good investment. We find that those who are trained in that department make fine general managers and leaders in other departments when they grow older. Here is the report of the Woman's Missionary Society. We feel like taking a day off and celebrating when we read it. Nothing there but profit from the beginning to the end. Of course we have to be tactful now and then in order to keep all the clerks working with none active but gentlemen floor-walkers, but the ladies get results and we are willing to increase that department.

Now, let us take a look at the educational department. Here we clear our throat and sharpen our pencil anew. The first look does not show any profit. In fact, we discover that almost every other department was drawn on during the year in order to meet the expenses of that department. We look again. Just over the way the State is running a big lead in her educational department. She has fixed it up and put in better equipment than we have and pays her force bigger salaries than we do, and she is getting the business. The path is hot from the friction of feet hastening to the State's educational department. We hear a suggestion from some one that the thing to do is to close out our educational department and patronize the State altogether.

Now we have come to the place where real business sense must be used. We discover that the heads of almost every department in Church work had their training in our educational department. It has contributed ultimately more in leadership to the Church than any other department. It is run at a loss, but men are not measured by their present worth alone, but by the ultimate possibilities that are in them. Without this educational department, we must depend on some one else to prepare for us our leaders. A hospital had just as well try to run indefinitely without a school for the training of nurses as for a Church to try to run without a school for the training of her leaders. A machine shop had just as well do away with its apprentice helpers as for the Church to do away with her small colleges. The farmer had just as well quit raising and breaking his own colts as for the Church to attempt to go into the market and bid for her trained leaders. We must have men and we must make them. We must have trained men and we must train them. We have the College at Centenary and, although it is necessary for us to place an assessment on the other departments of the Church in order to maintain that institution, let us raise the money and enlarge it that we may have greater leaders trained at home in the future.

OUR SPECIAL EDITION.

In order that the special campaign edition of the Advocate may reach the largest possible number of people, and thus present the situation as to our educational interests as widely as possible, it is requested that all interested send in their orders promptly for extra copies at the rate of 10 copies for 25 cents, 25 copies for 55 cents, 50 copies for $1.05, etc. Orders should reach the Conference Secretary, Rev. W. W. Drake, by April 5.

RETURNS FROM THE CENTENARY SPECIAL.

The above report of the treasurer of our Conference Board, which was made on March 26, within less than a week of the time set by the Conference for the completion of the raising of the Centenary Special, shows that returns have been received from only 20 charges out of 146, and that less than $500 out of the $6000 has been reported. It is to be hoped that the next report, which will include all reports up to April 1, will add a large number of reports, and a large amount of money to this total. Within the next two weeks at least 100 charges ought to be heard from. Several of the pastors reporting have sent in only a part of their assessment, and have added the statement that a great many difficulties have interfered with and retarded the collection, but that they would continue till the whole amount was in. This indicates in some quarters a commendable spirit of persistent effort, and shows that much good work is being done.

The reports show by districts as follows:

Baton Rouge District 9 charges report	$191.75
New Orleans District, 5 charges report	177.15
Ruston District, 3 charges report	35.45
Shreveport District, 2 charges report	47.00
Monroe District, 1 charge reports	6.75
One individual contribution	5.00
Total	$462.10

Let the work be vigorously pushed!

EFFICIENCY CONFERENCE HELD.

Dear Brother Meek: At the call of Bishop Waterhouse all the presiding elders of the North Mississippi Conference came together at West Point, March 23, for the Efficiency Conference which be had announced at Starkville. The meeting closed yesterday at noon, March 25, after two and a half days' earnest study of the needs and conditions of the church in North Mississippi. This, I believe, is the first gathering of the kind ever held in our Conference. Many aspects of the work could not be thoroughly reviewed because of the short time to give to the inquiries. But many other matters did receive full consideration, and, beyond question, this Efficiency Conference will mark new things for our Methodism.

I am sure that each presiding elder went away from West Point with a clearer vision of his own work and the work of the Conference as a whole; and that he will himself know better than before how to get the best out of his own ministry; and will be the better enabled to help the preachers of his district. Every preacher and every charge was reviewed. Especially were the younger ministers of the Conference given careful consideration as to how they might be helped to a larger service. Most pastors succeed better at some point than at others. The question was, How might each be made stronger at his weakest point?

In some respects we are not, as a Conference, doing what we might. This study of our entire work has shown us where we need most to place the emphasis. For instance, the survey revealed to us that many of our preachers are not baptizing as many infants as they should. Quite a number report no infant baptisms at all. Where lies the fault? Is it because they have not sufficiently instructed our people in this matter? Are we preaching on these doctrines as we should? It was learned that in many places the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was not being administered as often as it should be. Why? And thus we went through the entire work and sought to know just what should be done to bring our Church to the largest usefulness.

Now, following this Conference of the Elders, Bishop Waterhouse has planned to go to and conduct each district conference and make a still closer study of the work. I dare say that when he is through with his enquiry as to the work at the district conferences he will be prepared to give us at New Albany, should he be returned to the supervision of our Conference, a more intelligent administration than any Bishop ever gave us. He will have the very latest facts direct from the charges.

Brother Mitchell, our pastor at West Point, was conducting a revival meeting while we were there, and on Wednesday night the Bishop preached a great revival sermon from Amos 4:12. His utterance had all the marks of evangelistic fire. It made a great impression on an immense congregation.

The presiding elders arranged a schedule for the district conferences, that the Bishop has agreed to hold, which I am sending you.

Columbus, Miss. W. W. WOOLLARD.

(The schedule of district conferences referred to by Brother Woollard may be seen in our "Calendar" in this issue of the Advocate.—The Editor.)

The Woodmen of the World of Louisiana held their Sixth Biennial Convention at the Grunewald Hotel in this city last week. It was reported that nearly 1000 delegates were in attendance.

A BRIEF SUMMARY.

I am glad that Brother Felts admits that I did not "cuss, cuff, nor kick him." As calmly and dispassionately as I could, I sought only to weigh two of his suggestions in the time honored scales of "wise and fair." I never kick, cuss, nor cuff anybody; however much they may kick, cuss, and cuff me. I long ago learned that incontrovertible truth, fairly spoken, is the most effective and most Christian weapon known, and that hurling epithets, knocking, slashing, and cutting, is but the raising of a cloud of dust to hide weakness and confusion. I desire always only a fair and courteous discussion of the principles involved.

In my first article I sought to hold the Conference to a recognition of the fact that we are not independent individual units, but parts of a great whole; correlated units in a great organism—the Church; and that in all of our activities we must remember and act in harmony with this organism of which we each form a part. In the first suggestion which I weighed, Brother Felts seemed to forget this in the plan announced, and intimated that others might well follow his example. He stated:

"It is my purpose to give the brethren written examinations this winter by correspondence. I believe all the committeemen might do this."

He ignored completely the existence of the Correspondence School, provided by the Church for this very purpose, suggesting no exception, and recommending a like course of private correspondence work to other committeemen. When I called attention to this, what a change! It is, in his reply, only one worthy brother who has not the ten dollars to whom he consents on request to give a correspondence examination; adding however that thereupon he offered similar work to the rest. In his last article it is only "to those who could not or would not take the Correspondence Course." Had this been Brother Felts' original statement I should have had nothing to say, though I should still have felt that to provide the ten dollars, as I am offering to do in a similar case, and give the young man the better opportunity which the Correspondence School affords would have been a wiser and as brotherly a plan. But he suggests no exceptions in his original statement, "I am going to give the brethren," as though the whole class were included; and recommends his course to other committees. I never belonged as a "boy preacher" to any such hunting club as he describes. The folks to whom I preached would have called any man a fool who would have wasted fifty-two cartridges on one squirrel; but if I did not bring down my game that time I never struck the mark in my life.

In my second article I discussed the relation and attitude of the Conference toward its standing Boards and Committees, and affirmed that, as in all legislative, congressional, and other bodies, the attitude of the Conference should be that of confidence in and prepossession in favor of these Boards and Committees, as opposed to a distrust of them, recognizing, of course, the place of debate, as in all such bodies. Brother Felts' article breathed, it seemed to me, and tended to spread, the spirit of disaffection and distrust, which spirit I do not believe to be either right, justified, or wholesome in its effects upon a Conference. Let the spirit of disaffection and distrust spread far enough and the whole structure of Methodism is undermined.

I am not surprised at Brother Felts getting a good many letters. The spirit of disaffection is already abroad; but that it "pervades and prevails," is, I am sure, not the case. Brother Felts terms this "a far more democratic spirit;" but let me tell you what it really is: It is the spirit of excessive individuality, incipient anarchy which is restless under any authority, can fit into nothing, is distrustful of everything but itself, and is only destructive in its tendency. Let Brother Felts and all of us beware of it. It has no place in the Kingdom of God.

As for the many flings in Brother Felts' articles at my education, at my logic, at my motives, at my sympathy even for the poor brother in his need, I have nothing to say. I discuss principles dispassionately; I do not attempt a personal vindication of myself. If my character, my record, my spirit towards even the humblest brother do not vindicate me, then I want not the vindication of mere plausible words. I have attacked nothing but principles, and I shall defend nothing but principles. That I understand to be my duty, as a lover of truth, and a Methodist preacher.

THE EASTER LILY.

A Flower Episode.

By Miss Virginia Bradford.

The Kingdom of Flowers was all astir; the long looked for day had arrived when a queen was to be chosen to rule over them. One Flower was to be acclaimed before all the loyal subjects as Queen of Love and Beauty, and each Flower in the realm had a chance to compete for this high honor. It was to be left to a pair of judges to decide which had the greatest claim.

The judges were none other than a pair of fond lovers, for who else have their hearts so attuned to a sense of the beautiful as these?

The whole air was filled with delicious perfume, for the Flowers were all gathering in groups before the judge's stand. Even the modest Violet and the Lily of the Valley had consented to leave their quiet homes down in the dell and contest for this high position.

Society Flowers of foreign birth, with high sounding names, deigned to mix with this crowd, conscious of their superiority, and each secretly believing she was to leave "My Lady's" hot house to reign "Queen of the Flowers."

The sweet little Crocus lifted her head up early in the morning, but finding so many belles of coarser fibre present, decided to retire; so she gently closed her eyes and was once more received to the heart of Mother Earth.

Fairy-Bells softly and sweetly rang out a welcome to the pair of judges, as they wandered hand in hand among the contestants. The maiden smiled on them, and they took encouragement.

Dahlias and Daffodils flaunted their gay crests before her; and away out yonder on the edge of the crowd Sir' Hollyhock and Lord Sunflower looked condescendingly on.

The maiden's heart was grieved by the display of vanity everywhere. At last her eyes rested upon a flower standing away off alone, with its root resting in the cool, damp earth, its exquisite white face raised to heaven, pure and spotless.

In her heart the maiden gave the crown to the Easter Lily; but the lover had gathered his arms full of Roses, and pressing their rich, red, velvety faces to his own, and with their fragrant breath mingling with his, he cried: "Long live the Rose, as Queen of Love and Beauty; may she ever be an inspiration to others, as she is to us!"

The maiden bowed her head in submission to his decree, but her eyes wandered wistfully to the Lily, and the Lily's heart was glad.

From that day, to this, that pure, sweet flower has consecrated her life to good works. Beside the tombs of our loved ones in the silent city of the dead, she still keeps vigil; her spotless face adorns the altar on the anniversary of our risen Lord, a fit type of his purity. And men have never looked upon her without an inspiration to a better life.

"And the butterfly and the honey-bee,
The sun, and sky, and air
They marked her heart with virgin gold,
In the satin leaves with spotless fold,
And her color, rich and rare.

So the fragrant soul, in its purity,
To sordid life tied down,
Will bloom to Heaven and no man know,
Seeing the coarse vile stem below,
How God hath seen the crown."

SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

June 22-July 1, 1915.

The most favorable indication as to attendance upon the Divinity School is that I am receiving more inquiries regarding the time of opening, etc., than ever before. This is gratifying to all who are interested in this very valuable institution to our ministry and people generally.

Rev. H. M. Ellis, who has charge of the Publicity department, will send out special notices right soon to all the preachers in the patronizing territory.

We are a little slow in getting the program full, but I hope to make an announcement soon giving the names of all the speakers.

Let every pastor in the patronizing territory make ready to attend the session IN FULL this summer.

Please let all the pastors, and others interested, remember that the date of the school is June 22-July 1, beginning on the evening of June 22, and closing with the noon hour on July 1.

Brookhaven, Miss. ROBT. SELBY, Pres.

GALLOWAY MEMORIAL PROGRAM.

The Galloway Memorial Program will be mailed out to the preachers and Sunday school superintendents of the Mississippi Conference early in April. The success which has attended the observance of this day in honor of Mississippi's greatest citizen has been truly gratifying. The collection the first year amounted to $131. The second year it reached $1000, and the third year the amount reported was $2,339.50. This has been accomplished largely by some of the smaller charges, only a few of the larger charges having so far responded. If every preacher and Sunday school superintendent will aid us this year we believe that after this year the interest on our loans will be added to the regular contributions for the support of our superannuated preachers. Surely, the old preachers have a right to expect this of the churches to which they gave their life's ministry. Now let us expect $5000 this year.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT AND OUR ORPHANAGE.

As nearly as possible let all the churches in the New Orleans District observe Easter Sunday as "Orphanage Day." No institution within the bounds of our Conference is more deserving of our support. No work we do is more thoroughly Christian than to provide for motherless and fatherless children. Every church in the Conference was assessed for the Orphanage last year. There is no assessment this year, but I sincerely hope there will not be a single church in the district that will pay less this year than last. For the sake of the Orphanage, we must do our best.

W. W. HOLMES.

Sir John French, the British Commander-in-Chief, is quoted as having made the following statement concerning the great European conflict: "I do not believe it will be a long war. Spring promises well for the Allies."

Exports from the United States during the month of February exceeded by $100,000,000 those of that month for any preceding year. The imports for February footed up to the sum of $125,123,391, against $148,044,776 for the same month in 1914.

Rev. R. P. Shuler, of Austin, Texas, recently wrote an article for the Texas Christian Advocate, entitled "A Confession," in which he dealt with the condition of the Church and spirit of the ministry in this day. His utterance seems to have stirred the waters considerably in the Lone Star State, and numerous replies to it have been made, some of them being far from courteous. In our opinion, there was much truth in what Brother Shuler had to say.

THE MILLSAPS CLUB OF EMORY UNIVERSITY, ATLANTA, GA.

We give above a group picture of the members of the Millsaps Club at the Candler School of Theology, the Biblical Department of Emory University. Each of these young men is a Mississippian and an A.B. graduate of Millsaps College. Four of them are members of the North Mississippi Conference, and one of the Mississippi Conference. As shown in the picture, they are as follows: First row—center, John W. Chisholm (Mississippi Conference), President of the Club; right, Olin Ray, Vice-President; left, J. Dausey Wroten. Top row—Left, J. Mark Guinn; right Robert H. Huff.

Statistics compiled from the records in the Secretary's office show that of the students in the Candler School of Theology 37 are college-degree men, as follows: B.S., 5; B.A., 32. Of the B.A. men 5 are from Millsaps, 3 from Trinity, 3 from Birmingham College, and 2 from Emory College. The remainder are scattered among other institutions. Mississippi Methodism is proud of her quintet of theologues at our new University. Trained in an atmosphere that is not only cultured, but also soundly Christian and thoroughly Methodistic, there is good reason to hope that these young ministers will prove a great blessing to the Church in the coming years.

WHEN TEETOTALLERS WERE PERSECUTED.

When Horace Greeley was a young boy back in the early part of the Nineteenth Century it was not considered disgraceful to get drunk. Nearly everybody drank, even children. When he was 13 years old he decided never to drink. In his "Recollections" he says:

"My resolve not to drink was only mentioned by me at our own fireside, but somehow became known in the neighborhood, where it excited some curiosity, and even a stronger feeling. At the annual sheep washing, in June following, it was brought forward and condemned, and I was ordered to take my glass of liquor, and, on my declining, was held by two or three youngsters older and stronger than I, while the liquor was turned into my mouth, and some of it forced down my throat. That was understood to be the end of my foolish attempt at singularity. It was not, however. I kept quiet, but my resolution was unchanged."

Imagine a state of public opinion where the decision of a boy to sign the pledge should arouse curiosity and "even a stronger feeling" in a community.—Kansas City Star.

EASTER IN GOD'S ACRE.

Emma A. Lente.

The beds are narrow, and so deep,
The tenants are so bound in sleep
They do not hear the bluebird's song,
Nor feel the soft wind drift along;
They do not see new grasses green,
Nor heed the flowers we lay between.

So near are they, yet far away
From us, their own, this Easter Day;
We may not smooth with tender touch
A head or hand we loved so much;
They sleep as if they could not hear
The pleading words we utter here.

Dear Lord, forgive us this one day,
If we would tear the veil away
Between us and their souls' estate,
So blind are we, so desolate;
They send no sign—no word to say
How blest they are this Easter Day.

Oh, happy heaven, so fair, so far,
We think how safe its bulwarks are,
How glorious the light within,
Where a new song new saints begin;
At last, half comforted, we say:
"God keep you, dears, this Easter Day!"

MARY OF MAGDALA.

Rev. E. Stuart Best, D. D.

"Last at the cross, first at the tomb."

Weeping o'er a shattered tomb,
Stood Mary, crushed with grief;
The rising sun dispels night's gloom,
But brings her no relief.
Her Lord, her Lord, her lifeless Lord,
Was stolen from her sight;
No joy, no joy, can earth afford,
Her morn is changed to night.

"Mary!"—a fond, familiar voice;
She knew that voice so dear;
It made her bounding heart rejoice.
She turned—her Lord stood near.
His bleeding feet she fain would kiss,
Her living Lord adore,
But others now must share her bliss,
Her cup of joy ran o'er.

"Go quickly, My disciples tell
The grave has lost its power;
With Me in glory they shall dwell
And reign forever more."
To Mary first this Gospel came,
To Mary first was given
This glorious Gospel to proclaim—
"The Lord, the Lord, is risen!"

THE EASTER HARE.

Sophia T. Newman.

"But, " asked Ruth, looking at her Easter cards, "what have hares and rabbits to do with it? They don't lay eggs."

"Oh," exclaimed Cousin Bess, "there is a pretty German legend about that!"

"Tell it," said Roger, closing his book.

"Well," said Cousin Bess, "first you must put your thoughts back several hundred years, and then you must put them far away across the ocean to a little village in the depths of the Black Forest in Germany. It was a very small village, and the people who lived there were very poor and very ignorant; knowing little except their work as charcoal burners.

"Not far from the village stood an old castle, where no one had lived for many years. It belonged to a rich Count, but as he had other estates in other parts of the land, he had never lived in this castle, and the villagers seldom thought of it.

"It was a great surprise when the Countess, with her two children, came there to live. She was dressed in deep mourning for her husband, and instead of a large number of servants, brought only one maid and a steward, named Hans, who looked after their affairs, and who had acted as coachman to bring their carriage through the forest road.

"The villagers stared in dull wonder when the little party passed, but after that, for a long time, they did not see the Countess again. She and the children kept closely within the castle.

"The truth was, that the Count had had an enemy, a robber Baron, who had given him much trouble, and when the news came of the Count's death in the war in the Far East, the Countess was afraid that the Baron might take them away as prisoners, and so she fled to the old castle in the Forest, with only the two trusty servants.

"But as months went by, and no one came to trouble them, the lady ventured out and became known to the villagers. She pitied them, and wanted to help them. But first she made little friendly visits to their huts until they came to love her, and then little by little she taught them to be neat and to make their homes clean and tidy. She was so sweet and gentle that they loved her more and more."

"She must have been like mother," said Ruth.

"Yes. Well, at Easter time the Countess planned a festival for the village children; and as it was warm spring weather, they played out of doors in the Castle park. The tea-tables were set there too, and all went merrily. Then one of the children spied a bright colored egg behind a green shrub, then another, and soon all the children began looking. They found eggs of all bright colors. Some had mottoes written on them, such as: 'Try, try again;' 'Speak the truth always;' 'God is Love;' and so on. The children were delighted. But where did such pretty eggs come from? That puzzled them.

"Just then a hare scampered across the grass, and one little tot cried out that the hare must have laid them!

"Now it happened that a young man, whom we may call Fritz, while traveling through the Forest, lost his way and wandered about till at length he came to the park gates, wherein they were having the good time. He was made welcome, and the next morning, when he went on his journey, three or four of the colored eggs were given to him as a souvenir.

"Fritz trudged sturdily on, mile after mile. At noon he sat down under the trees and ate the luncheon that had been put up for him at the castle. But he did not break the eggs. He meant to keep them as a token of the friendly welcome he had received.

"An hour or two more of walking brought him to a public road. As he walked along this road he suddenly heard a groan. Although it was a highway, it was wild and rocky in places, and as the youth looked about, he found a knight who had fallen from his horse and lay among the rocks, and, being unable to rise, he had lain there so long without food that he was very weak, hardly able to speak.

"Fritz brought water from a brook to the man. Then he broke some of the hard boiled colored eggs, feeding the sufferer a little at a time. For, although Fritz had intended to keep the eggs, he gladly gave them to help the fainting man. He kept only one—one with a motto on it.

"As the food and drink refreshed the wounded knight, Fritz helped him on his horse and walked beside him. By sunset they reached an inn, where the knight could stay until he was strong again. Before Fritz left him, he told the story of how he happened to have the eggs, and showed him the one with the motto on it.

"When the knight saw the writing he gave a glad little cry, and asked Fritz to tell him the exact way to the castle."

"The Count!" exclaimed Roger.

"Yes, it was really the Count. He had not been killed in the war, but taken prisoner, and now he was traveling about, trying to find his family. All this, you know, was before there were telephones, or the telegraph, or newspapers, or railroads."

"But why didn't he go home?"

"He had been home, where they had lived, but his family were not there, and no one knew where they were. He did not once think of the old castle in the Forest, for neither he nor his family had ever been there, and scarcely thought of it as more than an old ruin. So he was travelling sadly about, and might never have found them if it had not been for his fall, and Fritz coming with the eggs. The Count knew his wife's handwriting the moment he saw the motto. You may believe there was a happy meeting before long."

"I guess they hugged him," said little Ned.

"I guess they did! And they were so thankful for the way it had happened, that every Easter afterwards they made a children's festival, and had the pretty colored eggs. After a time other families did the same, and so the custom spread through the land. If a festival was not made, the eggs were scattered for the members of the family to find. And because of what that first little child had cried out, people fell into the way of saying pleasantly that the hare laid, or brought, the eggs.

"Tho hare and the rabbit are near relatives, you know, and both are called Bun-Bun, or Bunny. So Bunny finds his place on the Easter cards and in the Easter pleasures, even where it is forgotten, or perhaps never was known, how it began."

"Thank you, Cousin Bess," said Ruth.

HOW ABOUT IT?

What about the renewals in your charge, brother pastor? The European war is still going on, and so is the elimination of names from our subscription files. Do not your people need to read their Church paper? Some of the brethren are managing to continue practically all the subscriptions in their fields; but there are others who are letting them nearly all lapse. NOW is the time to lend the Conference organ a helping hand.

Our brain is a seventy-year clock. The Angel of life winds it up once for all, then closes the case and gives the key into the hand of the Angel of the Resurrection.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

Editorial

A WORD OF EXHORTATION.

To the Methodists of North Mississippi:

As you are doubtless aware, our Conference organ, the New Orleans Christian Advocate, is feeling the general financial depression; but it perhaps is more seriously affected than other interests because of the widespread disposition to economize in Church affairs during hard times and to begin with the Church paper first of all. This should not be so. The small subscription price will scarcely be felt by even our poorest members, but every subscription lost is immediately registered in the small and diminishing income of the Advocate.

We appeal most earnestly to our members throughout the Conference to renew their subscriptions without delay, and to our presiding elders and pastors to rally at once to the Advocate and do their utmost to sustain and build up its list of subscribers. The preachers realize how indispensable the Church paper is in helping on their pastoral work and forwarding all the interests of our great Connection. May we not appeal to them with confidence that they will not delay a single day in sustaining this great arm of service?

The Publisher is doing all that could be asked under present conditions, and our Editor is carrying a burden perhaps unequaled by any other occupant of the tripod in our Church. Help while the need is greatest, brethren, if you would render assistance where it is sorely needed.

Fraternally,

W. W. WOOLLARD,
H. S. SPRAGINS,
J. D. BARBEE,
Members of Publishing Committee for the North Mississippi Conference.

WHY APPOINT MINISTERS TO SUCH INSTITUTIONS?

Writing in the Wesleyan Christian Advocate of March 19, under the caption, "Our Nation's Honor and Responsibility," Dr. W. N. Ainsworth, the brilliant pastor of the Mulberry Street Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Macon, Ga., among other things, said:

"Evidently God wants to give America a new mission and the honor of deeper sacrifice in the service of the world than ever before. America can be the super-nation and no moderate language can fully state the possibilities in the immediate future of a great nation whose life is all vitalized by a fervent Christian faith, whose purposes run parallel with the plans of God, and whose resources are freely given for their accomplishment. It means a changed world; it means a redeemed world. Nothing that has ever been proposed has a larger bearing upon the fulfillment of these purposes, at least so far as the South and Methodists are related to them, than the building of a great Christian University in Atlanta. What our Nation is and does will be determined by the thought and principles that are furnished in our great institutions of learning. I can not indict them all, but no informed man can deny that the teaching of several of them is a thin veneered agnosticism. I know enough to make me believe that the Chicago University slaughters youth like Armour does hogs."

If this affirmation as to the influence of the University of Chicago and like institutions be true, and we do not think that it can be successfully controverted, wherein lies the good sense of our Church appointing young ministers as students in them? The object of allowing young preachers to lay aside the work of the itinerancy for the further prosecution of their studies is, if possible, to open the way for them to become more efficient in their high and holy calling; and unless an Annual Conference believes that the institution to which they propose to go will prove really helpful to them, it is difficult to see how it can afford to stand sponsor for such assignments. Particularly is this true where there is reason to think that the college or university in view is liable to exert an influence upon them that is positively harmful.

Why should a Methodist minister insist upon securing his equipment for his life-work in an atmosphere that is pronouncedly Unitarian, or which is shot through with higher criticism and rationalism? Or why should the Southern Methodist Church encourage by its sanction any such course of procedure? Under the persuasive flattery that we are a broad and progressive people, we have been led far afield in not a few respects, and this is one of them. The proper place to teach and train our preachers is in our own schools. Many of those who go to Yale, Harvard, and the University of Chicago come back seemingly with a shattered faith, with the notion that there is little wisdom south of Mason and Dixon's line, and with the view that our Church needs largely to be made over again. Is it not time that we were abandoning a policy that tends to afflict us with ministers of this type? This question is one which concerns our Bishops, as well as our Annual Conferences.

TOGETHER AGAIN.

Mrs. Mary Anna Jackson, the wife of the famous Confederate commander, General "Stonewall" Jackson, died at Charlotte, N. C., on March 24, 1915. She had been in a very feeble state of health since last August, but the immediate cause of her death was an attack of pneumonia. Mrs. Jackson was born near Charlotte on July 21, 1831, being a daughter of Rev. Robert Hall Morrison, who was a Presbyterian minister and the founder of Davidson College. She attended the Salem (N. C.) Academy and College, finishing in 1849. She married General Jackson in 1857, who then was a professor in the Virginia Military Institute, at Lexington, Va. Of this union two children were born, both daughters. One died in infancy; the other married Mr. Wm. E. Christian, but also passed away in 1889, leaving a daughter who married Mr. E. R. Preston, a lawyer in Charlotte. Mrs. Preston was with Mrs. Jackson during her last hours. Mrs. Jackson is said to have taken a great interest in military affairs and she wrote quite an interesting volume on the career of her lamented husband. The body of the deceased was carried to Lexington, Va., and interred by the side of that of the noble man with whom her fortunes were linked in life. It is a matter of interest to know that General Jackson has a grandson, Thomas Jackson Christian, who is a lieutenant in the United States cavalry now stationed in the Philippines.

BISHOP WATERHOUSE AT WEST POINT.

A correspondent writes us as follows concerning Bishop Waterhouse's recent visit to West Point and the impression that he made there while in conference with the presiding elders of the North Mississippi Conference:

"On Wednesday evening, March 24, Bishop Waterhouse preached a great sermon in the Methodist Church here from the text, 'Prepare to meet thy God.' It was a masterly exposition of the Prophecy of Amos, calling Israel to prepare for the judgments of God. He followed the exposition with a warning against sin and an exhortation to forsake it, and called upon the unconverted to prepare to meet God in peace. His sermon made a profound impression upon the large congregation, which taxed the capacity of the church. It had the old-time revival fire and showed him to be thoroughly evangelistic in thought and spirit. It was remarked by many that if the Church had not called this great preacher and churchman to its highest office of Chief Pastor, he might have become a great evangelist, as he has become a wise administrator. Few men of distinction have so favorably impressed our city. His large culture, perfect courtesy, simple, humble demeanor, and high ideals won the respect and love of all. The special attention that he gave the children in the audience was particularly impressive."

A DISTINGUISHED PUBLICIST DEAD.

Charles Francis Adams, publicist, historian, and author, died in Washington, D. C., on March 20. He was a grandson of President John Quincy Adams, and was born in Boston on May 27, 1835. He was just and magnanimous toward the South and advocated the erection of a monument to General Robert E. Lee at the National Capital. He held that the conferring of the right of suffrage upon 2,000,000 negroes who were unprepared for it, immediately after the close of the Civil War, was a great blunder. Of Mr. Adams, the New York World, in commenting upon his decease, said: "He did more than worthily wear his name; he added attainment and achievement to the long record of a family notable in American history."

REMEMBER THE ORPHANAGES.

In round numbers, there are 100 children to be cared for in the Louisiana Orphanage at Ruston and 200 in the Mississippi Orphanage at Jackson. These children are dependent upon the Church for their support. Brothers Vaughan and Williams have told us that they are without funds to care for them, and every Church and Sunday school has been asked to take an offering for that purpose next Sunday. Will you not see that yours does so, brother pastor? We feel sure that our people will respond nobly to this cause if it is faithfully laid on their hearts.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. C. C. Wier, of Morgan City, La., visited Franklin on Thursday, March 25, and was cordially welcomed by his many friends there.

Rev. A. J. Davis, of De Soto, Miss., gives us 2 new and 5 renewal subscriptions, for which we are grateful to him. He reports his work as moving along nicely.

Dr. J. T. Sawyer preached to the Lake View Presbyterian congregation last Sunday. He reports that the attendance was large and that his message was given close attention.

Dr. J. M. Henry, of Ruston, La., has our thanks for four subscriptions to the Advocate, forwarded on March 22. The work in that choice charge is flourishing under Dr. Henry's guiding hand.

Rev. E. S. Lewis forwards us from the University town of Oxford, Miss., 4 names for our subscription files. He is having a successful pastorate in the Athens of the Magnolia State.

Bishop W. B. Murrah will deliver the opening address at the Summer Institute of Theology, to be held in Jackson, Tenn., for the Memphis and Tennessee Conferences on June 1. We dare say that he will give the brethren an illuminating message.

Rev. J. W. Price, of Benton, Miss., who is one of the working pastors of the Mississippi Conference, favored us with five subscriptions and some encouraging words a few days since. He says: "The Benton charge is getting on well."

Rev. A. L. Davenport, of Walnut, Miss., says: "Brother J. H. Mitchell, our presiding elder, held our first quarterly conference on Saturday, March 13. We had a full attendance and the occasion was a profitable one. The present year bids fair to be the best of our four on this charge."

Rev. J. R. Countiss, President of Grenada College, attended the North Mississippi Woman's Missionary Conference at Corinth last week and spoke impressively concerning the work of the institution with which he is connected.

Hon. J. S. Sexton, of Hazlehurst, is being prominently mentioned as a candidate for the Supreme Bench in Mississippi. He is a worthy citizen and an able lawyer, and would wear the ermine with distinction. We say this without disparagement to any other aspirant.

Rev. T. B. Winstead, of Burns, Miss., states that he is serving a fine people and is hopeful of success in his work. He wants the Advocate as an assistant and is pressing its claims in his rounds. In his communication was enclosed a check for two renewals.

Rev. R. I. Collins, of Courtland, Miss., reports progress in his field and the Advocate is sharing in it. His letter brought us 3 new and 2 renewal subscriptions. We feel that we can always count on this zealous young itinerant to take care of the interests of the Conference organ.

A note to our office from Prof. J. S. Hudson, of Oxford, Miss., states that his health has not been good of late. We regret very much to know this, and we trust that he will soon regain his former strength and vigor. Brother Hudson takes a keen interest in all the work of the Church.

On account of a physical breakdown, Rev. R. B. Burks has found it necessary to give up his charge, the Longview (Miss.) Circuit, and Rev. J. F. Owen, a local preacher, has been appointed to succeed him. We trust that Brother Burks' afflictions will not keep him out of the work long.

Mr. J. F. H. Barbee, of Memphis, Tenn., accompanied by Mrs. Barbee, left last week for Cleveland, Ohio, where he has gone for surgical treatment. We pray that he may pass safely through the ordeal and soon be back in the Bluff City, free from every trace of disease and suffering.

Dr. W. P. Few, President of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., says: "I am a constant reader of the New Orleans Advocate and have a high opinion of it. * * * My regard for Dr. F. N. Parker as a man, as a preacher, and as a servant of Trinity College, makes a close link that binds me to Louisiana Methodism."

Rev. R. S. Walton sends us 5 subscriptions from Bunkie, La., and we appreciate his efforts in behalf of the Conference organ. He states that some $1600 will be expended in improving our church at that place in the near future. Bunkie will have the honor of entertaining the Alexandria District Conference this year.

Rev. J. T. Abney, of Hay Springs, Miss., writes: "We are making an earnest effort to bring this charge to the front and make it one of the best in the Mississippi Conference. I talk up the Advocate both privately and publicly." Evidently Brother Abney's talk is doing good, as his letter brought us several subscriptions.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Myrtle, Miss., who was in attendance, reports that the recent Woman's Missionary Conference at Corinth was a great gathering. He states that Bishop Waterhouse was at his best in the sermon which he delivered. He further says: "The people of all denominations are even now regretting that, because of the time limit, they will have to give up Brother Felts this fall."

Rev. D. E. Vickers, of Matherville, Miss., writes: "This is our first year on this charge. Brother A. S. Oliver, the former pastor, left the work in good shape. We have found many good people here. The parsonage has been made almost new within the last five years, and the ladies have put many useful things in it since we came here. We are expecting a good year and are working to that end."

Rev. G. A. Morgan writes as follows concerning the work at Opelousas, La.: "The Lord's cause is making progress in this charge. The attendance upon public worship is good and all the indications are encouraging. Notwithstanding the prevailing financial depression, our people are looking well after the material interests of the Church. We have expended $182 recently in improving the parsonage."

Rev. and Mrs. George H. Thompson, of Hattiesburg, Miss., will celebrate the 25th anniversary of their marriage, at their residence in Hattiesburg, on Saturday evening, April 10, from 8 to 10 o'clock. We acknowledge with thanks an invitation to be present on that occasion. We heartily congratulate Brother and Sister Thompson, and wish them much happiness and many more years of wedded life.

Rev. H. W. May, presiding elder of the Alexandria District, sends us the following note: "Rev. P. H. Fontaine has just closed a house-to-house visitation in his charge—Trout and Good Pine—and he found more than 200 Methodists having membership at various places whom he hopes to enroll as members on his work this year." Pastoral visitation has lost none of its value as a means of building up the Church and Kingdom.

Dr. J. C. Barr, pastor of the Lafayette Presbyterian Church of this city, discussed last Sunday the recent decision of the Louisiana Supreme Court concerning the reading of the Bible in the public schools of the State and the will of the late John McDonogh. He handled the subject in an informing and masterful manner.

Rev. W. S. Selman, of Mount Pleasant, Miss., speaks in terms of high appreciation of his flock. He has lately been addressing himself to the task of getting the parsonage improved, and repairs costing $150 have been made on it. We acknowledge our indebtedness to this diligent worker for 2 new and 2 renewal subscriptions to the Advocate.

Rev. Wiley J. Ferguson is much pleased with the Mount Olive (Miss.) charge. He says: "The good people are treating us kindly and I am trying to give them my best service." Brother Ferguson is looking after the interests of the Conference organ in his field, and we highly appreciate his efforts to place it in the homes of his people.

Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Birmingham, Ala., has lately been conducting for Rev. J. L. Neill, the pastor of First Church, Laurel, a very helpful series of revival services. The local papers devoted an unusually large amount of space to the meeting. Sister Bowen was also in Laurel, and rendered most efficient assistance as a worker in the revival.

Rev. D. L. Cogdell has been appointed pastor of our Second Church at Corinth, Miss., in place of Rev. Thomas Mills, who had to give up his work on account of the ill health of his wife. We are glad to see this worthy veteran in the harness again, though we regret to be informed of Sister Mills' illness, from which we pray she may soon recover.

The Denham Springs (La.) charge is forging forward under the leadership of Rev. W. A. Mangum. Two new churches are in prospect in the near future, and another later on. Brother Mangum says: "The Duplex envelope system works well on a circuit if it is worked." This energetic pastor is also giving the interests of the Advocate a share of his attention.

Rev. W. W. Woollard, presiding elder of the Columbus District, writes: "Rev. W. C. Galceran has made a magnificent start on his charge—the Columbus Circuit. He is an earnest worker and I know of no man who is more popular with his people. Everybody is delighted with his pulpit and pastoral work. I look for him to have a fine year." We are glad that Brother Galceran has returned to North Mississippi.

We have just learned of the death of Mr. T. J. Poitevent, of Shelby, Miss., an esteemed citizen of Bolivar County and a loyal supporter of our Church. He was in every respect a true and worthy man and he will be greatly missed in the community in which he lived. He had been ill for several months and had suffered much. We sincerely regret that he has gone from us, and we extend to the stricken loved ones our deepest sympathy.

Rev. A. R. Hoffpauir, of Jennings, La., while in the city last week attending the Louisiana Woodmen of the World Convention, favored the Advocate office with a call. He stated that Rev. F. J. McCoy, our pastor at Jennings, has lately secured a fine lot for a parsonage on the main street in the town and that plans are now being arranged to erect on it a home for the preacher. It is expected that this enterprise will be consummated during the present year.

Rev. J. C. Rousseaux, of Zwolle, La., was in the city last week, having been brought here by the W. O. W. Convention. This is Zwolle's first year as a station, and Brother Rousseaux says that she is going it alone with a goodly degree of success. The "Centenary Special" has been raised and sent in, and a meeting is being planned for the near future. This young station is fortunate in having as its pastor one of the livest workers in the itinerant ranks in Louisiana.

Rev. J. C. McElroy sounds a hopeful note from Mashulaville, Miss. He is busy in the Master's service and is expecting gracious results to follow from his labors. His letter brought an order instructing us to send the Advocate into four homes for another year. Brother McElroy has lately had a very sick child and has had to carry him to Columbus for an operation. We are pleased to be informed, however, that the little one is now thought to be doing well.

It is with much pleasure that we copy the following from the Franklin (La.) Weekly Watchman of March 27: "During the recent revival at the Methodist Church at this place 51 new members were added to the roll. A reception was held at the parsonage on Thursday night after the service at the church. Mr. Vaughan, the pastor, is doing splendid work, and he is doing it without the help of any one except the members of his faithful flock. * * * The class received is the largest that has been added to the Methodist church here in many years." A revival that takes place under the leadership of the pastor is apt to be of the very best type.

In the Methodist Church at Starkville, Miss., on Sunday evening, March 14, a sacred musical concert was given under the direction of Miss Jerome Sage, which elicited much favorable comment. It was of a high order in every respect and clearly demonstrated the unusual talent which Miss Sage possesses as a pipe organist and choir director. The Methodist congregation in Starkville is fortunate in having one so gifted in charge of its music and singing.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Myrtle, Miss., reported the proceedings of the recent session of the Woman's Missionary Conference of North Mississippi for the Times-Picayune and the Memphis Commercial Appeal, and did it well. We do not remember ever before to have seen our great New Orleans daily carry such full accounts of a similar meeting when so far away. Brother Cunningham is doing a good work in getting Church news so regularly into the secular press.

Dr. I. L. Peebles, of Wesson, Miss., makes the following supplemental report: "In my former note to you I forgot to mention the fact that the Wesson Methodist ladies gave us another 'pounding,' consisting of dress goods for Mrs. Peebles, preserves, stove fixtures, etc." This doesn't look much like Dr. Peebles is feeling the stringency of the times. But he was in the evangelistic work last year, and doubtless he can stand a good deal of kind treatment after twelve months of grazing on the commons.

Rev. D. L. Griffin will begin a meeting at Slidell, La., on April 16 and the services will continue through April 30. He will have with him Rev. Dan Kelly, the well known Mississippi Conference evangelist. The prayers of all Christian people are requested for the success of this revival campaign. Brother Griffin is quite hopeful about the work in Slidell. We regret to know that Sister Griffin had had quite a protracted attack of illness since the last Annual Conference, and we trust that her health will soon improve.

A Fanny Crosby Memorial service was held in our First Church at Baton Rouge, La., last Sunday evening and an offering was taken for the Memorial Building to be erected in honor of Methodism's sweet singer who has recently joined the celestial choir. We note from the Bulletin of this congregation that the church has recently been relighted with white globes hanging from the ceiling, and that Pastor Battle is making an effort to induce every one of his 30 stewards to become a subscriber to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

The two week's revival meeting which has been in progress at Alexandria, La., came to a close last Sunday night." According to the press dispatches, the whole community was profoundly stirred, there were several hundred conversions, and quite a number joined the Church. Dr. G. E. Cameron, the pastor, had with him in this meeting Evangelist D. L. Coale, of San Antonio, and his singer, Prof. Robt. Huston. It is reported that Mr. Coale has been invited to return to Alexandria in a few months and conduct a union meeting to be participated in by all the churches of the city.

The Wesleyan Bible Class of the Sunday school of the First M. E. Church, South, of New Orleans, has an enrollment of 100 and an average attendance of 60. There were 74 persons present on March 21. Mr. C. F. Niebergall is the teacher of this fine class, and the following are its officers: President, Mrs. J. Doud; Vice-President, Mrs. G. D. Tomb; Secretary, Miss T. C. Haygood; Treasurer, Miss E. M. Way; Librarian, Mr. J. Sypher; Press Reporter, Mr. J. W. Barrow. The Sunday school of First Church is doing a great work under the capable superintendency of Mr. I. N. Niebergall.

Rev. W. Fred Long, the hustling Secretary of the International Sunday School work in Mississippi and everybody's friend, was in New Orleans last Monday and found his way to the Advocate office, but the Editor, much to his regret, was out and missed seeing him. The 38th Mississippi State Sunday School Convention will be held in Tupelo, April 7-9. Reduced railroad rates and free entertainment may be had. All pastors, superintendents, and Sunday school workers are invited to attend. Many distinguished Sunday school specialists will be present and the occasion promises to be a memorable one.

The following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions sent in since the last issue of the Advocate: Rev. J. B. King, Vaughan, Miss., 4; Rev. Jas. G. Galloway, Philadelphia, Miss., 7; Rev. C. M. Crossley, Forest, Miss., 6; Rev. C. W. Baley, Water Valley, Miss., 2; Rev. L. F. Alford, Saucier, Miss., 2; Rev. I. L. Greening, Silver Creek, Miss., 6; Rev. D. L. Griffin, Slidell, La., 3; Rev. W. J. Dawson, Pelton, Miss., 4; Rev. Leon I. McCain, Dubach, La., 5; Rev. T. E. Yancy, Greenwood Springs, Miss., 3; Rev. J. Y. Bowman, Collins, Miss., 6; Rev. D. W. Babb, Crawford, Miss., 8.

Mrs. MARTHA SUSAN McGEEHEE passed peacefully to her eternal reward on March 20, 1915, at her home near Greensburg, La. She was born at her old home in the year 1838. She gave her heart to God at the age of 22 years and joined the Pine Ridge Methodist Church and remained a faithful member of that Church until her death. She was married to Mr. D. L. McGeehee about 47 years ago, and of this union were born one son and two daughters, who, with a number of relatives and friends, are left to mourn their loss. She was a faithful wife, a loving mother, and a kind friend. May those who were near and dear to her be ready to join her when the summons comes to them.

J. L. EVANS, Pastor.

Mr. O. B. MATHENY was born near Columbus, Miss., on June 11, 1828. He died near Coyt, Miss., on Feb. 1, 1915. He was married twice in life and was the father of sixteen children—seven sons and nine daughters. Both of his wives preceded him to the eternal world. He is survived by five children: R. J. Matheny, Mrs. W. H. Birch, of Texas, Miss Ella Matheny, Rev. O. B. Matheny, and Mrs. M. F. Day. Brother Matheny was a member of the M. E. Church, South, and lived a consecrated life for some years before his death. He was a kind husband and a loving father. His work on earth is done and the victory is won. Children, be cheerful; your father is not dead; he has only gone home. He has been transplanted to the heavenly land, and is singing the glad new songs among the angel bands. We would not call him back if we could. "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

D. E. VICKERS, Pastor.

Mrs. SUSAN NICHOLSON was born in Marion County, Ala., on Feb. 18, 1829. She moved to Paulding, the county seat of Jasper County, Miss., in 1855, and died on Feb. 11, 1915. At the age of 15 she joined the M. E. Church, South, continuing faithful till death. At the age of 19 she married Mr. W. S. Nicholson; and of this marriage were born ten children, only three of whom survive her—Rev. Joe Nicholson, a member of our Conference, Mrs. Vick, and Miss Lillie Nicholson. Many of our preachers will remember her because of the inspiration received from visits to her home. Although afflicted as she was for two years before her death, her faith in God and her love for the Church were never shaken. Her influence upon those who came in touch with her was to bring heaven nearer and to make Christ dearer to them. In health her aim was to help others in sickness and trouble; and in many ways she exerted an influence that will tend to make the world a better place to live in. We are glad that her loved ones weep not as those who have no hope. In the presence of many friends her body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Paulding, Miss. H. R. McKEE.

Mrs. SARAH JANE OVERSTREET (nee Hart), was born at Lewisburg, Tenn., on March 8, 1829. Near the age of fourteen she moved with her parents to Mississippi. During her early girlhood she joined the Antioch Baptist Church, and remained a consistent member during her long and useful life. When nineteen she was married to Mr. A. P. Overstreet, who preceded her to his eternal reward eleven years ago. This union was blessed with nine children. Six survive her: Mrs. W. O. McNeill and C. C. Overstreet, of Eucutta; Messrs. Henry H., of Matinburg, Texas; Harvey H., of Hattiesburg, Miss., A. A., of Bogalusa, La., and W. W. Overstreet, of Greensboro, Ala. The different relationships which she sustained in life were ever characterized by a patient, unselfish and sympathetic spirit, especially during the twenty years that she was an invalid. On February 22, 1915, about 10 a.m., surrounded by loved ones and sympathizing friends, she fell asleep in Jesus, entering into that eternal rest prepared only for those who love him and keep his commandments. Brief services were conducted that evening at the home in Eucutta by the writer, who also accompanied the grief-stricken family, on the following morning to DeKalb, where interment was made by the side of her husband, as the sun was sinking in the west. Her life was truly a benediction to all who knew her, and she left a rich Christian heritage, more precious than jewels. CHAS. E. DOWNER.

Mrs. H. C. BURCH, who for nearly twenty years had lived a noble Christian life in this community, during which time she bore with remarkable fortitude her severe afflictions, departed this life on Mar. 21, 1915. Mrs Burch was a Miss Sanford of Washita Parish, La., and was born in 1854, being one of a family of 15 children, only two of whom survive her. She was a cultured woman, belonging to the old Virginia aristocracy. She was of French descent, her forbears having settled in Louisiana early in the seventeenth century. Her early married life was spent in Holly Bluff and Memphis, Tenn., where she lived until the death of her husband 11 years ago, at which time she returned to Rolling Fork, Miss., and there remained until called higher to join her loved ones with Him who has said, "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord." For many years Mrs. Burch had been a great sufferer and through all the vexing and life-sapping effects of her malady, she maintained her courage and transcending faith in God, believing that he controlled each act of her life, and his love became more real to her in her suffering and sorrow. Mrs. Burch was one of the most talented woman to be found anywhere, and, notwithstanding her physical disabilities, she was a genial, social, amiable, gifted and untiring Christian worker, ready for anything to which she was directed by the leader of the Church or the necessity of the occasion. A controlling desire with her was to be faithful in all things. She leaves to mourn their loss, a sister, Mrs. C. W. Cochran of Meridian, Miss., a brother, Mr. Robert Sanford of Indianola, Miss., and a niece, Mrs. J. E. Fooks of Homer, La. Mrs. Burch's devotion to her Church and mission work was such that her sister, Mrs. Cochran, has asked the privilege of keeping her church dues and those of the missionary society paid as a memorial to the life of one who loved the Master's cause as she did her own life. To those who grieve we would say, in the language of the Scriptures, She was "kept by the power of God, through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed at the last time."

Her pastor,
C. M. CHAPMAN.

GEORGE W. MARTIN was born in Twiggs County, Georgia, on May 21, 1835, and died at his home in Pelican, La., on March 9, 1915. He was married to Miss Mary T. Pace on Dec. 8, 1857, at Fort Valley, Georgia, with Rev. George W. Persons officiating. Of this union were born ten children—four boys and six girls. Only two children survive: Mrs. Leia Hughes and Miss Ada Martin, of Pelican, La. He also leaves his companion and a number of other relatives and friends to mourn his death. Brother Martin professed faith in Christ and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when he was 16 years old and was faithful to his Master and Church to the end. The Church never had a more loyal member than he; for more than forty years he was diligent in service. He served as class leader, steward, and Sunday school superintendent, and as an appreciation of his work the members of the Sunday school marched by his remains during the funeral service and sang his favorite hymn, "I am going home to die no more," and each one laid a bouquet of violets on the casket. I am sure the pastors of the charge in which he lived never had a truer friend, or a member who did more to make their work a success than he. He could truthfully sing:

"I love thy kingdom, Lord,
The house of thine abode;
The Church our blessed Redeemer bought,
With his own precious blood."

He was a sufferer for more than a year, but he was not thought to be dangerously ill until a few hours before the end came. The funeral service was held in the Methodist church at Pelican on March 10, and was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. S. S. Holladay and Rev. W. R. Carroll, the latter being a Baptist minister. It is said there never have been so many people at a funeral in Pelican as attended his, which is evidence that he was loved by all. He was a good citizen, a loving companion, and an affectionate father. After the funeral his remains were laid to rest in the Pelican Cemetery by the Masons. Although his body has been consigned to the dust and his spirit has gone back to God who gave it, we feel sure that some day we shall meet him where there will be no more partings. To the bereaved ones we extend our sympathy, and pray God's blessings upon them, that they may be as faithful as was he and may go to dwell with him in that land that is fairer than day.

FRANCIS R. POWER, Pastor.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF
Girls! Try It! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine.
If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine. Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET
Good-bye sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smelling feet, tired feet.
Good-bye corns, callouses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face in agony. "TIZ" is magical, acts right off. "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. Use "TIZ" and forget your foot misery. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel. Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now at any druggist or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet, glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. A year's foot comfort guaranteed or money refunded.

Corinth District, North Miss. Conf.

I have just finished my first round on the Corinth District, and while we have had many hindrances in the way of bad roads and weather, the financial showing is about as good as that of any one of the three years preceding this. Three changes in pastors have been made since the Annual Conference: Rev. W. D. McCullough has been sent to Iuka, Rev. D. L. Cogdell to South Side Church, Corinth, and Rev. W. B. Baker to Hickory Flat. No appointments were missed at any of these places. The preachers are all pleased, and the people also. All the charges in the district promise to do well—some of them exceedingly well.—J. H. Mitchell, P. E.

Greenwood Springs, Miss.

Dear Mr. Editor: The Greenwood Springs charge is a very desirable work. I have never known a better people, and we are anticipating a good year. Owing to an epidemic of smallpox in our town and community the attendance at Sunday school and upon church services has not been what we desired, but we expect an improvement from now on. Greenwood Springs is on the Frisco Railroad, not far from Amory. We have fine water and good fresh air. People come from all over the country every year to spend the summer here. If the Editor ever feels like taking a holiday we extend the invitation now to come this way. We have made provision for and collected a neat little sum to pay for things needed in the parsonage. We are now looking after our Conference collections, which we are expecting to pay in full, and are also planning for our annual meetings. We have received seven into the Church by certificate since Conference. Our first quarterly meeting was held in the parsonage on account of the smallpox scare. There was a fine feeling among the brethren and a good report was made, our finances being up with those of last year.—Thos. E. Yancey, P. C.

Franklinton, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have about finished my third round on the Franklinton Circuit. I have four appointments—Fisher, Varnado, Angle and Hackley. I am serving an appreciative people and everything is moving on nicely. Our little band at Angle is just completing a nice church building, which when completed will cost about $2000. They deserve great credit for their enterprising spirit in undertaking to build such a church at this time. It seems that the war has not affected them in carrying forward this good work. At Varnado we hope to finish the church building soon. Brother Bridewell, an Episcopalian, has aided us at that point by donating sufficient lumber to finish the building. I am so thankful for our nice home among the good people of Franklinton, La. What a blessing are the homes provided for our superannuated preachers! We should have more of them. I have given almost my whole life to the itinerancy, and last year, when my health failed, I thought of my wife and children without a home, but thank God for the provision made by our great Church for her servants. —F. N. Sweeney.

IN NEED OF HELP.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have been lecturing some since Conference and preaching for the brethren hereabout as opportunity offered. In spite of the gloomy times, the Master's work seems to be taking hold of the hearts of the people in this section.

On Saturday evening, March 20, while attempting to light an oil heater, I was seriously burned. My left eye received a heavy shock from the explosion, which caused me to go to an oculist who thinks that there is a possibility of restoring my sight.

As lecturing is my only means of obtaining a livelihood and as I can not do this while I am undergoing treatment, and as my finances are quite limited, I am forced to call upon our pastors and Sunday school superintendents for some help at this time. Brethren, if you believe God will bless gifts made to the needy, please make a statement to your congregations and give them an opportunity to aid me. I am certainly in need of assistance.

Fraternally yours,
W. F. McCRORY.

HURRAH FOR TEXAS!

A news item in the Advocate of last week attracted my attention, as follows: "85 preachers on the stronger works in the Texas Conference have volunteered to hold one or more meetings on missions or weak charges."

What has happened over there? Is this really true or are we dreaming? Without pay?

Why, Mr. Editor, one of my churches last year paid my predecessor, the pastor, $110 for his year's work, and a brother who held a 10-day meeting $50. I do not say that they paid the visitor too much, nor that he did not need it, but was it just?

I have a four appointment circuit that last year paid $390 to the pastor, and which does not seem to be starting off as well this year. I would like to have some one assist me at each of these four points, but I can't ask a man to help me because I do not see any way to pay him. I would like to see a great meeting at each church; they need a strong preacher for a meeting. Will we as a Church ever go forward as we should if we neglect the weak country places? How many of our best workmen come from these country places? Most of them, I think.

Who ever heard of a strong church in Louisiana sending its strong pastor to assist a struggling brother? It is well enough to support a man in China, and do not think for one moment that I would discourage the churches doing this, but I surely would suggest that such a spirit of brotherly love toward a weak, struggling country pastor and his struggling congregation as would reach out a helping hand and strengthen the weak charges would be equally praiseworthy.

With brotherly love, I am.
Pastor of "HARD SCRABBLE CIRCUIT," La. Conf.

A NOTE OF THANKS.

Dear Dr. Meek: We desire to thank our many friends through the Advocate for the beautiful loving letters written about our dear daughter and for the "widow's mite" sent to us in our need. We thank you with all our hearts and pray God's blessings upon each one. Pray that we may be an unbroken family circle in heaven. Some sweet day we shall all gather at the river and go to the place our Savior has gone to prepare for those who love him.

YOU WILL WRITE A LETTER LIKE THIS.

I wish that I knew which one of the thousands of letters I receive would have the most weight with you, my friend. I can't quote all of them here, but I am going to ask you to read these carefully and then give me a chance to renew your health and make you write me one very much like them:

701 Barnard Street,
Savannah, Ga., Dec. 28, 1910.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir: As you are aware, in 1909 I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water, which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

Leeds, S. C., March 2, 1911.

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.

C. A. CROSBY, M.D.

These are not selected cases nor are the results unusual. I receive thousands like them from physicians, ministers, lawyers, merchants, farmers, manufacturers and every conceivable profession. I want the satisfaction of receiving such a letter from you. No matter what your complaint may be, dyspepsia, indigestion, nervous headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, or any chronic ailment that has not responded to drugs. I invite you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocketbook. If the water fails to benefit you simply say so, return the empty demijohns and I will promptly and willingly refund your money—every cent. Sign below:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17B, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

The Sunday School.

TEACHER-TRAINING.

By Rev. B. F. Lewis.

One of the keys to a successful Sunday school is the teacher. One of the keys to successful teaching is knowing how. The statement can be made without fear of successful contradiction, that no Sunday school has ever been successfully maintained without trained leadership. This training may be by the mastery of a skillfully outlined Teacher-training Course, or it may be the outcome of an indomitable purpose to know how to do things sending one out into the realm of individual research.

The importance—not the value—but the importance of teacher-training is realized when we consider that the modern Sunday school is a school, as much a school as any day school of our land, doing the same kind of work—only it is adapted to a certain specific end. As a school, our Sunday schools are in strong competition with our day schools for a place in the thought and confidence of our children, hence in their life. Our day schools are organized and graded, with an objective running through the entire curriculum from the A B C course to the graduating class. The work is systematically done under skilled leadership. No public school expecting aid from the State would for a moment consider as a teacher one who had not successfully passed a competent board of censors and who does not go to a normal at least every two or three years. How can we hope for a place in the confidence of our youth with a haphazard organization and untrained leadership? It is impossible. How are our Sunday schools to be placed on this plane and maintained there without a clear understanding of what is involved? Again, it is impossible. All these questions have been wrought out for us by men and women who have given their lives to the prayerful study of these problems, and they have been compiled into Teacher-training courses. The price of these books is within the reach of all, and the subject matter is shorn of all complexity.

The importance of this subject is further apparent when we consider that for five days in the week our skilled public school teachers have our children in these systematically organized schools, while we on Sunday have these same children only one hour. There is such a thing as intuition. There is such a thing as a subconscious mind. Psychologists have never satisfactorily defined these mental phenomena, but they exist nevertheless. It is not strange that when our children reach the age of twelve and over they should feel the difference in atmosphere, though they may not be able to lay their hands on the causes. We know they begin to drift at this age. Our religious periodicals have for years been full of discussions of the question, "How can we keep our boys and girls of the teen age in our Sunday schools?" Can we not find just here the answer? I think so. Observation will show that where there is systematic organization and a trained teaching force, the drift is reduced to a minimum.

The importance of this subject is further realized when we recall that the Sunday school teacher has only thirty minutes in which to teach the lesson, and must crowd into that thirty minutes enough truth to survive the conflicts of life ranging from a prayerless home to the overt attacks of the Prince of Evil. In a week there are at least 84 waking hours in a child's life—168 half-hours. The Sunday school teacher has ONE of these half-hours; the world has 167. In the half-hour given to the Sunday school teacher, she must erect a citadel in the heart and construct a bulwark to withstand life's battle shocks. The task is a tremendous one. It cannot be viewed lightly. It should not be undertaken without a purpose to prepare for it.

CRAWFORD, MISS.

Dear Advocate: We are retracing our steps on a former work for the first time since we joined the Conference in 1874. In many respects this is quite pleasant to us. We have not had to go through the ordeal of getting acquainted and learning all about the lay of the land. Our reception was exceedingly kind. We have a royal people to serve. We used to preach at four churches. Now we have two, both practically new and a credit to the enterprise of our people. The parsonage has been greatly improved since we left here six years ago. For all this advancement I am greatly indebted to my predecessor. * * * The order of making a living has materially changed since I was here before. Raising hay and stock is largely engaged in now. Many fine breeds of cattle, hogs, mules and horses can be found here now in quite large droves. No part of the South excels this section in its grasses. Alfalfa, Bermuda, Melilotus, Johnson grass, and the clovers generally flourish. Our natural surroundings are to be envied. If we make use of them in the fear of the Lord, all will go well. We are praying, planning, and working for a great year. Our presiding elder, Brother Woollard, is well on to his job. We are working for the Advocate. It was never better.

RHEUMATISM

Is a disease of the blood. Medical authorities have so proclaimed it for years. It must therefore be treated through the blood. CAR-DA-RUMA is a scientific preparation of a well-known Southern physician who used it in his private practice many years with marked success. It contains nothing of an injurious character, but eradicates the disease through nature's channels. Its ingredients are expensive, but in order to introduce it in your locality we will on receipt of fifty cents, send you postpaid, a regular two dollar size bottle with a coupon entitling you to a rebate of fifty cents on your subsequent purchase in case you require more than one bottle. CAR-DA-RUMA is not a cure-all, but a remedy for Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Sciatica and Lumbago. It is positive in its effects, and has many remarkable cures to its credit. Our treatise on Gout and Rheumatic ailments sent free upon request.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS.

Eat less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers you—Meat forms uric acid.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

PLANTERS ARE ADVISED TO REVERT TO PLANTING BENDERS AND LONG STAPLE COTTON.

In other columns of this issue appears the second announcement of THE VELDOP COMPANY regarding their product VELDOP for the elimination of the "Cotton Boll Weevil."

It is an undoubted fact that on account of the ravages of the Boll-Weevil, many planters felt themselves obliged to plant an early maturing crop with the hope of elimnating a part of their troubles.

Notwithstanding this they were obliged to fight the Weevil and dispose of what crop they did obtain at a price netting them less than the actual cost of production.

This, to say the least, is a discouraging fact, and it would seem advisable for the progressive planter to look well into the merits of VELDOP and when satisfied as to its value, go back to the planting of Benders and Long Staple Cotton, which has always commanded the highest price and, on account of present conditions, should be in greater demand this season than ever before.

The officials of this company are of the highest standing and we are inclined to believe that they would not, under any circumstances, lend their names to the exploitation of any doubtful preparation.

This preparation will be distributed through agencies of best repute in their various localities.

A HEATHEN BABY.

A heathen baby—that is all—
  A woman's lips that wildly plead;
Poor lips that never learned to call
  On Christ, in woman's time of need!

Poor lips that never did repeat
  Through quiet tears, "Thy will be done,"
That never knew the story sweet
  Of Mary, and the Infant Son.

An emptied cradle, and a grave—
  A little grave—cut through the sod;
O Jesus, pitiful to save,
  Make known to her the mother's God.

O Spirit of the heavenly Love,
  Stir some dear heart at home to-day,
An earnest thought to lift above,
  For mother-hearts so far away.

That all may know the mercy mild
  Of Him who did the nurselings bless.
The heathen and the home-born child
  Are one in that great tenderness.

—Clara A. Lindsay, in Woman's Work.

THE GOSPEL IN THE CONGO.

A stirring letter has recently been received from Rev. C. C. Bush, at Wembo-Niama, Central Africa. He tells of the building of seventy houses by their workmen in the village near by. Nearly one-third of these men are members of the Church, and there is a good prospect of having a real Christian village within a few hundred yards of them as a center for evangelistic work. The missionaries are laying off streets and driving stakes so as to keep the native houses in line.

A splendid spring has been unearthed on the edge of the ravine east of the mission concession and is easily available for the water carriers. Great care has to be exercised in avoiding leopards, for their tracks in the path to the spring are often in evidence. While wild animals are in the jungles near by, our missionaries and their followers have not been molested. They are taking every precaution, such as nailing bars over their windows or strong wire netting and remaining indoors after sundown. Before I left Wembo-Niama I gave instructions to organize a hunting expedition which might result in clearing these ferocious animals out of the adjoining ravines.

Brother Stockwell is reported by Brother Bush as having been down with fever, which settled in one of his eyes. A later letter, however, reports decided improvement. Good rains have come, there is plenty of food, the nights are cool, and "butter hard enough to cut with a knife." The mission station, although within five degrees of the equator, is at an altitude of over eighteen hundred feet, which gives comfortable nights, at least one blanket nearly always being required. "I greatly enjoy this busy life and praise God for the privilege of working among these people" is the closing sentence of our brother's letter. I feel sure that during these days, when money and food supplies are cut off on account of the situation in Belgium, daily intercession will be made for our brave missionaries and their wives and dear little Mary Elizabeth Mumpower.—Bishop W. R. Lambuth in Epworth Era.

A MISSIONARY'S DREAM.

A weary missionary fell asleep, and as she slept she dreamed a dream. A message had arrived that the Master was coming, and to her was appointed the task of getting all the little children ready for his arrival. So she arranged them on the benches, tier on tier, putting the little white children on the first benches, nearest to where the Master would stand, and then came the little yellow and red and brown children and far back on the farthest benches sat the black children. When they were all arranged, she looked, and it did not seem quite right to her. Why should the black children be so far away? They ought perhaps to be on the front benches. She started to rearrange them, but just as all was in confusion, the children stirring around, and each trying to find his proper place, footsteps were heard, and lo! it was the Master's tread, and he was coming before the children were ready. Overcome with shame and confusion she hung her head. To think that the task entrusted to her had not been accomplished in time! So she stood while the footsteps drew nearer and nearer, till finally they paused beside her, and she was obliged to look up. And lo! as she did so, and her eyes rested on the children, all shades of color and difference had vanished—the little children in the Master's presence were all alike.—From "The Child in the Midst."

WHO OWNS THE WOOL?

This is the caption of a leaflet written by Dr. J. B. Gambrell for the Laymen's Missionary Movement. The question is one which can be asked to advantage by each one of us; and the present seems to be a most opportune time, for we read in the March Missionary Voice that our offerings for missions in 1914 were $24,000 less than for the previous year. Now, who does own the wool? One would naturally think the owner of the sheep, but this deficit shows something wrong somewhere, for are not we his sheep? The next question for us to ask is, "Who is getting this wool?" If we do not let God have it we are cheating him of his own, and the devil isn't slow to take advantage of any opportunity presented, and before we know it he will come along and pick the wool for his own use.

"The mightiest controversy of the age is over rights in wool." It is, or ought to be, a controversy both in the pulpit and among Christians in the pews of every Church in Christendom, till God's right is admitted and acted on. Let God's right to the wool of his own sheep be settled, and we are at the opening of a new era in the world's history. The triumphant march of God's army is slowed up, waiting for us to settle the wool question. There can be but one adjudication, and that is that whoever owns the sheep owns the wool also.

"Next to redemption, the greatest question in the Christian world to-day is the question of rights in wool. If God's sheep were properly sheared, they would abound in health, and countless missionaries could be sent as torch-bearers to every benighted region of the globe. The tears of widows and orphans could be dried, the sick cared for, pastors supported, homes illuminated by the Word of God, and the world belted with the light of the truth. This wool question is a tremendous issue in the hearts and lives of Christians and Churches. If we settle God's right to the wool of his sheep, we settle the world's destiny."

CALOMEL WHEN BILIOUS? NO! STOP! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Is Harmless To Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

OLD SORES VANISH

Get rid of them with Gray's Ointment—for ninety-four years an indispensable family remedy for all abrasions and eruptions of the skin. It speedily heals cuts, wounds, burns, bruises, boils, carbuncles, sores, poison oak, etc., and effectively prevents blood poison, which frequently rises from a neglected cut or sore. "I have used Gray's Ointment for ten years or more, and for boils, carbuncles, and sores, there is nothing equal to it," writes Mrs. G. A. Bolick, Conover, N. C. Only 25c a box, and it will save you many an ache and much trouble. Get it at druggists, or try a free sample by writing to W.F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

COMB SAGE TEA IN LIFELESS, GRAY HAIR

Look young! Common garden Sage and Sulphur darkens so naturally nobody can tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and failing hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

Woman Finally Recovers From Nervous Breakdown

Impoverished nerves destroy many people before their time. Often before a sufferer realizes what the trouble is, he is on the verge of a complete nervous breakdown. It is of the utmost importance to keep your nervous system in good condition, as the nerves are the source of all bodily power. Mrs. Rosa Bonner, 825 N. 18th St., Birmingham, Ala., says:

"I have been suffering with nervous prostration for nine or ten years. Have tried many of the best doctors in Birmingham, but they all failed to reach my case. I would feel as if I was smothering; finally I went into convulsions. My little girl saw advertised in the papers and I at once began to take it. I continued to take it for some time and now I am well."

If you are troubled with loss of appetite, poor digestion, weakness, inability to sleep; if you are in a general run down condition and unable to bear your part of the daily grind of life, you need something to strengthen your nerves. You may not realize what is the matter with you, but that is no reason why you should delay treatment.

has proven its value in nervous disorders for thirty years, and merits a trial, no matter how many other remedies have failed to help you.

Sold by all druggists. If first bottle fails to benefit your money is returned.

STOP THE MISERY OF INDIGESTION

A Temperance Remedy That Ends Soreness, Belching, Heaviness, Heartburn and Dizziness.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been so successful in the treatment of indigestion, that thousands of former sufferers owe their good health of to-day to its wonderful power, and testimonials prove it.

It arouses the little muscular fibres into activity and causes the gastric juices to thoroughly mix with the food you eat, simply because it supplies the stomach with pure, rich blood. It's weak, impure blood that causes stomach weakness. Get good blood through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you will have no more indigestion.

It is the world's proved blood purifier. Start to take it to-day and before another day has passed, the impurities of the blood will begin to leave your body through the eliminative organs, and in a few days you will know by your steadier nerves, firmer step, keener mind, brighter eyes and clearer skin that the bad blood is passing out, and new, rich, pure blood is filling your veins and arterles.

The same good blood will cause pimples, acne, eczema and all skin eruptions to dry up and disappear. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the helpful remedy that nearly everyone needs. It contains no alcohol or narcotics of any kind. It cleanses the blood and every organ through which the blood flows is benefited. Get it to-day at any medicine dealer in liquid or tablet form.—Adv.

Dr. Pierce's 1000-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," is sent free on receipt of 3 dimes, or stamps, to pay cost of mailing only. Address Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, liver and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhœa, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

WOMAN'S CITY MISSION BOARD.

"I pray every day that God will let you snatch other girls from the pit in which I was about to fall," wrote one of the grateful cabaret women rescued by Miss Martha Nutt from the house of detention, and kept at St. Mark's Hall until she could be restored to her family in another State. This was part of a letter read by Miss Nutt in her report to the Woman's Board of City Missions which met Tuesday afternoon, March 23, in St. Mark's Hall. Another woman had also written, expressing her gratitude. "You gave me a new life," said she. Miss Nutt told of finding and bringing to St. Mark's a Guatemalan girl who spoke no English. She had been in the Charity Hospital and her employer refused to take her after the hospital discharged her, because she was unable to work. The need of more places for convalescents was shown. Miss Nutt also reported visits to the courthouse and of a woman saved from the parish prison.

Seven hundred and fifty-seven prescriptions filled from the Sickle Dispensary Fund and 49 visits paid, were reported. In the Saturday sewing classes, which have an average attendance of 100, more teachers are needed.

The Mary Werlein Mission announced a revival to begin Thursday evening, March 25.

The Treasurer's report showed $3732 in the building fund, and Mrs. W. W. Carre, Sr., chairman of the building committee, announced a plan for raising enough money to buy land and build the new St. Mark's Hall by securing pledges of various sums for five years. Whether the Woman's Board of City Missions should incorporate and hold the property in its own name, or allow it to be owned by the Council to which this body is auxiliary was discussed.

"We want to do whatever is best for St. Mark's," said the President. "We do not care for the credit and satisfaction of saying that the building is ours." It was decided to appoint a committee to look into the legality and expediency of the different plans proposed.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Brookhaven District Conference will convene in the Methodist Church at Monticello on the afternoon of May 11 at 2 o'clock. It is expected that all the members will answer to the first roll call.

The pastors will please attend to the election of delegates at the earliest possible time. They will please send the names of all members to Rev. J. V. Bennett, and to me as soon as they can. This is important in enabling me to have the roll of members complete before the Conference opens. Brother Bennett must have the names so that there may be no difficulty in providing homes for all who will attend. Rev. I. L. Peebles will preach the opening sermon at the evening hour, following which the Sacrament will be administered. The announcement of committees will be made later. Let all strive to make this a great conference in its spiritual results. ROB'T SELBY, P. E.

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFFICE

Although the cotton crop of 1914-15 was the largest ever grown, yet the percentage of long staple cotton will undoubtedly prove the smallest ever raised.

The cause of this is due in a great measure to the fear of the Boll Weevil. The planter, not wishing to take the chances of having his staples destroyed from this increasing pest, has therefore planted an earlier maturing crop, but even this has suffered severely from the ravages of the Boll Weevil.

The coming year the demand for long staple cotton from Spinners will be materially increased for the change in the style of women's dresses is bound to make more demand for fine goods, and this means the mills must have the staple cotton to do the work, but where is the supply of the staple cotton to come from? The Egyptian crop next year, on account of war conditions will be decidedly smaller, besides, with the pink boll worm, the seed will be very much inferior, which necessarily must make the next Egyptian crop decidedly inferior in staple.

Now if the heretofore raisers of staple cotton can be assured of protection from the ravages of the Boll Weevil by the use of Veldop, have they not a grand opportunity to again plant staples and be ready to take advantage of the demand, and the good prices for staple cotton which are bound to come?

THE TWO ESSENTIAL SIDES OF CHRISTIANITY.

The Christian religion has two sides: a Godward side, and a manward side. Neither of these aspects of it can be neglected without deplorable results. The man whose religion embraces only his relation to his Creator becomes a mystic and perverts his life and misdirects his energies. This was the fault of the type of Christianity prevailing in some of the ages of the past. The monk shut himself up in the cloister, and, living largely aloof from his fellow-beings, sought to honor God and save himself by his prayers, his offerings on the altar, and his spirit of self-abnegation. Possibly such a course did not result in a complete forfeiture of his inheritance in Christ, but it necessariiy resulted in dwarfing his character, in contracting his influence, and in making him largely a failure as a servant of the Master. Such a Christianity was a wretched misinterpretation of the Divine will and could never have redeemed the millions of mankind. It did not honor God in the highest sense, because it ignored his commandments, turned aside from its appointed mission, and would ultimately have defeated the purposes of its great Founder.

At the opposite extreme from this type of religion, is that which seeks to shut out of consideration our relation to God and to recognize only our relation to our fellow-men. According to its view, to be charitable, kind, generous, and helpful to mankind is the sum total of one's duty on earth. Humanitarianism is the whole of Christianity. There is nothing else in it of consequence. There is no place in it for the recognition of God's sovereignty, of his claims upon man, of the penitence that is due for having violated his law, of the need of a faith that honors him, of the reverence, gratitude and love that we owe him as our creator, redeemer, and preserver, or of the adoration and praise that should be accorded him in appreciation of the perfection of his attributes and his abounding goodness.

A religion that ignores or neglects God is a delusion and a snare, no matter what else it may embrace or do. If anything, it is worse than that type of Christianity which ignored man and sought to tread a solitary path to heaven. More binding even than the obligation to love our fellow-men is that to love God. To be without faith in him—to all but forget that he exists, and to act as if he were a negligible factor in life is to affront and dishonor him, and to commit an offense, the magnitude of which human language is inadequate to describe. Of very much the same significance is the movement to eliminate the supernatural from the Bible and discard as a part of the Christian religion everything beyond the understanding of the finite mind. That movement is, in reality, a denial that God is now directly operating in human affairs, if, indeed, it does not deny that he ever did so operate, and its effect is to reduce him to a blind and unthinking force, fettered and bound with natural laws. There is a decided trend in this direction in this boasted twentieth century.

Of such a religion we need to beware. Estrangement from God and ignoring one's obligations to him constitute the very inner essence of sin; and the spiritual life begins when by faith one finds God, and personally learns to know him and the human will is surrendered to his will. And the continuance and development of that life is conditioned upon the maintenance of this established personal relation. "I am the vine; ye are the branches. He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing. If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch and is withered."

The true religion recognizes profound and inescapable obligations to both God and man. By faith it constantly sees the Heavenly Father, and, through the Holy Spirit, communes with him—honors, trusts, obeys, worships, and adores him. But it is not unmindful of the brotherhood of man arising out of the fatherhood of God, and it seeks to minister to needy and suffering humanity in every possible way. Neither our Creator nor our fellow-man can be left out of Christianity without the most disastrous consequences. There are not a few in this age who need to meditate deeply upon the weighty words of Jesus, who, when he was asked which is the great commandment, said: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

GREAT IN ITS RESULTS.

Billy Sunday's eleven weeks' revival campaign in Philadelphia, Penn., came to an end amid scenes of great enthusiasm on March 21. In this wonderful meeting he had the co-operation of 400 churches in the city and attracted the attention of the entire nation. The services were held in an immense tabernacle specially prepared for the occasion and the congregations often numbered 15,000 or 20,000 persons. It is estimated that during the meeting not less than 2,000,000 people heard the evangelist, and his sermons were scattered all over the country and had a phenomenally large reading. The number of conversions is set down at 41,724, and it is claimed that probably not less than 100,000 persons were quickened in their spiritual life. The witnesses to the value of the work done were numerous and varied—churches, business men, the representatives of great corporations, and noted daily papers uniting in their testimony to this effect. Mr. Cyrus D. Foss, the secretary of the Mayor of the city, spoke as follows at the final service: "We are gathered here to say good-by to a man who stands deep in our hearts, who is a friend to about 2,000,000 Philadelphians. He chose a queer way to gain our friendship, for he trampled on our prejudices; he exposed our sins to our own consciences; he drove the sharp arrows of conviction into our hearts. * * * Philadelphia is a different city from what it was last December."

We can take space to give only one other testimonial. In its farewell words to Mr. Sunday, The Philadelphia Evening Telegram, in part, said: "You have 'hit the booze'; you have put the knife into the rotten pus-bags of modern society; you have stripped the broad phylacteries from the robes of the modern Pharisees; you have exposed the hollow sham of religious formalism; you have startled with a fearful dread and fear those who have been complacently saying, 'Lord, Lord,' and have not done the things he said; you have aroused the torpid convictions of those who have been 'called to the ministry'; * * * you have uncovered the vileness and meanness of sin, and revealed the glorious beauty of righteousness; you have lifted the lid off the hatchway to hell, and have flung wide open the gates of pearl that give entrance into the Heavenly City."

The total money contributions during the Philadelphia meeting footed up $130,000, of which amount $51,136.85 was given the revivalist by the people as an offering. Some materialist has figured out that the sum given Mr. Sunday was about $1.25 per convert. The evangelist is now at work in Paterson, N. J. Next fall and winter he expects to hold meetings in Syracuse, N. Y., Trenton, N. J., Baltimore, Md., and Louisville, Ky. He is expected to go to Boston in the fall of 1916, and after that perhaps to New York City.

It is marvelous what God is accomplishing through this comparatively unlearned man who a few years ago was a baseball player. The Philadelphia Public Ledger claims that in twenty-one cities in which he has held meetings there were 233,077 converts. There are many lessons that may be learned from Billy Sunday's wonderful ministry. It is worth noting that he preaches, without apology, the old-time Gospel; that his earnestness is tremendous, and that he is fully consecrated to the Master and utterly fearless. He is a man of simplicity of life, of great faith, and of profound and unyielding convictions. In these things he may well be emulated; but a slavish imitation of his methods would be most unwise upon the part of any preacher.

We believe that the true secret of Billy Sunday's success is that he is a completely surrendered vehicle through which the Divine power operates. The dynamics of Christianity is what needs to be brought into action in saving and uplifting humanity; and perhaps the greatest hindrance to this is religious formalism and pride. And we regret to say that we fear the present trend toward ritualism in the Protestant Churches is having the lamentable effect of increasing rather than diminishing this obstruction. Such a tendency, in the light of history, can scarcely be considered wholesome. "Where the Spirit of the Lord is there is liberty."

A writer in the Baltimore Southern Methodist says: "As a whole, our people do not read Methodist papers sufficiently to know what we stand for, or what we are doing out in the world." We are inclined to think that this is lamentably true.

SATISFIED WITH JESUS.

"I am satisfied with Jesus,
He is all in all to me;
In my heart his love is springing,
Like a fountain glad and free.
There is now no condemnation
To a soul beneath the flow
Of the stream from Calvary's mountain,
Cleansing whiter than the snow.

"Ever satisfied with Jesus,
When the summer roses bloom;
When the wintry snows are drifting,
Then his smile will light the gloom.
He has promised to be with me,
And his love is joy divine,
While I hear the gentle whisper,
I am his and he is mine.

"I am satisfied with Jesus,
May his grace abundant be,
All his holy will accomplish,
Till he's satisfied with me.
When—all praise to his salvation!
Gates of pearl will open wide,
I shall wake up in his likeness,
There, forever, satisfied."

THE POWER OF PRAYER.

John G. Paton, on the island of Tanne, with twelve or fifteen savages about him, each one with a loaded gun pointing at him, lifted up his heart to God In prayer for protection. Not one of the savages fired.

The woman still lives who agreed with two other women in Chicago to pray for a bustling, active young man, full of work and no power, and they came to him, and said: "We are praying for you." "Praying for me?" "Yes." "What do you want to pray for me for? We have got the biggest Sunday school in Chicago, and one of the biggest audiences." "No matter," said one of them, "we are praying that the power of the Holy Spirit may rest upon you, and that God may speak through you." And these three or four women kept on praying until Dwight L. Moody moved Chicago and the world.

Mr. Moody says that his success in England was due to the prayers of one bedridden saint. You remember the story—the preaching in that Congregational church on Sunday morning, when everything was as dead as a graveyard. Nobody responded, but later, when Mr. Moody asked the people to rise for prayer, four hundred responded and rose to their feet. He thought they did not understand his question, and asked them to come into a side room. They filled that side room, and when he repeated his request more than four hundred inquirers arose, and the revival spread like a conflagration all over the world. Mr. Moody said it was in answer to that woman's prayers. It was not his preaching, it was not the Church; it was that one soul asking God to bless Moody, to bless the world.

If your Church is not blessed it is the pastor's fault, and also yours, for God hears prayer for the gift of the Holy Spirit, and prayer is of use as a channel through which God works. There may be Niagara power, but no "race" through which the water may run, to turn the wheels of the factory; and God himself is a Niagara of power, but there may be no channel. Jesus Christ "could do no mighty works because of their unbelief," and when a man does not believe he does not pray. Just think of a prayerless Church! As well have a church of Ice, a church of marble, a church of corpses.—Methodist Recorder.

THE SECRET OF JESUS' POWER.

Newell Dwight Hillis.

No preacher was ever so successful and influential as Jesus. It could not have been otherwise. He knew what was in man, and touched every string upon the instrument of the soul. For Jesus, man's heart was a world in which there was no undiscovered island, pole or continent. We are provincial, knowing one little section of the soul, one city or one country. But the real secret of his power was his sinlessness. What Jesus said, he was. What Jesus taught, he first illustrated. If he bade men forgive their enemies, Jesus did it. If he bade us be perfect, he lived so that his enemies said "there is no fault in him." If you would explain this sunbeam, climb upon this beam as a stairway of light, and you will find the secret in yonder blazing orb. The power glows and throbs in each parable of Jesus, pushed forward and saturated with Jesus' holiness. This is a fearful test. What if a parent could not teach until he was perfect? What if a college professor could not instruct until he was sinless? What if statesmen and editors and authors should remain dumb until the deed surpassed the word? We stretch out vain hands and often clutch at dust and straw and chaff, but Jesus rode like a star, triumphant, blazing in the sky.

But the time came when the truth hurt men too deeply, and the record is that after that "the multitude went away and walked no more with him." Successful in the beginning, he failed in the end. Three women, and two or three of the disciples remained, the rest fled and left him in Gethsemane and on the cross. Crowds are not the test. Compliments are not proofs. Glittering sentences are iron pyrites; ther is but one standard—men transformed and saved by the preaching. In this audience are men of the Methodist Conference, whom we all know and revere. And all over this land are men in little towns and rural districts toiling for small pay, in obscure positions, with few comforts and conveniences, sending boys and girls to college, sweetening the Sundays for children, making the Church in this new era to be a center even for the new farming, the new arts, and the new tools. Outer rewards for them are few, but inwardly they wear a flashing crown. So brave are some of these home missionaries, so self-sacrificing, so sincere and humble, that you and I are not worthy to stoop down and unfasten their shoe latchets. But all the time they are building the State and feeding the deeper springs of individual life and strengthening the institutions of society. Not one word shall be forgotten. Jesus seemed to fail, but inwardly succeeded.

Happy are the parents who may give their children to such a task as this! Perchance, God and your fathers have called you to the most fascinating work in the world, the most rewarding and the most enduring—the work of preaching. And if in the night and silence, the inner voice falls and the whispered command comes, then let him who hath ears to hear, hear. Obedient to the command, go forth to gather your little group of pilgrims and to lead them out of life's wilderness into the promised land!—Brooklyn Eagle.

"THE UNPREPARED GIRL."

By Miss Nellie Clyde Belk,
(Read before "The Girls' Missionary Conference" at Water Valley, Miss.)

In treating this subject in this brief paper it shall be my purpose to discuss it with reference to life and life-work generally, rather than to confine it to missionary work alone.

The world admires a winner and despises a loser. When David slew Goliath he immortalized himself and has been a hero ever since. Caesar never lost a battle and historians have lionized him. In starting out in life, we should acquire the simple habit of succeeding. One victory, even in small matters, will strengthen us for the next. "Each victory will help us some other to win," is true in the material as well as the spiritual world. Then, if we would hope to succeed, the great essential for so doing is preparation or preparedness, and the great essential for failure is non-preparation, or unpreparedness.

Therefore, the girl who starts out in life unprepared is already half a failure. No matter what natural ability God may have given us, there must be a preparation preceding success. Our minds, our characters, and our spiritual lives must first be trained before we can achieve success and overcome the difficulties and temptations of life.

There comes a moment of supreme test in the life of every one. We have all seen persons move along in society without a whisper against them. They were respected by all. But there came a day when they were put to the supreme test morally, and they went down. Almost daily, the press brings before us the names of persons who have fallen helpless before some task or temptation which they encountered. What was their trouble? The answer is, "They were unprepared to meet and overcome that which they encountered." They were not anchored right. Their preparation was lacking. They had not been taught to rely on God and on his promises to meet the duties of life.

Where are the weak places in the works of Byron, George Eliot, and even our own Irwin Russell? They lie in the fact that these authors were weak morally.

We must be prepared; we must be trained. This preparation, this training must come, in some way or other. No one has ever achieved success by accident. He may have come upon it suddenly, but behind that moment were hours of thought, of experience, and of prayer. The fame of Columbus was fixed from that eventful October day when he first saw the Bahama Islands. "But long before this Genoese sailor stepped upon the trackless wave and turned his prows toward the untrodden seas of the West," he had studied and thought out all the intricacies of his task. Dewey won immortal fame in one short hour at Manila Bay. But read his life and see what experience and training he had undergone before that memorable day. God did not select Moses to lead the Children of Israel out of Egyptian bondage until he had been prepared for that work. Nor did he assign Saul to his great task until he had prepared him for it. God knew what it meant to be unprepared when he said to his disciples, "Tarry ye at Jerusalem until endued with power from on high."

Never before in the history of the world, has woman's station in life been greater than at present. Never before has she been accorded so many opportunities for earning her own sustenance and of exerting a noble and refining influence in the world. Day by day, she is advancing toward larger fields and greater opportunities for doing good. She has almost taken possession of the common and high schools. By her appearance she enforces decency wherever she goes. She is foremost in Sunday school work. Hundreds of young ladies under the various church organizations are to-day at work in the missionary cause all over the world in an effort to give freedom to their sisters. The great temperance cause largely owes its mighty sweep to Frances E. Willard and other good women who have fought where she led. Men go to war to kill and wound. Women go to bind up the wounds and care for the sick and distressed. Florence Nightingale and Clara Barton will be remembered as long as love shall last.

What an incentive, then, is there for the young woman of to-day, especially the young woman of America, to prepare herself for the duties and responsibilities that lie just ahead of us. We must prepare. We must begin right. To enter the battle otherwise means certain defeat.

We are not lacking for places of preparation. Let us begin at home and in our own communities. Let us begin when young to exert a wholesome influence over those about us, and in helping them, we prepare ourselves for life. The candle that burns most brightly gives out the best light. The girl who shines forth each day in deeds of kindness only develops her own strength and power to help others and to achieve success. We learn to do by doing. We learn to help by helping, and we make ourselves prepared for life by helping to prepare others. You need not wait for great things. There is missionary work at your own door; indeed, it may be in your own home. There are boys and girls ready to follow in the way of right if we will but lead them.

Let us anchor ourselves unto Him who "holds us in the hollow of his hand." Let us take the Bible as our guide, the Good Samaritan as our example, and begin when young to prepare ourselves as girls to meet with confidence and the assurance of success, the solemn and certain responsibilities which await us, remembering that preparation must precede success, and that if we go unprepared to encounter the affairs of life, that failure is already our portion.

"And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil; for our lamps are gone out. But the wise answered saying, Not so. * * * * And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage; and the door was shut." The foolish virgins were simply "unprepared."

REV. W. E. VAUGHAN ONCE MORE.

By the Editor.

In the Pacific Methodist Advocate of March 4, Rev. W. E. Vaughan, who holds the position of editor of that paper, took notice of our editorial appearing in the Advocate of February 18, in which he, to some extent, figured. We shall do for him what he did not have the fairness to do for us, namely, reproduce the whole of his utterance that our readers may see his side of the case as he himself has stated it. His deliverance was as follows:

"We recently published a note from Rev. C. C. Selecman in which he took exception to a criticism by the New Orleans Christian Advocate of an entertainment held in Trinity Auditorium, to which we appended this editorial note: 'Don't worry, Brother Selecman. What the brother at the Crescent City needs is to travel.' This publication provoked the editor of the New Orleans Advocate, Dr. Meek, to devote more than three columns of his paper to a personal attack on Brother Selecman, Bishop Hendrix and this editor, the Bishop coming in for almost a column, though he was in no wise connected with the matter in controversy, the mention by Brother Selecman, that two Bishops were present at the Trinity entertainment suggesting another Bishop's connection with something else.

"We very much regret that our little pleasantry, together with Brother Selecman's note, served to stir up the wrath of our brother and cause him to say such unkind things of his brethren. It proved conclusively, however, if any proof were needed, that the brother needed to travel; in other words, that he needed a little broadening, that he might view things in some measure from the standpoint of others.

"Among other charges, Dr. Meek charges the editor of this Advocate with writing and speaking on both sides of the Vanderbilt question. To this we plead guilty. While maintaining that the Church owned the property, as contended by the Bishops, we nevertheless refused to join with Dr. Meek and others in abusing the trustees, whom we recognized to be men of God, who were actuated by as pure motives as were those who opposed them. In fact, it is our purpose always to endeavor to see both sides of a question, and above all to judge charitably those who do not see things as we see them. The Advocate, during the term of the present editor, at least, has been conducted upon this plane. 'Good will to all, and malice toward none,' has been our motto. So, notwithstanding the bitterness of Dr. Meek's attack, we bear him no malice, and extend him a cordial invitation to begin his travels by coming out to California this summer. We are sure the trip will do him good, and doubt not that closer contact with his brethren, Selecman and Vaughan, will cause him to think more kindly of them."

In discussing this characteristic utterance, we desire, first of all, to state that we prefer to settle the matters at issue between Brother Selecman and ourself with him, rather than with the Editor of the Pacific Methodist Advocate. We feel sure that he is quite as capable of taking care of himself and that this course will meet with his approbation. We shall very probably have something to say concerning that phase of our recent controversy at an early date. For the present, therefore, our entire attention will be devoted to Brother Vaughan.

Those who are informed concerning the present controversy know that it was not the Editor of the Advocate who first injected personalities into it. The brief paragraph from his pen which started it was written with the purest of motives, without the least intention to misrepresent anybody or anything, and did not contain a personal criticism of any kind. On the other hand, the first utterance of Brother Vaughan was a purely personal thrust. True, he now calls it "pleasantry"; but, taken with its implications, it could not be otherwise than offensive to any self-respecting man. And, unfortunately for our brother, this was not his first contemptuous fling. As we have before stated, he made another last fall which was quite as objectionable, when he sneered out, "The LOWER critics are after Dr. Alexander." There was no question of "lower," or textual, criticism in any way involved in that discussion, and his sneer could only be fairly interpreted as meaning that those of us who were participating in it were "low" or inferior. And let it be noted that even after it was made perfectly clear to him that his reference to us when he entered the present controversy was considered offensive, he immediately proceeded to repeat it. Such has been the spirit that he has shown. We know of no other editor in American Methodism who, without provocation, has stooped to repeated indulgences in such offensive personal slurs. The truth is, we have been very patient with our brother in not taking him to task long before we did. He now seeks to make it appear that we have not exercised the proper courtesy and brotherliness toward him; but we challenge him to produce one single discourteous or unbrotherly word that we have written concerning him during the more than five years that we have been on the tripod, prior to the present clash, which was brought on by his continued discourtesies. It is a pitiable spectacle which he presents in repeating his contemptuous flings, which have been borne with so long, until notice is taken of them and attention is focused upon his own record, and then trying to pose as a gentleman of imperturbable amiability who greatly reprobates offensive personalities and harsh words of any kind.

Our brother tries to make capital out of the fact that we referred to Bishop Hendrix' record in the Vanderbilt case in our former discussion, to which he says we devoted "ALMOST A COLUMN." As a matter of fact, it would take a remarkably crooked rule to make the space containing that reference measure more than a third of a column. Of course, Brother Vaughan did not intend to make a false statement. We take it that this is merely a case of unintentional exaggeration—a thing that is not infrequently observable among real estate dealers and men who fancy that they alone have "traveled." Our reason for adverting to Bishop Hendrix' course in the Vanderbilt controversy was that it perfectly illustrated the point that we were making. We said nothing about him that is not true and for which we do not stand ready to adduce the proof if necessary. If our brother thinks that we have misstated the facts, let him show wherein we did so. If he can not do this, what right has he to complain of our action? Has not the course of Bishop Hoss and our other loyal Bishops in the Vanderbilt contest, though repeatedly endorsed by the Church, and though most of what they did was under the positive instructions of the General Conference, been discussed and severely criticised in the public prints without one word of protest against such utterances being written by Mr. Vaughan? Why, then, should he find fault with us for making a truthful statement concerning the part Bishop Hendrix played in it? Does not this look like a disclosure of where the gentleman's sympathies have really been and are?

Our brother admits that he has written and talked on both sides of the Vanderbilt controversy and actually seems to glory in having done so. With an obtuseness remarkable even for him, he fails to distinguish between seeing both sides of a question, and "writing and talking" and trying to stand on both sides of it. A man is indeed fortunate if he is always able to see all that is involved in a great issue and consider it in all its bearings before reaching a conclusion as to what his duty is in meeting it; but this does not give him any excuse for being weak, undecided, and one way to-day and another to-morrow. The latter course is always discreditable and indefensible. It is a course that we can conceive of no true, brave, and manly man ever being willing to follow.

Let us scrutinize Editor Vaughan's record in the Vanderbilt contest a little, since he appears to be so proud of it. We will begin with what he has to say in his present utterance about the Vanderbilt Trustees. He tells us that their motives in all that they have done have been "pure." How does he know what their motives have been? Can he read the deep secrets of the human heart and discover what the purposes of men are? Only such a divine power would warrant the making of such a sweeping declaration as our brother has here handed out. Because men profess to be Christians and have been commonly so regarded is no proof that their "motives" are in every respect "pure." These gentlemen must be judged in this contest by the RECORD that they have made. Their "motives" are quite beyond a certain interpretation by the finite mind, and we have never ventured to intrude into that realm in discussing their course. How has Editor Vaughan, who has supposedly been a watchman upon the wall of Zion—paid to serve the Church and to protect and defend her interests—dealt with the actual RECORD in the Vanderbilt fight?

As we have before said, while the General Conference was in session at Asheville, N. C., and the distinguished chairman of the Board of Trust was assuring that body, in a crucial hour when it was liable thereby to be misled, that the Vanderbilt trustees had accepted the findings of the Vanderbilt Commission and intended in good faith to be bound by them, nearly half of the thirty-three members of that body were present and allowed that representation to be made without the least effort to correct it. Yet within less than a month afterwards they met in the city of Nashville and voted to repudiate practically every finding of the Commission, and later declared in court that they never had intended to accept the conclusions of that tribunal. What did Brother Vaughan have to say about this? Did he speak out and emphatically condemn it as most of the other editors in the Church did? If so, we have no recollection of it. Does he think that this action upon the part of the Trustees was high-minded and right? If he does not, how does he reconcile it with his claim of spotless innocence for these gentlemen?

Mr. Vaughan tells us that he held that "the Church owned the University. If so, why did he not, while the contest was on, so state emphatically and stick to it, and exert the influence of his paper toward creating a public sentiment that would tend to help to maintain the hold of the Church upon her property? After admitting the ownership of the Church in their official communications to her for nearly forty years, the dominant majority of the Vanderbilt Trustees came into court and in effect denied that right, made war upon it by the use of every possible technicality, and finally destroyed it. Does our brother think that this course was high-minded, honorable, and innocent? If not, why has he remained silent on the subject?

Later still, when the Church had won the case in the Chancery Court and it had been appealed to the Supreme Court of Tennessee and was pending there, the Executive Committee of the Vanddrhilt Board of Trust entered into negotiations with Mr. Carnegie who, with their approval, offered to give the University $1,000,000, eight hundred thousand of which was virtually conditioned on a verdict against the Church, the terms of this contract being paraded again and again by the Nashville papers, apparently for the purpose of prejudicing the cause of the Church in the lawsuit. This action of the Trustees was passed upon by practically all the Annual Conferences and was condemned by an almost unanimous vote. Does Mr. Vaughan think that this action of the Vanderbilt Board was improper and deserved that condemnation? If so, why did he not join with the other editors of the Church in exposing the impropriety and injustice of it?

The truth is, our brother's course throughout the entire controversy, so far as it has been reflected in his editorial utterances, has apparently been one of evasion, compromising, and straddling. For our part, however, we have had little doubt that his heart has all along been with those who were against the Church in the fight. When he touched the subject in his paper, his statements were usually nebulous so far as the rights of the Church were concerned, and generally contained unwarranted concessions to the Vanderbilt is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

Board of Trust. If our memory serves us right, in the very outset, when the Trustees had set up the claim of complete independence and were utterly defying the expressed will of the General Conference, he suggested that their relation to the Church was substantially the same as that of her other boards holding property for her—as much as to say, that there was no occasion for making an issue with them. And toward the close of the controversy, after the course of the Trustees had been condemned by the Church with scarcely a dissenting voice and even Bishop Hendrix had ceased to meet and act with them, he wrote a flamboyant editorial entitled "The Vanderbilt Muddle," which, as one of the leading men of the Church said to us, was itself "a veritable muddle." Almost his first sentence was, in substance, as follows: There is a line of cleavage extending through the entire Church from bottom to top, even passing through the College of Bishops. We ventured to ask our brother at the time where the evidences of this line of cleavage were, but not a word of explanation could we get out of him. He preferred to shelter himself behind an unbreakable silence.

Not even when our Bishops were attacked under the very shadow of his own sanctum, did he uncouch his lance to defend them. Immediately after the Carnegie transaction and their veto of it, a member of the Vanderbilt Board of Trust who was sojourning in California went after them in a vigorous fashion in the secular press of that State until Bishop Waterhouse had to take up his pen to refute his misrepresentations. Where was Editor Vaughan, the only man that the Church has on the tripod in the Far West, that he was not heard at that time?

Our brother ventures to contrast his course in the Vanderbilt controversy with ours. We haven't the slightest objection to this. What we have stood for has been repeatedly given the overwhelming endorsement of the Church. We have never distorted the record in the case or made a statement about any man which the facts did not sustain, and Brother Vaughan or no one else can show that we have done so. We have on file in our library letters from nearly all of the Church's leaders in the great battle and from almost every one of her lawyers in the case expressing high appreciation of the service which we rendered in the effort that was made to retain the rights of the Church in Vanderbilt University. This, together with the consciousness of having done our duty, as we saw it, is reward enough to compensate us for all the slurs and misrepresentations of men of the type of Editor Vaughan, and for all the so-called friends that we have lost because we would not keep silent while methods that no man has even had the temerity to attempt to defend publicly were being used to wrest from the Church her rightful property. We should like to ask the Editor of the Pacific Methodist Advocate how many of the Church's leaders and lawyers have expressed to him their appreciation of the service which he performed in the great fight for the ownership and contrpl of Vanderbilt University?

Mr. Vaughan declares that "Good will to all, and malice toward none," has been his motto in conducting his paper. This is indeed a very noble ideal—one well worth striving to uphold: but we would respectfully remind our confrere that adherence to it is not at all inconsistent with standing openly and resolutely for sound principles—for the maintenance of the interests and honor and faith of the Church. Men may be vigorously combated in what they are undertaking to do without being uncharitable to them or entertaining malice toward them. These are substantially the words of Abraham Lincoln, spoken in his memorable second Inaugural Address, and had reference to the people of the Confederate States at the very time that he was hurling troops against them with a view to defeating and destroying the principles for which they were contending. To quote these noble words as an apology for shirking one's duty in a great contest and pursuing an evasive, wobbly, and uncertain course, is nothing short of a profanation. They furnish no justification for our Brother's timorous, dubious, and zigzag course in the Vanderbilt controversy, or for his unexplained silence when Dr. Aked, then holding the position of President of Protestant Ministers' Association in San Francisco, was repudiating important teachings of the Christian faith and the Presbyterians were nobly standing up for the Holy Scriptures.

Our brother seems to think it is a mark of great nobility of soul to look on with complacent amiability while outrageous wrongs are being perpetrated, but we beg leave to differ from him on this point. Dr. B. M. Palmer, than whom this nation has never had a nobler character or a more gifted minister, in his "Theology of Prayer," says: "Conscience should be educated to look, not only with pity, but with horror and detestation upon what is known to be wrong. And the more robust and sinewy the character, the more these generous resentments will flame forth against sin in all its forms." Of a similar import is the following utterance taken from a recent issue of The Presbyterian (Philadelphia): "Possessing the soul in patience is certainly a Christian grace. But when that patience becomes supineness, it is certainly a human vice. When a man sees truth and right cast down, and makes no effort to uphold them, neither the Christian nor the grace is in him." We commend these two suggestive statements to the consideration of Editor Vaughan and all other like namby-pambyists. The Christianity of our day may be far from what it ought to be, but it has not yet reached the pitiable state where a weak, evasive, vacillating mollycoddle is its best product.

In view of the fact that he has not explained or withdrawn his offensive slurs, our brother's invitation to come West and associate some with him, is scarcely in good taste. There is too much of a Pecksniffian odor about his paraded good humor for it to win the commendation of any discerning and high-thinking man. We bear Brother Vaughan no ill-will and we wish him well in all things. But we prefer to select as our associates men who have shown that they think we are entitled to be treated with a reasonable degree of courtesy. We know already more about our brother's career in the West than perhaps he is aware of, or than we could hope to learn by a brief visit to the Pacific Coast. Should he, however, ever show what seems to be a sincere regret for his offensive flings and a true desire to make the proper amends, he will find us ready to meet him fully half way. We believe it is the duty of every person to maintain a decent self-respect, but we carry malice in our heart against no living man. There is no human being on earth upon whom we can not fervently pray God's blessings in our daily devotions. Those who know us best know that this is true.

ALEXANDRIA'S AWAKENING.

My Dear Dr. Meek: I believe the caption of this article accurately sets forth the experience into which we have recently come as a church. For a number of years our church here has had the honor to boast of some of the most intelligent and aristocratic families to be found within this great State, but we very much doubt, even with these excellent qualities, if she has hitherto been known as an evangelistic church. But we rejoice that now it can truly be said that First Church, Alexandria, has not only enjoyed a great revival, but that she also has her heart set to the perpetuation of an evangelistic life and a continued growth.

On March 14 Evangelists Coale and Houston came to us to lead in a revival effort. Now we all know that there are evangelists and evangelists: but permit me to try to give you as nearly as possible a clear conception of D. L. Coale of San Antonio, Texas. Physically, he is a tall, spare-made man, about thirty-five years of age, thoroughly pleasing and attractive in appearance, and he possesses a voice of pleasant modulation and great carrying power. Mentally, nature has dealt generously with him. He has come through experiences which have consumed the dross and left much of the refined gold of Christian faith and spiritual consecration. His sermons to the Church create a hungering and thirsting after righteousness, while his message to the sinner, terrifically denounces his sin, but at the same time makes him feel that "that man truly loves me and is almost irresistibly drawing me toward the Kingdom."

Such a message and such a messenger, under God, can but produce results. Brother Houston, the Choir Director and Soloist, has a strong and pleasing voice; he is a general in directing his forces — is wise, discreet, and consecrated. I have never known a better or more effective evangelistic team.

Throughout the meeting our morning congregations were good, while the night audiences taxed and even overflowed the auditorium and Sunday school room. Between 500 and 600 people professed faith in Christ. Many of these were already members of the various churches of the city, while many were not. As a result of the meeting, I think not fewer than 200 people will unite with the Methodist Church and that a large number will go to the other churches of the city. Many were free to speak in testimony meetings. People who had hitherto never dreamed of such a thing became effective personal workers. First Church, Alexandria, can never again be the same. Her newly discovered possibilities, the reward of her labors, her enlarged vision, and her rapidly growing field of operation, constitute her a healthy, vigorous and rapidly growing spiritual body. By the end of this Conference year, we feel certain that Alexandria will be reckoned as the most desirable pastorate in the Louisiana Conference.

If any brother should need a tip-top evangelist to help him in a meeting, he cannot do better than to secure D. L. Coale.

Sincerely yours,
G. E. CAMERON.

GREENVILLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Greenville District Conference will be held at Tunica, Miss., April 22-24, Bishop R. G. Waterhouse presiding. The opening sermon will be preached on the evening of April 21 by Rev. E. R. Smoot. Let the pastors send the names of those who will attend the Conference to Rev. A. C. McCorkle as soon as possible.

The following committees are appointed:

License to Preach and Recommendation for Admission on Trial—J. J. Brooks, T. M. Bradley, J. R. Bright.

Recommendation for Deacon's and Elder's Orders—W. C. Lester, L. W. Cain, W. W. Jones.

Quarterly Conference Records—H. M. Young, C. P. Wadley, H. J. Allen.

Let each pastor see that his quarterly conference record is presented to the Conference for examination.

DEFINING THE WORD.

Sometimes we get a new vision of something by nothing else than the mere study of a word. This column is being used for the purpose of promoting the interests of the cause of education. Thus far it has held up to the readers for immediate consideration Centenary College. The reason for this is that Centenary College is the Louisiana Conference's idea of a proper place to educate young men. With the money at hand, those who are interested in properly educating our young men have built and fostered the growth of this college. The men thought to be best suited to lead young men have been placed in charge of the school and every effort possible has been put forth to make the college a success.

But we said that sometimes the mere study of a word would help us to see things in a different light. The Standard Dictionary defines "educate" to mean "to develop a man physically, mentally, morally, and spiritually." If this definition is a proper one, and there are none to doubt it, that person is not educated who has merely been taught in books. The man who simply knows what has been written and is not developed physically, morally and spiritually is only one-fourth educated. The mountaineer, who can neither read nor write, but who has a fine physical form, well muscled and trained for his work who is morally clean, and saved by the power of Jesus Christ, is better educated than the most thorough scholar of the universities who is weakened in form and broken in health, with no sense of morality and no knowledge of God.

The proper school in which to train men and women takes in four branches: athletics, directed not for the mere purpose of contests, but for the purpose of maintaining health and developing strong bodies; academic, wherein the great truths preserved to us in books are brought to the mind for selection and assimilation; economics, wherein the individual is taught how his personal habits may affect the health or happiness of others and wherein he is shown how great is his moral obligation to his fellowmen in all departments of human activity, and a department of divine ethics in which the great laws of God are taught and wherein the individual can be brought under the dominion of Almighty God by a personal touch with our Savior Christ the Lord. When these four departments are well maintained we will produce men who are developed physically, mentally, morally, and spiritually. It might be said here that the State in no way attempts to maintain a department in divine ethics, for the State is morally afraid that it will get the Church and the State mixed. It has even placed the ban on the reading of the Bible in its public exercises as if it were a dangerous book.

But as we continue to study that word, Educate, we find that it is derived from the Latin verb, "educo," which means to lead out or forth. The person is educated who has been led out and forth by some one. The trained athlete coaches his students and sets the pace for them. The professor of science is ready and able to demonstrate before his class the great problem that puzzles his students. Then is it not important that in our schools there should be men who are able to lead the boys and girls to Jesus Christ? The Church must provide the teachers who are able to lead the youth out of and into the knowledge of the life and liberty of Jesus Christ. Such teachers have been provided in all our Church schools. Centenary has as a teacher not a single person who could not take a repentant boy to Christ and point him to the way of peace. Since the physical development is only of short value, because death ends our earthly existence; and since mental development is even more uncertain than the physical, because there is so much that is taught that is uncertain and the mind is subject to frailties, and since our relationship with mankind is more or less limited and then since we shall be spiritually dominant beings and responsible to God eternally, is it not more important that we have spiritual development than any other kind of development? Is it not a Christian duty to improve and enlarge Centenary College?

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

On Sunday, March 14, it was my privilege to present the subject of Christian Education and Centenary College in particular, to the Methodists of Homer. A special collection was taken and will be reported in full. The pastor, Brother Stelling, is making a splendid campaign. It is worthy of note that Homer has one of the finest and most effective choirs in the State.

On Sunday, March 21, I had the pleasure of presenting the same cause to the churches of Monroe and West Monroe. Monroe has the honor of being the first charge, as far as I know, to overpay its assessment. The Christian people of Monroe are jubilant over the prospect of better conditions in civic life. Brother Miller has been a wise leader in this direction.

Under Brother Ledbetter, the West Monroe Methodists, though small in numbers, have made great sacrifices to strengthen their congregation, having remodeled the church and built a new parsonage. They gladly contributed to the special assessment.

SOME THOUGHTS ON METHODISM IN LOUISIANA.

By Bat W. W. Pugh.

II.

According to the statistical reports in the Journal of the Louisiana Conference for 1914, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has 411 organizations, 311 houses of worship, and 9,011 members in the State of Louisiana. Let us study this statement carefully for a few moments. First, our 411 societies show an average membership of 21 plus—a showing far behind the average membership per organization reporting in 1914. At that date the average for all organizations reporting was 26. This would seem to indicate a widely scattered membership, since we have few large organizations within the bounds of our territory. Last year Bro. Brown Carter and I studied this phase of our subject and found the following to be true of the Baton Rouge District, the order given here being the name of the Parish, white population, and number of Southern Methodists: Iberville, 12,212, 1121; Ascension, 9002, 910; Webster, 7200, 1140; Claiborne, 10,112, 1005; Lincoln, 14,624, 2931. Of course, these figures do not show the exact condition, but for all approximate purposes they can be depended upon since they are from reliable sources.

This exhibit for central North Louisiana should prepare us for a poorer showing elsewhere in the Conference, were the material at hand to give it. Since it is regarded, and rightly so, as Protestant and the stronghold of Southern Methodism. There is room and urgent need for Methodism in this State, and we are awakening to this fact. We are bringing up and securing from other Conferences strong ministers who are alive to our needs here. The last dozen years have seen many fine church edifices erected by their energy and ability, so that we are able to seat three times as many people as we have members; and this is producing fine results, as is shown by the recent healthy growth of our church membership and Sunday school attendance.

We do not suffer by a comparison with other Conferences or Churches in the value of our houses of worship. We are able to take our place in the front rank at an average value of $3562. This means good equipment; it should also mean more service. If our houses of worship will each accommodate 217 people, the average of Protestant Churches in the United States, and we could have service in them all every Sunday with a full house, more than 100,000 people would hear the gospel message from our pulpits in one day. How urgent is the call to our laymen to put in good time in the churches not occupied by our ministers on circuits and half-stations! God speed the day when many of them will say, "Here am I, send me."

Our 251 houses of worship are the fortresses from which we work. (We have 68 societies which are not sheltered under their own roof.) The good work continues to go on. We attack, win, and then fortify. The Captain of our salvation is leading the host. Several thousand persons last year gave their allegiance to him at our altars. We expect greater things this year.

Our better equipment is proving a great boon to our Sunday school work. In 1903 we had 1725 officers and teachers and 14,925 scholars, or about one-half as many in Sunday school as were members of the Church. In 1914 we had 2743 officers and teachers and 30,401 scholars—a growth of 58 per cent in officers and teachers, and 103 per cent in scholars since 1903. Most encouraging to all our leaders must this statement be. We are not laboring in vain. Many are coming into the Church from our Sunday schools, trained and consecrated; they can be depended upon for intelligent service in all departments of the Church's activities. A brighter day is ahead.

MRS. W. S. HARRISON—AN APPRECIATION.

Mrs. W. S. Harrison passed from us on March 13, 1915, aged seventy-four years one month and eleven days. Language fails to express our grief and scarcely suffices us to put in form our appreciation of her worth and character. It is creditable to our common humanity a ground of hope for the ultimate good of our race that such a soul could be produced and so thoroughly prepared for heaven amid the commonplace things of earth. To God be all the glory! It was the incarnation of an ideal which gave the supreme charm to her life and made that life such a blessing to us all.

Her serenity of mind, gentleness of disposition, and dignity of manner, were in all her life the constant manifestations of the nobility of her nature. Shrinking from the gaze of the world, and least of all longing for the praise of the people, she lived to do good in quiet, unostentatious ways. She was always ready to share another's burden and take a load of everybody's sorrow. To help others was her great delight. In ministering to the needs of others she found the uplifting help of a satisfied conscience—the strengthening presence of the great invisible Comforter which always goes with unselfish devotion. This made life brighter, better, and sweeter, making the heart warm and giving to the mind a truer conception of relative values.

The passing of such a life leaves a vacancy which only heaven can fill. And why may we not hope that heaven may abide since it was so much dearer when she passed from its glories? Is it not true that the good of earth have to go as on a journey to reach heaven, but heaven comes down to receive them. Oh, the sweet words of Jesus: "I—having prepared a place for you—will come again and receive you unto myself."

The beauty of her character can the more readily be appreciated when it is known that she was born and reared in the ease and luxuries of wealth, and with what dignity and grace she accepted the reverses of fortune, becoming more loving and lovable, more gentle and sweet of disposition all the time. As earthly prospects faded, the richer elements of a noble nature became more and more evident.

In our great sorrow we have been blessed and gratified by the sympathy and kindly attentions of our friends. The more so as it brings out the gratifying fact that notwithstanding her retired home life, the character of Mrs. Harrison was more generally known than we had supposed. The sincere kindness shown us, the rich floral tributes, and the messages of love and appreciation from the more distant friends have indeed been gratifying. We rest in the confident expectation that all things shall work together for good.

W. S. HARRISON.

GOD WITH US.

By E. B. Partin, M. D.

Wesley in his closing hours, said, "The best of all, God is with us," and there is nothing better in this life than the presence of God with his people. And it is the exalted privilege of every Christian to have Him with him in all his fullness. So the Apostle Paul says (Ephesians 3-19) in his exhortation to Christians: "That ye might be filled with all the fullness of God." "Moses said to the Lord, Thou sayest unto me bring up this people; and thou hast not let me know whom thou wilt send with me. * * * And he said my presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest. And he said unto him, if thy presence go not with me, carry us not up hence. For wherein shall it be known here that I and thy people have found grace in thy sight? Is it not that thou goest with us? So shall we be separated, I and thy people from all the people that are upon the face of the earth (Ex. 33-12, 14)."

Men seek happiness in the perishing things of this world. They seek it in making and laying up money. They seek it in trying to get the honors and applause of the world. They seek it in dissipation and the pleasures of sin for a season. But they never find happiness and rest until they experience what Moses experienced when God said to him, "My presence shall go with thee and I will give thee rest."

Moses had found the true riches and the true honor for years before he had chosen rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season, esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt, for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward. Heb. 11:25, 26.

All things are possible if God be with us. All difficulties can then be overcome. Errors can be refuted, indebtedness put to flight. Every problem can be solved if God be with us. Mr. Wesley died with these words upon his lips and let us live with them on our hearts. "The best of all is that God is with us."

THE AVERA BIBLE LECTURES AT TRINITY COLLEGE.

The Avera Bible lectures at Trinity College announced to be given this year by Bishop Eugene R. Hendrix, must be deferred on account of Bishop Hendrix's health. They will probably be delivered in the autumn. This is a foundation established by Mrs. E. B. McCullers, and the lectures have been delivered in alternate years since 1911 by Bishop W. W. Duncan, Bishop Charles B. Galloway, Bishop W. W. Wilson, Bishop W. A. Candler, and other such men. The College looks forward with peculiar pleasure to having Bishop Hendrix for the series of this year.

CHILDREN'S DAY PROGRAMS.

To the Pastors and Sunday School Superintendents of the Mississippi Conference:

If you haven't already done so, please send your orders for Children's Day programs to Rev. H. F. Tolle, President Sunday School Board, Biloxi, Miss. It is earnestly hoped that every Sunday school will observe Children's Day this year. Literature can be had for the asking. The last Sunday in April, or as near thereto as practicable, is now the time for holding these services. So please send your orders at once.

Also please see that the five cent assessment is secured as soon as possible and forwarded to Rev. J. L. Decell, Treasurer of the Board, Waynesboro, Miss., as the Board needs it in carrying on its work.

Brother R. A. Maddox, our Field Secretary is busy holding institutes, organizing Sunday schools and otherwise stimulating interest in Sunday school work, and most certainly deserves the cooperation and support of all our people.

W. A. HAYS,
Secretary of the Board.

WHEN I GET WELL.

Since I've been ill, the neighbors all
  Have been so kind to me!
They bring the nicest things to eat
  That ever I did see.

Miss Gray brings pineapple blanc-mange—
  O, how I do love that!
I feel ashamed to think I set
  Old Growler on her cat.

And Mrs. Brown brings cherry shrub,
  And grapes and apple snow;
I'm sorry now I used to tease
  And scare her children so.

When I get well and up again,
  I'll surely try to be
As nice to every one of them
  As they have been to me.

WHY THE HAPPY LAND IS FAR AWAY.

"There is a Happy Land, Far, Far Away." Yes, it seemed to be far away as far as Jessie Smith was concerned. She was the only child of a drunkard, her mother having died when Jess was a baby. Many times she had helped her father up the stairs that led to their one room in a dreary court. At such times he was ill-tempered and treated her cruelly. When sober, which was very seldom, he treated her kindly.

He had returned home the night before, drunk, and Jess had helped him up the stairs to the place he called home. He did not know anything of the night before, it was a blank to him. There was a tiny pantry in the corner of the room in which Jessie did her household duties. She was in there now early in the morning, singing, "There is a happy Land, Far, Far Away." Her father, quite sober, heard her.

"Yes," he said to himself, "it's far away for her, poor thing; it cannot be here with me. Bless the child, what a grand voice she's got. Jess, Jess, come here, little one."

Jess heard her father call and quickly came to his side to see what he wanted.

"I heard you singing just now, Jess. Where did you learn it?"

"Why, at the junior meeting, of course," said Jess.

"I'm glad you go there," said her father. "I used to go there myself when I was a youngster."

"Did you really, father?" said Jess, opening wide her eyes, "and did you sing 'Happy Land'?"

"I did that, lass, and it did not seem so far away then as it does now. I've not made much of a happy land for you, lassie. It's been far, far away lately. I will try to make it different for you hereafter;" and so he did. And we may all do likewise for those about us.—The Young Soldier.

THE CHICKENS.

By Mrs. Sarah Cannon Leamon.

"Clara, please tell Mrs. Warren that I can teach her that new stitch, if she will bring her work and come to see me to-morrow afternoon."

"Oh, Mrs. Loftis, I can't."

"Why can't you? Doesn't she live next door to you?"

"Yes," hesitatingly, "but mamma won't allow me, she never lets one of us go inside of their gate."

"You can tell her over the fence, but it is not of any great importance. What is the trouble between your mother and Mrs. Warren? I thought they were both good Christian women."

"Mrs. Warren is no Christian. She's a Baptist."

"Clara, I am surprised to hear you speak that way. I am a Baptist. Mrs. Warren belongs to our church, and she is a lovely Christian woman."

"It's not because she's a Baptist," pleaded Clara, "it's—it's—it's the chickens."

"What about the chickens?" inquired Mrs. Loftis, surpressing a laugh.

"They're just awful," replied Clara, glad of an opportunity to explain. "They fly over the fence into our yard and scratch up all our flowers. We can't have nothing for them, and mamma told Mary to tell her papa to cut their wings so they couldn't fly over the fence, and he said he wouldn't, 'cause it spoiled their looks."

"That is a bad state of affairs."

"Yes, you had better believe it is. When mamma is out in our yard if Mrs. Warren comes out in her yard, mamma looks straight down the street and never looks her way, and if she is in her yard and mamma goes out in our yard she looks straight up the street and never looks our way. Mary and I never speak a word."

Oh, the chickens! the chickens! the little chicks that mar the peace and happiness of next-door neighbors! Chickens are not worth it. Flowers are not worth it. Nothing is worth the bitterness that must be in the heart of the woman who looks up the street, and the heart of the woman who looks down the street, and does not look in the direction of her neighbor. Better never see a chicken; better never eat an egg; better never smell a flower, than to bring little ones up to "never speak a word" to the little ones next door.

It is sad that there is not room in this great, big, wide, beautiful world for all the chickens and all the flowers that are wanted.

There must be. There is. There certainly is. I know a lady who raises lovely flowers in her front yard, and her son raises lovely chickens in the back yard. She can send roses from her own bushes and fresh eggs from their own nests in the same basket to an invalid friend. She lives in the Athens of the South, and her grounds contain only fifty by one hundred and seventy-five feet. They took twenty-three premiums on their chickens in one year. Surely there is nothing wrong with their looks.

There is something wrong with the flowers, there is something wrong with the chickens, when they cause heartburnings and ill will between next-door neighbors. No, that is a mistake. There is nothing wrong with any flowers; there is nothing wrong with any chickens. The wrong lies elsewhere. Seeds of impatience are sown with the seeds of the flowers. Seeds of selfishness are sown when the eggs are placed in the nests. The seeds of impatience do not germinate in the soil, neither do the seeds of selfishness germinate in the nests.

Such seeds are sown in the hearts of the sowers, and if they find congenial soil, they will take deep root and, springing up, will bear fruit when the flowers are in bloom and the chickens are flying over the fence.

There is a law against chickens scratching up neighbors' flowers. The law is for the owners of the chickens. It is contained in the oldest law books in existence, and it has never been repealed. It is engrossed in the words: "All things whatsoever ye would that others should do to you, do ye even so to them."—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

A TRUTHFUL BOY.

Robert Burdette.

How people to trust a truthful boy! We never worry about him when he is out of sight. We never say: "I wonder where he is; I wish I knew what he is doing." We know that he is all right, and that when he comes home we will know all about it and get it straight. We don't have to ask him where he is going, or how long he will be gone, every time he leaves the house. We don't have to call him back and make him "solemnly promise" the same thing over and over. When he says, "Yes, I will," or "No, I won't," just once, that settles it.

Let us draw near again to God in self-examination, in renewed humility, in confession of besetting sin, of personal selfishness and self-righteous pride. It is a hard task. It needs moral courage. It makes a demand upon our spiritual resolution. But there is no sincere religion without it. You and I must renounce the worship of self if we are to be the servants of Christ and true children of God.—Rt. Rev. Dr. Ryle.

THE EASTER MESSAGE.

By Rev. J. L. Greenway.

The hope within each anxious heart,
  The loving God does not deny;
To questions that insistent start,
  God gives a sure reply.

When darkness closes round the soul,
  God draws so very near;
When Death demands of his Life his toll,
  There is no need for fear.

When from our side our loved ones go,
  God still with us doth stay;
Though faith grows weak, and hope burns low,
  He does not turn away.

Our dead, beloved, shall rise from sleep,
  At hearing God's own voice;
And those who now in sadness weep
  Shall yet through Him rejoice.

The saints shall stand with God in light,
  And live for evermore—
Victorious over death's dark night,
  On heaven's eternal shore.

So, though our faith we may not prove:
  In God we still can trust,
For He has power to awake and move
  Those sleeping in the dust.

This Easter morn the glad news cheers—
  Christ lives to die no more!
Rejoice, rejoice, wipe all your tears,
  We'll live for evermore!

Silver Creek, Miss.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

DELAY MEANS FAILURE.

The weeks are flitting by, and but little has been accomplished in securing the renewals of subscriptions to the Advocate in many pastoral charges. Hundreds of names will soon have to be dropped from our mailing files unless something is promptly done. What about the situation among your people, brother pastor? You are apt to find it increasingly difficult to get subscribers to pay up what is due and continue to take the Advocate as the year advances toward summer, when there will be but little money in circulation. NOW is the time to lend the Conference Organ a helping hand. Will you not make an effort to do so at ONCE?

CHILDREN'S DAY.

It is to be hoped that Children's Day will this year be observed in all our churches. The time now fixed for this is the last Sunday in April, or as near thereto as is practicable. The question as to whether this "Day" shall be celebrated is not optional; the law of the Church requires it. A correspondent states that some of our larger congregations have fallen into a habit of ignoring Children's Day. If so, this is to their discredit. The money raised on this occasion accomplishes great good, and the recognition which is thus given the children by the whole Church is worth much. If for any unavoidable reason, the "Day" cannot be celebrated with appropriate exercises, let a collection be taken and sent promptly to the Treasurer of the Conference Sunday School Board. This is a matter of much importance.

NEW, BUT NEEDED.

The "EFFICIENCY" Conference is something new in Southern Methodism, but we think it is needed. The showing that our Church has made as to an increase of communicants within the past two or three years has not been satisfactory. We have not been keeping our former pace. At the last Ecumenical Methodist Conference, held in Toronto, Canada, in 1911, it was shown that during the preceding ten years there had been in all the branches of Methodism in the Western Hemisphere a gain in membership of 974,000, and that 490,000 of this increase was in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Since that time, however, the Methodist Episcopal Church has been working more systematically and energetically, with the result that for the past two years it has outstripped us, having had in 1914 a gain of 137,497 communicants, against a gain of 36,530 by our Church.

We think that our last General Conference acted wisely in urging our Bishops to give their episcopal districts a closer supervision. The presence of our Chief Pastors in the field is very helpful to the work. In our judgment, it is far more important for our Bishops to hold the district conferences in the territory under their supervision than to perform many other services that they are pressed into rendering. In order that they may effectively lead our forces in the field, we believe that as far as is practicable it would perhaps be well to make the episcopal districts compact and continue one Bishop in charge of the same district for two, or three, or four years, unless there is some special reason for making a change. We could not adopt a better slogan for these strenuous times than that of "EFFICIENCY IN THE MASTER'S WORK." We owe it to God and humanity to do our very best.

A SUGGESTIVE CARTOON.

In the Times-Picayune of Saturday, April 3, there appeared a cartoon by Mr. W. K. Patrick, the gifted caricaturist of that journal, which we wish every reader of the Advocate could see. It shows the front of a church with the door open, and presumably worshipers on the inside; while on the steps Satan sits alone, with bestial and cunning face, with his black, bat-like wings folded behind him, and holding in his hand a "Dance Program." Underneath the impressive picture are written the words, "WAITING AT THE CHURCH;" while off to one side stands The Times-Picayune's observant and philosophic duck, which is represented as saying, "I thought you said he was 'playin' hell' in Europe."

What a satire is this on the Lenten ceremonies of some Churches and what follows! There is certainly danger in imbuing people with the notion that they need to be more religious at some particular season than at others, and that to be specially devoted for a time can atone for preceding or subsequent worldly dissipation. It is for this reason that we dislike to see the other Christian denominations drifting into the habit of imitating the Roman Catholics and Episcopalians in a stated observance of the Lenten season. In our judgment, the educative influence of such a practice is liable to do much harm. That there is a decided tendency in this direction is, we think, quite obvious. In a recent issue of the Presbyterian of the South was contained the following utterance: "'Holy Week' has been officially recognized by the Federal Council of Churches, and its observance by the thirty constituent denominations is suggested. The aforesaid authorities represent the Southern Presbyterian Church, along with the other Protestant bodies. 'Holy Week' is of Papal origin, and it derives its sanctions from the ancient and oft reiterated decrees of that august world-power."

We do not desire in the foregoing statement to be understood as opposing the evangelistic campaigns which Protestant pastors have been carrying on for the past two or three years during the forty days of Lent. The work of saving souls is always in order; but if such campaigns are made to begin and end exactly with the Lenten period, they are liable to contribute to the already widespread superstition that there is some unusual religious merit in the worship and services of that particular season. For this reason, we are inclined to think that if we were a pastor we should insist upon avoiding this precise correspondence, by beginning our revival efforts somewhat earlier, or continuing them longer. Some may think that this is a small matter; if so, we beg to remind them that great eccelesiastical assemblies have deemed it of sufficient importance to speak out unequivocably concerning it in the not remote past.

MORE LAURELS FOR LEE AND JACKSON.

Mr. Frederick Palmer, who is at the front in France as a representative of the Associated Press, has recently given to the American public a strikingly interesting interview with Sir John French, the Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in the great European war. Referring to that distinguished soldier, among other things, he said: "Few Americans probably are as familiar with the campaigns of the American Civil War as is Sir John. He has made a thorough study of them and from them he has drawn lessons which he has found helpful in France." He then quotes General French as having commented upon "Stonewall" Jackson and Robert E. Lee as follows:

"To me General Jackson was more like Cromwell than any other leader in history. He was a heroic, martial figure, whose wonderful career came to a happy close, as a soldier desires, in the hour of victory. I have followed all his marches and battles with unflagging admiration. He had the religious exaltation of Cromwell, his dash and determination and ready strategy, and the genius of inspiring his troops with his indomitable spirit and energy.

"But of all your commanders, Robert E. Lee, in his patience, his resourcefulness, his poise, his soundness of judgment, and his possession of the qualities of high command in all emergencies, is first, in my opinion."

Emanating from such a source, this is high praise, but not higher than other competent authorities have accorded these two famous defenders of the South. It is a significant fact that as we get farther from the terrific war of the sixties and the prejudices that it engendered, impartial critics seem increasingly disposed to place the Confederate leaders first, in giving rank to the soldiers of that stormy period. And it is a thing of which we Southerners may well be proud, that Lee and Jackson were not only great in genius, but also great in character. There is not a single blot upon the record of either of them for which apology needs to be made. Of how few of the illustrious military leaders of the world can this be said!

HOW IS THIS?

The Southern Methodist Handbook for 1915 shows that the Louisiana Conference had in 1914 a net gain of 2455 members; that the North Mississippi Conference had a gain of 179, and the Mississippi Conference a loss of 1474. The Louisiana Methodists are to be heartily congratulated upon this fine showing. They now have 36,450 members.

We can scarcely believe that the figures for the two Mississippi Conferences are correct. But that the great, rich Methodism of that State with a numerical strength, according to the figures, of approximately 115,000, with 330 pastoral charges, and several hundred Sunday schools, should make such a showing as to leave it doubtful whether there has been an advance or a decline during the past year, surely ought to provoke serious and prayerful thought. What is the matter, brethren? Who can tell us?

PARKER MEMORIAL DEBT REDUCED.

We are glad to state that the entire indebtedness of the Parker Memorial Church, of this city, to the General Board of Church Extension, which amounted to $4867, has been extinguished. The congregation raised $1250 to be paid on this debt, and the Board very generously issued a receipt to the Church for the entire amount. The Methodists of New Orleans will not soon forget the kindly assistance rendered by Dr. McMurry in this matter. We heartly congratulate Brother Harper and his worthy flock upon this achievement. The Parker Memorial Church now owes less than $7000, and its outlook is bright with promise.

THE NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The New Orleans District Conference will be held in the Carrollton Church this week. The first session will be on Thursday night, beginning at 7:45 o'clock. The Committee meetings will be held on Friday at 10 a. m., and there will be preaching at 11 o'clock. Dinner will be served at the Church and an afternoon session will be held from 1:30 to 3:30 o'clock. The last session will be held Friday night. Rev. W. W. Holmes, the wide-awake presiding elder, has prepared and distributed among the pastors a series of questions which will develop the facts concerning the work in every charge. The Methodists of New Orleans are cordially invited to attend the sessions of the Conference.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. W. Drake, of this city, attended the meeting of the Conference Secretaries of Education in Atlanta last week.

In our "Church News Column" in a recent issue of the Advocate, we stated that Dr. W. R. Hendrix was pastor of "Wesley Memorial" in Atlanta. We should have said St. Mark's Church.

Rev. J. R. Roy of Gilbert, La., while recently en route bome from a revival meeting in Queensborough Church, Shreveport, preached a strong revival sermon in the meeting at Rayville, La.

Dr. R. H. Wynn, president of Centenary College, filled the pulpit of our First Church at Monroe, La., on Sunday, March 21. Dr. Wynn was greeted by a large and enthusiastic congregation of his former parishioners.

In giving the names of the members of the Millsaps Club at Emory University underneath the picture of them which we carried last week, a regrettable error occurred: the name, "Robert H. Huff," should have been Robert H. Ruff.

Dr. George P. Eckman, editor of the New York Christian Advocate, has tendered his resignation to the Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which will meet in San Francisco on April 21, with a view to re-entering the pastorate.

A revival meeting was in progress at Columbia, Miss., last week, in which the pastor, Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, had the assistance of Rev. W. B. Hogg, of Meridian, and Rev. W. J. Ferguson, of Mt. Olive, Miss. We are not informed as to the results.

Rev. J. D. Boggs, of Dumas, Miss., has our thanks for some good work lately done in behalf of the Conference organ. We regret to know that Brother Boggs has been ill for some time, but are glad to be informed that his health is improving.

A note from his Secretary, written on April 2, stated that Bishop W. A. Candler was quite ill in Atlanta with bronchitis and pleurisy. We are sorry to know this, and we trust that this faithful servant of the Church will soon be well and strong again.

The Church choir of Mer Rouge, La., gave a sacred concert on March 26 and took a free-will offering for Centenary College. Rev. A. Inman Townsley, Commissioner of Education for the Monroe District, delivered an address on "Christian Education."

We are pleased to know that the health of Sister Spragins, the wife of Rev. H. S. Spragins, presiding elder of the Greenville (Miss.) District, which had not been good for some time, has been steadily improving lately. We hope that she will soon be thoroughly well.

Rev. J. A. Biffle, of Eudora, Miss., sends us a club of 5 subscriptions from his charge, and adds: "We are serving a fine people. They are still sending in good things for the pantry." Brother Biffle is showing himself to be a workman that needeth not to be ashamed in the itinerancy.

Persons desiring extra copies of the Louisiana Educational Edition of the Advocate, soon to be brought out, should send their orders at once to Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education. The prices at which they may be had were given in last week's issue of the Advocate.

Rev. L. F. Alford, of Saucier, Miss., was in New Orleans this week and called at our office on last Tuesday. He was looking well and spoke hopefully of his work. Brother Alford came to the city to be with his brother, Mr. T. L. Alford, of Vicksburg, who is here for medical treatment.

Rev. Rob't O. Weir, formerly of the Louisiana Conference, but now a member of the Texas Conference, while visiting his daughter, Mrs. B. O. Griffin, at Mangham, La., filled the pulpit for the pastor there, Rev. A. D. George, with great acceptability. Brother Weir is at present stationed at Fairfield, Texas.

Rev. J. W. Ward, our popular pastor at Rosedale, Miss., favored us with some subscriptions from his charge a few days since. Included in the list, was a subscription for the King's Daughters' Home at that place, which was paid for by Brother H. D. Chaney, who is one of the choice Methodist laymen of North Mississippi.

Dr. J. T. Sawyer preached an Easter sermon to the Lake View Presbyterians last Sunday, taking as his text 1 Corinthians xv, 56, 57: "The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." A good congregation was in attendance.

Rev. Robert Selby was in New Orleans last Tuesday and favored the Advocate office with a call. He was looking well and spoke encouragingly of the work in the Brookhaven District. Brother Selby attended the meeting of Conference Secretaries of Education in Atlanta last week, and reported quite favorably of its work.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, has been elected president of Protestant Ministers' Association of this city. This is the second time that this honor has been conferred upon Brother Holmes: he was elected to the same position some three years ago while serving as pastor of Felicity Street Church.

Rev. R. M. Papasan, of Randolph, Miss., says: "Everything is moving on nicely in this charge. I have a fine people to serve. They know how to treat a pastor, and they are making me feel at ease, though the early years of my life were spent among them." Brother Papasan's letter brought us 1 new and 1 renewal subscription, for which he has our thanks.

We are glad to state that Mr. J. F. H. Barbee, of Memphis, Tenn., a son of the late Dr. J. D. Barbee, who submitted to a serious operation in Cleveland, Ohio, some ten days ago, stood the trying ordeal satisfactorily and is thought to be doing well. We sincerely hope that he will soon be out of all danger and safe on the way to a complete recovery.

Beginning on Sunday, March 28, Rev. A. Inman Townsley, our gifted and versatile pastor at Rayville, La., conducted a series of evening services, which were continued through last Sunday. The themes discussed by Brother Townsley were happily chosen and his discourses were strong and helpful. A catechism class and several other new members were received on Easter Sunday.

A note from T. J. Durrett, of North Carrollton, Miss., states that his health has been bad all the winter and that on this account his work has been much hindered. We regret to know this, and we trust that there will soon be a change for the better in our brother's physical condition. Brother Durrett's letter brought us 5 subscriptions, for which he has our thanks.

The Epworth Church of New Orleans had last Sunday one of the very best days in its history. There were large congregations in attendance and 21 members were received, making 36 additions since Conference. Rev. W. L. Doss, the gifted young pastor, had preached every night during the preceding week, and will continue to do so this week. This growing church is in an excellent condition.

Rev. C. F. Emery, presiding elder of the Newton District, is spending his strength freely to promote the interests of the Church in the territory under his supervision. The brethren say that he both preaches and presides well, and that the work is feeling the influence of his leadership. We thank Brother Emery for a cordial invitation to attend his district conference, an announcement of which appears elsewhere.

In a letter written on March 29, Rev. A. H. Williams, of Shannon, Miss., stated that an excellent quarterly conference had just been held on his charge by Rev. J. W. Bell, whose visit was much enjoyed socially, and whose preaching was up to his usual good standard. Brother Williams reports that the Sunday school at Shannon has doubled in attendance since Conference, and that the general outlook is cheering in his field.

Writing under date of April 2, Rev. T. J. Norsworthy, of Yazoo City, Miss., says: "Will you please allow me to state to the brethren that I am at home again after a most delightful trip to Florida, and am ready to respond to any calls that may come to me to do revival work?" We hope that the brethren will keep Brother Norsworthy busy. He loves the evangelistic work, and his labors in it have been attended with considerable success.

Everything is reported to be in readiness for the Louisiana State Sunday School Convention, which will be held in Baton Rouge, April 13-15. The energetic State Secretary, Mr. Van. Carter, is to be congratulated upon the promising outlook for a great conference of Sunday school workers, which he has spared no pains to make possible. Go, if you can, and become informed as to the latest and best methods that are being used in this important arm of service.

Mrs. Vic T. Hoyle, the consecrated and capable president of the Woman's Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference, in writing of the recent meeting of that organization at Corinth, says: "We had a great Conference. Dr. E. H. Rawlings, who preached on Sunday, carried me back to Epworth League days. He touched the inmost recesses of my soul, and two young women expressed themselves to me afterwards as being almost decided to devote their lives to missionary work."

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. H. K. McKee, Oak Ridge, Miss., 7; Rev. C. C. Griffin, Carthage, Miss., 4; Rev. H. B. Thomason, Anacoco, La., 5; Rev. C. B. Powell, Clinton, La., 5; Rev. Chas. E. Downer, Shubuta, Miss., 5; Rev. J. A. Coleman, Oxford, Miss. (from Red Banks charge), 2; Rev. J. H. Montgomery, Mellville, La., 5; Rev. C. H. Herring, Woodville Ct., 5.

In a business letter to our office, Rev. L. A. McKeown, of Byhalia, Miss., appends the following note: "I should love to see you and have a long talk with you about Skene and else. I am hard at work and happy. The outlook is very encouraging for a good year." The Editor will never forget the trips that he used to take to Skene when he served the Greenville District. Brother McKeown was regarded as a bigger preacher than any Bishop in the Church thereabout. Those were golden days.

We acknowledge the reception of an attractive invitation from the President and Faculty of Port Gibson Female College to attend the Commencement exercises of that institution, May 2-4. Rev. H. F. Tolle, of Biloxi, Miss., will preach the Commencement sermon and deliver the Baccalaureate Address, and on Sunday afternoon, May 2, Rev. C. M. Chapman, of Rolling Fork, Miss., will deliver an address to the young people. Under the able presidency of Rev. T. J. O'Neil, this school has had an excellent session.

In forwarding some subscriptions to our office, Rev. E. M. Shaw, of Benoit, Miss., adds: "Our work is doing very well. The good people of Shipman's Chapel sent us a valuable New Year remembrance, embracing many good things, and the people of Benoit gave us on March 29 a shower party which left our pantry full. A worthier or more liberal flock than the one we serve can nowhere be found. Our Sunday schools and prayer meetings are well attended, and we have good congregations when the weather is not inclement."

Rev. W. J. Wood, pastor of the Mars' Hill (Miss.) Circuit, writes: "My work is progressing favorably. Notwithstanding the bad weather and muddy roads, I have not missed a single appointment. We are building one church and making another practically new. We have a good Sunday school at each of our five churches. Our congregations have been good all the winter. I think that I have one of the best circuits in the North Mississippi Conference." Brother Wood is mindful of the interests of the Advocate, and his letter brought us some names for our subscription files.

Rev. J. M. Johnson, of Poisgrove, Ky., in renewing his subscription to the Advocate, adds the following note: "I have just read in the Courier-Journal a dispatch stating that the reading of the Bible and the recitation of the Lord's prayer have been forbidden in the public schools of Caddo Parish by a decision of the Louisiana Supreme Court. Protestant Christians need to be active in preaching the doctrines of the Bible, in increasing the circulation of church periodicals, and in adding thousands of new members to the Church." This is excellent exhorting, which our people everywhere would do well to heed.

In a business letter to our office bringing us 3 subscriptions, Rev. C. A. Schultz, of Daleville, Miss., appends the following note concerning his work: "This charge is growing spiritually. A number of young people have lately become quite active in the Master's service. More than a dozen, who until recently had never done such a thing, will now pray in public. For the past five weeks our Wednesday night prayer meetings have been led by a different young man, no one of whom had ever conducted such a service before. We have lately received 4 members into the Church—3 on profession of faith, and 1 by vows."

We have in hand a copy of the Program for Galloway Memorial Day, Sunday, April 25, which all the churches in the Mississippi Conference are expected to observe. It is well arranged in every respect and reflects credit on the Program Committee—Rev. J. M. Morse, Rev. N. B. Harmon, and Rev. T. J. O'Neil. The object of the observance of this day is to increase the Galloway Memorial Fund for Superannuated Preachers. This movement is well organized, trustees to administer the funds having been elected and a charter having been secured from the State Legislature. The amount of money collected up to the present is $2,329.83.

After a siege lasting six months, the city of Przemysl surrendered to the Russian forces on March 22. It is a place of about 50,000 inhabitants, and was strongly fortified. According to report, the number of troops surrendered was between 50,000 and 75,000. The garrison was said to be destitute of food and facing starvation. The capitulation of this fortress has released a Russian army of nearly 200,000 men which will now cooperate in the effort to take Cracow, the only remaining fortified town of much importance in Galicia.

ROBERT D. ALEXANDER, died at the residence of his son near Austin, Texas, in the 91st year of his age, on the morning of Dec. 20, 1914, after an illness of a few days. He was a consistent member of the Methodist Church. His companion passed to the Celestial City about twelve years ago. Since then he has spent most of his time with his children and his nephew, Mr. J. R. Abel of Dayton, Tenn. The home of his childhood being Dayton, he loved it dearly. He was as gentle as a woman and was ever thoughtful of those with whom he came in contact. Trusting in God's Word, he never faltered in his duty. When the Master called he was ready and willing to go. Having designated a spot for his last resting place and having selected the songs he desired to be sung; and leaving many loving admonitions to the dear ones left behind, he closed his eyes in dreamless sleep to be awakened by the trump of God. May he who said, "I will not leave you comfortless," help us to bow in meek submission to his divine will! Farewell, Uncle. Thou art resting in the Shepherd's peaceful fold. By God's grace, we all shall meet you when we cross death's cold river.

His niece, JESSIE ABTL.

JAMES HUGH WALLACE, son of William Lynn and Jane Gill Boyd Wallace, was born at Chester, South Carolina, on June 15, 1835. In early childhood, with his parents, he moved to Independence, Miss., where the most of his life was spent. On Feb. 14, 1866, he was married to Miss Fannie Hawkins, near Wakefield, Miss. Of this union were born 10 children, 8 of whom are living and were present at his death, which occurred on March 18, 1915. He joined the M. E. Church, South, in the year 1869. During his last illness he spoke in no uncertain terms of his relationship to Jesus Christ, of the assurance of his faith in Christ as his personal Savior and of a home in heaven. Brother Wallace was a good father, a faithful and devoted husband, and a fine neighbor. He was a brave soldier, having served in the Confederate Army as Lieutenant of Company A of the Ninth Mississippi Regiment, Chalmers' Brigade. He was an honorable and high-toned citizen, always mindful of the poor and needy. He leaves to mourn his going an aged wife with whom he had lived for 49 years. May the heavenly Father comfort and console her in her declining years! We laid his body away in Mount Zion Cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

R. I. COLLINS.

For the second time in two short weeks, has our little village been stricken with sorrow and grief. It was in the afternoon of Friday, March 12, that death visited the home of our friend and neighbor, and claimed for its victim our Dr. T. J. COCHRAN. He had been the practicing physician for this, and a large portion of the surrounding country for more than thirty-five years. His life had been one of usefulness, and he had been a friend to the sick and suffering ones. He was an honest, upright man, and a loyal member of the Methodist Church. He leaves a faithful wife, and a devoted son and daughter. We buried his remains at Bethel Church Cemetery the following day, March 13. * * * * Just two weeks from the above date we were called to attend the funeral of Brother J. H. COCHRAN, who was another good man, and the father of Dr. Cochran. Brother Cochran was in his 90th year; and had been a member of the Methodist Church for more than 75 years; during which time he was a steward for more than forty years. He loved his Church, was loyal to his pastor, and, better still, he was loyal to his Maker; and every one who knew him loved and honored him. Our presiding elder, Rev. J. T. Leggett preached the funeral sermon, which was attended by a large number of relatives and sympathizing friends. Every preacher of the Mississippi Conference who has served the Daleville charge will remember well Uncle Johnny Cochran; they well know what the Church has lost here on earth. His remains were also carried to Bethel Cemetery, and there laid away to await the "resurrection morn."

C. A. SHULTZ, Pastor.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

(Adopted by the Woman's Home Mission Society of Rocky Hill, Miss.)

Whereas it has pleased our Heavenly Father to call from our midst one of our best and most earnest co-workers, Mrs. J. R. Yarbrough, whose noble Christian life was an inspiration to all with whom she was associated,

We, the members of this Society, wish to express our love and appreciation of the beautiful life and faithful work of our dear sister, whom we so greatly miss and whose place can not be filled. We can not understand why one so useful and so much needed should be taken from us. She was indeed a true mother in her home, where she is so sadly missed; but we know that our Father doeth all things for the best, and we must bow in humble submission to his will. We do know that she is resting from her labors and that her good works will follow her. Therefore, be it resolved:

1. That as a Society, we know that we have lost one of our most efficient members, and we miss her from our councils, miss her sweet cheerful face and her encouraging words of wisdom to us, and that we shall ever cherish her memory.

2. That our hearts go out in tenderest sympathy to the lonely heart-broken husband, the loving children, and brothers and sisters. To them we would say, "Look up, for she is just across the river. There with other dear ones you will find her, where there is neither pain nor separation.

3. That we request the publication of these resolutions in the Winston County Journal and the Christian Advocate, and that they also be placed upon the records of our Society.

Signed: Miss Myrtice Fulton, Mrs. T. M. Yarbrough, Mrs. H. M. Woodruff, Cor. Secty., Committee.

RESOLUTIONS OF APPRECIATION.

The Committee appointed by the Methodist Sunday school, of Shelby, Miss., to draft resolutions of regret and sympathy, on the death of Mr. Thomas J. Poitevent, begs leave to submit the following report:

Whereas death has removed from our community, Mr. T. J. Poitevent, a man whose whole life stood for the uplift and betterment of our community, and,

Whereas, our Sunday school, as an integral part of the community life, feels deeply this common bereavement; we therefore for that Sunday school, resolve:

1. That in the death of Mr. T. J. Poitevent, our town has lost a generous and loyal citizen, our Sunday school and Church a staunch supporter, his family a tender husband and loving father.

2. That we extend to the stricken wife and bereaved children, the latter of whom have been members of this Sunday school from infancy, our tenderest sympathy and sincere condolence, praying that the God of the widow and the fatherless may be their shield and guide.

3. That a copy of this report be furnished the bereaved family and one sent to each of the following papers for publication: The Cleveland Enterprise, The Grenada Sentinel, and The New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Signed: Miss Mary V. Duval, Mrs. David White, F. W. Bullock, Committee.

Hermanville, Miss.

The Lord is still with us at this place, and while the evil one is putting in some of his time here we are working faithfully and trusting God, and we believe that ultimately we will overthrow him and by the grace of God see Hermanville healed of her evils and misfortunes. We have a fine people here and we believe that God will care for them in the great disasters that have befallen them.—G. G. Yeager.

Rome, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: As Sunday was the end of our first quarter, we examined the children on the work of the quarter. The Sunday school made a general average of 79 per cent. The highest mark, 99 per cent, was made by a little girl nine years old, Louise Stubbs. Her little brother, Charles, not yet seven, made 90 per cent, and her baby sister, Ruth, four years old, made 50 per cent. Our pastor, Brother J. W. Price, requested me to let you know what we are doing and also to ask what Sunday school can beat this record.—Mrs. W. O. Harris.

Como, Miss.

We are moving along nicely here. We have just organized the Sunday school into a graded school with graded lessons. Our congregations are large. We have paid our Domestic Mission claims in full, also that for the Sunday School Field Secretary. We are looking forward to a great day Sunday. We will baptize some infants and take into the Church several young girls on profession of faith. We are happy here among these excellent people, who are not afraid of spoiling a preacher by bragging on him.—W. D. Wendel.

REVIVAL AT OAKLAND, MISS.

We have recently had with us in a revival meeting Rev. H. M. Ellis, Field Secretary of the Methodist Hospital at Memphis. He was with us ten days and did a fine work. Brother Ellis is a splendid preacher. Nearly all the people of the town joined heartily with us in the meeting. Special mention should be made of Rev. J. O. Davison of the Presbyterian Church and Rev. J. P. Neal of the Baptist Church. These brethren did all they could for the meeting. As a result, 6 joined the Methodist Church, 7 the Presbyterian Church, and 5 the Baptist Church. We certainly had a great meeting. Any pastor would do well to secure the services of Brother Ellis in a revival.

JAMES PORTER, Pastor.

PORT GIBSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Port Gibson District Conference will open at 3 p. m., Tuesday, April 27, 1915, in the Gibson Memorial Church, at Vicksburg, Miss., and it will continue until the work is finished. The opening sermon will be preached by Dr. H. Walter Featherstun, at 7:30 p. m.

The pastors will please arrange to have the Quarterly Conference Records on hand. The local preachers will be expected to attend the session. If it should be impossible for any of these brethren to come, let them send a written report and a request for a renewal of license. This is of imperative importance. Failure to do this will be taken as an expression of indifference. Efforts are being made to secure the attendance of Dr. E. H. Rawlings, or Dr. C. F. Reid, or Dr. J. B. Fearn. It is hoped that one or more of them will be present.

Those who may come to represent the general interests of the Church will be given an opportunity to do so during the business sessions of the Conference. We propose to magnify the preaching of the Word. Brethren, let no trifling thing keep you from coming, and come praying for a deeply religious Conference.

The following are the Committees:

License to Preach—T. B. Holloman, J. H. Foreman, E. J. Coker.

Admission on Trial—C. M. Chapman, J. E. Williams, B. W. Lewis.

Deacons Orders—H. W. Featherstun, G. G. Yeager, E. L. Alford.

Elders Orders—John D. Ellis, H. K. McKee, C. H. Herring.

Ministerial Training—H. B. Watkins, L. L. Roberts, M. F. Adams.

Quarterly Conference Records—R. F. Harrell, W. B. Alsworth, J. F. Campbell, J. K. Sessions, J. E. Cammack.

Epworth Leagues—T. J. O'Neil, J. H. Jolly, H. M. Johnson, C. H. Strait.

We will confidently look for Dr. Meek and Brother Chalmers to attend.

Fayette, Miss., March 31, 1915.

RESOLUTION OF SYMPATHY.

We, the committee appointed from the Methodist Sunday school of Jackson, La., to prepare an expression of sympathy for the family of Miss Arabelle Austin, suggest the following:

Whereas on March 1, 1915, God in his infinite wisdom removed from our midst Miss Arabelle Austin, our Sunday school has suffered a severe loss, for her life was a daily example of true Christianity.

1. That we extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family with this blessed and comforting message: Arabelle is with Jesus waiting to welcome you to her heavenly home, where there will be no more parting, but eternal life.

2. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Sunday school, a copy presented to the sorrowing family, and copies published in the New Orleans Christian Advocate and The Record.

Signed: Mrs. T. D. Dawson, Mrs. Lee Kibilnger, Mary Holcombe, May Connell, Committee.

MRS. M. A. KITTRELL.

Mrs. Martha A. Kittrell, daughter of Rev. Richard and Mrs. Lucinda Weatherford, was born on Nov. 17, 1838, and died on March 17, 1915. She was married to John W. Kittrell on August 2, 1860, with whom she celebrated her "Golden Wedding" on August 2, 1910. She was the mother of eight children, only three of whom survive to comfort the companion of her earthly pilgrimage. One sister and one brother also mourn their loss.

In early life she united with the Missionary Baptist Church, of which Church she remained a consistent member until God called her spirit home. Ever faithful to her own Church, she was also broad-minded in her views, cheerfully allowing each member of her family to unite with the Church of his individual choice.

A woman of strong character and splendid physique, she gave her life untiringly to the care of her home and loved ones. No mother was ever more faithful in a loving ministry to her children. When sickness and sorrow came, she was ever faithful, and her courage undaunted. And when death took her youngest son—the idol of her heart—she said, "God knows best, and his will, not mine, he done."

One of her most marked characteristics was her tender love for little children; nothing so aroused her as for some one to wound the feelings of a little child. Perhaps no appeal for missions ever stirred her heart as did the reading by her granddaughter of the sad story of the little Korean girl, "Toksoonie." True to her vision of life, she leaves behind her a long record of faithful, loving service. To us who loved her, she leaves an inspiration to be more faithful, more tender—to love as she loved the children she can no longer serve.

Many relatives and friends in Lauderdale County, where she spent all but the last years of her life, will mourn with us, her passing. In life, it might truthfully be said of her, "She looketh well to the ways of her household." In death, "Her children rise up and call her blessed."

A LOVED ONE.

A FINE MEETING AT WIGGINS, MISS.

Editor Advocate: We closed a two-weeks' meeting here last Sunday night that was a decided uplift to the community; it inspired and quickened the Church and cheered this pastor's heart very much. We have received 14 persons and there are 6 or more yet who will join. The preaching was mostly done by Brother M. B. Sharbrough of Columbia. His sermons were thoughtful, logical, Biblical, and were accompanied with the Holy Spirit sent down from heaven. He truly beiongs to that class of preachers of whom it was said, "They were giants," My family and I have received the best of treatment at the hands of the people here and are heginning to feel very much at home. We are making preparations already for the District Conference which will meet at Bond on May 25, and hope to show all who come the hearty hospitality that is so characteristic of the people of this charge (Wiggins and Bond). We find the Advocate bright and helpful and hope to find some new readers for it. More anon.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney.

Brother Oakes of McCool has his heart in the work and is leading his people to higher things.

Superintendent Loch of Hernando reports that his school is growing right along. This fine school is not far from the goal.

Have you received Children's Day programs? Ask your preacher to write me the number you need and they will be ordered for you at once.

The Sardis school is doing the best work in its history. The missionary program given last Sunday had as fine an effect as a great sermon, so I hear.

Mathiston has improved wonderfully in the last few years. The Sunday school workers of the different churches have visited this town and each one has made a good impression on the people.

The Okolona Sunday school has a preacher and superintendent that are doing big things regardless of the war and weather. Before another quarter passes they have promised themselves to be with the foremost schools of the Conference.

The fewer changes made in the program the better it will be for the children and for the congregation. It would be wise to take it as it is and render it as suggested by the gifted and experienced woman that took so much thought to prepare it for us.

Here is another school doing first class work and making no fuss about it! The preacher at Kilmichael is trying some of the new plans and they are working like a charm. The one-room church has been curtained so as to improvise eight classrooms. The interest is fine and growing every month.

The Ackerman people are justly proud of their new church, which is well adapted to the work of the modern Sunday school. The superintendent, Brother McWhorter, is fortunate in having a number of excellent teachers ready to move right along with him to the front. They are willing to learn and do.

One way to make the collection a success on Children's Day is to send to Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn., for one hundred Conference Day collection envelopes (cost 30 cents) and distribute them a week before the service is to be held. There are other ways. The main thing is to try some way.

The Cold Springs Church, ten miles east of Sardis, is in a typical country community. These people say they are determined to have a school that comes up to the standard of efficiency. When these people learn to carry out every department successfully they will be worth one hundred per cent more to the Kingdom of God. Keep Cold Springs in mind, for you are going to hear something from that community that will make your heart rejoice.

Three copies of the Missionary Messenger have been sent to each superintendent in the Conference for the year at the expense of the Sunday School Board, one copy each for the superintendent, the preacher and the chairman of the missionary committee. Brother pastor, it seems to me that this program gives us the best opportunity we have ever had to teach our people systematically what God would have us do for the unsaved world. God forbid that any of us should pass this opportunity by carelessly.

STOPS TOBACCO HABIT.

Elder's Sanitarium, located at 513 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a book showing the deadly effect of the tobacco habit, and how it can be stopped in three to five days. As they are distributing this book free, anyone wanting a copy should send their name and address at once.

FROM GIRLHOOD TO OLD AGE WOMEN ARE HELPED

At the first symptoms of any derangement of the feminine organism at any period of life the one safe, really helpful remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Tens of thousands of women have taken it with unfailing success for every conceivable ailment and disease of a womanly nature. It is a woman's temperance medicine and its ingredients are published on wrapper.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a true friend to women in times of trial and at times of pain when the organs are not performing their functions. For headache, backache, hot flashes, catarrhal condition, bearing down sensation, mental depression, dizziness, fainting spells, lassitude and exhaustion women should never fail to take this tried and true women's medicine.

Prepared from nature's roots and herbs, it contains no alcohol nor narcotics, nor any harmful ingredient. Medicine dealers everywhere have it on hand in either tablet or liquid form at all times. If you want a specialist in women's diseases to diagnose your case absolutely free of charge, write Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., to-day. 136-page book on women's diseases sent free.—Adv.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original little Liver Pills. These tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules—the smallest and the easiest to take. One little Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic. Sick headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are prevented and relieved.

Put up in sealed vials—a perfect vest-pocket remedy, always convenient, fresh, and reliable.

Character grows through self-denial bravely faced for Jesus' sake, and such a growth of Christian character is the only guarantee of happiness and peace. —Christian Observer.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

RHEUMATISM CURED

There is now being manufactured a preparation called Hydes Rheumatic and Kidney Remedy, which is absolutely guaranteed to cure Rheumatism and relieve Kidney complaints. If you suffer, why not get relief?

Testimonials and Recommendations sent on request.

Will be prepaid anywhere on receipt of one dollar per bottle.

SKIN TROUBLES FROM SCROFULA

Among the many manifestations of scrofula are eruptions on the face and body. These are both annoying and disfiguring. How often the complexion would be perfect if they were not present!

Other manifestations are bunches, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, wasting of the muscles, and general debility.

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great medicine completely eradicates scrofula and builds up the whole system. Get it today.

NEWTON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Newton District Conference will convene in the Presbyterian Church (by courtesy) at Philadelphia at 3 o'clock p. m., June 8. All members are requested to answer roll call as business will be taken up at once.

The opening sermon will be preached at 7 p. m. by Rev. W. W. Graves, followed by the Lord's Supper.

Pastors will please elect delegates at once and forward names to me and to Rev. J. G. Galloway in order that the official roll and committees may be made up before the opening of the session and that entertainment may be provided.

Let all the members attend and strive to make this a great occasion. A Missionary Institute will be held on Wednesday and an educational program will be carried out.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Here positively is the greatest novelty of the age. Every one a new testament, bound and illustrated, the size of a postage stamp, is enclosed in a simulation watch, to protect from damage. Can be carried or worn. Said to be a lucky charm and bring good luck to wearer. Every man, woman or child should carry this smallest bible on earth with them. Send only 10c stamps or silver and it is yours by return mail, also our mammouth offer whereby you can distribute them among your friends and earn valuable prizes or money. 3 for 25c.

THREE MISSIONARY FACTS FOR CHRISTIANS AT HOME.

Our interest in missions is a mark of our Christian character.

Our knowledge of missions is the measure of our Christian attainment.

Our participation in missions is the measure of our Christian efficiency.—Hamilton C. Mabie.

SIX MILLION UNEVANGELIZED WOMEN.

Of the thirty-four graduates of the Lambuth Memorial Bible Woman's Training School, Kobe, Japan, twenty-two are now working as evangelists, five are wives of preachers, five are married to Christian laymen, one is studying in the Woman's University at Tokyo, and one is at home with her mother. Social conditions are such in Japan that the sending of these young women out after graduation without missionary women to supervise them is attended by the very gravest dangers. The efficiency of these women would be more than trebled by the wise leadership of godly woman missionaries. Is it possible that we look to our Church in America in vain for such women? Is it really known and has it sunk down into our consciousness that there are six million six hundred thousand unevangelized women in the ten provinces in which the Japan Mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, works? Surely this is not known, or else it has not taken hold of our Church; for we believe there would be a quick response to so great a need. We have now only two single woman evangelistic missionaries for this great task.—Maud Bonnell, Kobe, Japan.

CHILDHOOD IN HEATHEN LANDS.

"Fathers give away their daughters in marriage to men who have never seen them, and the bride and groom generally meet but once before their marriage for a short conversation, which runs like this: 'Can you cook? Will you stay at home and prepare my food?' and on the other side, 'What wages do you get, and can you support me, and will you if I marry you?' and that is about all. And this occurs, or the contract for it, when the girls are less than twelve years of age, generally from six to nine; and if a man's daughter becomes eleven or twelve and is not engaged to be married, he seeks a marriage broker and says, 'Find a young man for my daughter.' And he gives her in marriage, and often she never sees the man to whom she is body and soul given up until they meet at the marriage altar. Then, if the man dies, she becomes a widow, sometimes at eleven or twelve years of age; and is henceforth the bond slave of her father-in-law and mother-in-law, and is despised and has no hope of happiness in life."—India Pen Pictures, by Bishop Foss.

"When a baby gets ill (no matter what the illness may be), if it continues for any time, instead of getting medical advice, they will keep the child without food for hours, saying, 'Sickness ought to be starved out;' and the parents themselves will take a piece of iron about as thick as the little finger, and making it red hot at one end will touch the child all over the neck, behind the ears, and down to the pit of the stomach, leaving very little space between each burning spot; then a cloth, sometimes clean, sometimes dirty, is tied around the little form, and it is left to get well or die with not even a drop of oil to cool the burns."—Mrs. M. Whitby in Woman's Missionary Friend.

Careful study and research show that in China more than half of the whole number of children die before they are two years old. In Syria we find the infant mortality 75 per cent of the births, and in Persia it is 85 per cent of the births. How could it be otherwise with such horribly cruel treatment?

"Prayer is never offered for female children, and their coming is viewed as a calamity. A Chinese official report says, 'Many of them are consigned to the nearest pond or stream.' They are often drowned in tubs of water, strangled or buried alive, as one might a litter of kittens, and all this largely and often wholly because they as girls cannot make offerings of food at the family tombs and in the ancestral halls. To secure these infants from death, mothers often obtain the promise of their adoption by some family as wives for their sons, or sell them at an early age at the highest price, in the same terms they would describe any other sale of property, as additional wives, or slaves, the buyer having the right to re-sell."—China, by J. T. Gracey, D. D.

BEAUTY IN CHINA.

In China the standard of beauty is utility. The grass after a rain is beautiful, for it bears a fungus that is gathered for food. The roadside ditches are beautiful, for from them there come fish several inches long. The beach is beautiful when the tide is out, for it is covered with seaweed that finds its way to the tables of the people.

Thus the Chinese go through life, their eyes bent on the ground, their one thought how to provide for bare existence. And the real glory of living is denied them until they learn of Him who teaches that a man's life consists not in the abundance of the things that he possesses.—Young Christian Worker.

WORK IN WONSAN.

Miss Kate Cooper, of Wonsan, Korea, writes: "On Saturday afternoons we have a city Bible class for the women of the Church. The first lessons were taught to-day. It is our aim to get every woman who attends church to study the Bible weekly and receive the certificate which is the reward for faithful attendance and diligent study. On Tuesday nights the Bible women go out by twos and hold cottage Bible classes in the various believers' homes of the different neighborhoods."

RUTH HARGROVE INSTITUTE.

Ruth Hargrove Institute during the past fiscal year has enrolled 463 students. The fees from these students amounted to $4416. A number of permanent improvements were made, one of which is a 56,000-gallon cistern. When it is remembered that there are no wells on the island, because all of the water is brackish, it will be understood why we must add cisterns as the student body increases.

"To Love God means to love all his creatures."

At the parsonage at Rose Hill, Miss., on March 26, 1915, by Rev. H. R. McKee, Mr. DUPREE and Mrs. W. CHATHAM, of Pachuta, Miss.

He who hopes to go to heaven on account of his good work, and he who expects to go there without doing any, may shake hands; for one is as deeply in the mud as the other is in the mire. —Old Humphrey.

Our sorrow is the inverted image of our nobility.—Carlyle.

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

Brush this through faded, lifeless locks and they become dark, glossy, youthful.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Now-a-days we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You must dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK. DON'T STAY BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Will Clean Your Sluggish Liver Better Than Calomel and Can Not Salivate.

Calomel makes you sick: you lose a day's work. Calomel is quicksilver and it salivates; calomel injures your liver.

If you are bilious; feel lazy, sluggish and all knocked out, if your bowels are constipated and your head aches or stomach is sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone instead of using sickening, salivating calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and bowels regular. You will feel like working. You'll be cheerful; full of energy, vigor and ambition.

Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal guarantee that it will clean your sluggish liver better than nasty calomel; it won't make you sick and you can eat anything you want without being salivated. Your druggist guarantees that each spoonful will start your liver, clean your bowels and straighten you up by morning or you get your money back. Children gladly take Dodson's Liver Tone because it is pleasant tasting and doesn't gripe or cramp or make them sick.

I am selling millions of bottles of Dodson's Liver Tone to people who have found that this pleasant, vegetable, liver medicine takes the place of dangerous calomel. Buy one bottle on my sound, reliable guarantee. Ask your druggist about me.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT.

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

Take One Pain Pill, then—Take it Easy.

For Neuralgia, nothing is better than

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

Used by thousands for a generation

Those who have suffered from neuralgic pains need not be told how necessary it is to secure relief. The easiest way out of neuralgia is to use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They have relieved sufferers for so many years that they have become a household necessity.

"I have taken Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for five years and they are the only thing that does me any good. They have relieved neuralgia in my head in fifteen minutes. I have also taken them for rheumatism, headache, pains in the breast, toothache, earache and pains in the bowels and limbs. I have found nothing to equal them and they are all that is claimed for them."

To Folks Who Dally With Corns

To you who pare corns—
You who use liquids—
Or other old-time ways.
You've amply proved that using such things is merely dallying with a corn.

For your own sake, prove the right way. Millions of people have found it. Half the corns that grow are ended by this wondrous Blue-jay plaster.

The corn pain ceases the moment you apply it. Then the B & B wax—a famous chemist's invention—gently undermines the corn. In 48 hours the whole corn comes out, without any pain or soreness.

Ask your friends. Scores of them have proved that Blue-jay makes it folly to have corns.

IN APPRECIATION OF REV. F. MATTHIES.

The first quarterly conference of the St. Tammany charge was held at Sun, La., on March 6. For the first time in many years, Brother F. Matthies, a member of the conference, did not answer to roll call. He was greatly missed. There were many testimonials of appreciation of this man of God who had so recently passed from earth. He died at the Charity Hospital in New Orleans, on Feb. 17, in his 85th year. He was a local preacher in our Church for many years, and was a friend to all the preachers. It was largely through his influence that the church at Waldheim was established. He was a great friend to the people there, enjoying the confidence of the whole community—the grown folks and children alike. He was a true minister of the gospel, and was called upon from far and near to baptize children, perform marriage ceremonies, and to bury the dead, no man in the community being more loved than he. A good man, a good citizen has gone from us; but the influence of his godly life abides in us. Therefore be it resolved:

1. That we as a Quarterly Conference convey our sympathy to Sister Matthies, and to the entire family, and

2. That we express our sorrow, which is shared by the entire community, in the loss of this good man, realizing that our loss is his gain, and we also pray that in her old age and loneliness Sister Matthies may be sustained by the unfailing strength of our God.

Signed: F. L. Dutsch, J. B. Talley, Committee.

SOME EPERIENCES OF AN ITINERANT.

Dear Dr. Meek: Will you give me space in your paper to tell my friends just a little about the Pine Grove charge as it stands to-day. First, it embraces part of three parishes—Tangipahoa, St. Helena and Livingston, and points on the Natalbany and Natchez Railroad. That railroad starts at Natalbany, in Tangipahoa Parish, and twists and crooks through St. Helena Parish. But the entire circuit has only eight preaching places. Friendship and Alford's Chapel are in Livingston Parish, but they are only fourteen and twenty miles, respectively, from the parsonage. From Friendship to Natalbany is 41 miles; from Natalbany to Grangeville 28 miles; from Killians to Friendship 30 miles; from Montpelier to Pipkins 14 miles, and from Pipkins to Friendship 27 miles. Therefore, you see, the entire circuit is somewhat compact, or as the negro preacher said, "Constracted thereabout."

Well, any one would think that I see a great many people in my travels, but not so. Going north and northeast from the supposed center, I travel through bleak pine woods (or pine stumps) for six or seven miles and never pass a single farm, and seldom ever meet or overtake any one. Going west and southwest, I find some farming interests, and the farther I go the better it gets. It makes me think of that old song we used to sing when I was a boy, "It is better farther on," etc.

The first trip I made down in Livingston Parish was on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in January, just after two days and nights of rain. Being a stranger in that part of the Lord's vineyard, I did not understand the nature of those "Cooley-ells," or whatever they are called. I drove through several places that looked scary, but they were not very deep, only three to four feet of water. Finally I came to a place that looked dangerous, but I said to myself, it is just like the others. But not so. I drove in and deeper and deeper it became, and the farther I went the worse it got; but there was no way to turn around; so I had to drive on, and all at once my buggy went under, seat and all. When I looked for my grip it was floating down the stream, and yet I had at least fifty yards to drive before I could tie up and go for my grip. Oh, how slow my horse did move! When I got back the grip was at least a hundred yards down the stream, and twenty yards from dry land. What could I do? I did not want to get wet, as I was only wet from my waist down, and the thermometer registered about thirty, so you see it was not a very pleasant job, but whatever I did must be done quickly, for the grip was in a manner sinking. I decided to save my grip, which had in it my clothes, books and papers. So in I went and brought it ashore. I guess I would have made a good "movie" during the whole performance. Then, as I have already said, I was a stranger in that part of the Lord's vineyard, and I did not know where to go, nor how far it was to the next house. When I got in my buggy I thought of that old rhyme:

"Dr. Foster went to Gloucbester
In a shower of rain; he stepped
In a puddle up to the middle—
But he went there again."

But I had only three miles to drive, to where I was ushered into a warm room with a log fire blazing on the hearth, and I soon forgot my troubles, as this is the fate of all circuit riders.

Some one said to me the other day, "Why did they make such a broad circuit?" I told them I guessed it was like the boy who set the turkey hen and put forty eggs in the nest. His mother said, "Son, the turkey can't cover forty eggs." The boy said, "I know that, but I just wanted to see the old hen spread herself."

In spite of all the ups and downs, however, I find good people all over the circuit, consecrated and devoted to the Church and pastor. Therefore, I am looking forward to a great year.

Centenary College receives candidates for the ministry without tuition, and also allows the sons of Methodist preachers tuition free. Such a policy has cost Centenary College much money and the preachers whose sons have been benefited, or who themselves have been thus favored should do something worth while for Centenary.

It is hard for us to separate ourselves from pride. We point with pride to a noble achievement of a loved one, or to a handsome structure owned by an organization that we love, or to a fine horse that we own. The Methodists own Centenary College. If your brother was a beggar would you point to him with pride? If your church was a dilapidated hull standing by the side of a great marble edifice owned by another denomination, would you point to your church with pride? If your son should fail in the battle of life and should die in his discouragement, would you revel in joy at the thought and feel the swellings of pride at the memory of his failure? No! Centenary College is your child. You, every Methodist in Louisiana, are measured by this college! Then, does not something in you prompt you to make Centenary a college to which you can point with pride?

A UNITED FORWARD MOVEMENT FOR LOUISIANA METHODISM.

Several indications point to the fact that the time is ripe for a worthy and united forward movement for Louisiana Methodism. A survey of the Conference will indicate that the past ten or fifteen years has been an era of church building. Material foundations have been laid for advancement in very many of our local churches. Most of the leading congregations in the State now have adequate plants for their own work. It is only necessary to call to mind such edifices as those recently erected at Monroe, Ruston, Minden, Homer, Shreveport (First Church and Noel Memorial), Mansfield, Natchitoches, Alexandria, Crowley, Amite, Ponchatoula, New Orleans (First Church, Parker Memorial, and Carrollton), to say nothing of smaller enterprises, to show how great this building era has been. In addition to these, many other congregations are thus equipped through an earlier period of building. It is a matter of general observation that successful building enterprises greatly accelerate progress in the life and activity of the Church. This added energy gives opportunity for enterprises of general interest. During the same period, numbers of parsonages have been enterprised and carried through to successful completion, and our beautiful and well equipped orphanage has been built and placed upon a firm basis.

While some indebtedness remains on many of these enterprises, the great burden of these undertakings has been gotten out of the way, and at the same time that the energies engendered in this building era have been set in motion, the resources of our people have been released by the accomplishment of these successes, thus challenging us as a Conference to some great and worthy enterprise.

Another fact that is worth considering is the need in Louisiana for a common undertaking that will unite our whole people in a new sense of connectionalism. Any careful observer may note the aloofness in our work between churches in the same section or the same city, and between the different sections of the State. Nothing will so effectively overcome this aloofness and bring about a new and inspiring unity in our work as a Conference, as a great united forward movement of all our people.

If any one questions for a moment where we shall find an undertaking big enough, worthy enough and inspiring enough to challenge our united strength, a little reflection will show that it will be found in the challenge of Christian education that it is waiting for us in the opportunity presented by the pressing needs of Centenary College.

Our educational work underlies and profoundly affects every department of our work. It contains the secret of our supply of an efficient ministry, of lay leadership in our churches, of our effective social and civic influence over our own and future generations, and there is no doubt that its successful solution will lay the foundations for a large advance in every enterprise of the Church.

It does not require the vision of a prophet to foresee that when our Methodism in Louisiana shall unite in such an enterprise; when North Louisiana and South Louisiana shall enter into a generous competition of service in carrying it out; when New Orleans shall vie with Shreveport, Lake Charles with Monroe, and St. Helena with Sabine in laying their gifts at the Master's feet in such a cause; when the wealthy with their larger investments and the poor with their hard earned dollars that mean sacrifice, and all together with their prayers, shall unite to make a worthy investment in the future manhood of the State—a new baptism of unity and power will come upon us such as we shall not be able to contain, which shall fertilize all the fields of our service and success in the future. W. W. D.

A THOUSAND DOLLAR CLUB.

In raising the money necessary to endow and equip Centenary College adequately for the great work to which she is called, many plans must be employed. If we are to succeed in this great and necessary undertaking, all our people must have part in it by contribution in proportion to their ability. The great need of the hour for a generous contributor who shall give a large donation as a beginning is voiced in another column. The thousands of our people in moderate circumstances will be called on to give their fives and tens and hundreds. No doubt there are in our Conference territory, and numbered among the friends of the Church and of the college, some of them graduates or former students, at least fifty men, or women, of comfortable means and large vision who can contribute one thousand dollars each toward a definite movement to place our college for boys on a firm foundation. It is suggested that a "Thousand Dollar Club" be constituted of such contributors, and that membership be at once enlisted with the hope of bringing it up to fifty. One thousand dollars thus invested will produce an income equal to the tuition every year of one young man, and will continue the work of providing Christian education for young men to the end of time. Who will be the first to join our Centenary Thousand Dollar Club? If one desires to join this club of helpers whose assistance counts double because it comes at this time when a few thousand dollars will assure success, he can do so upon the plan suggested for all our contributors, namely, by paying two hundred dollars each year for five years. This is a small amount annually for many of our prosperous men, but the effect of fifty such contributions on the permanent establishment of our educational work would be of incalculable value to our work. Let memberships be taken at once.

W. W. D.

The finished product that comes from the factory is the test by which it is judged. Judging a college by this standard Centenary has proved its worth by its contribution to the life of Louisiana and neighboring States.

——There are some things that ought to be read. This issue of the Advocate should be read from title page to——back cover. Then, after reading it, the reader should pronounce himself either for or against a greater Centenary.

WHO IS THE MAN?

There are times when conditions must be met. There are some things that can not be set aside. This is a commercialized age. There is nothing but what may be measured in dollars and cents if it is material. The soul of man has been redeemed without money and without price. But nothing else that we know of has ever been saved that way. We have heard of great revival meetings where scores were taken into the Church, and yet in that neighborhood the organized church did not flourish because people did not put up the money to pay the bills. Oratory is a great art and most people love to sit under the spell of a great speaker, but no matter how eloquent may be a man's appeal for anything that is worthy, that appeal is in vain unless some one pays the price. It is easy to form a page of printed matter, and accumulate a publication that proves the worthiness and need of some great cause, but that printed page is thrown to the wind unless some one really pays the price. It is perfectly proper to pray for worthy things that are material, but God has just one way to answer a prayer for a material thing and that is by inspiring some one to put up the money.

The widows are fed because some one buys and pays for the provisions. The naked are clothed because some one buys the clothes. The gospel is preached because some one pays the price of a man's living while he labors for the Lord. The church is built because some one gives. Give, give, give! Pay the price! It is the only way. Money is the blood of commerce and everything that exists on the things that the business world buys and sells must be maintained by money.

We have made speeches on education, and written lengthy arguments in favor of Christian education, and we believe that Centenary College is needed and is necessary to the welfare of our Church in Louisiana. But if Centenary College keeps open her doors and offers courses of study taught by qualified men, coal bills, water bills, light bills, and salaries must be paid and it takes money. Centenary College must be eliminated from sentiment and associated with cash. The Methodists with a little money should right now figure out what part of that little they can spare for Centenary College. Methodists with much money should plan right now to do something large for Centenary College. The call in Louisiana is for something worth while. Georgia has her Candler with his million for education. Kansas has her Nicholson with consecrated money for education. North Carolina has her Duke with his money on God's altar for Christian education. Mississippi has her Millsaps who was endowed by God with a genius for making money and loves God enough to give large sums of that money for his sake, to the cause of education. Where is the man who will be the Candler of Louisiana? Where is the man who will stand as have Duke and Millsaps for their Church in our State? Surely we have the man, and when he is found he will not be a man with a great message, nor a great contribution to the Advocate, nor with a carefully worded prayer, but he will be a man with a big bank account and his heart on fire with God's grace and consecrated liberality.

SOME REASONS FOR SUPPORTING CENTENARY COLLEGE.

By Rev. Franklin N. Parker, D. D.

Why ought Centenary College to have the earnest support of all our people in Louisiana? Obviously, the reasons for a Christian college anywhere apply to Louisiana—only more so. The very difficulties of the field call for the employment of every agency for the promotion of sound Christian teaching. And the Christian college must go hand in hand with a vital ministry in building up the kingdom of God in any society.

1. The primary reason for the existence of the Christian college is the superiority of religious education to secular education in developing a fully rounded character. The issue is here. We hold that education with vital religious influence left out is defective in the main thing it ought to do. The heads of many secular institutions are realizing this fact more and more, and are publicly stating that education without ethical and religious training results in deplorable loss to character. For this reason they encourage the college Y. M. C. A., sympathize with the idea of the appointment of university pastors, and some of them have placed biblical instruction among optional courses. This is simply the acknowledgment that the Church has been right all along in her contention for religions as against secular education. The denominational college is the only kind of institution that can do this work thoroughly. The secular schools cannot do it because they represent, as a rule, every variety of religious belief and unbelief. They simply do not and cannot give religion supreme emphasis. And this is the heart of a Christian college, it emphasizes vital religion as the supreme necessity of every human being. It squarely states that it is more important for a man to get religion and aim for heaven than to get on in this world. It refuses to accept a watered-down system of pedagogical ethics in place of experimental salvation and the recognition of the absolute lordship of Jesus Christ in all realms of human life.

2. The character and influence of any institution of learning is determined by its administrative body. Its governing board and its faculty determine its character. The Church alone can constitute a thoroughly Christian board of administrators and none but a Christian board of administrators will insist upon a religious faculty. Even church schools have difficulty here, but for secular institutions it is a downright impossibility. Eternal vigilance combined with powerful religious convictions are necessary to overcome the secular tendencies in educational policy. Where schools are much subject to the influence of popular opinion or State regulation, the religious factor will be left out entirely or given scant recognition.

3. So far as Louisiana is concerned, there is no doubt in the mind of any informed man what the popular attitude is toward religion in schools. A recent court decision ruled the New Testament out of the public schools. The Catholics and the Jews will both oppose either biblical or any kind of religious instruction in the public schools. The institutions of higher learning always have Christian men in their faculties, and they do what they can, in many instances, to exercise a religious influence but the institutions as such do not and cannot give religion the supreme place. For this reason Louisiana needs definite religious institutions. It is very easy for irreligious men to get into the faculties of schools, some times men who are positively antagonistic to religion get into places of large influence. It is the business of the Church to provide against this contingency by establishing schools that can give a reasonable guarantee that religion will be given its rightful place.

4. We need a college in Louisiana for the development of a strong, educated ministry. It is of the utmost importance that young men preparing for the ministry do their work in congenial religious surroundings. A man's life is formed largely by great Christian teachers. They supply inspirations and lead the way into a larger, more intelligent view of life. The small college ministering to an immediate territory is the greatest training ground for a future ministry. If it be a really religious school many men will realize their call to the ministry during their student days. After finishing in such a school let them go to one of our seminaries, but get hold of them near the home base.

5. A college in any community is a center of influence. It diffuses a silent but powerfully formative influence upon many who never enter its doors. A college in another State, no matter how accessible, cannot do this. We need it as a powerful local influence in preaching a gospel of spiritual freedom and establishing a standard of character that is founded upon the unquestioned authority of Jesus Christ. We cannot reach all but we can produce leaders in Church and State who will further the cause of evangelical religion and be strong in fighting the thoroughly entrenched evils which popular opinion either fears or loves. The Christian school must be a militant center to send forth men to make war upon public and private sin. It must have a trained conscience, a profound appreciation for Christian manhood and above all things an aggressive spirit in urging the eternal principles of the religion of Christ.

LOUISIANA'S DEBT TO CENTENARY.

A complete study of this topic would require a painstaking, historical investigation, which I wish somebody would find time to make. The result would be surprising even to those who are already prone to idealize Centenary's past glory.

Our present State educational development should not cause us to forget that it is only within very recent years that the public school system in Louisiana has counted for very much. We easily forget how short a time we have been riding in electric cars and also how short a time we have been sending our children to well-equipped high schools.

At a time when the State had virtually failed in its college enterprises, one of these, the "College of Louisiana," was turned over to the Methodists of Mississippi and Louisiana, and the State owes Centenary a sufficiently great debt for its ante-bellum educational work, not to speak of its later work, to have made a farce of its recent suit for the possession of our old property.

For a long period of years, Centenary educated the leading citizens of Louisiana and Mississippi—in Church and State. A study of the old college register shows that nearly every English-speaking family of prominence in public life in Louisiana is represented on its pages. In despair of anything like a complete showing, let me give some concrete illustrations of the influence Centenary has exerted.

Until recent years the large majority of our preachers did not have the opportunity to receive a college training; but who can estimate the influence through generations to come, of such a peerless man as C. G. Andrews (class of 1850) in Mississippi, or of such a great and noble spirit as C. W. Carter (class of 1855) in Louisiana.

In the field of education, W. H. N. Magruder, a finished scholar and Christian man, first identified with Louisiana through Centenary, established in Baton Rouge a select academy for boys and consecrated himself for many long years to the work of turning out young men of character. Who can measure the influence of Prof. G. H. Wiley on the lives of Louisiana boys who came under the influence of his rare personality?

Louisiana Methodism should write high on its roll of honor the name of Capt. John N. Pharr, a man whom God had blessed with means, who knew the value of Christian education, who generously contributed to the maintenance of Centenary and to the assistance of worthy students. His three sons, all graduates of Centenary, are nobly carrying on the Christian activities of their father and mother in a section of the State in which, but for the influence of the Pharr family, Protestant influence would have been almost negligible.

It is difficult to imagine what the difference would have been if the Louisiana Conference had not been able to secure a steady supply of recruits from Centenary. The Mississippi Conference is indebted to Centenary for a large per cent of her leading preachers. We gave Sam Beall, the Knickerbockers, and others to Texas, George Parker to Brazil and Nick Joyner to Mexico. The following active members of the Louisiana Conference are graduates of Centenary—many besides having been former students: Miller, Davies, Carter, Drake, Wynn, Brown, Atkinson, Lutz, Bernard, Kleinschmidt, Doss, Harper, Cudd, Young.

"SET A HEN AND SANCTIFY A PIG."

There is nothing so common as a pig, and who would think tbat a hen could have a share in a great work? It is the proper time to teli a true story. This actually happened. It was out in Kansas, and the actors were all good Methodist men and women living in and about a little village. There was a very worthy institution that needed money, and there was scarcely a person who knew of it that did not want to give something to that institution. But it was in the spring that the call was made and that is the time farmers are using every cent they can get hold of to make a crop. No one had any money to give. The need was not lessened by that fact. Then there came a bright suggestion. Some one said, "Let us SET A HEN AND SANCTIFY A PIG."

The suggestion was fully explained. Every woman who had chickens went out and selected the most motherly old hen on the place that wanted to set. She selected fifteen of the best eggs she could find and placed them in the nest and right then and there dedicated that hen and her brood to the worthy institution. The farmers went out to the pig pen and selected a nice young pig or shoat. That pig was sanctified to the use of that worthy institution. Of course that hen hatched a fine brood of chickens. All summer it was a matter of great interest to visitors who visited the homes where there was a Methodist hen and a sanctified pig. Farmers who never thought of showing off one pig out of a dozen would point out the sanctified pig and say: "Yonder is the sanctified pig." Women would call up all the chickens and point out the old hen and her brood and tell people how that old hen was raising those chickens for the Churcb. Later that old hen weaned the chickens and began laying eggs. They were carefully saved and sold and the money kept. Thus the hen and the pig laid eggs and grew fat as is the custom of their kind, while the little chickens sprouted feathers and extended the length of their legs. The report is that wherever there was a sanctified pig, it outgrew every other pig in the pen. And it was whispered that never eggs hatched like those consecrated eggs, and never a hen sang around the barn yard as did those Methodist hens.

The summer ended and along about the first part of October there was held a Methodist Fair. From all over the country those good men and women brought in their sanctified pigs and their hens and chickens. There was a great crowd in town and the pigs and chickens were duly exhibited, and a fine lot they were. All were carefully crated and shipped to a good market and sold. It was amazing when the results were finally tabulated. Every old hen had averaged producing from $5 to $7.50 for that worthy institution. Every sanctified pig returned from $7.50 to $20 as its part in helping a good thing along. People who would have given from 50 cents to a dollar found themselves credited with from $15 to $25. The man who made that bright suggestion started a consecrated movement that was entered into in many places and the result was that thousands of dollars were given where thousands were needed.

My story is told. Let us think of Centenary College—its wonderful work and great need. Then let us look at the possibilities of that bright suggestion. Set a hen and sanctify a pig for Centenary! There are thousands in it. In Louisiana there are perhaps 7000 Methodist families living on farms. Suppose only 1000 of them should enter into that suggestion and maintain that average. On the first day of next October we would have from $15,000 to $25,000 to be used for this great Christian institution. Besides, what a splendid day of pleasure could be enjoyed when the great Methodist Fair should be opened in each community. Here now is an opportunity. Let one hundred preachers or men or women start out right now to form a club of men and women who are willing to set a hen or sanctify a pig for Centenary College, and let us see how many clubs can be organized during the month of April.

THAT TWO PER CENT PROPOSITION.

As there has been some misunderstanding in reference to a proposition that was made during the Educational Rally at the Louisiana Conference in Shreveport, namely, the proposition that each preacher in the Conference should contribute two per cent of his salary each year for five years toward the permanent equipment and endowment of Centenary College, it may be well to explain the matter so as to make it clear to every one. In the first place the proposition was not made by the Board of Education, or by any one speaking officially for the Board. The suggestion was made from the floor by Brother Lowrey.

Nor was it intended by any one to lay the burden of the support of the college on the preachers, relieving the laymen of it. The amount that would have been secured by such a plan, if it had been unanimously adopted, would have amounted to only a small proportion of what the college must have; and it was understood that the response on the part of each preacher would be purely voluntary. In order to make the proposition clear, it may be well to state it. Brother Lowrey suggested that in view of the fact that the preachers generally probably give in some way one-tenth of their income, and in view of the importance of Centenary to every interest of the Church in Louisiana, it would be a good plan for each preacher to agree to give two per cent of his salary each year for five years to the permanent fund for the endowment and equipment of the college. Before the suggestion was made, several of the preachers had already subscribed that amount or more.

There are many reasons to lead our preachers to such a contribution. Many of us owe all we are to the training and inspiration received at Centenary. In gratitude we are glad to contribute to her further usefulness. A selfish interest that regards the opportunity that a greater Centenary will offer to our children, should inspire us to a definite and substantial support. As preachers we are leaders of our people. If every member of the Louisiana Conference would contribute this two per cent for five years, not only would the college have a beginning equal to ten thousand dollars on its endowment, but the Methodists of the State would be thrilled with a new confidence that the preachers really believed in Centenary College, and no doubt would follow our lead.

One further suggestion may be permitted as an amendment to Brother Lowrey's original motion. Might not our laymen all over the State adopt the same Plan and give two per cent of their income for five years for this great work of Christian Education? This amendment is earnestly commended to the attention of our laymen, both those whom God has blessed with large means and those in humbler circumstances.

In favor of the amendment it may be urged that the laymen are at least as able to make such a contribution as the preachers. They can do it without hurting any other good cause: and if the amendment is generally adopted, the problem of Centenary's future is soived at once. Let every preacher and layman figure prayerfully on the motion as amended, and promptly notify Dr. Wynn or the Conference Secretary of his vote for its adoption by a personal subscription to that effect.

W. W. D.

Your husband was a splendid man, perhaps. He may now sleep the wakeless slumber. It may be that he left you large means. What would be grander than to carve his name in the hearts of Louisiana's greatest young men for ages to come? That can be done if you will erect a memorial to him in the form of a building or by endowing a scholarship in Centenary.

MAKE YOUR IDEAL REAL.

We patronize the merchant who is prepared to give us the goods we want. A perfectly good Methodist will buy his clothes of a Jew whose place of business is next door to a good Methodist because the Jew offers the best article for the money according to the patron's opinion. We exercise our judgment in our own affairs, and that is our business. Many a man pays car fare to hear a Methodist service when there is a Methodist Church within three blocks of him. He does not discredit the little church, but merely expresses a preference for the larger and more up-to-date church.

There are perfectly good Methodists, and some of them are preachers, who are sending their sons to State schools and to Tulane, and even out of the State to other colleges. They do this notwithstanding the fact that Centenary College is a Methodist College supported by Methodist money and standing for Methodist principles and usages. They are not discrediting Centenary by their actions. Some of them are among our most active men in defense of Centenary and in the effort to save it to a larger field of usefulness. They are merely expressing a preference for the college that is better equipped or perhaps more convenient.

But there remain some things worth thinking about in this connection. It is a rare thing that a Missouri Methodist sends his boy away from that State, because he finds what he wants in Central College. The preachers always patronize Central College in Missouri. In North Carolina Methodists find just what they want in Trinity College, and there the sons of preachers are sent and their fathers are proud to say they are giving their sons the best there is. Mississippi Methodists are proud of Millsaps and her preachers strain a point to send their sons there. Why is this, and then why do we send but a few to Centenary College? Few in comparison to the number of Methodist boys who are now attending college?

The reason is that as preachers we have not made Centenary College large enough to measure up to our ideal of what a college ought to be. The time has come when we should do constructive work. It is not proper to give our sons less than we are able to give them just for the sake of a sentiment, but it is also not right to stand aside and see the things of the Church deteriorate to an average below our ideal. If we want our sons to have a better school than our Church now possesses, let us provide the Church with the school instead of carrying our sons and laying them upon the educational shrines of the world. If we are the fathers of sons who are in need of great opportunities, let us provide those opportunities under the direction of the Church of God.

We are not bitter against State and secular colleges, hut we believe a boy is safer in a wooden framed building listening to a simple sermon than in an arch-domed palace hearing a sensational theatrical. We believe a child has a more promising future who is reared in an humble cottage where the Bible is read and where prayer is offered than the one who grows up in a marble mansion with ball and wine rooms where cards and carouses are not uncommon. And if a child had a taste for arch-domed buildings, we think it better to satisfy that taste by directing him to the great churches of our land. If we are able to rear our children in elegant homes let the elegance be illuminated with the radiance of a holy influence. We believe it is the duty of the Methodists of Louisiana to so equip and endow Centenary College that her every claim for patronage will be based upon a condition so high and perfect as to meet the highest ideal of the proudest Methodist father in this State.

The Louisiana Educational Campaign

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., President

Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Sec'y

Rev. C. A. Battle, Treas., Baton Rouge, La.

(This Department is conducted by Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education, and Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Publicity Commissioner.)

PLAIN FACTS FOR LOUISIANA METHODISTS.

THE CHURCH COLLEGE IS A NECESSITY.

I. If the Church proposes to have an efficient supply of preachers for her pulpits.

City, town and country are more and more demanding trained men for the ministry and there is no other source of suppiy.

State schools rareiy furnish preachers.

The iarge majority of young men who enter the ministry come from the parsonage or small farm, and are unable to provide the means for obtaining an education.

How much do you give annually for ministerial education? Do not enter another compiaint against the Bishop for faiiing to send a better preacher until you become a regular contrihutor to this cause.

II. If the Church proposes to develop efficient lay leadership.

The Church is crying out also for laymen who can not only support the Church with money, but who can organize, teach, inspire. In the past, these have come largely from church schools, and there is no other hope for the future.

Take a census of the most efficient teachers of adult classes, Sunday school superintendents, etc., in Louisiana and note what a large proportion of them were educated in Church schools, as for example, White, Pharr, Scales, Holloman, Wright, Randie, Carter, and many others.

III. If the Church proposes to carry out her missionary program.

Missionary volunteers, for the most part, are found to-day among young people in Church schools, which Adoniram Judson called "the seed-corn of the Church."

Missions and education stand or faii together.

IV. If the Church proposes to influence the State.

The State has a splendid educational program but it cannot do the impossihie.

Positive Christian education, such as is furnished hy the Church, is necessary to save our nation from moral death.

The State herself needs Church colleges. She must look to them for moral leadership in her universities and legislative councils. You would be surprised to know what a vast percentage of American leaders have heen trained in Church schools.

The facts as stated above are recognized by all denominations. Church and school rise or fall together.

THE CHURCH COLLEGE IS GREATLY NEEDED IN LOUISIANA.

I. If the Church proposes to educate her sons and daughters.

The great majority of young people are educated in the bounds of their own State. "The State line is a formidahle barrier."

II. If the Church proposes to cope with Romanism.

That the Roman Church in Louisiana is a mighty force is due largely to her schools. She has a number of colleges and a great system of academies and does not propose to retire from the field of education. She knows it would be fatal.

Protestantism cannot do otherwise.

Is Louisiana to a iarge extent a mission field? Ali the more is Christian education needed.

THE METHODIST CHURCH IN LOUISIANA MUST MAINTAIN AND STRENGTHEN CENTENARY AND MANSFIELD COLLEGES.

The Baptist Church is wielding an ever-increasing influence in Louisiana largeiy on account of its colleges in which young men and women are being trained for leadership.

Can Methodists afford to do less?

The result for us would be a weak ministry, a Church decreasing in influence and power of leadership and untold loss to the morai resources of the State, a surrendered crown.

Our own General Board of Education emphasizes the necessity of having "in each State at ieast one weii estahlished college."

A PLEA FOR THE ENDOWMENT OF CENTENARY COLLEGE.

The Louisiana Conference has instructed the President of Centenary College to put the case squarely before Louisiana Methodists.

If Centenary College is needed it follows that we must add other buildings, equipment and endowment.

It is not enough to dwell upon the glorious days of the past; these will only mock us if we fail to meet the new and changed conditions of the present.

The new Centenary in Shreveport has the most beautiful and spacious location in the State, forty acres in the corporate iimits of the city. This in itself does not constitute a college but offers a tremendous opportunity.

It wiii not do to say that the Church is too poor; she may be unwilling, but not unable.

If Asbury and Coke couid raise thirty thousand dollars for a schooi from the poor and scattered Methodists of their day, if a singie congregation in Louisiana (Shreveport) can erect and furnish a building at a cost of $125,000, surely all the Methodists of Louisiana can raise the few hundred thousand doiiars needed to give Centenary a permanent foundation. There are individual Methodists in Louisiana who are abundantly able to do for us what Major Millsaps has done for Mississippi Methodism.

What more spiendid use of money can he devised than for Christian education? May God stir the heart of some man or woman whom He has blessed with means, as he reads this appeal, to respond to God's call!

A stahie income of five thousand dollars a year above tuition fees must he secured in the near future if the doors of Centenary are to remain open as a college. Including the annual appropriation from the Conference, our stable income above tuition and fees scarcely exceeds two thousand dollars. This must be increased hy three thousand dollars at least, which means an endowment of $60,000 as a heginning.

The Conference has ordered a campaign to raise two hundred thousand doiiars for endowment and buildings in the next five years.

Shreveport citizens have voluntarily contributed a ten-year tax for the College, which will expire in one year, and have otherwise contrihuted generously. They will not do much more unless the Church of this State shows increased interest, hut they wiii readiiy respond if this interest is manifested.

Endowment is the safest and most far-reaching form of investing money for good. Given for Christian education, it works on and on forever in giving poor hoys a chance, in training preachers, in moiding character, and in preserving the nation.

A gift of twenty-five thousand dollars will endow a chair and preserve the name of the donor forever.

One thousand dollars will endow a scholarship that wiii each year help some poor, worthy boy toward the stars.

Are there not fifty persons in Louisiana who will give one thousand dollars each?

What more fitting memoriai to the precious dead couid there be than an endowment schoiarshlp or loan fund for needy students?

While numbers must he found who will give large amounts, the rank and file of the 36,000 Southern Methodists in Louisiana must give according to their ability to make this movement a success. No gift too small can be offered that comes from a loving and devoted heart.

This statement and appeal goes forth with prayer that it will be read and acted upon.

Your servant in Christ Jesus,

R. H. WYNN,
President Centenary College.

Thousands of people have already iearned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the teiephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and sociai trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

Mr. Chas. A. Holcombe, a Centenary man, has made good as District Attorney at Baton Rouge.

Hon. C. S. E. Babington of Covington, formerly State Senator, is a graduate of the class of 1890, the largest class graduated from Centenary since the war.

Rev. H. S. Johns, who succeeded Rev. J. L. Sutton as Chaplain of the Louisiana State prison, and who is now occupying that position to the eminent satisfaction of the Board of Control, giving efficient and painstaking service, is also a Centenary "boy."

Perhaps no son of Centenary is better known throughout the territory reached by the Advocate than Rev. H. H. Ahrens, formerly a member of the Louisiana Conference, and at present prominent on the staff of the Times-Picayune of this city.

Mr. Robert O. Randle (Class of 1901), son of Rev. Robert Randle, is a leading lawyer at the Monroe bar, and is also a devoted official of both the Church and Sunday school. He was a very efficient delegate to the recent General Conference in Oklahoma City.

Dr. A. F. Watkins, the distinguished President of Millsaps College, was a student in Centenary College for two years.

Dr. J. M. Sullivan, Professor of Chemistry in the same institution is an honored graduate of Centenary (Class of '87), and for a number of years was a member of her faculty. Both of these gentlemen are warmly interested in the welfare of the new Centenary.

Mr. Ellis H. Hoffpauir (Class of 1902), son of Rev. J. Ivy Hoffpauir, is a successful civil engineer, located at Miami, Fla., and is a loyal Methodist. Mr. I. S. Hoffpauir, another son of Brother J. I. Hoffpauir, and an old Centenary boy, is pursuing the same calling in Birmingham, Ala.

The Board of Education has requested every preacher to send in lists of names of boys and girls who are available for Centenary and Mansfield Colleges, or may be induced to attend them. This is the time when the question of colleges for boys and girls is being considered, and the list is needed. "Do it now."

Judge T. C. W. Ellis of this city, so highly regarded throughout the State and in the city as a jurist and citizen was a member of the distinguished class of 1855 at Centenary, to which belonged also the late Dr. C. W. Carter, Col. John S. Young of Shreveport, the late Judge W. B. Spencer and other notable citizens.

Prof. R. A. Smith, who for many years was engaged in educational work in Arcadia, and who has during recent years been teaching in Southwest Louisinna, was a student of Centenary in 1859-60. He has always been a loyal Methodist, as well as successfull educator, and was of great assistance to Brother Hebert in planting our church in the town of Mermentau. His present home is at Jennings.

Rev. John L. Sutton left Centenary some years ago, before finishing his course there, to enter the work among the State prisoners which he pursued with such success for a number of years. His interest in thnt work led him to give up the plan of completing the course. Not only in that work, but in the present position of hend of a home for orphan boys, Mr. Sutton has "made good."

Prof. W. L. C. Wailes (Class of 1899), since his graduation from the Theological Department of Vanderbilt University, has been a teacher in Paine College, Augusta, Ga. He is one of the most consecrated men that has ever gone forth from Centenary and his influence has been a benediction among those to whom he has ministered. At present, his health is bad, and prayers should go up in his behalf.

The personal notices contained in this issue are only samples from a list that might be indefinitely extended of sons of Centenary, either graduates or some time students, who are doing service in their several States, chiefly in Louisiana, in various lines of helpfulness to the Church and to the State. May their tribe increase through all the years, as a greater Centenary shall continue to train men for the highest service.

Among the students who have attended Centenary in its new home at Shreveport, without finishing the course, and are now successfully engaged in the work of the ministry in Louisiana are Revs. F. R. Power, Pelican, F. J. McCoy, Jennings, J. L. Cady, Cotton Valley, Q. R. Henry, Vermilion, T. J. Holladay, Coushatta, H. W. Jamieson, New Orleans, G. A. Morgan, Opelousas and D. L. Griffin, Slidell. D. B. Boddie, another Centenary mnn of recent years, is laboring in Texas.

The following recent graduates of Centenary are doing excellent work and proving a credit to their alma mater: Rev. H. T. Young (1913), who graduated with distinction, having been engaged in regular pastoral work during his course. He is now doing good work at Sodus, La. Mr. Earl Whittington (1913), is engaged in Y. M. C. A. work at Alexandria; Rev. L. A. Sims (1913), is assistant superintendent of our Orphanage at Ruston: Rev. H. W. Cudd is doing successful work as pastor of the Keener Memorial Church nt Baton Rouge.

The contribution of Centenary College to the judiciary of Mississippi is rather notable. Hon. M. H. Wilkinson, formerly judge in the district in which Natchez is included, was a terror to law breakers during his term of service, which was interrupted by his untimely death. His successor now on the bench in that district, Judge E. E. Brown, has likewise maintained the reputation of Centenary's sons. Another distinguished son of Centenary on the Mississippi bench, is Judge Mounger of Vicksburg, who has stood strongly for the righteous enforcement of law.

In the face of many difficulties, Dr. R. H. Wynn, one of the best loved and most efficient members of the Louisiana Conference, assisted by an able faculty, which includes another leading member of the Conference, Rev. H. T. Carley, is doing a great work for the Church and the Conference. In spite of the fact that the discouragements sometimes seem overwhelming and that he is doing the work at great personal sacrifice, he is determined to push forward. There is no disposition to turn backward, and under this leadership Centenary has the promise of a brighter future. Let every Louisiana Methodist give him and his co-workers the co-operation they deserve.

Among the distinguished men who were in attendance at Centenary just before the Civil War were Hon. Howell Carter, now connected with the office of State Commissioner of Agriculture at Baton Rouge, Prof. Ricketts, the Nestor of the Millsaps faculty, the late Prof. Fitzhugh, so well and favorably known in Mississippi, and Hon. T. J. Shaffer, head of the Confederate Veterans of Louisiana. Mr. Carter states upon the authority of Rev. John C. Miller, who was president of the college at that time that no less than seventy-three Centenary students died in the Confederate army.

CENTENARY MEN IN SHREVEPORT.

It is interesting to note the number of old Centenary men who are residents of Shreveport. It is expected that they will form the nucleus of a great rally of alumni and former students at the next Commencement.

Hon. John S. Young, retired lawyer (Class of 1355), classmate of Dr. C. W. Carter.

Judge A. J. Murff (Class of 1884), President of Board of Trustees of Centenary—leading lawyer and citizen.

Mr. J. A. Cason (Class of 1885), successful traveling salesman.

Dr. J. L. Scales (Class of 1892), Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Specialist, Superintendent of First Methodist Church Sunday school.

Mr. D. H. Dalton (Class of 1888), traveling salesman.

Judge S. C. Fullilove (Class of 1896), prominent lawyer, Secretary Centenary Board of Trustees. Recent Commissioner of Public Safety, City of Shreveport.

Dr. S. C. Barrow (Class of 1896), Specialist of note in Electrical Therapeutics.

Dr. Thos. Ragan, surgeon of distinction.

Wm. B. McCormick, local capitalist.

Hon. S. A. Dickson, Mayor of Shreveport.

Mr. H. L. Stone, traveling salesman, son of Rev. J. H. Stone, deceased member of Louisiana Conference.

W. B. Noel, capitalist, son of Mr. J. S. Noel, donor of Noel Memorial Church.

In addition to the names above given, the following men connected with Centenary College at present, were former students at old Centenary:

Rev. R. H. Wynn, President (Class of 1889).

Prof. J. S. Johnston, Professor of Mathematics and Philosophy (Class of 1890).

Rev. H. T. Carley, Professor of History and English. Later, student and graduate of Millsaps College.

To this list may be added also the names of a number of younger alumni who have graduated since the transfer of College to Shreveport.

THE DENOMINATIONAL COLLEGE—A SACRED TRUST.

By C. A. Battle.

Certainly no one would delight in offending the advocates of secular institutions of learning like our great independent universities and State-owned colleges for men and women. To say they are doing a great work for the future is but to express a mild appreciation of their efforts. This is a day of education; everybody believes in it. The State universities have provided courses in engineering, commercial pursuits, agricultural lines, practical chemistry, law, medicine, and in many other vocations that are essential to the well-being of the commonwealth. Nor can one say that the religious side of life is left wholly neglected at such institutions. Many State institutions hold chapel exercises, and all of them stress morals most strenuously, whether the student body acts upon the advice given or not. Many of the professors in a great coterie of teachers of an institution of this kind are Christian men and women of the highest types of character and they leave an impression upon those with whom they come in contact. Looking about us we may find that many of the leading Christian men of a community are products of such institutions. One is obliged to admit that such institutions have their work to do, and the better it is done the better it will be for the community and State.

But with all these good things about the secular institution confronting us, we must also say that religion is not its specialty. All that this institution asks of a young man is: Is he good? Is he moral? Nor does it interest itself to change his spiritual condition from a low ebb to a higher one. We are speaking of the institution and not the individual teacher. So far as the institution itself is concerned, the young man may profess no belief in God—he may not believe in the divinity of Christ; he actually may be an opponent of religion as an experience, and nothing will be done to modify that condition. A Buddhist, or a Mohammedan, would receive the same cheerful consideration as the Christian. The Japanese coming into the university with his native religion might go away with never an effort having been made to Christianize him. The Jew entering upon his studies there would find nothing to offend his peculiar beliefs; and it is very probable if anything were likely to arise to tread upon his feelings it would be skillfully avoided. In fact, if a young man knew no other Christianizing influence save what was obtained from the courses of study in a State institution, it is probable he would never know the power of Christ as a Saviour. Of course he might fall into Christian hands privately at such a seat of learning and be led from the wilderness, or he might become a Christian by attending Church services; but it may be doubted that he would ever experience Christ in his heart if he was to be led solely by the influence of the institution upon him.

The object of the denominational college is to educate a young man from a Christian viewpoint. One might say that at the denominational school the classroom is not an evangelistic service and perhaps no direct appeal may be made to one to be a Christian. But if there is not a really religious atmosphere at the denominational school, it has failed to meet its true ends. A Christian faculty selecting the proper kind of books to shape the plastic mind in the direction of the religious life and throwing the proper kind of influence about the life of the young man, may guide him from the pitfalls of rationalism where so many have stumbled in these present days. Many men have without doubt been led into heretical paths honestly, saying that whatever takes place they must know the truth. But the seeking out of ultimate truth is not the real goal of life. Had that been essential God in the beginning would have made a more perfect revelation of what we call the truth. But the thing that is essential is the building of true character, and this cannot be done except through Jesus Christ. Then the denominational college has the high purpose of preparing a man for his station in life from an intellectual standpoint, and at the same time equipping him with a strong faith in the Bible and a true experience in Jesus Christ. Whoever comes to such an institution cannot remain there without feeling the impress of Christ. The compassionate Christ, the healing Christ, the saving Christ should walk in the classroom and in the dormitory of the school as he does in the aisles of the church. His tenderness and his love might be revealed by teacher and classman while studying the intricate problems of Euclid or any other truths essential to the training of the mind. But where text-books and the subject matter for study have been selected without regard to their destructive effect upon the spiritual life, as is often the case in many institutions, the matter of religion becomes a serious problem.

But more specifically, the Methodist Church needs her denominational schools to conserve her peculiar doctrines and polity. The Catholic Church, the largest numerically of any Christian Church in America or in the world, has been stronger for religious education than any other denomination. It has learned the value of molding the beliefs of the boy or girl at an early age, and instead of growing lax in this matter it seems to become more careful. The experience of the past has demonstrated that whatever denomination neglects to train its young constituents in its doctrinal tenets will fail. The schools of Methodism have been a great help in the past, but Methodism must depend upon these schools more in the future than at any time in the past. Being a day for education, when young men are going off to college almost to the man, and realizing that the religious tendency of the country will depend upon these same young men who are going off to school, Methodism cannot afford to falter with her schools. Whatever good we may say of the secular schools, we need never think we can depend upon them to conserve our Methodism, and hardly our Christianity, because religion is not their specialty.

Let us notice some facts where Southern Methodism is strongest. Georgia has 200,000 members of our Church, but Emory College at Oxford has been for the last half century pouring into her towns a stream of graduates that have filled the pews, and, more important still, have filled the pulpits where the orthodox gospel of real Methodism has been preached with evangelistic fire. Alabama has 150,000 Southern Methodists, but the influence of Birmingham College and Southern University has shaped the persuasive powers of the pulpits of Alabama. Mississippi has over a 100,000 Southern Methodists, but Millsaps College has continued to fertilize the individual church with its strong Methodist product. Texas is the greatest of the Southern Methodist States, but see where she stands with her Methodists schools, the Southwestern University being in full blast and a great institution being about to put on steam at Dallas that will feed the whole Church. Central College in Missouri, Emory and Henry College in Virginia, together with the Randolph-Macon chain of schools, have had their telling effect upon these States. And so if the other Southern States were named it would be seen that our Church has succeeded in these commonwealths just as our schools have succeeded. The secondary institutions of Methodism have perhaps done a greater work than the larger schools, for in them the religious atmosphere was more tense. Young Harris College in Georgia, a secondary institution, but a real live religious school, has had its uplifting effect upon the State.

Louisiana must profit by the example of others. Some have said that the Methodism of days gone by in Louisiana was stronger than it is at present. Whether this is true or not, we do not know. But if it be true, we may again point to the Methodist schools of the State. Centenary College in the days of the past turned out hundreds of Methodist laymen and preachers for Louisiana. They may be found all over the State and they are laboring to hold the Church together. But we had as well realize, once and for all, that if Methodism is to succeed in Louisiana Centenary College and Mansfield College must succeed. If Centenary does not come out victorious, where will our preachers come from?

THE "BASE LINE" IN OUR EDUCATIONAL WORK.

While we are promoting a campaign for the endowment of Centenary College, attempting to enlist all our people in a special offering outside of all regular collections to place our college for boys upon a solid basis of financial support, we must not forget or neglect that which has been called the "base line" in our work. Our Conference assesses seven thousand dollars for our regular educational work. Sixteen hundred dollars of that is pledged to Centenary as part of her current resources. About two thousand more is needed each year to meet the bonded indebtedness of Mansfield Female College. So that nearly four thousand dollars each year is necessary to meet these imperative demands. If more than this is raised, it can be applied to the further strengthening of Centenary. If the assessment were raised in full, every dollar of it could be invested profitably in our educational work, and in fact every dollar of it is urgently needed. Unfortunately, it has been our custom to raise usually less than half of this assessment. It is a shame that as a Church we default on any of our assessments. As a people we are able to pay them all in full. Every dollar of every assessment is needed for a sacred cause. But if in any charge the assessment should fall to come up, it is not fair to discriminate against the Educational collection. It ought to be paid just as fully as that for missions, for the orphanage or the superannuates. It is just as worthy and just as sacred as any other. W. W. D.

THE HOLMES STORE

is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

When the third Annual Session of the North Mississippi Woman's Missionary Conference passed into history, the 29th of March, after a four days' session, one of the finest meetings of its kind ever held in our State closed.

Our president, Mrs. Vic Thompson Hoyle, had been untiring in her efforts to make this meeting a success; hence we had before us a most excellent program. Not one moment was lost, and looking back upon the time spent in this great meeting, one can but feel that "it was good to be there."

Corinth was most lavish in its reception of the delegates and visitors, and First Church, Corinth, will ever be with the delegates and visitors the synonymn of the most gracious hospitality. The pastor-host, Rev. J. H. Felts, seemed actually to anticipate the slightest wish of the guests. Mrs. S. F. Riley, president of the Corinth Auxiliary, was most gracious, and she seemed untiring in her efforts to serve and please all. She had the loyal support of a fine body of men and women.

The dainty and substantial lunches served in the Sunday school rooms were temptingly appetizing and especially appreciated. The ladies of the church were assisted at this midday luncheon by the young ladies and girls and by the "Boy Scouts." On Saturday 170 delegates and visitors were served.

The two social features of the occasion deserve especial praise, but space will forbid any but brief mention. The palatial home of Mrs. J. H. Blakemore, where a lovely reception was tendered, was filled with fair women and handsome men, who exchanged friendly greetings to the chords of sweetest music, and, amid a scene which rivaled fairyland.

The "Tea" in the Co-operative Home, where our own "Deaconess," Mary Daniel, was the hostess, being assisted by the young women who are so fortunate as to be domiciled in this home, was a pleasure made keen by long anticipation. Truly, the Spirit of Christ is there and great good is being accomplished.

The business of the session was dispatched with tactful speed by our gifted President. She brought a fine message, which was an inspiring resume of the year's work, followed by many helpful suggestions.

The reports of the officers were far above the most sanguine expectations, notwithstanding the general financial depression prevailing over the State. These reports manifested the undaunted spirit of these women of God and their earnestness in this great work. The treasurer's report showed that this Conference of Women had collected and disbursed more than $22,000 during the past year. The $1000 fund for a room in the Memorial Hospital has been completed. The report of the Committee on Extension of Work provides that we shall pay $500 to the Co-operative Home in Corinth, $500 to the Sailors' Rest in Gulfport, and continue boxes to the Co-operative Home, Orphans' Home, and needy preachers. It was also decided to refurnish the Mary K. Stone room in the Scarritt Bible and Training School, and a collection to cover same was taken and completed in a few moments. A suggestion may not be out of place just here: This Mary K. Stone Room is our own, and is named in memory of one of our useful, gifted and faithful members who has passed away, and it should be our pleasure and pride to keep this room beautiful. Would it not be a lovely thing if the deft fingers of each of our women would fashion a gift for this room every year? Towels, covers, mats, bed linen; in fact, any of the dainty accessories that go to make a bedroom sweet and attractive.

Our "Council" guest this year was Mrs. R. W. MacDonell, of Nashville, Tenn., Secretary of the Home Department of the Woman's Missionary Work. To know Mrs. MacDonell is to love her, and her addresses at two of the evening sessions, and her timely suggestions and help, as occasion demanded, were much appreciated.

Bishop R. G. Waterhouse, of Los Angeles, California, who presided at the last session of the North Mississippi Annual Conference held in Starkville, seems to belong to us now, and with keen appreciation we listened to the great sermon which he preached on Friday evening to a large and profoundly attentive audience. We deemed it a privilege to have him with us. Another great message came to open, receptive hearts on Sunday morning from Dr. E. H. Rawlings, Educational Secretary of the General Board of Missions. At the close of the sermon, the Lord's Supper was administered to a vast concourse of people. On Sunday evening, by special request, Dr. Rawlings again delivered a glorious missionary sermon. So deeply was Mrs. Hoyle moved and impressed that a personal appeal for volunteers for service was made and in less than twenty-four hours two young ladies had responded by asking permission to enter training for missionary work from this Conference. These great speakers were a grand climax to the program which had called for addresses and talks from our own members, who had added a truly personal touch by telling of our own work and our own plans.

One of the most beautiful services was held on Saturday morning when tributes were paid to those of our workers who had gone to their rewards this past year. Appropriate songs were sung softly, a carefully selected Scripture lesson was read, which was followed by prayer, after which Mrs. Conger, the calendar clerk, called the roll of deceased members. As a brief tribute was paid each deceased worker, the President deposited a beautiful white rose in a golden bowl and the whole twenty-six, typical of the lives of the faithful workers, made a "white gift for the King."

Miss Ethel Golding was in attendance upon this Conference. This young woman has been accepted as a volunteer for foreign work and will use the Helen Finley Scholarship in the Scarritt Bible and Training School. Her consecration and earnestness deeply impressed all who met her. And one of the sweetest services was when the President called the executive committee to meet with Miss Golding for a session of prayer and praise. Truly, "our hearts burned within us."

It was most fitting that at this woman's meeting Sister Williams should represent the Orphans' Home. It was a joy to hear her and a pleasure to look into her sweet, motherly face.

Never before have so many of our preachers honored our meeting with their presence, and we owe much to their help, advice, and prayers. Rev. R. J. Countiss came to represent Grenada College, but he remained with us almost the entire time and gave much assistance and impetus. Rev. H. M. Ellis, Field Secretary of the Methodist Hospital (Memphis), was there, too, and his presence was appreciated. Too much praise cannot be given the fine reports that Rev. E. H. Cunningham gave of each session in the Memphis Commercial Appeal, and in the New Orleans Times-Picayune, and we are most grateful to these two periodicals for the liberal space allotted these reports. Then, too, more preachers' wives than ever before came to this great meeting, while visitors came from the Memphis and North Alabama Conferences to look in on their sister Conference.

Flowers for the President came, and also telegrams and messages of greetings to the body from various sources, and these courtesies added a bright touch of loving thoughtfulness to the already happy occasion.

It was a wonderful benediction to have a number of aged women who had been pioneers in the work present. Mrs. J. D. Cameron, one of the first presidents of the Foreign work, and Mrs. Inge, mother of our lamented Brother George Inge and of our gifted Mrs. Mary Inge Hoskins, were formally introduced, and both made touching remarks, Mrs. Inge closing by repeating lines from Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," which affected the audience deeply.

There were some sad things to happen, too. Our dear Sister Thames, who has served long and faithfully in various offices, retired from the executive committee, because she now lives within the bounds of the Mississippi Conference. And Mrs. Trotter, the Superintendent of Social Service, felt that her first duty was to an aged mother, and so could not continue her work. Flowers as tokens of love and appreciation for the service they had rendered were presented to Mrs. Thames and Mrs. Trotter in touching talks made by Mrs. J. F. Evans and Mrs. W. W. Scales, Jr.

These retiring officers, together with Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. Inge, were made Honorary Vice-Presidents of this organization. Mrs. J. T. Binford, the faithful District Secretary, felt it necessary to turn her work over to some one else on account of personal affliction. Loving words and beautiful flowers were sent Mrs. Binford, who is confined to her room.

The Greenville District sent three invitations for this body to meet with them next year, and Clarksdale was selected.

We had gone in and out of the hospitable homes of Corinth, had met with the cordial people, had been one in the splendid Sabbath school; in fact, had been made to feel so much at home that it was sad to go; but the meeting was over and duties were calling elsewhere. There had been the tarrying and the baptism of the Holy Spirit; and do you ask how it all happened? It did not happen. It was the result of much labor and concerted prayer. Can we not see the days and weeks of planning, the scores of letters, the hours of prayer and preparation on the part of our consecrated President, who had felt that with God's help she could bring these things to pass? And he did not fail her nor us, but came to own and bless, and to him be all the praise.

Editorial

OUR SPECIAL EDITION; ITS MESSAGE.

The courtesy of the Editor of the Advocate has put at the disposal of the Louisiana Conference Board of Education this issue for the purpose of laying before the preachers and people of the Conference, from every point of view, the campaign for Centenary College which was unanimously approved and ordered by the Conference. For the kind co-operation of Dr. Meek, both in the issuance of this number, and in granting us a department each week, we would express our high and grateful appreciation. To those who have helped by their contributions, we would likewise express our thanks.

The issue is sent out with prayer that its message in some form may reach and appeal to every reader of the Advocate, and that its audience may be enlarged so as to reach a large proportion of our people. It is a challenge to Louisiana Methodism to rally unanimously to one of the vital interests of the Church—the interest that is at present most imperatively pressing. May God's Spirit make its message effective!

THE CHURCH MUST EDUCATE.

So many good things are said on the subject of Christian education in this issue of the Advocate that it seems almost a work of supererogation for us to pursue the discussion further; but we feel that it would scarcely be proper for us to let this special edition of our paper go to press without writing a few lines to attest our recognition of the tremendous importance of this phase of Church activity. The duty of "teaching" was imposed upon the followers of Jesus in the "Great Commission" given them by the Master himself in the beginning of the Christian era, and they have been the pioneers and most efficient workers in that fruitful field from that day to this. And even before the mighty Founder of Christianity came to earth the Jewish Church was doing, largely under Divine direction, a work of instruction and training unparalleled in the history of ancient peoples.

Referring to the question of education, Dr. Albert Taylor Biedsoe says: "The Bible has been dealing with it for thousands of years. Before Herodotus wrote or Homer sang, before philosophy had a name, or science a system, a rude and enslaved race of idolaters were brought, as a nation, to the knowledge of the true God, and taught the soundest principles of life to their children. * * * Genesis is the beginning of universal history. The Decalogue is the beginning of a sound and consistent jurisprudence. Jewish prophecy is the first distinct announcement of a grand future for the human race. At Horeb, where the ancient Church was first formally organized, appeared the light and sounded the trumpet that doomed the superstition and idolatry of the world. Subsequently, the Church of Christ sent its apostles to the very centers of pagan civilization to instruct and redeem it. Their only weapon of conquest was the truth—the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God. It redeemed every nation it conquered, and it is today the mightiest weapon of conquest in the world. Extract from modern literature all the light it has borrowed from the Bible, and its glory would be eclipsed. It is this truth that the Church is commissioned to disseminate through all the earth, fulfilling the Master's words to his disciples, "Ye are the light of the World."

It was out of a Church-governed institution of learning that the light of the Protestant Reformation came. Cambridge University, one of the two great seats of English letters, was founded by clergymen, and the very names of the colleges composing Oxford University show how strongly Christian the influences were that led to the establishment and promotion of that renowned institution. In the United States nearly all of the older colleges were started by the Christian denominations. Included in this list are Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Brown, Dartmouth, Hampden Sydney, and other colleges that have wrought nobly in the making of the American Nation. It is only within comparatively recent years that the trend in educational work has been away from the Church and toward the maintenance upon a large scale of State and independent institutions. As late as 1884, the following figures were published by the United States Commissioner of Education: Total number of colleges, 370; denominational colleges, 309; undenominational colleges, 61; denominational students, 25,948; undenominational students, 6819. As Bishop Charles B. Galloway once strikingly said in a brilliant address: "It was not until the Christian Church had fought and won the battle for education that the world discovered its vast excellence and counted its institutions worthy of munificent endowment."

The space is not now at our disposal to discuss at any considerable length this great theme; but there are two or three points which we wish to make, though it will be possible for us to do little more than merely to state them. 1. The Church must educate in order to save herself. She must have men who are trained and equipped if she is to fulfill her mighty mission. Such men have contributed most largely to her upbuilding in the past, and they are more needed now than ever, since Satan in this age is fighting upon a vaster scale than ever before with intellectual weapons. No fact is more generally admitted by persons who are informed than that if the Church is to secure the firmly anchored, strong, and resourceful men that she needs at present, and will increasingly need in the future, she herself must tutor and develop them. Of the college men coming into the Christian ministry more than 90 per cent are from denominational schools.

2. The Church must educate to save the State and civilization. It is immorality that corrupts society, halts the march of human progress, and disintegrates and wrecks republics and empires. This truth is writ large in the history of mankind. A secularized education can not adequately promote either public or private virtue. Its legitimate fruitage is seen in what it has wrought in Germany and in the awful catastrophe which now extends over half the world and threatens to engulf European civilization. If our free institutions are to be preserved and perpetuated, we must have genuinely Christian men in places of public trust, in the pulpit and on the tripod, and in the various other vocations of the social order; and the home life of our people must be kept soundly religious and pure. Such a citizenship can be produced only by the maintenance and operation of Christian schools.

The reason that this is true is not difficult to discover. Christianity alone has a proper conception of the dignity and worth of man. It views him not merely as a creature designed to exist for a few brief years, but as an immortal being with an eternal career before him. It recognizes as his crowning glory, not his physical structure, nor his intellectual faculties, but his moral nature; and, though it seeks to develop the whole man, upon this it places the chief emphasis. And it has for the execution of its work agencies not at the command of the skeptical men of the world. By rightly meeting the conditions, it can bring into the hearts of those under its instruction the life-giving power of the Holy Spirit, so that they are cleansed, strengthened, and fortified against the temptations of the Evil One, and are inspired with high ideals and incited to lofty endeavor. It is true that this agency may, to some extent, exercise its influence in institutions not under the fostering care of the Church, but the atmosphere in such schools is not favorable for a deep and definite work of spirituality. When the Church is shut out of any college or university the best and most efficient type of Christianity cannot long survive within its walls.

Our Commission on the Classification of Schools was eminently wise in declaring that the Southern Methodist Church should have at least one well equipped college in every State embraced in its territory. Louisiana Methodism urgently needs such an institution now, and will need it even more in the coming years. All the indications are that this State is on the threshold of a wonderful development. The Panama Canal is now in operation and the world currents are already touching her borders. The tides of immigration are setting in strongly both from the North and from the Old World. With the cessation of the European War, foreigners will likely stream in upon us in vastly increasing numbers. Methodism must do her part toward the evangelization of these new-comers; and in this work she will have to meet the sharp competition of the Romish Church, which is here strongly entrenched and wonderfully alert. We are already without a Christian Sabbath, and unless we leaven these immigrants with the pure teachings of the Gospel, other cherished features of our Christian civilization will likely be taken from us. To let Centenary College go down at such a time as this would be an immeasurable calamity. It would be to sound an unpardonable retreat when we need to be strengthening our forces and getting ready for the coming battle. Shall we fail the Master in this approaching period of peril and opportunity? We cannot afford to do so. The call rings loud and clear for us to go forward, not backward.

A TRAGIC DEATH.

Dear Dr. Meek: The Mississippi Conference sustained an irreparable loss on last Thursday morning, April 8, when Rev. George Alexander Guice was accidentally killed at Bay St. Louis. He was on his way to a coast settlement to mingle with its people and preach to them at night, when in crossing the railroad track near the station he was struck by the engine of the train he was to take. He lived about two hours—conscious most of the time, but suffering terribly. The entire community was deeply touched by this sad occurrence, and under the great gloom which it produced, filled the Methodist Church at 8:30 o'clock on Friday morning, when a parting memorial service was held, after which loving hearts and many ministrants accompanied the body to Biloxi for burial. Let prayers of fullest sympathy be offered in behalf of the delicate, saintly wife and the other surviving members of Brother Guice's family. A fuller memoir will be furnished the Advocate. W. H. HUNTLEY.

We sincerely deplore the death of Brother Guice, whom we held in high esteem. He joined the Mississippi Conference in 1890, and was a studious, conscientious, and effective Christian minister. He won the hearts of the people where he labored and invariably left behind him in his pastorates a deep impression. Though he had been stationed in Bay St. Louis only a little over a year, such was the regard in which he was held by its citizens that the Rev. Mr. Duffy, the Episcopal rector, conducted at his church last Sunday a memorial service in his honor. A note from Rev. W. T. Griffin states that at the obsequies of Brother Guice, which were held in the Methodist Church at Bay St. Louis on Friday, April 9, there were present, in addition to Dr. Huntley who had charge of the service, the following ministers: Rev. J. E. Gray, Rev. E. C. Gunn, Rev. N. B. Harmon, Rev. H. F. Toile, Rev. W. T. Griffin, Rev. E. N. Evans, Rev. F. D. Van Valkenburg, and the Rev. Mr. Weatherby of the Baptist Church. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful. We are informed that the family of Brother Guice will reside at the Seashore Camp Ground, where they have a cottage.

A GOOD COLLECTION.

The following note from Rev. R. W. Vaughan, Superintendent of the Louisiana Orphanage at Ruston, written from Franklin on April 10, will doubtless be read with interest:

"Reports reaching me from my wife up to Thursday, April 8 (Brother Vaughan had not been in Ruston since Easter Sunday), indicated that the collections for the Orphanage had reached $2000. This, in all probability, will carry the amount raised on Easter Sunday to between $3500 and $4000. Between $400 and $500 was raised by the churches in New Orleans. Under the conditions prevailing throughout the State, I feel that this showing is a most gratifying one. We are indeed grateful for this help, and I will make a more accurate statement as soon as I can reach home and tabulate the returns."

A WORD OF THANKS.

By request, we print the following statement:

"The Social Service League of St. Mark's Hall (New Orleans), through its acting treasurer, Rev. W. W. Holmes, wishes to thank all who contributed toward helping to a better life the cabaret girls of this city. Many of the girls were sent to their homes, happy to start life over again. The need is still pressing. The contributions received up to the present are not adequate to meet the requirements. Are there not others who will help in this most worthy cause?"

We consider this a noble work, and we trust that this request for additional help will meet with a generous response. The Protestants of New Orleans are not as active in this field of service as they ought to be. Let the churches of Louisiana and Mississippi lend St. Mark's Hall a helping hand in its efforts to rescue perishing young women in this largest and most cosmopolitan city in the South.

REV. T. J. DURRET DEAD.

In a note dated April 9, 1915, Rev. B. P. Jaco says: "Rev. T. J. Durrett, our pastor on the North Carrollton charge, died very suddenly last night, possibly of apoplexy. His release came after fifteen or twenty minutes of pain. He had been active and cheerful all day. We will go this afternoon to Aberdeen, and thence to Amory, where his body will be laid to rest."

We greatly regret to chronicle the decease of this worthy itinerant. Brother Durrett had been in failing health for the past two or three years, and in a note to the Advocate a few days ago stated that he had been ill practically all the winter. But he then thought that he was improving and was hopeful of being able to take up his work energetically in a short while. Alas! how little do we know of the future.

Brother Durrett joined the North Mississippi Conference in 1903. He was a quiet, modest, faithful Methodist preacher. He sought to do his duty in the fields to which he was assigned, and the work of the Church usually went forward where he wrought. He has left behind a good record and has doubtless been given a rich reward on high. We extend sympathy to the bereaved, and pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort and sustain them.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

See the statement concerning "Galloway Memorial Day" on page 16.

The Midland Methodist says that Bishop E. E. Hoss will write the life of Bishop McTyeire.

Rev. A. H. Parker, of Colfax, La., reports that the work in his charge is progressing favorably. We are indebted to Brother Parker for a club of 7 subscriptions to the Advocate.

We are informed that there is a good opening for a dentist at Pleasant Hill, La. Any one desiring to make inquiry concerning the opportunity there would do well to write Rev. H. T. Young, the Methodist pastor at that place.

Brother F. A. Howell, one of the most substantial laymen in the Durant District, has lately given us some additional subscriptions from the Durant charge. We appreciate his kindly interest in the circulation of the Conference organ.

A card from Rev. W. W. Woollard, the presiding elder, states that the meeting-place of the Columbus District Conference has been changed from Artesia to Crawford, Miss. The date remains the same as was previously announced—June 10-13.

Rev. S. J. Davies, of Jackson, La., who is one of the strong men of the Louisiana Conference, reports encouragingly concerning the work in his new field. We shall let our readers see what he has to say in the next issue of the Advocate.

Our hat is off to Rev. W. B. Jones, of Lumberton, Miss., for a club of 10 subscriptions, received on April 7. It goes without saying that the work in his pleasant charge is progressing favorably. He has the good habit of taking care of all the interests of the Church.

The recent Mississippi State Sunday School Convention at Tupelo was an occasion of much interest. The State Secretary, Rev. W. Fred Long, is to be congratulated upon what is being accomplished in behalf of the Sunday school work in the territory under his supervision.

Mrs. D. D. Gibson, of Hickory, Miss., has our thanks for a club of 2 new and 3 renewal subscriptions, forwarded on April 5. We trust that the Advocate will carry a weekly blessing into the homes into which she has been instrumental in sending it for the next twelve months.

A protracted meeting is in progress in our church at Greenville, Miss. Rev. J. T. Lewis, the pastor, is being assisted by four of his brothers, who are members of the Mississippi Conference. A correspondent states that the opening services were quite impressive and largely attended.

Mrs. F. A. Dicks, of this city, gave a reception complimentary to Dr. J. B. Fearn and his wife, Dr. Annie Walter Fearn, at her residence, 4525 Prytania Street, on Tuesday afternoon, April 13. Dr. and Mrs. Fearn are distinguished missionaries from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to China.

Dr. S. H. Werlein, pastor of the First Methodist Church of this city, will preach the Commencement Sermon of Martha Washington College, at Abingdon, Va., on May 30. Dr. Long and the students of his excellent school may feel assured that Dr. Werlein will bring them a helpful and memorable message.

Writing from Yazoo City, Miss., Evangelist T. J. Norsworthy makes the following reference to our church at that place: "The work here is prospering. Rev. W. M. Sullivan is making good in this important pastorate." We are pleased, but not surprised, to know that Brother Sullivan is giving a good account of himself in his new field.

Rev. M. W. Porter, who is serving a newly-formed charge at Harperville, Miss., is pleased with his work and feels that the outlook is promising. In his communication was inclosed a club of 5 subscriptions, for which we acknowledge ourselves indebted to him. He requests the prayers of the brethren that his labors may be crowned with success.

The many friends of Rev. T. B. Clifford will be glad to know that he was licensed to preach at the recent session of the New Orleans District Conference, and that he will soon take charge of the work at Patterson, La. Brother Clifford is an effective man both in the pulpit and pastorate, and we shall be glad to see him in the harness again.

Rev. T. L. Oakes, of McCool, Miss., reports that Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary of the North Mississippi Conference, was with him on March 24, and delivered an informing and helpful message concerning Sunday school work. He says: "His address was well planned, well delivered, and hit the mark. He is a Spirit-filled man."

Rev. J. T. Leggett, who is regarded by many as well-nigh an ideal presiding elder, writes as follows concerning the work in his territory: "This district (Meridian) is splendidly organized and the work done thus far is encouraging. The Sunday schools have never been so largely attended, and the congregations have been fine, in spite of the unfavorable weather."

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom we have not elsewhere made acknowledgment, for two or more subscriptions, received within the past few days: Rev. O. S. Lewis, Shuhuta, Miss., 15; Rev. R. H. Clegg, Porterville, Miss., 6; Rev. J. B. King, Vaughan, Miss., 5; Rev. James Porter, Oakland, Miss., 6; Rev. A. H. Williams, Shannon, Miss., 2.

Rev. J. A. Bowen, one of the authorized evangelists of the North Alabama Conference, who recently held a fine meeting in our First Church at Laurel, Miss., has been given a strong endorsement by the official board of that congregation, which we are publishing on another page. Brother Bowen is one of the most tactful and effective revivalists in the Connection.

On Thursday, April 8, the corner-stone of the new church at Durant, Miss., was laid with impressive ceremonies, after a brilliant sermon by Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, of Booneville, Miss. Besides Brother Lipscomb, Rev. W. S. Shipman, presiding elder of the Durant District, Rev. V. C. Curtis, of Lexington, Miss., and the gifted young pastor, Rev. E. N. Broyles, took part in the exercises.

Rev. F. P. Few sends us the following statement: "I am a student in the Candler School of Theology of Emory University. I expect to spend the summer holding revivals in Louisiana, and will be ready to begin work by May 18. If you want an old-time revival, write me at 119 Auburn Avenue, Atlanta, Ga. We hope that the brethren will give Brother Few a full slate and keep him busy.

Dr. J. M. Sullivan, of Millsaps College, attended the National Convention of Chemists held in New Orleans some days ago, and while in the city paid the Advocate office an appreciated call. He stated that Millsaps College is having a most prosperous session. Dr. Sullivan is one of the foremost educators in Mississippi, and has the work of the growing institution with which he is connected much upon his heart.

Rev. T. L. Porter is bringing things to pass on the Eureka Circuit, North Mississippi Conference. The work is in a better condition than it was this time last year. Brother Porter is endeavoring to circulate the Advocate among his people, and his efforts in this direction are meeting with a good measure of success. He requests us to state that his next quarterly conference will be held at Mt. Olivet.

Sunday, April 4, was a fine day with Rev. T. D. Lipscomb and his flock at Donaldsonville, La. There were 62 present at Sunday school, which is about three times what the enrollment was a couple of years ago. An Easter service was conducted at night, which was attended by a congregation that taxed the capacity of the house of worship, and at its close fifteen members were received into the Church.

Rev. J. R. Countiss, President of Grenada College, writes as follows: "The attendance at the College is holding fully up to the usual average. Bishop W. B. Murrah will preach at our Commencement, May 23, both in the morning and at night." This means that a great treat is in store for the young ladies of the College and the people of Grenada. Brother Countiss states that he will inform us later who will deliver the Annual Address.

Rev. J. G. Chisholm, who is now a student in the Candler School of Theology, at Atlanta, Ga., where he is making an excellent record, will be at home after May 18, and would like to secure work on some pastoral charge in Mississippi or Louisiana. Any one interested may write Rev. Paul D. Hardin, presiding elder of the Jackson District, Jackson, Miss., or communicate with Brother Chisholm himself by addressing him at 119 Auburn Avenue, Atlanta, Ga.

The Commencement Sermon of the A. and M. College, at Starkville, Miss., will be preached on May 30 by Rev. William Mercer Green, rector of the Episcopal Church at Jackson, Miss., and the Annual Address will be delivered by Congressman J. B. Aswell, of Natchitoches, La., on June 2.

Mr. J. F. H. Barbee, of Memphis, Tenn., who, as has been stated in the Advocate, recently underwent a very serious operation at Cleveland, Ohio, continues to do well, though his improvement has been slow. We are pleased to state that his physicians think that he will recover.

Rev. J. E. J. Ferguson, of Ellisville, Miss., sends us several subscriptions from his charge, and appends the following note: "My work is moving on nicely and the outlook is very encouraging. The congregations are increasing at every service, and the interest in the prayer meeting and Sunday school work seems to be growing. We have organized an Epworth League with 30 members, which is doing well. We have some as choice people as can be found anywhere."

From a personal letter from Dr. F. S. Parker, of Nashville, Tenn., we extract the following item of interest concerning our Epworth League work: "The gain for last year, as we know by actual correspondence with the Leagues, is far greater than is shown in the General Minutes—something over 200 chapters." We are pleased to receive this information. We believe that there is a place in the Church for the Epworth League, and we trust that our pastors will endeavor to bring this important arm of service into use in their charges.

Rev. W. W. Perry, of Haynesville, La., who has done as much for the Advocate for the past two or three years as any pastor in our patronizing territory, brought us under obligation to him for some additional subscribers a few days since. We take the following from Brother Perry's letter: "Easter Sunday was one of power and renewal with our Colquitt congregation. We reorganized our Sunday school there with the most flattering prospect that it has had within recent years. We have raised more than $30 for Centenary College."

Writing on April 7, Rev. W. H. Saunders, of Fernwood, Miss., says: "Our second quarterly conference was held last Saturday at Kokomo. Everything was reported in full and over to date. The work generally is in a fairly good condition. Our new church at Knoxo has progressed far toward completion and will be ready for dedication in June. Brother Selby's presidency and preaching at the quarterly conference gave great satisfaction. The sermon on Sunday morning on 'The Resurrection of Christ' was a strong presentation of that great theme and full of comforting truths."

Rev. W. W. Jones, of Coahoma, Miss., in a business letter bringing us several subscriptions, makes the following statement concerning his work: "Prospects are good. The attendance upon the preaching services is encouraging and there is an increasing interest in our Sunday schools. Our second quarterly conference was a profitable occasion. Brother Spragins, our presiding elder, had a fine audience to hear him. The people like him. They stick to their pastor over here, too." Brother Jones serves, besides Coahoma, Lyon and Boho, and there are some most excellent people at each of his three appointments.

Rev. J. W. Evans, of Clarksburg, Miss., desires through the columns of the Advocate to thank those who have contributed to the building of the Methodist Church at that place. Though the contributions received have helped considerably, the funds in hand are not yet sufficient to carry forward this urgently needed enterprise. Brother Evans concludes his note as follows: "Are there not 200 more brethren who will contribute 50 cents each within the next week? We are anxious to get our house of worship completed before the next quarterly conference, which will meet at Clarksburg some time in May. As this is my last appeal through the Advocate, I hope that many will respond."

FRECKLES
Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With The Othine Prescription
This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.
Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.
Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

Little KATY CUPIT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cupit, died on March 21, 1915, near Oak Grove Church, where she attended Sunday school. She was 6 years 7 months and 7 days old. Her illness lasting only 5 days, was caused by diphtheria. She leaves a father, a mother, one sister, two brothers and many friends to mourn their loss. She was the eldest of Mr. Cupit's children, and was loved by all who knew her. An earthly home has been saddened over the loss of this little friend, but the heavenly home is made brighter and more attractive by the knowledge of the little one's presence there; and there is joy among the angels of God, because the better country is being peopled with the redeemed, whose robes have been washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb. He who doeth all things well will comfort the bereaved ones in this time of sorrow over the loss of our little friend.

A friend and schoolmate,
MARY HENRETTA FLOWERS.

Brother HUGH MARION SINCLAIR was born on July 11, 1852: He joined the Methodist Church early in life under the ministry of Rev. Louis Kendall, at old Gum Springs, in Simpson County, Miss. He was married to Miss Jane Grubs on Dec. 18, 1876, who died on May 21, 1899, leaving him with eight children to mourn her going. He was well thought of in the community in which he lived. It is said of him that in all his life he was never known to say any hurtful thing about his neighbors, or to be given to evil speaking concerning his fellowmen. Because of the sufferings caused by the disease which eventually caused his death, he was not able to attend the church services as often as he desired. He passed away on Feb. 27, 1915, and we laid his weary body to rest beside of that of his wife in the family cemetery near the old home. Besides the children he leaves a brother and three sisters. To those who ministered to his needs so lovingly, we would say that God is righteous in all his ways, and he healeth the broken-hearted and bindeth up their wounds. Where he has gone there is no night. His pastor,

W. B. WALDROP.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION.

(Adopted by the Methodist Church at Starkville, Miss.)

Whereas, our Heavenly Father whose love and wisdom is unquestioned by his faithful children, has called from among us our beloved friend, Mrs. W. S. Harrison, a woman of great worth and merit—great in the beautiful things of the human heart; and

Whereas, we deem it a great privilege to offer some testimony of our esteem for her, our appreciation of her life and example, and our sympathy for her bereaved family; be it resolved:

1. That in the sudden death of this noble Christian woman our Church and community have lost an esteemed friend; her children and grandchilden, a worthy mother and grandmother; and her husband, his life's chiefest happiness.

2. That we, her friends, extend to her sorrowing family our unbounded sympathy in this hour of their affliction, and trust that the knowledge of her long, useful and devoted Christian life will alleviate the grief with which their hearts are so filled.

3. That it was at the family hearthstone that she excelled; there she should have been seen and known to have been fully appreciated; there her feelings were full of tenderness, and there hearts throbbed for her that now must bleed until they too are summoned to share with her the glories of a better land.

4. That a copy of the above expression of respect be forwarded to the family of the deceased, and also one to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Signed: T. C. Wier, president, W. S. Harrison Bible Class, Mrs. Jas. McCreight, Miss Sue Pearson, Miss Sidney Gay, F. L. Hogan, Julian J. Gill, Committee.

REV. J. A. BOWEN COMMENDED.

(Resolutions unanimously adopted at a meeting on April 1, 1915, of the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist Church, of Laurel, Miss.)

Whereas, it has been our privilege to have Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Birmingham, with us for the past fifteen days, assisting in a series of revival services; and

Whereas, the time that he allotted to us has expired, and he is compelled to leave, and we deem it both a pleasure and a privilege to attest in some measure our appreciation of his services; therefore be it resolved:

1. That while Brother Bowen came to us a stranger, he has during his short stay, attached himself to us with the most endearing ties; that his services have given us higher inspirations, and nobler purposes; that his work has proven most effectual in the elevation of our Church, and in drawing others to it, and that his prayers have already been proven to be as the "effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man." We are indeed gratified at what has been accomplished through him, and consider that the evidence already shown, is but an earnest of what is to come.

2. That these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, and a copy be given to Dr. Bowen, and a copy sent to each the New Orleans, and Nashville Christian Advocates, for publication.

W. P. Davis, President Board of Stewards, C. L. Neil, Secretary.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF
Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine.
If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.
Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

From the Field.

Loveland, Oklahoma.

Dear Brother Meek: As it has been some time since I wrote you I will send you a few lines. I am still very busy in the vineyard of the Lord. When I came to this charge I had five preaching places, but now I preach three times every Sunday and on every night in the week. I have received 18 into the Church and I expect more to follow. I hope to bring up a full report at our Conference this fall. My presiding elder, Rev. W. H. Roper, is a splendid Christian gentleman and a preacher of great force. I shout as he tells us of the wonderful things of God.—W. T. Currie, P. C.

Shubuta, Miss.

Our work here progresses nicely. Brother Leggett was with us yesterday (April 4), and preached two masterly and helpful sermons, which were highly appreciated. Our second quarterly conference has just been held and the reports show that the finances are well up, considering these stringent times. All the departments of church work are in fine shape. Our Sunday school is growing in attendance and interest. Deserving of special mention, is our Adult Bible Class of 35 young men, taught by Prof. Brooks, a consecrated and well informed Bible student. It is a pleasure and an inspiration to be with these good people. Come to see us.—Osmond Lewis.

Clinton, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am pleased to report a few things concerning our work on the Clinton charge. First, I want to thank you for giving us such a good paper. There is no question but that the Advocate is growing better all the time, and should be in every Methodist home; and I am expecting to give more of my time to this worthy cause. Things are moving along well here. There is no discord, and from a spiritual standpoint there is an upward trend. I consider that I am serving as fine a people as may be found anywhere, for I believe that they truly desire to stand by the Church and to be true to their God. We have just held our second quarterly conference, which was presided over by Rev. H. W. Bowman, and it goes without saying that his management of the affairs of the Church was excellent. His preaching was of the highest type, spiritual, deep, and logical. No one could sit under the sound of his voice and not realize the fact that God is with him. The truth as he preaches it and the earnestness with which he sets it forth will always win. May God bless you and all the readers of the Advocate. Pray for me and my people.—C. B. Powell.

Porterville, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are moving along very well with our work. We have all of our meetings planned for and help secured. We are working and praying for a great year in the Master's service, and are expecting great things of the Lord. The people are treating us well. They have put some new furniture in the parsonage, along with some other things, all of which were needed very badly. We are still receiving good things from the people, and are very grateful. I am enclosing herewith a club of new subscribers to the Advocate (six new ones and a renewal for myself) and a check to cover same. As we have said once before, this is our first year in this kind of work. We came and went to work, not forgetting the Advocate. But one day we received a letter from our father, who is just a layman. He is a man who loves his Church and its institutions, so he stressed the cause of the Advocate in his communication, urging us not to forget the paper. So we began more earnestly than before to try to do something for it, and we feel this morning that he is due credit for this club of subscribers. We wish that all boys and girls had as good and dear a father to help them along the way as we have.—R. H. Clegg, P. C.

Sunday School

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Mr. R. A. Maddox.

At Rankin Street, Jackson, they have an up-to-date Teacher-training Class. That Sunday school continues to grow, and the workers are growing too.

On Easter Sunday the Sunday school at Terry combined the Easter service and Children's Day exercises. The program was up-to-date in every sense. The children were well trained and did their parts splendidly. I think that was a happy combination. I never saw children enjoy a service as they did that one.

Some time ago we made a request of the pastors serving churches which have no Sunday school, to write us about those places, that we might try to get one organized. We have not had a letter from a pastor yet. My dear brethren, are you asleep? If so, try to awake from the slumber. The field is now white unto harvest.

The Field Secretary would appreciate it very much if the pastors would answer letters promptly. We have to write about three-fourths of them twice before we get replies. This takes time and stamps. When I write the second time relative to your date for the Sunday School Institute as suggested by your presiding elder and get no reply, you need not look for me to come to you at that date. I do not know whether I would be welcome or not.

During the District Conference of the Jackson District to be held at Terry on May 18, we will have a Sunday School Institute. This institute is at the request of the presiding elder. We will have speakers on the program to discuss Sunday school subjects who have studied the subject assigned them. Let every one interested in the Sunday school try to be on hand the day of the Institute. If you are not interested in the Sunday school work, come anyway and maybe you will be touched up a little.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney.

Tupelo, Eupora, and Brooksville come up to the standard of efficiency. There may be others in the Conference, but I do not know of them.

Children's Day in every church in the North Mississippi Conference is not too much for us to undertake. We can get the help of the people in the other charges, if we have not enough religion and intelligence and loyalty in our own charge to prepare for the occasion.

Davis Chapel has a woman for superintendent, Mrs. Marie Hays, a gracious, great, good woman. Of course, God wil use a woman to lead the people into the study of his Word if he can not find a man that he can use as leader.

I have written seventy letters to preachers that report churches without Sunday schools. I have received eighteen courteous, brotherly replies. These men on the firing line put me in touch with the places that need help. Some of these churches that report blank on Sunday schools have union schools; some of the communities are sparsely settled; in others the roads are impassable. We can have a Sunday school in the places where it has been impossible to have them in the past. God is able to do the impossible—easily able. Let us find out how he does it.

We often hear it said, "I could have a Sunday school, but there is no one in the community I can get to lead." "I could have a standard school, but I can't get a man to take the Teacher-training Class, the Home Department, the Missionary program, Children's Day services, and so on down the line." "Short on men?" "Yes." A short corn crop, a real short wheat crop, means famine. We are perishing for the lack of leaders. You judge a Church by the kind of people it produces, just as you judge a peach tree by the kind of peaches it produces. If we are short on men we had better see what must be done to produce more of them and a better lot. God help us to think about this!

TRY THIS FOR YOUR HEALTH.

For diseases which do not readily yield to drug treatment, such as chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism, Bright's disease, gall stones, uric acid poisoning, and diseases of the kidney and liver, the best physicians send their wealthy patients to the famous mineral springs. Some even spent months at the Spas of Europe and were almost invariably cured or greatly benefited.

I believe that the Shivar Spring is the greatest mineral spring ever discovered and I believe it so firmly that I offer to send you enough water for a three weeks' treatment (two five-gallon demijohns) on my guarantee that if it fails to benefit your case I will refund the price. You would hardly believe me if I told you that only two out of a hundred, on the average, say that they have received no benefit. The water is restoring thousands. It restored my health when my friends and physicians thought my case was incurable and I am willing and anxious for you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocketbook. If I win you become a life-friend of the Spring. If I lose I will be sorry for you, but I will appreciate your courtesy in giving the water a trial and will gladly refund your money on request. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17C, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

JACKSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Jackson District Conference will meet at Terry, Miss. It will begin with a sermon by Rev. W. C. Forsyth on Tuesday, May 18, 1915, at 7:30 p. m., and will continue until all business is transacted.

Let the delegates be elected promptly and their names sent to Rev. W. W. Hopper, Terry, Miss., and to the undersigned.

The following are the examining committees:

License to Preach—W. H. Lewis, R. P. Fikes, R. H. Kleiser.

Admission on Trial—W. M. Sullivan, W. A. Terry, R. E. Rutledge.

Deacon's Orders—M. L. White, J. B. King, B. E. Meigs.

Elder's Orders—W. J. Dawson, J. T. McVey, J. W. Price.

Brethren, let us pray earnestly that this conference may be a season of great spiritual power.

PAUL D. HARDIN, P. E.
Jackson, Miss., April 9, 1915.

MERIDIAN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Meridian District Conference will convene in the Methodist Church at Waynesboro, Miss., on May 4 at 7:30 p. m. Rev. C. C. Evans will preach the opening sermon, after which the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered. The pastors are requested to elect their delegates as early as practicable and forward their names to Rev. J. L. Decell, Waynesboro, Miss., and to me at Meridian, Miss. Committees have been appointed as follows:

License to Preach, and What Is Being Done to Discover Those Who Are Called of God to the Ministry—G. S. Harmon, H. A. Gatlin, and J. L. Decell.

Admission on Trial—J. R. Jones, W. B. Hogg, and C. C. Evans.

Deacon's and Elder's Orders—A.M. Broadfoot, A. B. Barry, and J. M. Carley.

Quarterly Conference Records—C. A. Schultz, B. L. Sutherland and H.S. Westbrook.

The Committee on Admissions will also make inquiries into the life and work of local preachers, as provided for in Par. 66 of the Book of Discipline.

Local preachers are expected to make written reports to the Conference, as per requirement of Discipline, Par. 175.

Pastors are requested to see that Quarterly Conference Records are in the hands of the Committee on the first day of the conference.

It is my earnest desire that all the preachers and laymen pray for divine guidance that the conference may be a means of grace to us all.

J. T. LEGGETT, P. E.

NEWTON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Newton District Conference will convene in the Presbyterian Church (by courtesy) at Philadelphia at 3 o'clock p. m., June 8. All members are requested to answer roll call as business will be taken up at once.

The opening sermon will be preached at 7 p. m. by Rev. W. W. Graves, followed by the Lord's Supper.

Pastors will please elect delegates at once and forward names to me and to Rev. J. G. Galloway in order that the official roll and committees may be made up before the opening of the session and that entertainment may be provided.

Let all the members attend and strive to make this a great occasion. A Missionary Institute will be held on Wednesday and an educational program will be carried out.

PORT GIBSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

To the pastors and delegates of the Port Gibson District:

Dear Brethren—It is very important that I know who are coming to the district conference to be held in Gibson Memorial Church, Vicksburg. Please send names of delegates, and as far as possible the names of those who will likely come. I think every layman will know by the time he reads this whether he is coming or not; if you do, brother, kindly drop me a card and tell me. It will help me much. As some of the delegates may fail to see this request, will not each pastor send me the names of those who are really coming, as well as a full list of his delegates?

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, liver and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhœa, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

WHEN NOTHING TASTES GOOD TO YOU

You eat simply because you must. You are troubled with dyspepsia. It makes your life miserable. You have a bad taste in your mouth, a tenderness at the pit of your stomach, a feeling of puffy fullness, headache, heartburn, and sometimes nausea.

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla. It acts on the stomach through the blood and also directly. Its beneficial effects are felt at once. It makes the rich red blood that is needed for perfect digestion.

Never yet did there exist a full faith in the divine word which did not expand the intellect while it purified the heart.—Coleridge.

SAGE TEA PUTS LIFE AND COLOR IN HAIR

Don't stay gray! Sage Tea and Sulphur darkens hair so naturally that nobody can tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and failing hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

DAISY FLY KILLER

placed anywhere, attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express prepaid for $1.

HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DeKalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.

TAKEN FROM NATURE.

From the pure fountain of nature flows the stream of energy and health, which renews and invigorates our race. Not only do we get inspiration from Nature, but health as well. To live in the open, in the sunshine, in the fields or woods, drinking pure air into the lungs, is best for those who have the opportunity. For people who are run-down, nervous, suffering from occasional indigestion or dyspepsia, headaches, night-sweats, whose machinery has become worn, it becomes necessary to turn to some tonic or strengthener which will help them get on their feet. For centuries it has been known that nature's most valuable health-giving agents are roots, barks and berries, and some fifty years ago Dr. Pierce, of Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., found a combination of roots and barks, taken from the fields and woods and made into an alterative extract with pure glycerine, that produced results in the system which were satisfactory in cases of blood disorder and stomach trouble. This concentrated extract of Nature's vitality purifies the blood by putting the stomach into healthy condition, helping the assimilation of food which feeds the blood, and putting the liver into activity. Nervousness and sleeplessness are usually due to the fact that the nerves are not fed on properly nourished blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood, and thereby all the organs of the body are run smoothly. You feel strong and strenuous, and are good for a whole lot of physical or mental work. Best of all, the strength and increase in vitality and health are lasting.

Every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery bears the stamp of public approval. It's a temperance remedy and bears the ingredients on wrapper.

Send for free book on the blood to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo.

Great thoughts go best with common duties. Whatever, therefore, may be your office, regard it as a fragment in an immeasurable ministry of love.—Bishop Wescott.

Whenever You Need a General Tonic Take Grove's

The Old Standard Grove's Tasteless chill Tonic is equally valuable as a General Tonic because it contains the well known tonic properties of QUININE and IRON. It acts on the Liver, Drives out Malaria, Enriches the Blood and Builds up the Whole System. 50 cents.

There is nothing in the world which gives so much rest to the soul as to do the will of God.—F. B. Meyer.

Not Spring Fever, But Malaria

In mild form causes that lazy feeling and weakness. Wintersmith's Tonic, the time-proven strengthening tonic wards off malaria and restores strength. At all Druggists

DEACONESSES TO BE CONSECRATED.

The consecration of deaconesses and missionaries is a service about which much interest hovers. At the Council meeting this year the following young women will be set apart for deaconess service. Miss Virginia Maud Fail, Hattiesburg, Miss.; Miss Grace Gatewood, Myers, Tex.; Miss Helen Gardiner, St. Louis, Mo.; Miss Mary Kimbrough, Clehurne, Tex.; Miss Joanna Lueth, Kansas City, Mo.; Miss Rena Murphy, Fort Worth, Tex.; Miss Daisy Ritter, Columhia, S. C.; Miss Florence Whiteside, Pine Bluff, Ark.; Miss Sophia Richardson, Milledgeville, Ga.

SALTILLO.

The city of Saltillo has always been considered one of the most heautiful, not only due to its buiidings and good streets; but also due to its beautiful gardens and orchards, and its fine climate; also on account of its dominant situation, for it is high enough to afford a beautiful panorama of the great valley in which it is located.

The attractive appearance coupled with the fine climate has made this city famous as a summer resort, and many foreigners spend the summer months there.

The Methodist people in Saitiilo made fine records in both school and Church last year, considering war conditions. The enroilment of the school is larger than it was last year, though there has heen no normai department.

They paid aii that was due on pastor's salary, Conference collections, and local expenses and had more than $100 in the treasury at the close of the year. For iocai charities they collected and distributed during Christmas week $291 (pesos). The coilections in the Sunday school amounted to more than $700 (pesos), an average of $14 (pesos) each Sunday. The school has been full, its patronage coming largely from the best families in the city. There are few churches and schools in Mexico that can give such favorable reports.

EDUCATIONAL WORK IN SIAM.

American missionaries were the pioneers in true educational work in Siam. They gave to Siam its first real school. They aided Siam in establishing the Government Educational system, and encouraged the Department of Education to establish normal training schools. They introduced the printing press into Siam, made the first Siamese type, and taught Siam the art of printing.

When the king of Siam made the first move for the establishment of a school system over Siam, he placed an American missionary at the head of the work. The present Minister of Education was at one time a pupil of a missionary, later on he became a fellow student with one of the missionaries in Sanscrit, and he stiil consults the missionaries on educational questions and iiterary subjects.

In the past twenty-five years the Presbyterian Mission at Siam has received more money from the Siamese king, princes, nobles, and common people for the maintenance of educational work, than it has received from the Presbyterian Church in America. —Educationai Work of the Bd. YOUNG LADIES IN THE ORIENT.

While in Bomhay I was invited to a dinner party at the house of a young Hindoo woman. Several of the young iady assistants in the Zenana Home went too, and one or two others who, iike myself, were visiting in India. Our hostess met us with a bright smiie, and looked very sweet and pretty in her gay-colored sari, with marigolds fastened in the braids of her glossy hair. We were shown to a room furnished partly in European style, and sat down for a iittie visit. But there was not much we could talk about, for only the merest trifles, such as one would say to a child, were interesting to her. Dinner was served in native fashion, without plates, forks or spoons, and while we sat on the floor struggling with our rice and curry, our young hostess, with her mother-in-law and sisters-in-law, aunts and cousins, stood watching us and iaughing heartily at our awkward manners. After we were through, we aii went upstairs to a room on the house-top and piayed littie games. The more childish they were, the more these women seemed to be amused, and so to please them we iaughed and ciapped our hands till our heads ached.

Picture to yourself the daily life of the average heathen girl in India. She perhaps sews some on a new sari or chaddar, helps to prepare the morning and evening meais, scours the brass cooking vesseis, takes care of the children, puts fresh fiowers on the shrine of her gods, and for the rest gossips with her neighbors, with the occasional diversion of a wedding or a visit to a mela. She goes about her work in a listless, drooping way, and if her face is not marked with lines of care, it is usuaily expressionless and doii-like.

On a bright December afternoon, whiie busily packing my satchel in the Zenana Home in Lucknow—for we were to leave the city the next morning—I heard a iight rap at my door. It was one of the native young iadies, who with severai others, had graduated the day before from our mission High Schooi. We sat down on the bed together, in school-girl fashion, for a cozy little chat. There was much to talk over; the closing exercises of the previous afternoon, the studies Larii liked best and the work she had planned for her college course soon to begin. Then as we grew more confidential, she told me how she came to be a Christian, of her struggies toward a better iife, and of ali she hoped to be and do. As I listened and looked into the glowing, earnest face of this girl, I felt a strange thrili of wonder and sympathy, and when she added with quivering lips, that it was her heart's desire to help and uplift other girls in India, I siipped my hand in hers, saying, "You and i will work together for this." "Wiii you?" She questioned eagerly hending toward me. "And will you ask the young ladies in America to pray and work for this, too?" Then i toid her how many were already doing so, and of their loving interest in the girls of India as well as those of other lands. But as I sadly compared the little handful of gleaners at home with the hungry miilions in these white harvest fields over the seas, a great longing sprang up in my heart that every Christian young woman in America shouid enlist in this holy cause. With such a host of united workers, who could tell what the result would be?—Extracts from ieaflet by Miss Mary Ninde.

OUR ORPHANS.

Why should we neglect them? What is of more concern to the Church than the proper training of her young children? Let every Sunday school superintendent on one Sunday in each month stress the need of aiding these helpless little ones, and let an extra effort be made in their behalf on that day. The boys and girls could during the week deny themseives the presence of one night at the moving picture shows, or some other induigence and thus double their contributions. The teachers might give from 25 cents to $1, which is done in our Sunday school. Surely there is no greater need than this and we should not neglect our orphans. Let every pastor stress this cause in his Sunday schools.—J. H. Miner.

WHAT GRANDMOTHER USED.

Ninety-four years' use will certainly prove whether or not a remedy is what it is claimed to he. That is the test that Gray's Ointment has stood—successfully. The old folks aii found it the most effective cure for sores, cuts, wounds, burns, boils, carbuncles and all eruptions and ahrasions of the skin. "Please send me by return maii one box of the oid Gray's Ointment," writes N. B. Hoofman, Stewart, Miss. "My father used it in his family 50 years ago, and for the purpose you recommend it there is nothing in the world equai to it." Keep a box in the house. CALOMEL DYNAMITES YOUR LIVER! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and You Don't Lose a Day's Work

Liven up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

Listen to me! If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working; headache and dizziness gone; stomach will be sweet and bowels regular.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and can not salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of Calomel is almost stopped entirely here.

SALTS IF BACKACHY AND KIDNEYS HURT

Drink lots of water and stop eating meat for a while if your Bladder troubles you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

Finds Cure for Epilepsy After Years of Suffering

"My daughter was afflicted with epileptic fits for three years, the attacks coming every few weeks. We employed several doctors but they did her no good. About a year ago we heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine, and it certainly has proved a blessing to our little girl. She is now apparently cured and is enjoying the best of health. It is over a year since she has had a fit. We cannot speak too highly of Dr. Miles' Nervine."

MRS. FRANK ANDERSON.
Comfrey, Minn.

Thousands of children in the United States who are suffering from attacks of epilepsy are a burden and sorrow to their parents, who would give anything to restore health to the sufferers.

Dr. Miles' Nervine

is one of the best remedies known for this affliction. It has proven beneficial in thousands of cases and those who have used it have the greatest faith in it. It is not a "cure-all," but a reliable remedy for nervous diseases. You need not hesitate to give it a trial.

Cured His Rupture

Confederate Veteran Used the Brooks Rupture Appliance and Cured Himself at Home.

Taken From a Photograph of Mr. Henry D. Banks—R. F. D., No. 11—Commerce, Ga.

Mr. Banks writes—"I am sound and so well that I can plow or do any kind of heavy work. I can truly say your Appliance has effected a permanent cure. I was in a terrible condition and had given up hope of ever being any better. If it hadn't been for your Appliance, I would never have got well. I am 70 years old and served three years in Eckle's Artillery of Oglethorpe Co. I hope God will reward you for the good you are doing to suffering humanity."

Brooks' Appliance, the modern scientific invention, the wonderful discovery that makes life worth living, for ruptured people, will be sent on trial. No springs or hard pads. Has automatic air cushions. Binds and draws the broken parts together as you would a broken limb. No salves. No lies. Durable, cheap. Sent on trial to prove it. Full information and book on rupture, mailed free. Write today C. E. Brooks, 2033B State St., Marshall, Mich., U. S. A.

A HAPPY OCCASION.

(This interesting account of how Mrs. M. M. Hayes, affectionately called "Aunt Mag" by her many friends, was recently honored by the Methodists and other Protestants of Opelousas, La., is taken from the St. Landry Clarion of March 20. This remarkable woman is a sister of Rev. B. F. White, Rev. H. O. White, and Rev. T. B. White, all deceased, who were formerly members of the Louisiana Conference, and an aunt of Rev. R. A. Davis, a superannuate member of the Louisiana Conference, and of the late Rev. John W. Davis, who also belonged to that Conference. The Hon. H. H. White, of Alexandria, who is one of the leading lawyers of Louisiana and a widely known Methodist layman, is also her nephew. A correspondent who is weli informed concerning the character and work of Mrs. Hayes, says: "Perhaps no one has done more for Protestanism and education in Louisiana than 'Aunt Mag.' She has taught a Protestant school at Opelousas for fifty years, and she is truly a saint in Israel." One who has rendered such service well deserves to he honored.—Editor of the Advocate].

A very pretty and impressive scene took place at the Methodist Church last Sunday immediately after the Sunday school exercises. Mrs. M. M. Hayes, who is the oldest living Protestant and member of the Methodist Sunday school in this parish, had heen away for some days attending the State Missionary Conference in New Orleans, as a delegate from the Opelousas Missionary Society. Mr. Prentiss Obier announced to the large assemhiage that he had heen delegated to welcome "Aunt Mag" back to her accustomed place; and, in a few well-chosen and impressive words, expressed the profound affection and esteem which every one felt for her and the gratification all felt at her safe return from the Conference. Mrs. Hayes, deeply moved hy Mr. Obier's touching sentiments, feelingly expressed her appreciation of the same and her happiness at heing hack among those whom she loved so well. She said that she would make a full report on Friday at the meeting of the Missionary Society of her stewardship as a delegate from this city and thanked her friends for their kindness and solicitude. As a fitting mark of the great esteem in which Mrs. Hayes is held by other denominations, Mrs. Will Stewart presented Mrs. Hayes with a heautiful bouquet of roses from the Presbyterian congregation, while Mrs. C. J. Thompson presented a similar offering from the Baptist congregation; Mrs. L. E. Litteli one from the Episcopal membership, while Mrs. L. H. Mornhinveg fairly smothered her with one from her own flock. The entire assemblage then joined in a handshaking and other evidences of salutation, all of which must have been very pleasing to good old "Aunt Mag."

Mrs. W. S. Obier completed the program with a splendid rendition of the following familiar and appropriate poem:

There's lots of music in 'em—the hymns of long ago;
And when some gray-haired brother sings the ones I used to know
I sorter wanter take a hand, I think of days gone hy,
"On Jordan's stormy banks I stand and cast a wistful eye!"

Tbere's lots of music in 'em—these dear, sweet hymns of old,
With visions bright of lands of light and shining streets of gold;
And I hear 'em ringing, singing where mem'ry dreaming, stands,
"From Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands."

They seem to sing forever of holier, sweeter days,
Where the lillies of the love of God bloomed white in all the ways;
And I want to hear their music from the old-time meetin's rise
Till "I can read my titles clear to mansions in the skies."

We never needed singing books in them old days, we knew
The words, the tunes of every one—the dear old hymn book through!
We didn't have no trumpets then, no organs huilt for show,
We only sang to praise the Lord "from whom all blessings flow."

An, so I love the good old hymns, and when my time shall come,
Before my light has left me and my singing lips are dumb,
If I can hear 'em sing them then, "I'll pass without a sigh,
To 'Canaan's fair and happy land where my possessions lie.'"

STUDY ESSENTIAL.

We sometimes fear that because we are frequently led to strike at the skepticism and idiosyncrasies of superficial scholarship our readers may infer that we discount the necessity of preachers being studious and faithfully endeavoring to equip themselves for their delicate and difficult work. Certainly, we do not desire to be so understood. Every pastor ought to be earnest, painstaking, and persistent in his efforts to become truly efficient in his high and holy calling. Vastly more than a knowledge of books is required to make one an effective ambassador for Christ; yet books tend to develop and train the mind and to store it with useful information; hence they are a source of power and should not be neglected.

Our advice to every pastor is to form the habit of methodical study and to devote a considerable part of his time to mental work. And we advise against a minister scattering his reading too much: if he does that he is apt to become a mere browser, knowing a little of many things and nothing thoroughly. It is far wiser for him to concentrate his attention upon the mastery of the Bible and that greatest and most baffling of all arts—preaching and the winning of souls.

Stir up the gift that is within you, dear brother. Read and learn to think. Strive to become a cultivated and informed man—not simply for your own sake, but that you may be able to accomplish more for the Master. Mental indolence is a reproach to a Christian minister. It tends to dwarf and unmake him. You have no right to waste or to leave buried a single talent. The smallest things count in giving us influence with men. God re-enforces us, but the human instrument is an essential factor in achieving results. No truth in the history of the Christian Church is more outstanding than this. The preacher who does not faithfully endeavor to grow in intelligence as well as in grace makes a tremendous mistake. Though one may not have had collegiate advantages, there is scarcely any limit to what one may accomplish in the way of educating one's self by diligent and continuous application. The Methodist itinerancy, rightly used, is a school of no mean order. Some of its products, as Asbury McKendree, Soule, Bascom, and Munsey, for instance, have been men of wonderful information and surprising accomplishments.

BISHOP CRANSTON'S ADDRESS.

The address before the Boston Social Union some weeks ago by Bishop Earl Cranston, the senior active Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church and a member of the Federal Council of Methodism, on "The Unification of Methodism," was a remarkably able and impressive utterance. It was comprehensive in its scope, fraternal in spirit, and Christian in sentiment. We do not mean by this that we accept unqualifiedly all the views of the distinguished speaker, but we cannot but admire the fair-mindedness and outspoken candor with which he expressed himself concerning this great issue. We fully agree with Bishop Cranston that the question which should determine the future course of the two Episcopal Methodisms in the United States is that of "the efficiency of Methodism as a power in the kingdom of our Lord: * * * which promises the better result—union or division?" Both denominations can well afford to let by-gones be by-gones—to bury forever the unpleasant contentions of the past.

But this question of "efficiency" involves vastly more than simply the avoidance of competition and a consequent saving of money. There are things in the kingdom of our Lord that count for much more than dollars and cents and the merely outward forms of co-operation. It has often been the case that a separation of Christian bodies, rather than their union, has been necessary to promote the progress of true Christianity. It was so when the Lutheran Church was established and when the Methodist movement became detached from the Church of England. Nor are we yet willing, if we are to have the spirit of Christ and rise to a high plane of action, to admit that the only alternative to a wasteful and hurtful competition between the Christian denominations is their organic union.

There are important differences between the Methodism of the North and that of the South in the relations which they generally sustain to their educational institutions, to politics, to higher criticism, to the itinerancy, to the feminist movement, and many other things. What effect upon the Church, South, in respect to these important issues, which must bear pertinently on the question of "efficiency" in the coming years, would the merging of American Methodism into one huge ecclesiasticism have? In our opinion, this is the problem which our leaders need to figure out before determining whether we shall continue to maintain our denominational integrity, or become a fragment of a national Methodism. For our part, we are not yet ready to commit ourself to either course. We want more light before making up our mind concerning a movement fraught with such far-reaching consequences.

It is our purpose as soon as possible to publish Bishop Cranston's masterful address that our readers may see what he had to say and weigh his statements for themselves. This question is one that deserves the thoughtful and prayerful attention of the great masses of Southern Methodism. So far, this strong and statesmanlike deliverance seems to have provoked very little discussion among the Methodists of the North. With the exception of Zion's Herald, in which it was first printed, there has been almost nothing in that denomination has had is, we think, somewhat ominous. The indications are that the broad and magnanimous views set forth by Bishop Cranston and championed by Zion's Herald are not generally popular in our Sister Church, and that even so able an advocacy as theirs is powerless to awaken any enthusiasm in favor of the unification of American Methodism according to the proposed plan. Nothing definite concerning the sentiment existing in the Methodist Episcopal Church is likely to be known, however, until the meeting of their General Conference in May, 1916, when, either by their action or failure to act, our brethren of the North will disclose their real attitude toward this scheme of union.

HERE WE HAVE IT!

A layman in North Mississippi sends us the following dispatch from Philadelphia, Penn., which he states was clipped from The Atlanta Constitution: "The Biblical miracles were explained by Prof. Camden M. Cobern, explorer and archaeologist, who has just returned from Palestine, in an address here yesterday. Professor Cobern visited the oasis at Kadesh-Barnea where Moses struck the rock with his rod and brought forth water for the Israelites. He declared that Moses knew of the presence of the spring, and that he struck the rock to indicate to his followers that water was to be found there. The progress of the Israelites across the Red Sea was made possible, according to Dr. Cobern, by a peculiar phenomenon which occurs once in a century, by which the wind, blowing from a certain direction, leaves a portion of the sea bed almost bare."

Our correspondent suggests that these statements of Dr. Cobern are an exhibition of skepticism. Such old fogies as he and the Editor of the Advocate might so construe them, but those who are better informed would doubtless tell us that they are a demonstration of up-to-date scholarship. If we mistake not, Dr. Cobern is a teacher in a Northern Methodist College and writes the Sunday school notes for the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate, and we dare say that he is much in demand as a writer of review articles and as a lecturer in theological institutes. But our correspondent should not think that these suggestions of the Doctor are original and new. We rather suspect that they have a strangely familiar appearance to many who were careful readers of the Southern Methodist press a few years ago. So we may felicitate ourselves upon the fact that our Church has not been wholly outstripped in the grand forward march of religious truth.

CONFIRMATORY.

In a recent editorial we expressed the view that there is a decided tendency upon the part of other denominations to imitate the Roman Catholics and Episcopalians in the observance of the various "days" of the Lenten season. As confimatory of this, we take the following from The Outlook of April 14: "Year by year the days and seasons which commemorate the life of Christ receive increasing observance. Not only the Roman, Greek, and Anglican communions have led the way, but those Protestant bodies which once made little of Christmas and Good Friday and Easter now make more and more of those significant days." The question is, Is this trend toward ritualism wholesome? There is no doubt whatever that it exists.

WOMAN.

You say that you are but a woman—you
Who are so wonderful to me;
You tell me there is little you can do.
Little indeed that all the world can see:
There are no battles on the open plain
That you can fight as I, a man, can fight;
But who shall say your life is lived in vain,
If all my darkened days you have kept light?

Oh, little woman heart, be glad, be glad,
That you are what God made you! Well I know
How you have served me when the day was sad,
And made me better—yes, and kept me so!
Be very glad that you, in your white place,
Your little home, with folded hands, can be
A silent influence, to whose source I trace
The little good there ever was in me.

To be a woman—is there any more
That you have need to be from day to day?
How wonderful to have your heart, your store
Of purity and goodness, and to say,
"One that I love is nobler since I came;
One that loves me is better for my sake."
A woman, Oh, there is no greater name
That ever on the mortal tongue shall wake.

—Charles Hansen Towne.

THE WHOLE MAN FOR

After Satan had tried Job in the first testing God said to him of Job, "Still he holdeth fast his integrity." This is very significant.

First, it teaches us that Satan is still trying man, perhaps not in the same way, but in the way that seems to be the most effective is he trying every person to-day. Integrity means wholeness. That is, Job still held fast his undivided and larger self. He had not been reduced to a fraction of a man, he was a whole man, a man in all of the mighty meaning of that significant term. A man, a whole man! Satan, then, is seeking to reduce us to fractional parts of men. Every time he succeeds in getting a person to yield to sin, he reduces the person by that much, and he is just that much less a man in the fuller meaning of the world. Christ said to Peter, "Satan hath desired thee that he might sift thee as wheat." He desired to sift the good out, and leave him a shattered and wrecked piece of humanity, but Christ prayed and Peter was sustained and saved. So the importunity of Christ at the throne of God and the faithful prayers of loved ones has often saved us from the reducing ravages of Satan. A study of the lives of men will lead us to see that there are many lives that have been so wasted by sin that there is but the smallest fraction left. We need to learn the lesson that, as Job was sustained, so may we be; that through the indwelling power of the Christ we may be kept from the ravages of sin. It may be that we may find, as many a poor fellow has, that like the prodigal we have wasted our substance in riotous or sinful living; but, if so, we need to learn that Jesus will make up the lack in our lives, and will present us faultless before the throne of his glory, with exceeding joy! It is a most glorious fact that though a person has so wasted his life that but little is left, yet Christ will take even that little, if it is all given to him. He will forgive, he will save, and he will keep that which is committed to him against that day.

Satan is not only seeking to reduce the sinner, but he is seeking also to reduce the Christian. To reduce his usefulness! Many professors of religion have been so reduced by their indulgence in sin, that there is but little, if any, real saving power in them. He is also seeking to reduce their happiness. God has provided that every Christian may be happy, but Satan will mar that happiness if he can.—The Methodist Recorder.

THE RELIGION OF THE DAY.

"The religion of the day is an easy-minded religion, without conflict and wrestling with self-denial and sacrifice—a religion which knows nothing of the pangs of the new birth at its commencement, and nothing of the desperate struggle with the flesh and with the devil, day by day, making us long for resurrection deliverance, for the binding of the adversary and for the Lord's return. It is a second-rate religion—a religion in which there is no largeness, no grandeur, no potency, no noble-mindedness, no all-constraining love. It is a hollow religion, with a fair exterior, but an aching heart—a heart unsatisfied, a soul not at rest, a conscience not at peace with God; a religion marked, it may be, by activity and excitement, but betraying all the while the consciousness of a wound hidden and unhealed within, and hence unable to animate to lofty doings, or supply the strength needed for such doings. It is a feeble religion, lacking the sinews and bones of hardier times, very different from the indomitable, much-enduring, storm-braving religion, not merely of apostolic days, but even of the Reformation. It is an uncertain religion; that is to say, it is not rooted on certainty; it is not the outflowing of a soul assured of pardon and rejoicing in the filial relationship between itself and God. Hence, there is no liberty of service, for the question of personal acceptance is still an unsettled thing; there is a working for pardon, but not from pardon. All is thus bondage, heaviness, irksomeness; there is a speaking for God, but it is with a faltering tongue; there is a laboring for God, but it is with fettered hands; there is a movement in the way of his commands, but it is with a heavy drag upon our limbs. Hence the inefficient, uninfluential character of our religion. It does not tell on others, for it has not yet fully told upon ourselves. It falls short of its mark, for the arm that drew the bow is paralyzed."

PARTNERSHIPS.

I have been somewhat interested in the "Want-add" contest that has been going on in one of the city dailies. Evidently the contest was run in order to interest people in the "Want-add" columns of that paper. Indeed, those entering into this contest were advised to read the "Want-add" columns that they might be able to know how to write their lines for the contest.

All sorts of things are advertised in these columns. Some of them make the most interesting reading. Sometimes there are advertisements for business partners. Men who have a business, and needing more money to make it go, advertise for a partner who has money and who wants to make investments. Men who have money to invest advertise for partners who have a business. It is good to have the columns of a paper through which men may make known their wishes for business partners and for other things. These advertisements sometime help people to get a good start in life.

There is another partnership toward which it will be good for men to direct their attention. In order to enter into this partnership it is not necessary that men have money. It is not necessary that they have an established business. It is not necessary that they even have the good character that is so often demanded when they answer a "Want-add." There is just one thing necessary in order for men to be able to enter into this partnership. This is the willingness and the desire to go into it and the purpose to carry out their part of the contract when they do enter into it.

Young attorneys are always glad to become partners in a strong law firm. It is always a good thing for a young physician to be able to form a partnership with an older physician of experience and of great skill. The same thing is true of one entering into any other enterprise.

There is a partnership into which different ones may enter that will give them connection with One who is far greater than any mortal man. This is fellowship and partnership with Almighty God himself. We may be co-partners with him in the salvation of the people of the whole world from the sins and the evils that have gotten into their souls. Any man who will, is called upon to enter into this partnership. It may be that he belongs to that great class of people called the "down-and-outs." God will supply every need for the carrying on of the partnership. He calls into this partnership the high and the low, the rich and the poor, the learned and the unlearned. He calls all of every age and race and station to enter into this partnership with himself. He supplies the capital. He gives the increase and the profits. The dividends are paid in securities for eternity. These supply to the soul satisfaction and peace both in time and in eternity.

THE GENESIS OF THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE.

By Allan Sutherland.

In view of the remarkable progress which is being made by the Anti-Saloon League in its efforts to secure a saloonless nation and a stainless flag, it is well that something should be known of its history.

In 1846, Abraham Lincoln, then thirty-seven years of age, prepared and signed the following:

Whereas, the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage is productive of pauperism, degradation and crime, and believing it is our duty to discourage that which produces more evil than good, we therefore pledge ourselves to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage.

Before that time, and since, until 1893, there had been more or less irregular, individual and local efforts made to overcome the rum traffic. Such widely-known temperance speakers as Father Mathew, John B. Gough, Neal Dow, Francis Murphy and Frances E. Willard, had exerted a strong influence against it, but in spite of all that was attempted, the traffic increased, and liquor organizations were practically in control of many politicians and law-makers of our land. Apathy and indifference dominated, as a class, even Christian men and women; they were divided among themselves; and although a number of States had adopted temperance measures during the half century before 1893, yet, for the most part, these measures were either repealed or not properly enforced.

In 1874, the Oberlin, Ohio, Temperance Alliance was organized, the object of which was "by all lawful measures to suppress the traffic in the use of intoxicating liquors." From this beginning, the Ohio Anti-Saloon League developed in 1893, and had "the courage and the faith to present a common platform for the members of all temperance organizations holding a common creed so far as the Christian attitude toward the liquor traffic was concerned upon which all denominations might agree; advocating a common policy on which the good men of all parties might unite."

This was a most important step in the right direction, initiating, as it did, a unity of action which is sure of ultimate triumph.

The Ohio Anti-Saloon League was formally organized in 1893; and shortly after, the non-partisan organization known as "The Interdenominational Christian Alliance," of Ohio, was merged with it.

Within a year some three hundred local organizations were formed, legislation influenced, a few local convictions of lawbreakers secured, a State paper, the "Anti-Saloon," started, and other helpful activities inaugurated; the Anti-Saloon League had at last found a permanent footing as a State organization.

An organization, somewhat similar, had been formed about the same time in the District of Columbia, and had accomplished much good. In 1895 the American Anti-Saloon League was organized by the coalition of the Anti-Saloon Leagues of the District of Columbia and of Ohio, together with forty-five State and local temperance organizations. This League came into existence as a natural development of the reform spirit of the times. It was felt that the well-organized and powerful liquor organizations could be and should be overthrown.

Immediately after the inauguration of the Anti-Saloon League in 1895, the work of organizing the movement in the States was begun and vigorously proseeuted. During the next five years there were twenty States and Territories in aetive sympathy with the movement. Affiliated ageneies eontributed most helpfully.

State after State has already taken aetion looking to the suppression of the saloon. * * * * The time is almost eertainly near when not less than half our States will be safely within the prohibition ranks; and surely these will shortly show such benefieent results in the betterment of their people that all other States will hasten to confer a like blessing upon those within their borders, and our great country will have the glory of boasting that it is indeed and in truth a saloonless nation under a stainless flag.

The American Anti-Saloon League Convention, to be held in Atlantic City, New Jersey, July 6-9, is expected to eontribute largely to this end, and to be the greatest demonstration against the liquor traffie this country has ever seen.

THE ATLANTA MEETING OF THE CONFERENCE SECRETARIES OF EDUCATION.

A representative and sueeessful gathering of Conferenee Seeretaries of Edueation of Southern Methodism was held in the Wesley Memorial Building, Atlanta, Ga., Mareh 31 and April 1, 1915. Delegates were present from the Alabama, Baltimore, Little Rock, Louisiana, Memphis, Mississippi, Missouri, North Alabama, North Georgia, North Mississippi, South Carolina, South Georgia, Tennessee, Northwest Texas, Upper South Carolina, Virginia, and West Oklahoma Conferenees, and the body was ealled to order by Dr. Stonewall Anderson, General Secretary of the Board of Education. Dr. G. W. Reid, of the North Alabama Conferenee, led the devotional exereises, after which Rev. O. L. Kelly of the North Georgia Conference was eleeted President, and Rev. T. H. Lipseomb of the North Mississippi Conference, Seeretary.

The meeting of the Edueational Commission at the same time in the same building brought many distingulshed visitors to the Conference, among whom were Bishops E. E. Hoss, J. H. McCoy; Mr. Asa Candler, who generously provided an automobile trip for the Conferenee to the site of the new University, Dr. A. J. Lamar, Dr. R. H. Bennett, Seeretary of the Department of Ministerial Supply and Training; Dr. W. C. Lovett, Editor of the Wesleyan Christian Advoeate; Dr. A. M. Hughlett, Presiding Elder of the Atlanta District; Dr. C. O. Jones of Trinity Church, Atlanta, and the members of the Theological Faculty of Candler University.

Bishop E. E. Hoss on Wednesday evening delivered in the auditorium of the Building a magnifieent address on the Call and Training of the Ministry.

The general subject of how Conference Secretaries of Education can be of service was the theme constantly before the Conferenee throughout all of its two days' sessions, and the program as previously outlined in the church press was thoroughly diseussed.

A committee on resolutions, consisting of Dr. James Cannon of Virginia, Rev. W. W. Drake of Louisiana, and Rev. Robert Selby of Mississippi was appointed, and embodied the results of the delliberations of the entire body during its two days' sessions in the following statement, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved 1. The Conference Secretary of Edueation should be the leader within the bounds of his Conferenee in all matters pertaining to the educational work of the Church. To this end, as Secretary, he should thoroughly inform himself eoncerning the Standards, Plans and Policies of the Church in order that he may be qualified to lead; furthermore, he should be supplied by the Conference Board of Education with sufficient funds to enable him to perform efficiently the duties pertaining to his office.

Resolved 2. The Conferenee Seeretary of Edueation should, so far as his time may permit, aid the pastors in securing the educational assessments in full, the presidents of our schools and colleges in their work for students, endowment and equipment, and should give special attention to the work of influencing young men, both in the Church and State institutions to consider the call to preach and of assisting them to seeure the means for adequate training for the work of the ministry. In carrying on his work, he should make free use of the Conference Organ, write personal letters to the pastors, distribute literature, arrange with the presiding elders to visit the district conferenees in order to present the general edueational work of the Conferenee, visit the schools and colleges within the bounds of the Confereuee, and report conditions in the same to the Board of Education, emphasizing in his addresses, both at Conferences and at schools the claims of the Christian ministry.

Resolved 3. That our Annual Conferenee Boards of Education are requested to confer with the Boards of Education of their several States in order that some basis of agreement may be reached by which there may be genuine cooperation between the work done in the Sunday schools and in the public schools; and furthermore, our Annual Conferences are urged to make better provision for the religious development of students in State institutions by such means as may be adapted to conditions existing in the various States.

Resolved 4. That the General Board of Education is hereby requested to develop a plan by which the facts concerning our edueational work can be effectively presented to the Sunday schools of the Church.

Resolved 5. That we recommend the establishment of a connectional Ministerial Training Fund, the plan to be outlined by the General Board of Edueation and presented by the said Board to the various Annual Conferenees of the Church.

The illness of Bishop Warren Candler was greatly deplored by the Conference, and his inability to be present at any of its sessions, though he hospitably provided a generous banquet in the dining hall of the Memorial Building for the Educational Commission, the Conference of Secretaries assembled, and the Faculty and students of the Theological School.

Resolutions of thanks to the people of Atlanta who hospitably entertained the body; to Mr. Asa Candler, Bishop Warren Candler and, to the Presiding Elder of the District and the Faculty and student body of the University, were unanimously adopted.

Appreciation of the services of Dr. Stonewall Anderson in preparing the program and successfully arranging for the Conferenee was also expressed.

It was ordered that a report of the Conference should be sent by the Secretary to the Conference and General Organs of Southern Methodism.

(Signed) T. H. LIPSCOMB, Sec'y.

THAT "BRIEF SUMMARY."

I accept without the slightest hesitation or mental reservation the time honored scales of "wise and fair." I prefer however that some one in authority should pass on the wisdom and fairness of my propositions. For Brother Lipscomb to calmly appoint himself judge, jury, attorney for both plaintiff and defendant, Chief Gyascutus and court of final appeal is more than I can stand for. That was the late Bob Ingersoll's method. He would interpret (?) the Bible, then proceed to demolish the interpretation. His fire-works were interesting, but his conclusions were wholly unsatisfactory, SAVE TO HIMSELF AND A FEW OF HIS FOLLOWERS.

Brother Lipscomb is never personal (?), never attempts personal vindication (?), and he attacks nothing but principles (?). When Brother Park calls the class of the second year next December he had better explain that the examination is to be given only to those who have not taken the Correspondence Course; otherwise his "principles" may be attacked. I never once supposed that it was necessary for me to "explain" till my "principles" were questioned. None of the undergraduates seem to have misunderstood. More than one wrote me at once that he was taking the work through the Correspondence School. I promptly wrote commending, AND IN EVERY INSTANCE URGED THAT AS THE BETTER COURSE. I am giving the examination as announced. Brother Lipscomb is the only man that I know of who objects.

"If I did not bring down my game that time I never struck the mark in my life." Well, well. I wonder what the folks that Brother Lipscomb preached to when he was a "boy preacher" would say now? If they would call a man a "fool" who would waste fifty-two cartridges on one squirrel, what would they call a man who would keep on shooting after he had killed the squirrel?

Was there a line or a word in either of my articles that in the remotest way suggested "excessive individuality, incipient anarchy which is restless under any authority—is distrustful of everything but itself, and is only destructive in its tendency?" Surely not. Has Brother Lipscomb been writing about something or just using up words? Was it a temporary touch of mental indigestion, or is it chronic? In all his "Summary" not an authority quoted SAVE T. H. LIPSCOMB. My brother will have brain-fag if he isn't more careful.

Was my reference to his going to school a "fling" at his education? If he even thinks it was, I hasten to make the amende honorable. I rejoice in his good fortune. Would to God that all our young men could have as good an opportunity. My debt of gratitude to my dear old father who made possible training school, college, and university advantages for me till my health and vision were all but gone, and who would "back me to-day" if I should decide to return and attempt to finish my unfinished work, can never be paid. More, his sacrifice would shame me if I were so much as wink at indifference to educational advantages.

I append extracts from two letters recently received that speak for themselves:

"You know by fussing and fuming and spending half the last session of our Conference on the undergraduates we reduced the number from 60 to 56. At that rate we shall, by the help of the Committee on Conference Relations, get through with them after awhile."

"Have had to work hard, cutting wood by the cord, clearing land, etc.—and it has been quite a struggle for me to keep two jumps ahead of the wolf. In fact the winter has been so severe that we have really suffered for the necessaries of life. There are nine of us—we have had considerable sickness; my charge paid $300 last year. I hope to take up my course in real earnest soon, and I ask your prayers in behalf of myself and people."

"One word more." If Brother Lipscomb really fears the "democratic spirit" he had better get off the earth, for from vodka-cursed Russia to liberty-loving America, in Church and State, that spirit is PERVADING AND PREVAILING, thank God, and the signs of better times are already apparent.

COMPLETE THE SPECIAL.

If anything has so far interfered with the raising or sending in of the "Centenary Special" we hope that each pastor will see that a collection covering the full amount expected of his charge is taken and in the hands of the Treasurer at the earliest possible date, since this money is urgently needed.

MEETING OF CENTENARY TRUSTEES.

A meeting of the Centenary Board of Trustees will be held at Shreveport Tuesday evening, April 27, to consider some urgent problems with reference to the work of next session, which must be settled before Commencement. There are serious difficulties to be met and all friends of the College must co-operate in the work of overcoming them; but none of those most deeply interested in the institution have any idea of suspending or giving up the work.

CALL FOR EDUCATION ASSESSMENT.

A request has been made several times for those charges which can do so to send to the Treasurer as much of their regular education assessment as possible. Doubtless the work of collecting the "Centenary Special" has obscured this call, but it is very important to get as much on account of regular assessment as possible to meet the urgent needs on the Mansfield bond issue. So far, only about $200 has been sent in.

SOME CAMPAIGN NOTES.

I spent Sunday, April 4, in Pelican. In the morning the Easter offering for the Orphanage was taken, and I exhorted for that noble cause. I trust that when the returns come in from the Conference Brother Vaughan will find that the response is as liberal as in previous years. In the evening the special education assessment was subscribed in full. Brother Power, a Centenary man, is highly spoken of by his congregation.

On Sunday, April 11, I was with Brother C. M. Morris on the Boyce charge, where the special assessment was paid, with some surplus for the regular educational assessment. Dr. B. N. Sewell, a successful physician in Boyce, and Mr. Marcus Dunnam, a successful planter on the Bayou Rapides, are both former Centenary boys. The pastor is in high favor with the people. Sister Morris is the teacher of a splendid young people's class.

THE CANDLER SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are nearing the end of our year's work here in the Seminary and I am glad to say that it has been a most successful year, especially when one considers the fact that this was the first year. The Church was most fortunate in getting together such a company of men as those who compose our Faculty. Dean Durham, although comparatively a young man, is a man of large sympathies, breadth of outlook, and a deeply spiritual nature. Of course, it is unnecessary to say that our Chancellor is a great soul, a man whose life is an inspiration to every young minister who is so fortunate as to come in contact with him. The whole atmosphere is spiritual and I cannot but believe that the ministry which is being typed here will be of the highest evangelistic kind.

There will be only two of us to graduate this year, Rudolph from Kentucky and myself. I am glad that I will be able to go out in the first class of an institution which I believe is destined to be one of the greatest in the country.

Thanking you again for your interest in my behalf, I am, sincerely yours,

Atlanta, Ga. ROBT. H. RUFF.

AN INVIDIOUS COMPARISON.

By Rev. B. J. Dodson.

I have watched the campaign for Centenary College with deep interest and have been much pleased with the space you have given to the matter in your most excellent journal. Nothing could be finer than the co-operation thus displayed between all the forces of Methodism in the Louisiana Conference, and, if it succeeds, as it should and as I trust it will, there will be "glory enough for all" in the assurance that this historic institution is to continue to serve our Church and pour into its life vast dividends of trained and consecrated workers.

It is said that "comparisons are odious," and it would seem to be somewhat tactless to make a distinction between the activities of different classes, as was done in your issue of April 1, between men and women in the article on "Taking Stock." No one wishes to detract in any degree from the work of our women. It is worthy of all praise. But the men are not a negligible quantity yet, and we are appealing to them to come to the assistance of Centenary.

I have been wondering what would happen if the leaders of Louisiana Methodism, both clerical and lay, should swing actively into the campaign for Centenary, stumping the State for it just as our politicians do for office and with a like enthusiasm and fervor. The prize in this case is much the richer of the two, and is also superior from the fact that it will furnish a blessing to all. Would it not be well thus to enlist in an active canvass for funds all the stronger men of the Conference—the Parkers, the Carters, Carre, Henry, id genus omne? The prospect is enough to fire the imagination of a duliard.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

At the recent session of the Baltimore Conference, which was held in Washington, D. We may adopt new methods to meet new conditions, but we must not depart from the old creeds and the teachings of the good old Methodist faith. Let us hold fast to the old faith and old creeds, and seek inspiration at the old altars."

CARELESS COUNTING.

Mr. Editor: Furnishing answer to your editorial inquiry in your issue of April 8 in regard to the number of members in the North Mississippi Conference, I give you the following data:

In 1909 we had reported 53,992 members. In the year 1910 the pastors reported 5439 accessions and 2577 removals, which should have given us a net gain of 2862, instead of 2055; whereas, we reported a total of 56,047 members, a discrepancy of 807. In 1911 we had reported 4798 accessions and 2770 removals. Our gain should have been 2028, instead of the reported 282, a discrepancy of 1746. In 1912 there were reported 4850 accessions and 2936 removals, which would have given a gain of 1914, instead of the pitiful 103, as recorded from total figures, a discrepancy of 1811. In 1913 there were reported 5604 accessions and 3579 removals; but the total figures from membership column show a gain of 487 instead of 2025, a discrepancy of 1538. In 1914 the figures as corrected by me since Conference by careful accounting and getting the report from a charge where there was a mistake of 379 members against us, show that we have now a reported membership of 57,737 with 83 local preachers, or a total of 57,820, a gain of 826 in members and local preachers. However, we had reported last year 5306 accessions and 2993 removals, which should have given us a gain of 2313 members instead of the gain of 818 which we show, exclusive of the gain of 8 in local preachers, a discrepancy of 1495 members. Now add the figures showing the discrepancy for five years and you have a total of 7397 members, a number equal to one of the largest of our districts! Add these figures to our present reported membership, and we should have 65,134 members and 83 local preachers. I can go back a bit further and show you that in our slip-shod counting, we have let a whole Conference the size of North Mississippi glide through our fingers, for one set of our figures would put us far beyond 100,000 members.

I am pleased to note that the Examining Committee for Admission on Trial is now required to test the candidates on elementary book-keeping. It is my humble judgment that the very first question asked should be, "Can you count?" It is my further judgment that a Methodist preacher who cannot count his members, his gains and his losses in members, and make his numbers tally, is unfit to have charge of the "ninety and nine." The average discrepancy per pastoral charge in our Conference last year was between 9 and 10. At this rate would not the wolves have devoured the "one that strayed" long before the average preacher knew it was lost? After having served three years as Statistical Secretary and eleven years as Secretary of my Conference, I am forced to believe that very many of our preachers make their reports from memory at the seat of the Conference session. Possibly the presiding elders might help a little by reminding the pastors on their FIFTH round that they will have to report the number of members to the Conference.

Pardon me if my words seems sharp, but a discrepancy of 7397 members in five years shows careless counting somewhere.

That we in North Mississippi are not the only sinners is shown by the fact that the minutes of the Mississippi Conference for 1914 give the total number of accessions as 6661 and of removals as 4127, which would give a gain of 2534; whereas the minutes show a loss of 1617, a discrepancy of 4151 members, not dollars, but members! Brother Secretary Watkins, I really believe my preachers can beat yours counting, poor as they are!

THE LOUISIANA STATE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

By Rev. C. A. Battle.

In Garig Hall, on the Campus of the Louisiana State University, one of the most picturesque spots in the South, the State Sunday School Convention held its twenty-ninth session, beginning on Tuesday morning, April 13, and closing Thursday evening, April 15. The number of delegates was very large and came from all over the State. The hospitable city of Baton Rouge entertained them gladly. The Convention, every one must admit, was a success. It was spiritual, uplifting, and the impressions will doubtless be lasting in the minds of many. The atmosphere of the body was reverent and spiritual. The sessions were all well attended and the audiences always gave close attention to the speakers. Many who perhaps have heretofore not been quite convinced of the usefulness and the necessity of the expense and trouble of the State Convention that is held yearly have been turned toward it favorably. It had a good effect upon the delegates and upon the people of Baton Rouge.

The reports from the parishes was to the writer the most interesting of all the sessions. The delegates from the various parishes sat together and rose when their parish was called. One of the delegates reported for the parish organization, telling whether the parish convention had been held, how many ward conventions had been held, what amounts had been pledged and raised for the support of the State work. Then all recited a passage or Scripture together. On Wednesday the collection was taken for the support of the State work. The sane manner in which it was taken pleased everybody. Cards were passed through the audience and they were asked to make a pledge according to their conscience. We do not know exactly the sums pledged, but we were told that a substantial amount was realized.

The Sunday School Convention is popular with the Sunday school people of the whole State. This is proved by the fact that so many were willing to come, paying their way long distances for the pleasure and profit of attending. This is a good endorsement of the work. Mr. Van Carter, the General Secretary, Miss Susie Juden and Miss Marguerite Hugo, his assistants, are very much beloved as earnest Sunday school workers. They are painstaking and hard-working leaders; the people like them and are willing to follow their guidance. We hope they will have many years of success in this work. The Sunday schools of the State cannot help being better organized and better taught by supporting this organization.

Mr. F. Salmon, of Slidell, was unanimously elected president of the Association for the coming year. Mr. Carter and Misses Juden and Hugo hold their same places, of course. Shreveport will be the next place of meeting, having sent an earnest invitation from the Chamber of Commerce.

A fine program was rendered. Mr. W. C. Pearce of the International Association, Dr. A. T. Robertson, Louisville, Ky., Miss Minnie E. Kennedy, Birmingham, Ala., Miss Nannie Lee Frayser, Kentucky, Prof. E. O. Excell, Chicago, Ill., and Mr. Alvin W. Roper, a musician from Indiana, were the leading Convention workers. Many others made speeches who are of local reputation. The writer feels that Mr. W. C. Pearce and Miss Nannie Lee Frayser deserve more than usual commendation for their great talents in their lines of work.

Besides the writer, the members of the Louisiana Conference who attended the Convention, to his knowledge, were: H. W. Bowman, J. E. Craig, H. W. Cudd, S. J. Davies, W. W. Drake, A. D. George, J. F. Foster, J. B. Fulton, A. J. Gearheard, J. L. Evans, R. H. Harper, F. B. Hill, Louis Hoffpauir, W. W. Holmes, H. S. Johns, J. J. Kelly, T. D. Lipscomb, H. B. Perritt, C. B. Powell, S. D. Roberts, W. D. Thomas, A. I. Townsley, A. W. Turner, J. B. Williams, and R. H. Wynn.

REV. J. S. PARKER.

Rev. James Sims Parker, late of the Mississippi Annual Conference, was born at Lauderdale Springs, Miss., December 12, 1850, and died at the home of his daughter-in-law, in Hattiesburg, Miss., on December 18, 1914. Funeral services were held for him in Court Street Church on December 20, conducted by the writer, assisted by Dr. E. H. Mounger, Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. D. E. Kelly, Rev. L. J. Jones, and Rev. O. S. Lewis. His tired body was laid to rest in the city cemetery by the side of his son James, who went away in April last.

He was one of six children born to his parents, two of whom are now living. The mother died when James was a small boy, but the second marriage of the father brought into the lives of the children a second true mother. For her, Brother Parker carried a deep and tender affection to the day of his death, and she loved him as her own son. The father was not a Christian, but the deep religious life and unceasing efforts of the stepmother was the agency, under God, which brought salvation to that house. James was converted and joined the Methodist Church at the age of fourteen, and at once felt a call to the ministry. "I conferred not with flesh and blood," he said, "but at once began preparation for my life's work." He attended the village school until his seventeenth year, when he matriculated at Southern University, Greensboro, Ala., remaining there three years, completing his junior year.

The data is not at hand to give the time he was licensed to preach, or the time of his ordination. While still a boy preacher he was invited to hold a meeting at Lauderdale Springs, the home of his family, and in this meeting his father was converted aud joined the Church. The erection of a family altar in the home followed the father's conversion.

Brother Parker was admitted on trial in the Mississippi Conference in December, 1870. With the exception of four years in the supernumerary relation, he continued in the active service in this Conference until the middle of October last year, when he was violently seized with his fatal illness. After some weeks of sickness at his home in Seminary, he was carried to the South Mississippi Infirmary at Hattiesburg, and was placed under the care of Dr. W. W. Crawford; but the work of his disease had gone too far to be arrested by human means, and, after a month's stay at the Infirmary, he was carried to the home of his widowed daughter-in-law, where he was tenderly cared for until early in the morning of December 18, when death came.

The following gives the order of his pastorates, and the time of service: Enon, one year; Mayersville, three years; Wilkinson, three years; St. Helena, four years; East Feliciana, two years; St. Helena, second term, two years; Sharon, two years; Benton, two years; Newton, two years; Hattiesburg, two years; Lumberton, one year. At the close of his pastorate at Lumberton, he asked for and was granted a supernumerary relation which was continued through four years. After this, he served Westville, one year; Caseyville, one year; Gulfport, two years; Poplarville, two years; Shiloh, one year; Laurel, Fifth Street, two years; Summit, two years; Lintonia, one year; Jackson, Rankin Street, two years; Angullla, one year, Adams, one year; Seminary, one year.

While on the Wilkinson charge, in 1875, he was united in marriage to Mrs. M. J. Wood, whose father, William Fenn, was for many years an honored member of the Mississippi Conference. Sister Parker was fitted for her responsible position by early training in an itinerant's home, and by native gifts richly cultivated. She has been a large contributor to the success of Brother Parker's pastorates, but now suffers the double loss of her itinerant husband, and the itinerant's work. In this family were reared five children—three of these being the children of Sister Parker by a former marriage. James W., the oldest son, died on April 17, 1914. The children remaining are: B. B. Parker, Denison, Texas; Mrs. D. B. Hoover, Talisheek, La.; Mrs. W. F. Ford, Nashville, Tenn., and K. P. Wood, Angullla, Miss.

This memoir would not be complete without a reference to Brother Parker's home life. A young man is never more attentive to his bride than he was to his wife until the day of his death. To the children in the home he was a companion, and his contact with them was marked by a deep affection. A son could not give to a mother more affection and care than he gave to his wife's mother. He always spoke of her as "our dear Mother," and tenderly cared for her to the end of a long life. Always provident, he was able to give the children of the home needed advantages, and to make provision for the material comfort of his widow. She now lives in a cozy little home in Hattiesburg, which he provided in the day of his strength.

He was a brotherly man. At all times courteous and affable, he would go half-way and more to make friendships, and when made, he never broke them. I cannot recall ever having heard him speak unkindly of any one. His judgments of people were always formed and expressed in charity. His eyes were quick to see the good, and if they saw the bad, the tongue was enjoined to silence. The gossip that reached his head was buried there. He let all blush-causing stories decay in the rubbish heap.

His was the true spirit of the itinerant preacher. He was sometimes given long moves and hard fields of labor, but never complained that he had been afflicted in an appointment. However small the field, there was labor enough to do to employ all his powers, and he worked under a conviction that there was a fitness in his gifts and the needs of the charge. He went to the task with an optimism that was inspirlting, feeling that what ought to be done could be done. But few men were more successful than he in dealing with discouraged pastorates.

Brother Parker was an untiring, impartial, sympathetic pastor. His energy made heavy drafts on his physical strength. He closed a revival meeting, in which he was doing the preaching, to take his death bed. The rule of his life was to spend no more time anywhere than was necessary. His cordiality and brotherly approach opened to him the confidences of people in all walks of life. The ministries of his pastoral life blessed the home of the rich and the poor alike; and his going in and out from home to home was a great shuttle in weaving the brotherhood of man. It required no effort for him to rejoice with the joyful and to weep with the sorrowing. They were his brothers, and that which touched them touched him. The great hopefulness of his life, has often put to flight the gloomy forbodings of discouraged souls.

Brother Parker was not an ordinary preacher. The delivery of his sermons was most pleasant. To a dignified bearing and graceful movements, was added a full and rich voice. The subject matter of his sermons was thoughtful and well arranged. With a splendid diction and a fine grasp of the thought, his sentences were concise. It was easy for the hearer to give him attention. Theological speculation had no charm for him. His sermons were practical and Scriptural. The supports for his positions were taken from inspiration and the facts of life, rather than from the vagaries of science. There was a strong evangelical note in his preaching, and revival fires were frequently kindled in his services. That will be a great host in the Father's house who have come up through his ministry.

The death of his son, James, brought to Brother Parker a great sorrow, which augmented the ravages of the disease which had preyed on him for some time. He felt that the end could not be far off. More than once he was heard to say that the year 1914 would end his course on earth. The writer called to see him just before leaving for the Annual Conference at Columbia. With a semi-paralyzed speech, he requested a superannuate relation, and added: "Tell my brethren I will probably never meet them again in Conference, but they will know where to find me."

"What is death? oh, what is death?
'Tis the snapping of the chain;
'Tis the breaking of the bowl;
'Tis relief from every pain;
'Tis freedom to the soul;
'Tis the setting of the sun
To rise again to-morrow,
A brighter course to run,
Nor sink again in sorrow.
Such is death! yes, such is death!"

SOME OF THE SPEAKERS ANNOUNCED.

Dear Dr. Meek: Will you please let me state through the Advocate that we will have with us at the Seashore Divinity School, Dr. G. L. Robinson, of the McCormick Theological Seminary, Dr. W. J. Young of the Candler School of Theology of Emory University, and Dr. Allen Hoben of Chicago, who is known as the boys' preacher of that city? We hope one of our Bishops will be with us, but have not yet made a definite engagement with any of them. Let the date of the approaching session be kept in mind—June 22 to July 1, 1915. ROBERT SELBY, President.

Brookhaven, Miss.

TO-DAY OUR OPPORTUNITY.

I often think of the great drama of life—of the millions who have performed their part therein, and have passed on to the great beyond. Some of these countless numbers have made a good record, and become bright stars to light the King's highway and lead others to the Celestial City. But alas! many have proved faithless and neglectful of the Master's business, and have failed to have their names written in the "Lamb's Book of Life"—and are not known of him.

We are the actors of to-day. Do we realize the shortness of the time allotted us? Do we remember that a just Judge notes each act, each word, each thought and holds us to strict account for all the deeds done in the flesh? That at the harvest our sheaves will be demanded?

Ah, we will be there, and what a disappointment it will be if we have no sheaves to lay at the Master's feet! IDA LEWIS.

The Home Circle

THE WREN FAMILY.

By Harriet Ives.

The Wrens are a family of three;
Marsh Wren, and House Wren, Winter Wren—see?
They're wee and winsome, all dressed in brown,
And dalntier birds are seldom found.

The Winter Wren is extremely shy,
Its voice a strong, melodious cry.
From those who know, I've often heard
'Tis quite as small as a humming-bird.

The Marsh Wren rests where the wet swamps gleam,
Her music low as a bubbling stream,
A nest like cocanut round it weaves,
Yet hole at the top for entrance leaves.

More friendly yet is the small House Wren,
Who builds near homes or abodes of men.
Busy and hustling, cheery and strong,
It sings to its brood a rare sweet song.

These home-loving birds say unto you
That work with love is happiness true.
This much I will tell you, much more then
You may very well learn from the wee brown wren.

THE RIGHT KIND.

Not all boys would have done as Harry Shepler, who was in the Signal Service. Harry was ordered one morning by a sergeant to report for duty at the canteen. He refused to do so, and the sergeant threatened to report him to the officer of the day. "All right," said Shepler, "go ahead. I did not enlist to be a bartender, but a soldier, and I will not report at the canteen." He was duly reported to the major, who sent for him. Shepler went with trembling knees, but with a steady heart, for he knew he was right. When he came before the major that officer said to him:

"Are you the young man who disobeyed orders this morning?"

"Yes, sir, I am."

"Why did you do it?"

"Simply because I did not believe it is right to do what I was asked to do. I enlisted to be a soldier, and not a bartender."

The major arose quickly from his stool, and, extending his hand, said:

"Shepler, you are the kind of man we want. I am glad to see a fellow who has the courage of his convictions. You are not obliged to report at the canteen."

In a letter, Shepler, in reference to this incident, gave as the reason for his ability to stand firm the fact that he would not dishonor his mother nor the Sunday school which had taken such an interest in him while he was a scholar.—Sunday School Times.

NEVER THROWN AWAY.

Anne, a bright young graduate of a business college, had no difficulty in obtaining her first position. She was set to work in the same office with another young woman just a few years her senior in years and in office experience.

It fell to the older girl to teach the new recruit the routine of the work. Her way of doing this training—trying as it must have been to an already busy worker—and her ways generally, were a much-needed revelation to the young learner. The effect was soon evident to her pleased family. This was voiced by a younger brother.

"Say, Anne," he demanded, "you aren't sick, are you? What's making you so nice and polite lately?"

Instead of the tart retort that the former Anne might have given, the reformed Anne laughed. "Am I really, Bobby? Oh, I'm so glad it's beginning to show—and I'll tell you the secret. Miss Wilson, the other girl down at the office, is so nice and polite always that she's making me ashamed to be anything else. Day in and day out she's just quietly pleasant and kind; to her superiors, to outsiders who come bothering her, often needlessly, to me, in spite of my blunders and the work she has to do extra in training me. I've been watching her to see how she does it; and I've discovered that she is nice and polite because she is sincerely kind-hearted. I spoke of it one day, and she smiled and said perhaps that might have something to do with it, but that she had learned that kindly politeness was good business, both at home and in public. She added that it's really the only legal way to act— according to the law of kindness. So, if I'm less hateful now, it's because I'm trying to keep those laws a little better than I did."

It is droll Nixon Waterman who declares that "kindness is not thrown away, even though shown toward the members of one's own family." It is this kindness that wears as well at home as it does outside that makes the sincerely "nice and polite" people. For those who keep everywhere the divine law of kindness are surest to keep the man-made rules of polite usage.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

WHAT THE CHILDREN LEARNED.

"I don't want to wear my rubbers!" Ethel grumbled.

"Why-ee!" said grandpa. "The duck puts its little red rubbers on when it walks in the soft, cold mud."

"I don't want to practice my music!" complained May.

"Why-ee!" said grandpa. "The locust has worked hard at the scales ever since it was old enough to know how. Now it can sing from low z to high z and back again without an uneven note."

"I don't want to stop to wash my hands," said Ned.

"Why-ee!" said grandpa. "The ant stops and cleans up whenever it gets soiled. Its feet are covered with hairs that make a good brush, and it lets not a bit of dust stay on its body."

"I don't want to help in the garden!" and Ray pouted.

"Why-ee!" said grandpa. "The worm helps Tom every day, for as it crawls along, it turns the bit of dirt over and over with the queer little hooks on its body, and that keeps the ground nice and soft."

"I don't want to fill the woodbox full of wood," declared Ted.

"Why-ee!" said grandpa. "The humblebee goes steadily from one blossom to another, and never stops until its honey bags are quite full of honey."

"I don't want to take this note to the village," said Jack.

"Why-ee!" said grandpa. "The pigeon carries messages for a long, long way; they are tied beneath its strong wings."

And what do you suppose those little children did?

They sat right down beside the lilac bush, and promised each other that they would not grumble any more; they were so much ashamed to find that the duck and the locust, the ant and the worm, the bumblebee and the pigeon were all better natured than they.—Gertrude W. Fielder, in The Youth's Companion.

EPWORTH LEAGUE ANNIVERSARY DAY.

For the first time Epworth League Anniversary Day this year by action of the recent General Conference takes its place among the days of special observance in the Church. The Second Sunday in May will hereafter be known as Epworth League Day and is to be observed by every chapter throughout the Church. It is a great thought: that of our more than four thousand Epworth Leagues, Junior, Boys and Girls, and Senior, all uniting in a great celebration of the natal day of the Society that has meant so much to the Church and is so full of promise of Christian development for them.

One feature of the program is an offering for Epworth League Extension to be made in every chapter. This is to be used in advancing Epwork League work, one-half in our own Conferences, the other half through the Central Office. The proceeds are therefore to be sent as soon as possible to the Treasurers of the Conference Epworth League Boards, by whom they will be disbursed according to the new law: one-half in the Conference in which contributed, the other half will be remitted by these Conference Treasurers to the Central Office of the Epworth League in Nashville.

The Program has been published by Smith & Lamar, and may be had at any of the depositories—Nashville, Tenn., Dallas, Texas, Richmond, Va. Price one dollar a hundred, or 15 cents a dozen. A sufficient number of copies should be ordered for the whole congregation, as the service is not for the League only, but for the whole Church.

HAS THE RIGHT RING.

(The utterance below is an extract from the salutatory of Dr. W. D. Bradfield, the new editor of the Texas Christian Advocate.)

In its editorial conduct your great organ shall stand unflinchingly for a positive evangelical theology. Theological liberalism has never yet made a great Church nor a great nation. An apologetic gospel never yet has awakened deep convictions. The great theologies are experimental. Paul's experience made his theology. John Wesley's theology was the theology of a great experience. Bishop McKendree's experience, not his learning, made him the great power in our early Methodism. The editor believes with all his soul that the need of to-day is for the preaching of the great doctrines of Christianity which are verifiable in human experience. The editor is equally convinced that the best expression of Christianity since the days of the Apostles is Methodism.

SOME ROMAN CATHOLIC METHODS.

A correspondent at Bunkie, La., writes us as follows:

"It is our opinion here that the Protestant people of Louisiana should know something of the tactics that are being used by the Rev. Mr. Doran, the priest in charge of the Catholic car that was recently dedicated in New Orleans. The car, together with the missionary efforts put forth by those in charge of it, attracted much attention here both among the Roman Catholics and Protestants. All who heard Mr. Doran admit that he is both an orator and a scholar. But, as is usually done by Catholic priests, he preached all Protestants out of the Church and denounced all Protestant ministers as impostors. He also denounced the Masons and read publicly what he called the pledge of the Masonic Lodge, which of course was spurious. After reading the pledge from a little pamphlet, he stated that he had a number of such pamphlets for sale, but when he was applied to for them he said that he had just sold out. The publisher was later written to, but he also replied that his stock of these pamphlets was exhausted.

"After the Rev. Mr. Spencer, the local Baptist minister had challenged him to a debate, Mr. Doran read the challenge and answered that when Mr. Spencer had harmonized the divisions among Baptists he would debate with him. Mr. Spencer then sought a hearing in our local paper, but its columns were not open to him, though he did finally manage to get a statement into it by paying for its publication at advertising rates.

"The car left here on Sunday, March 28, with the announced purpose of visiting Alexandria, and going from there to Cheneyville; but instead of going to Cheneyville it went to Lafayette, where the Rev. Mr. Cotey, a converted Catholic, was holding a revival meeting under the auspices of the Baptist Church. It was, therefore, inferred by many here that Mr. Doran changed his plan with a view to counteracting the influence of the meeting that was being conducted by Mr. Cotey."

We have printed this letter to inform our people as to what is going on, and, in our opinion, but little comment upon it is needed. It can scarcely be said to be surprising that Mr. Doran saw fit to unchurch Protestants and to attack the Masons, or that he was averse to a public discussion. Such is usually the course of Romish priests, but we are glad to know that it is not always so. The Outlook of April 7 told of a report being made at the late session of the New York East Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in which it was stated that at Newburgh the Roman Catholics and Protestants had cooperated in a campaign to increase Church attendance.

But if Protestants are to be thus attacked, it behooves their ministers to bestir themselves to see that they are safeguarded from being misled by being properly informed. The Evangelical Churches of Protestantism have nothing to lose, but much to gain, by having the light turned fully on. Though we should avoid the narrow and intolerant spirit so often exhibited by the representatives of Roman Catholicism, we may well learn valuable lessons from their alertness and enterprise. A better indoctrination of our people is one of the imperative duties of the hour. In our judgment, we are not half as wide-awake to the importance of this work as we ought to be.

OUR FAST DEVELOPING UNIVERSITY.

Our new University at Atlanta, Ga., continues to go steadily forward. The final steps to make Emory College a part of the institution have recently been taken, and the Trustees of the University have voted to appropriate $12,000 toward the maintenance of that College during the present session, which will bring its income this year up to about $42,000. It is stated that the resources of this department of the University will be gradually increased until it has a yearly income of at least $60,000.

Arrangements have also been effected by which the Atlanta Medical College, which has a faculty of 100 members, a student enrollment of 369, and an alumni numbering 3000, will come into the hands of the Trustees of Emory University. Along with this transfer, will come the property owned by this Medical College, amounting to $260,000, and a cash endowment of $25,000, and to this endowment fund our Trustees have decided to add at once $250,000.

Nor is this yet all the good news. Dr. J. W. Lee, of St. Louis, distinguished as a scholar and author, has been collecting for years a library of philosophy numbering several hundred volumes, and he has announced that he will give this fine collection, said to be the most complete in the South, to Emory University. Truly, we Southern Methodists are making educational history these days. Our Church never did a wiser thing than when she declared that she will do the work of instructing and training her youth in institutions that she herself owns and controls, and set her face forward to carry out this policy. Her spirit in this matter has challenged the admiration of the world and heartened other Christian denominations.

AN ADDITIONAL WORD.

Some of our readers will doubtless remember our spirited reply to the protest of Rev. C. C. Selecman, of Los Angeles, Calif., in the Advocate of February 18. Further reflection and developments that have taken place since that time have deepened our conviction as to the questionable propriety of some of the things permitted in the Trinity Auditorium as they have been reported in the Church press. (What these things are we will not now take time to state). But while this is true, we feel that at one point we did Brother Selecman an injustice. In replying to the charge that we are excessively meddlesome, which we thought was undeserved, in the heat of the debate we fastened upon our opponent the other extreme, by charging him with being blind and indifferent to sin and worldly tendencies. It was wrong for us thus to impeach his spirit and we sincerely regret having done so. While we know brother Selecman personally, we have not been associated with him sufficiently to warrant us in expressing an opinion as to his bearing and work as a Christian minister. Men may differ widely as to their views and methods, and yet their aims may be equally worthy. Our brother is undoubtedly a man of unusual gifts, and we have no wish to discredit him to the slightest extent before the public. Rather would we strengthen and help him if we could. We may feel that it is our duty to express ourself further concerning some features of the Trinity Auditorium management, since such things are contagious and are liable to extend to other congregations; but if so we hope to do it in a wholly impersonal way.

We have made this statement entirely of our own accord. Brother Selecman has asked nothing at our hands, and no one else has sought to influence us in the matter. It has long been our rule if convinced that we have done any one an injustice of any kind to try to make the proper acknowledgment and reparation. This is what has prompted us to speak in this instance. With all our faults—and they are many—we have never had any of that pride which aspires to pose as being infallible and inerrant.

THE SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

As has been announced in the Advocate several times, the Seashore Divinity School will this year begin on June 22 and close on July 1. Those having the program in charge have announced several of the speakers who, they say, are men of capacity and scholarship and have been highly recommended to them by competent authorities.

We know of no place anywhere that affords so many advantages for institute work as the Seashore Camp Ground. The situation is beautiful; the sea breezes are invigorating; the Tabernacle is in every respect an admirable structure, and the accommodations in the way of lodging and board are good and comparatively inexpensive. In our judgment our Church is not making as much as she ought of the opportunities furnished by this fine property by the seaside, which is almost envied by other denominations. Let all our pastors who can, arrange to attend the approaching session of the Divinity School. We dare say that they would find their brief stay there pleasant and profitable. This School is under the direction of the Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi Annual Conferences. These bodies should give it their close supervision, and seek to improve and strengthen it and make it in every way a real blessing to the Methodism of this section.

DEEPLY MOURNED.

My Dear Dr. Meek: Our whole community was saddened beyond expression when the news of the death of Sister J. L. Dantzler reached us. She died at her home in New Orleans on the 12th inst, from the effects of a severe burn. Her remains were brought here and interred in the Griffin Cemetery on April 13. She held her membership in the Moss Point Church. She was greatly loved by every one for her many excellent qualities of heart and mind. Our whole community is in the habiliments of sorrow. But the gloom is softened by the Christian's hope.

B. F. JONES.

Moss Point, Miss.

The death of Sister Dantzler was indeed touchingly sad. Along with his host of friends, we profoundly sympathize with Brother Dantzler and the other stricken loved ones in their sore bereavement. May God comfort and sustain them!

OUR LAST ISSUE.

The last issue of the Advocate, so far as it related to the subject of education, was entirely in the hands of Rev. W. W. Drake, the Louisiana Conference Secretary of Education. With the exception of the editorial on page 8, entitled "The Church Must Educate," which was written by the Editor, Brother Drake gathered all the material and arranged it in the forms. This statement should have been made last week. We do not know any Conference Secretary of Education who is more active and energetic than Brother Drake.

MRS. R. F. HENRY DEAD.

Under date of April 17, Rev. W. L. Duren, of Columbus, Miss., sent us the following note: "I write to tell you of the death at this place of Sister Henry, mother of Dr. W. G. Henry, pastor of the First Methodist Church at Jackson, Miss. She leaves four other sons, among them Dr. T. H. Henry, who lives in Columbus and is a member of our First Church. She was a frail woman, and her decease was not unexpected. She was unable to attend the burial of her husband last July. She submitted to an operation last November, but it was unavailing. The end came yesterday after a lingering illness of two weeks in a hospital here."

We regret to be apprised of Sister Henry's death, and we extend sympathy to the bereaved members of her family. We trust that a fitting memoir will be furnished the Advocate in the near future.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

A fine meeting is in progress at Pachuta, Miss. Rev. D. E. Kelly is assisting the pastor, Rev. A. B. Barry.

Rev. W. M. Schuhle writes that the date of the Monroe (La.) District Conference has been changed to July 13-15.

Dr. A. F. Watkins filled the pulpit of the Galloway Memorial Church of Jackson, Miss., last Sunday both in the morning and evening.

At a recent meeting in Jacksou, Miss., Mr. W. P. Kretschmar, of Greenville, Miss., was elected President of the Mississippi State Y. M. C. A. An excellent choice!

The Sardis (Miss.) District Conference will meet in Batesville instead of Coldwater. The date remains unchanged. So writes the presiding elder, Rev. J. W. Dorman.

A series of revival services is being conducted at Mer Rouge, La., this week, in which Rev. L. C. Wilson, the consecrated pastor, is being assisted by Rev. A. Inman Townsley, of Rayville.

Rev. L. L. Roberts sends us a post-card picture of the new Gibson Memorial Church of Vicksburg, in which the Port Gibson District Conference will meet on April 27. It presents a fine appearance.

"Everything is moving upward with us." So writes Rev. T. L. Oakes, of McCool, Miss., in a business letter to our office which brought us 7 subscriptions, 2 of which were new. Thanks, brother, for your kindness.

Rev. P. A. Sowell, of Jeanerette, La., spent most of last week in New Orleans with relatives, and while here favored our office with a call. We are always glad to see Brother Sowell, who invariably has something worth hearing to say.

Rev. H. Wade Cudd, pastor of the Keener Memorial Church of Baton Rouge, La., began a revival meeting last Sunday. He will do his own preaching, except as he is assisted by Rev. H. W. Bowman, the presiding elder, and other resident pastors.

"The Minutes of the Annnal Conferences for 1914," edited and tabulated by Mr. J. L. Kirby, are out in their usual form. No Methodist minister's library is complete without "The General Minutes" of his Church. Send for a copy. The price is 50 cents, net.

Rev. O. W. Bradley, our brilliant young pastor at Winona, Miss., reports a gracious revival at that place, which stirred the town considerably and resulted in 38 additions to the Church, with others yet in prospect. He was assisted by Dr. J. L. Weber, of Memphis, Tenn.

"The Lord is with us, and the outlook here is becoming more and more encouraging." So writes Rev. E. H. Cooley, our stirring pastor at Wainut Grove, Miss. Brother Cooley's letter brought us a club of 5 subscriptions to the Advocate, for which he has our thanks.

Brother pastor, will you see that your Sunday school observes Children's Day this year? The time fixed for its observance by our Book of Discipline is "the fourth Sunday in April, or as near thereto as is practicable." Let us all join in making a great success of this occasion.

Rev. W. L. Duren, of Columbus, Miss., writes: "A revival campaign is in progress in the First Methodist Church here. Rev. J. O. Hanes, of Birmingham, one of our general evangelists, is with us. The services have been going on for a week and we have made a splendid start."

The open air Y. M. C. A. service in Lafayette Park, this city, on the afternoon of Sunday, April 11, was conducted by Rev. R. H. Harper. At the close of Brother Harper's sermon Dr. A. O. Brown, the Secretary, made a proposition and 35 men signified their desire to live a better life by standing up.

In a business letter to our office, Rev. M. F. Adams appends the following note: "I am enjoying my work and things are moving forward. The ladies' society gave us a nice pounding last week, which was greatly enjoyed." Much may be expected of this capable young itinerant in the coming years.

Let every pastor in the Mississippi Conference see that "Galloway Memorial Day" is observed and a collection taken in his charge next Sunday, April 25. This is a matter of great importance; so do not fail to do your part, dear brother. The object of this movement is to help the superannuates and the widows and orphans of preachers.

Rev. E. G. Wood, of Standard, La., writes: "My work is in fine shape. I have received into the Church since Conference 58 members, 52 of whom joined on profession of faith. I have yet two meetings to hold, in which I am expecting to carry the number of additions far toward the 100 mark."

There will be nineteen law graduates at Millsaps College at the approaching Commencement. An excellent picture of this fine law class appeared in a recent issue of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal. This department of Millsaps College has a most superior record, as indeed has that entire institution.

Dr. S. H. Werlein, of this city, is booked to preach the Commencement sermon for the Franklinton (La.) High School. The Doctor performed this service once before, and so well pleased were the Franklinton people with the sample of his preaching which he gave them that they desire more of it.

Dr. I. W. Cooper, of Brookhaven, Miss., and Judge J. R. Bond, of Brownsville, Tenn., both of whom are members of the General Board of Education, were due to meet in Jackson, Tenn., to inspect Lane College Tuesday of this week. They will submit a report to the Board of Education which will meet in Nashville to-day, April 22.

We regret to be informed that Rev. Paul H. Grice, of Brooklyn, Miss., has lately been ill and was forced to spend three weeks in a sanitarium, but are glad to know that he is now much better. There has also been considerable sickness among his people. His work, however, in spite of these hindering causes, is stated to be in a fairly good condition.

Rev. J. R. Roy, of Gilbert, La., writes optimistically of the work in his charge. The attendance upon the preaching service is large, and from 50 to 100 are present at the weekly prayer meetings. Brother Roy is mindful of the interests of the Advocate as he mingles with his people, and our mailing files show that his efforts to circulate it are not unavailing.

Rev. W. J. Johnson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Beaumont, Texas, has lately visited his father, Colonel J. M. Johnson, of Holmes County, Miss., who is quite ill. He passed through New Orleans last week on his way back home, and wrote us a card during his brief stay here. We regret very much that we missed seeing him.

We hope that those who have sent us matter which perhaps they expected to see printed in this issue of the Advocate will be a little patient with us. We have received more copy than usual lately, and the issuance of a special edition last week has congested things somewhat. We are doing the best we can with the space at our disposal. We wish that we had much more.

Rev. M. B. Sharbrough closed a fine meeting at Columbia, Miss., last week, in which he had the assistance of Rev. W. B. Hogg, of Meridian, and Rev. W. J. Ferguson, of Mt. Olive. There were 34 persons who gave their names for church membership. Brother Sharbrough's report of his meeting, which reached us too late for this issue of the Advocate, will be published next week.

Writing from Holiandale, Miss., on April 16, Evangelist T. J. Norsworthy says: "We are in a meeting here which promises great things. Rev. L. W. Cain has wrought well among these people and has their unbounded confidence and love. Rev. E. R. Smoot, our pastor at Cleveland, Miss., is leading the singing. God has certainly blessed him with a wonderful voice. Our congregations are large."

Rev. J. A. Wells, pastor of the Topisaw (Miss.) Circuit, reports that his recent quarterly conference was more largely attended than any that has been held on that charge since his connection with it. The reports were good, much interest was manifested, and Brother Selby, the popular presiding elder, delivered a stirring sermon on "Pastoral Evangelism." Brother Wells thinks that there are evidences of a spiritual awakening in his field.

A meeting will be held at the Athenaeum in this city in the interest of the suffering Christians of Armenia on Monday evening, April 26, at 8 o'clock. Addresses will be made by Dr. Helier, a Jewish Rabbi, the Rev. Dr. Coupland, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, and Dr. S. H. Werlein, pastor of the First Methodist Church. Dr. George Summey will offer prayer, and Dr. A. O. Brown will sing. The public is cordially invited to attend.

At Homewood Chapel, in Scott County, Miss., on March 30, by Dr. I. W. Cooper, Miss May Neal Ellis, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Ellis, and Rev. D. Y. Register of the Alabama Conference were united in marriage. The bride is a graduate of Whitworth College where she was awarded the highest honors. Mr. Register is an accomplished young minister of much promise. We extend to the happy young couple our congratulations and best wishes.

Rev. J. H. Smith, of Carrollton, Miss., says: "They are giving us fine congregations here, and we receive many expressions of appreciation. While I am writing, some concrete work is being done on the front of the parsonage yard. I seem to be among a royal people." Brother Smith has sent the Advocate a brief tribute to Brother T. J. Durrett, whose death was announced last week; but, with much reluctance, we were forced to postpone its publication until our next issue.

From a letter from Rev. N. B. Harmon, pastor of our First Church at Gulfport, Miss., we take the following items: "Our congregation on Easter Sunday overflowed both the lower auditorium and gallery. The attendance upon our Sunday school averages 350. We have raised about $800 since Conference for the interest on our debt. We will have Rev. Charles Lane, of Georgia, with us in a meeting beginning on the last Sunday in April, and we are expecting a visit from Bishop Morrison some time in May. The field here presents wonderful opportunities."

In a note to the Editor, Rev. G. E. Cameron, pastor of our First Church at Alexandria, La., states that the results of his recent great meeting are most gratifying. The congregations at the preaching services (both in the morning and evening) are taxing the capacity of the church auditorium; the prayer meeting attendance has been greatly increased; the Sunday school is larger than ever before, and conversions and additions to the Church are still taking place. A continuing revival is of the Scriptural type and is what we need everywhere.

A note from Rev. J. C. Ellis, of Homewood, Miss., written on April 13, contained the following statement: "We are to bury to-day dear old Brother Samuel R. Weems, who celebrated his 100th birthday on the 24th of last September. He was the father of our sainted Dr. J. M. Weems. You will remember that you printed his picture in the Advocate some months ago." Brother Weems was evidently a most worthy and remarkable man. He has left behind a good record, and he doubtless found a rich reward awaiting him. We extend sympathy to the bereaved.

The following friends, to whom we have not expressed our thanks elsewhere, have sent us two or more subscriptions within the past few days: Rev. J. M. Wyatt, Ackerman, Miss., 2; Rev. R. E. Rutledge, Florence, Miss., 8; Rev. John G. Sloane, Gibsland, La., 4; Rev. C. R. A. Brantley, Indianola, Miss., 3; Rev. A. F. Moore, Pleasant Hill, Miss., 3; Rev. B. F. Lewis, Crystal Springs, Miss., 4; Rev. J. H. Grice, Glancy, Miss., 2; Rev. W. W. Hartsfield, Golden, Miss., 5; Rev. W. T. Woodward, Sicily Island, La., 3; Rev. C. H. Strait, Rocky Springs, Miss., 3; Rev. W. B. Alsworth, Perth, Miss., 2; Rev. W. M. Young, Amory, Miss., 10; Rev. O. W. Bradley, Winona, Miss., 2; Rev. W. R. Williams, Buena Vista, Miss., 4; Rev. W. L. Blackwell, Van Cleave, Miss., 9; Rev. F. B. Ormond, (South) McComb, Miss., 6.

THE AMOUNT INCREASING.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am pleased to state that by actual count the Easter contributions to the Orphanage by the Methodists of Louisiana are now well above $3000, and when the other churches and Sunday schools not yet heard from report there is reason to believe that we will have the $5000 asked for, and needed, to carry us through the summer months. Thus far the collections have been equally as good as they were last year, and we trust that complete returns will show them to be far in advance of them. Thanking one and all for their generous help in our time of need, and praying the blessings of God on our good and great people,

I am gratefully,
ROB'T W. VAUGHAN,
Sup't La. Methodist Orphanage.

On March 20, 1915, Mrs. A. T. MOSLEY was called to rest. Mrs. Mosley was 71 years of age, being born on Nov. 29, 1844. She was a devout Christian and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, having joined this Church 25 years ago at Rocky Springs, Miss. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. W. Murry, and the body was laid away in the Lodabar Cemetery to await the resurrection morn. May those who were near and dear to her be ready to join her when the summons comes to them. Her pastor,
J. W. EVANS.

JOHN SAMUEL HOLDER was born on Feb. 1, 1880, and passed from this life on April 2, 1915. He leaves a wife, four children, a mother, two brothers, five sisters, and many friends to mourn his going; but we do not mourn as those who have no hope. His living testimony was, "I am ready," and we have every reason to believe it true, because his daily walk in this life proved it. He was a faithful member of the Methodist Church for thirteen years, and he was serving both as steward and as Sunday school superintendent at the time of his death. He will ever be missed from the little town and from the church which he so much loved. May the good Shepherd help us to live as beautiful a life as that of our deceased brother, so that when the summons comes to us also we may join him in heaven, where there shall be no more partings. His pastor.
PAUL H. GRICE.

JUSTINIE MAY HUFFMAN GRAY was born near Moseley, Miss., on Nov. 18, 1881, and on Mar. 10, 1915, was laid to rest in the Shiloh Cemetery at Shiloh, Rankin County, Miss. She was married to Mr. J. Robert Gray on Dec. 12, 1899. In the year 1902 at the Shiloh Camp Meeting she professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, from that time on living a devout Christian life, being ever faithful and loyal to her church. She leaves to mourn their loss a father, a mother, brothers, sisters, and a devoted husband and seven little children. O may God's richest blessings abide in this home and comfort these sad hearts! Jesus said of the little maid: "She is not dead but sleepeth." Let this thought bring comfort concerning this dear mother. While we cannot understand this dispensation of God's providence, we know that he doeth all things well. But if the spirit of Him who raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his spirit that dwelleth in you. So little children, while mamma cannot come to you, you can go to her. Her pastor,
J. W. EVANS.

Mrs. ELIZA JANE BARKER was born at Beauregard, Miss., on Jan. 5, 1858, and died at Pollock, La., on April 5, 1915. Sister Barker was converted at the age of 17 at Henington Camp Grounds, near Crystal Springs, Miss., and joined the M. E. Church, South, the same year, 1875. She, with her husband, moved to Pollock, La., in the fall of 1899, and placed her certificate in the Methodist Church at Pollock. Sister Barker was one of the sweetest Christian characters I ever met. She could find a bright side when everything looked dark. Her death will be mourned by all who knew her, and the Church will miss her never-tiring hands. When a new preacher was sent to Pollock, she was usually the first to meet his family, and minister to their needs. On the day of her funeral, wicked men walked the streets and declared that she had lived a perfect Christian life. Sister Barker was nursing a sick relative at Selma, La., when she was seized with pneumonia and suffered for only a few days. Her husband and three children preceded her to heaven some years ago. She leaves to mourn their loss four sons, two brothers, and one sister as follows: C. W. Barker of Cushing, Texas, E. L. Barker of Houston, Texas, S. R. and R. R. Barker of Pollock, La.; her brothers, S. M. White of Wesson, Miss., and W. N. White of Selma, La.; her sister, Mrs. Ada Barker, of Fayette, Miss. There is no guess-work as to where she has gone. All business was suspended in Pollock for the funeral and the church was crowded to its utmost capacity. The service was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. I. M. Bryan (Baptist) of Verda, La. May God send the comforting Spirit to the bereaved hearts, and may this draw them in love nearer to him. My expression as to her life is the prayer: "Lord make me as perfect as she." E. G. WOOD.

IN MEMORIAM.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Broad Street Methodist Church, Hattiesburg, Miss., wish to express their deep sense of loss in the death of one of their most faithful members, Mrs. Mariah P. McInnis, which sad event occurred at her home in Hattiesburg, February 22, 1915.

We as friends, neighbors, and coworkers in our Master's vineyard wish to bear testimony to her earnest, sincere life and to the help and encouragement which she was so ready and willing to give. No matter what the issue was, Mrs. McInnis was one on whom we could depend, always wearing a cheerful smile and speaking an encouraging word. We were sure of a hearty welcome to her home at any time. Oh, how we miss her; especially we of the Missionary Society and her Sunday school class! Yet we feel that our loss is her eternal gain, and we are sure that she has gone on to her heavenly home, prepared for her from the foundation of the world. We truly thank our Heavenly Father for the gift of this beautiful character and for the privilege of being permitted to associate with her; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we extend our deepest sympathy to the sorrowing family and loved ones, praying always that the Holy Comforter may continually abide with them and sustain them.

2. That these resolutions be placed on the records of our Society, that a copy be sent to the bereaved family, and that a copy be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. Lizzie Leech, Mrs. Laura Cuhley, Mrs. J. B. Wright, Committee.

REV. IRVIN ROBERTS DEAD.

Rev. Irvin Roberts, a local preacher on the Van Cleave charge, was buried last Thursday at 3 p. m. He had been a local preacher for 48 years and had served as a supply a number of times. He died full of faith and good works. He was happy to the end. He planned his burial service, designating who should assist in the service. He was conscious up to the last moment. It was his prayer to die while the sun was shining and while dying he requested those about him to sing, "Jesus is all the world to me." He died as he had lived, trusting only in God. W. L. BLACKWELL.

TO BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT DELEGATES.

Brethren: Please send me at once the names of all delegates to the Brookhaven District Conference to be held in Monticello, May 11. Also send the names of all charge leaders and local preachers. You are requested to state who may be depended upon to come. It will be a great accommodation to the people of Monticello if all will come via Wanilla, on the Mississippi Central from Brookhaven; thence to Monticello, arriving at 11:15. If you come on the B. and P. from Brookhaven, you will not get here before 1 o'clock or later, and, of course, the people will have to prepare extra dinner. There are two passenger trains daily on both the N. O. G. N. and the M. C. The morning M. C. train from Brookhaven gets to Wanilla at 9:50, and you get a train on the N. O. G. N. to Monticello at 11. The afternoon M. C. gets to Wanilla at 5:20, and you get a train to Monticello at 7:15, arriving at Monticello at 7:30. Come in the morning if possible, and by all means come the first day; come to stay to the close, and don't forget to pray that God may give us a great conference.

"TIZ" FOR TIRED SORE, ACHING FEET
Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet, swollen, bad smelling, sweaty feet. No more pain in corns callouses or bunions. No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "TIZ." "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet; "TIZ" is magical; "TIZ" is grand; "TIZ" will cure your foot troubles so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore, swollen or tired.

Get a 25 cent box at any drug or department store, and get relief.

From the Field.

Franklinton, La.

The work here seems to be progressing fairly well. We have a splendid people to serve and are well satisfied. The stewards at Franklinton raised my salary $200 this year and are paying it monthly. Zona, also, pays monthly. This work is fast becoming one of the choice appointments of the Louisiana Conference. We collected $50 for the Orphanage at Franklinton, and Zona is yet to be heard from. I think the collection will be at least $60. Our Sunday school is one of the best in the Baton Rouge District. Brother Bowman is getting along nicely with the work on the district. He is known over this way as the "surprising elder." Brother Sweeney is happy in his work.—J. A. McCormack.

Morgan City, La.

April 4, 1915, Easter Sunday, was the 37th anniversary of the laying of the corner-stone of Pharr Chapel, Morgan City, La. The day was well observed. We had beautiful music and a fine sermon from Rev. R. W. Vaughan. The congregation was the largest that has been in the Church in years and a class of fifteen united with the Church on profession of faith. Among this number was Miss Mary Elizabeth Pharr, daughter of Mr. J. A. Pharr, the superintendent of our Sunday school, and a granddaughter of Capt. Jno. N. Pharr who, with his wife, was such an active factor in every good work in this community, and through whose activity and generosity we may claim to have a church in both Berwick and Morgan City.—C. C. Wier.

Jackson, La.

We are getting on very nicely in the Jackson charge. Despite the unusual amount of rain and the consequent flooding of the creeks, the pastor has missed but few appointments. After two years spent in educational work, and two more in a chaplaincy, I am again an itinerant. On account of previous training however, there needed to be but little time spent in adjustment. The ladies of the church had thoroughly renovated and repaired the parsonage before the arrival of the preacher and his family. Fortunately, being an alumnus of the old Centenary, I found many friends in Jackson and a warm and continuous welcome was accorded me. We have a good Sunday school, under the care and direction of Dr. A. R. Holcombe, and an efficient corps of teachers, an interesting and developing Epworth League, a well attended prayer meeting, and a board of stewards who hold monthly meetings and are doing some things, and promise more. "Capt." Bob Austin will keep them alive, and Dr. Lea will keep them well, so prosperity is sure to ensue. Financially we are doing better all the while. The Ladies' Aid Society is carrying out present plans, and is laying greater ones. Spring is here at last, though slightly delayed, and promises to stay this time. Rev. H. W. Bowman is the presiding elder of this district. He has been with most of us and is coming again. In fact, he is a coming man. He preaches a right good sermon and is interested in the affairs of the Church. I think I shall keep him for my presiding elder for a while—at least, until the Bishop thinks I may do worse or better. Bishops sometimes land us in strange places. Some people told me I must write, so I am writing this letter. There are other things I might report, but think this sufficient for the present. The Advocate is fairly well circulated among our people. Orphanage Day was held in our Sunday school and church. Brother Vaughan will hear from us when all the funds are collected. But I promised to quit.—S. J. Davies, P. C.

There is nothing in the world which gives so much rest to the soul as to do the will of God.—F. B. Meyer.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney.

All mail intended for me should be directed to my address, Sardis, Miss.

Send Children's Day money to Rev. V. C. Curtis, Lexington, Miss. When the collection of the assessment made by the Sunday School Board for the work is taken, send it to Brother Curtis also.

You just ought to see how the preacher and superintendent take hold of the work in Okolona. These two men, assisted by a fine lot of teachers, raised their school to the standard of efficiency in a very short time.

Last year Ittabena led the Conference with a collection of more than $70 on Children's Day. Ten more churches like this would enable us to double the work for our Sunday schools. Let us double our work.

What do you think of a teacher that spends fifteen minutes in the study of the lesson Sunday morning? Then what about a teacher that spends from fifteen to twenty-five hours a week on the study of God's Word? The latter counts for something; the former counts for ——.

On a recent Sabbath afternoon that princely fellow, S. A. Brown, hired a car and took the field secretary to Shannon. Brother Brown told of some of the great things that were said at Tupelo by the leading men and women of the State Convention. In a very short time the Sunday school was raised about 40 per cent. The people at Shannon have caught the spirit of Bible study.

Echoes from the State Convention held at Tupelo are heard in the remote parts of the State. Some good people may think that Brother Fred Long is not doing a great work for the Sunday schools of the State; but one thing is certain, and that is, he will go on doing the work of the Lord for all the people until he is called up higher. May he live to labor a long time!

Pittsboro, Calhoun City, and Banner were visited. These three schools were raised from a low grade to the top. Brother Shearer had prepared the way for our work and he led his people step by step until they agreed at each of these churches to have standard schools and to do standard work in each of the departments. These were three great days. One small boy gave his heart to God and his name for church membership at Calhoun City.

SEASHORE CAMP GROUND TRUSTEES.

The Seashore Camp Ground Trustees met Thursday, April 15, and named officers for the ensuing year as follows: L. N. Dantzler, president; S. A. Tomlinson, vice-president; Dr. W. L. Woodruff, recording secretary; S. H. Meyer, financial secretary; Dr. W. T. Bolton, treasurer; S. J. Otis, chairman of executive committee.

The board of trustees is composed of twenty-one members from Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi, seven to each State, as follows:

Alabama—Rev. J. S. Frazier, R. A. Smith, Ashbel Hubbard, R. P. Roach, W. A. Lott, W. T. McGowin, Dr. W. L. Woodruff, all of Mobile.

Lonisiana—Rev. F. R. Hill, Jr., H. H. Ahrens, A. S. Daniels, W. F. Sherwood, S. H. Meyer, Rev. W. W. Holmes, New Orleans; J. R. Abels, Ponchatoula.

Mississippi—L. N. Dantzler, Dr. W. T. Bolton, Biloxi; H. A. Tomlinson, Rev. M. L. Burton, Rev. W. H. Huntley, Gulfport; J. S. Otis, Logtown; W. E. Lampton, Columbia.

Rev. W. H. Van Hook, president of the school, reported a successful year, the school being practically on a self-sustaining basis. R. P. Bell was retained as ground keeper, and Mrs. Ella Miller of Mobile is to have charge of the restaurant, Kelier Lodge and Epworth Hall.

Announcements were made as follows: First Thursday in April and last Thursday in September, regular dates for holding spring and fall meetings of the board of trustees; meeting of Divinity School, June 22-July 1; camp meeting for ten days to commence July 14.

Aside from the board of trustees, there were present at the meeting Rev. C. W. Crisler of Hattiesburg, representing the board of directors of the Seashore Divinity School, and R. P. Aldridge of Mobile.

GIRLS WITH BEAUTIFUL FACES OR GRACEFUL FIGURES.

American girls have a world-wide reputation for beauty, but, at the same time, there are girls in our cities who possess neither beauty of face nor form, because in these instances they suffer from nervousness, the result of disorders of the womanly organism. At regular intervals they suffer so much that their strength leaves them; they are so prostrated that it takes days for them to recover their strength. Of course, such periodic distress has its bad effect on the nervous system. The withered and drawn faces, the dark circles and crow's feet about the eyes, the straight figure without those curves which lend so much to feminine beauty are the unmistakable signs of womanly disorders.

When a girl becomes a woman, when a woman becomes a mother, when women pass through the changes of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by severe organic disturbances.

At these critical times women are best fortified by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, an old remedy of proved worth that keeps the entire female system perfectly regulated and in excellent condition.

Mothers, if your daughters are weak, lack ambition, are troubled with headaches, lassitude and are pale and sickly, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just what they need to surely bring the bloom of health to their cheeks and make them strong and healthy.

If you are a sufferer, if your daughter, mother, sister need help, get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in liquid or tablet form. Then address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive confidential advice from a staff of specialists, that's free; also 136-page book on women's diseases sent free.—Adv.

DON'T DENY YOUR BOY

THE priceless benefits of a vacation at Camp WONDERLAND in the glorious ozone-laden climate of mountainous Western North Carolina.

Right Now is the Formative Period

when his mind and body demand careful tutoring from those who can direct his work and play with intelligence. Above all he needs the tonic of pure air, sunshine and outdoor recreation.

Educational

Individual coaching by competent teachers in any studies desired to prepare your boy for Fall examinations.

Athletics

Under selected instructors who will act as companions in base ball, tennis, basket ball, rowing, swimming, fishing, horseback riding and mountain climbing.

The camp is under the most able management and charges very reasonable. Write quickly to Col. J. C. Horner, No. 6, Myers Park, Charlotte, N. C., for FREE illustrated prospectus.

"Doubt is not something to be proud of. It is an enemy to be fought."

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to bring back color, gloss, thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray, or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

DROPSY TREATED, usually gives quick relief, soon removes swelling and short breath, often gives entire relief in 15 to 25 days. Trial treatment sent free DR. THOMAS E. GREEN, Successor to DR. H. H. GREENS SONS, Box H, Chatsworth, Ga.

No. 666

This is a prescription prepared especially for MALARIA or CHILLS & FEVER. Five or six doses will break any case, and if taken then as a tonic the Fever will not return. It acts on the liver better than Calomel and does not gripe or sicken. 25c

EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

The Executive Committee of the North Mississippi Conference Epworth League met at Tupelo, Miss., Thursday night, April 8, and planned for an Epworth League Conference to be held at Grenada, Miss., June 7-9. The Conference will open on Monday night, June 7, and will close Wednesday night, June 9. On the first night will be given the address of welcome and the response, and President E. F. Puckett's address. Rev. J. M. Culbreth, of Nashville, Assistant Secretary, will deliver an address Tuesday night and Dr. Rawlings, of Nashville, will speak on Wednesday night. An inspirational program is being arranged and it is hoped the conference will be a great success. Let our Epworth Leaguers plan to come.

Attention, Fellow-Leaguers!

The second Sunday in May is Anniversary Day. Let our Epworth League Chapters observe it. The Epworth Era calls attention to it in the April issue, giving us the reasons for its observance:

1. To celebrate the beginning of the Epworth League, in May, 1890.

2. To make the work of the Epworth League known to the congregation and to the community.

3. To provide funds for the extension of the Epworth League to churches where there are no Leagues and for increasing the output of free literature for campaign purposes. The offering taken on this occasion is to be divided equally between the Annual Conference Epworth League and the Central Office.

These helpful suggestions are also added:

1. Order at once of Smith & Lamar a supply of the Anniversary Day Programs, which are ready. Price, $1 a hundred.

2. Call the Council together to make careful plans for a successful celebration.

3. Tell all the members of the League about the approaching anniversary and ask them to lay aside as much as they can for the offering. Announce the occasion to the whole congregation frequently enough to make an impression, and ask all the people to come to the service prepared to make a liberal contribution to the cause.

4. Then prepare thoroughly for the service, using the Anniversary Day Program.

If any pastor desires to organize an Epworth League, if he will write me I will be glad to assist him.

MR. J. T. SHARP.

The subject of this sketch, John Thomas Sharp, was born at Abbeville, South Carolina, April 15, 1834, and peacefully "fell on sleep" at his home at Sharpsburg in Madison County, Miss., on March 16, 1915. When quite young he removed with his parents to the State of Georgia, coming to Mississippi in the year of 1856.

He, being a civil engineer, was first employed in the construction of that part of what is now the Alabama and Vicksburg Railroad between the towns of Brandon and Morton. Later he enlisted in the Confederate Army and served as a member of the engineering corps of Gen. Joseph E. Johnston.

After the war he continued the work of railroad building, taking a contract on the old Mississippi Central, now the Illinois Central, in the northern part of the State. For a time he was engaged in merchandising in the community in which he lived. Later in life he devoted his time exclusively to his extensive farming interests.

On March 28, 1861, Brother Sharp was married to Miss Sue Ewing who died in the year 1870. On December 26, 1877, he was married to Miss Ida Ewing, a sister of his first wife, who is left with four children, two sons and two daughters, to mourn their irreparable loss. Soon after his second marriage our brother gave his heart to God and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, remaining a faithful and active member until the day of his translation to the Church Triumphant.

During most of his life as a church member he held official relationship. He was a steward and trustee of the church at Soule's Chapel, in the Camden charge, at the time of his death. As a steward he looked diligently after the interests of his church and the welfare of his pastor, often going far beyond his allotted part rather than see the financial claims go unpaid. Perhaps next to the sacred circle of his own home none will miss him so much as the faithful pastor.

As a citizen and neighbor, Brother Sharp stood for the highest standards of moral and civic righteousness. All good causes found in him a loyal friend and champion, and that which was evil an uncompromising foe. His ideals were high and noble, and he trod unswervingly the right path as his God enabled him to see it.

But it was in the home that his virtues shown with greatest lustre. Here he reigned supreme in the confidence and affection of his wife and children. The devoted son who bears his name writes: "Never do I remember hearing him speak an unkind word in his home. His bearing towards me was more like an older brother than a father." The eldest daughter writes: "He built a happy earthly home for his loved ones and by his life set an example which if followed will make sure our heavenly home." There are in the Mississippi Conference many pastors and presiding elders who will read these lines with throbbing and responsive hearts as they recall this home of genuine culture, piety, and Christian hospitality —this home where the messenger of the Cross has always found sympathizing friends and a royal welcome.

As Brother Sharp's life was active and useful, so the eventide was beautiful and serene. He was remarkably free from the infirmities and weaknesses incident to old age. Though past four score years, to an unusual degree he retained his mental and physical strength. To the last, he was actively engaged in the affairs of life, especially in things pertaining to his home and Church. His going was peaceful. After only a few days' illness, soothed by the tender ministries of skilled physicians and devoted friends, and surrounded by his loved ones on earth, he closed his eyes to open them again upon the unfading glories of Heaven.

On the following day, after impressive services conducted by his pastor, Rev. H. N. McKibben, he was tenderly laid away in the neighborhood cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

"Servant of God, well done;
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the vict'ry won,
And thou art crowned at last."

A VISIT TO THE CO-OPERATIVE HOME, CORINTH.

By special invitation we spent one night in the Co-operative Home while in Corinth attending the Annual Meeting. To our minds there is no institution in all North Mississippi that is doing for the working class of young women what this one is doing. The time has come in the commercial world when girls and women must, of necessity, earn their own living. Unfortunately the time has not yet come when the beginner can command a salary sufficient to pay her board in a suitable home, and how far do you have to search, my friends, to find some girl or young woman who has fallen by the wayside because of the lack of a proper environment?

Having been asked the question, "What is this Home?" we are giving our own answer as we saw it. A comfortable, neatly kept, well regulated home, presided over by a dignified, sympathetic, efficient woman, in whom the mother instinct that exists in the hearts of all good women, has become so well developed that she takes these girls not into a cheap boarding house, but into a home, where each girl or young woman pays a certain amount, and in turn is expected to help Miss Daniel in making a home. To us the arrangement seems ideal. When a mother sends her daughter out into the business world she fears, and not without cause, the snares and pitfalls that surround her child; but with the combined influences of such an institution and such a woman as "our deaconess," much of the evil will pass them by unharmed.

As we gathered around the table and partook of the hospitality of the Home, we saw the refining, elevating influence disseminated over these girls, and again as we gathered in the neat little parlor furnished by the good people of Corinth, and listened to the singing by sweet, though untrained voices, we were made to exclaim, "Oh, that every town had a place to be made HOME for the working girl!" And why not? It would not only be a blessing to the young women in your town who are working to earn their living, but it is a pretty fair business proposition for some one. We do not necessarily need to have a church institution; any community can establish such a home with its own City Board, and get some good responsible woman to act as matron.

The Corinth Co-operative Home has indeed demonstrated to us something of what can and should be done for the working girl, and the people of Corinth, regardless of denomination feel, and of right, proud of their achievement.

Mrs. WALTER CAMPBELL.

REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF STUDY AND PUBLICITY, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The report of the work done in the department of Mission Study and Publicity for the first quarter of 1915 is the best report I have been able to send to headquarters during the two years that I have been a Conference officer. In fact, the report strengthened my faith to such an extent that I am almost ready to believe that by the end of the year the Mississippi Conference can take its rightful place among the Conferences of Southern Methodism, that of leader. And why not? We have within our Conference as strong material with which to work as can be found anywhere, but our Conference can only be as strong as the weakest auxiliary in it.

The Conference officers can only report what the auxiliaries report to them, so you see how necessary it is that each auxiliary officer report to her corresponding Conference officer. If the auxiliary has done nothing, it should be so reported. If it were possible to value one auxiliary report more than another, I would place the highest value for this quarter on the report received from an auxiliary which has been organized only a few weeks, yet the superintendent of study and publicity filled in her name and address and returned the blank. Now at the end of next quarter I am expecting one of the best reports in the Conference from this auxiliary.

It may be of interest to know the names of the auxiliaries which made glad the heart of the Conference superintendent of study and publicity this quarter. The following auxiliaries reported: McHenry, Waynesboro, Columbia, Magnolia, Canton, McComb (Adult), McComb (Young People), Vicksburg (Young People), Hazlehurst, Yazoo City, Millsaps auxiliary, Silver Creek, Mt. Olive, Natchez, Jackson (Capitol Street), Fernwood, Mendenhall, Collins, Meridian (Central), Saucier, Meridian (Fifth Street).

Collins Auxiliary.

The Collins Auxiliary reports: "Our auxiliary holds three meetings a month, first for business, second, Mission Study, which the members say is one of the best meetings, third, literary meeting. We have twenty-five members with an average attendance of about fourteen. The programs are so arranged that all take some part. The devotional service for the business meeting is always conducted by the officers giving each an opportunity to lead. The superintendent of social service gives a program once a quarter; in fact, every department of our work is well organized. In each department the year book is used in carrying out the programs. All leaflets and bulletins received are used and found very helpful." Mrs. J. L. NEILL.

OUR FRENCH WORK.

The Council has maintained two deaconesses in the Houma Mission during the past year. Houma is the center of the richest country of the United States—the "Sugar Bowl of America," it is called. Only 400 square miles of this land is under cultivation, while 149,000 people get their living there. It is, perhaps, the most densely settled rural section within the United States. In all the Protestant Churches combined there are not more than 1000 white Protestants, leaving 99,000 people as much unevangelized as any other section controlled by Romanism.

The mission at Houma was opened six years ago, when Rev. C. V. Breithaupt and his wife were sent there by the Louisiana Conference. One congregation had been organized in Lafourche Parish, with some 50 adherents or probationers, a short time before he went there. Now there are nine congregations or communities, to which this pastor, two deaconesses, one assistant French pastor, one local preacher, and five exhorters minister. These French workers have been converted and gotten to work in these six years.

Miss Iles, our first deaconess there, has had charge of the country work this year, while Miss Kate Walker has worked in the town of Houma. There are eighty miles of this rich, densely populated section along Terrebonne Bayou, where one never gets beyond the sight of houses or people. It is eighty miles of "front yards," as these French people have bought small acreages for truck gardening or sugar cane patches. The homes are small cottages, built much like each other. A message can be sent from one house to another for these eighty miles.

CALOMEL IS MERCURY! IT SICKENS! ACTS ON LIVER LIKE DYNAMITE

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and Doesn't Salivate or Make You Sick.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work!

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful tonight and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS.

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

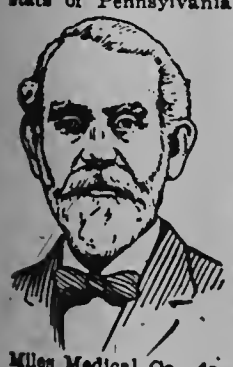
Business Man Praises Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy

Successful Merchant After Investigation Found a Remedy That Restored His Health.



"This is Thanksgiving day in the state of Pennsylvania, and I want to devote a part of it in writing a letter to you. On the 26th day of November, '10, I was stricken with heart trouble. My family physician called it Angina Pectoris. I had from one to five attacks in 24 hours, in the latter part of December, 1910. I wrote to the Miles Medical Co., for information concerning my case, and in reply I received a very kind and instructive letter, which I handed to my family doctor, and he told me to use your Remedies in connection with the medicine he gave me, so I did. I used five bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and seven bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine. I was confined to the house for about four months. The action of my heart is now, and has been normal for the last six months. I can truly recommend Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Remedy to do what they are intended for, if used according to directions. I thank you kindly for your advice in answer to my monthly reports. I am now sixty-seven years of age, have been in the mercantile business for thirty-five years and lived retired for the last thirteen years."

A part of an afternoon session will be given to the Laymen's Work.

The program on the Layman's work, and for the laymen, will be arranged by V. D. Youngblood, district leader. A note from Brother Youngblood says that this feature of the conference promises great things. Please let every charge leader be present as a member of the conference. Unless there is need for a change, this special feature will be held on Thursday afternoon, May 13.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT NOTES.

Through the courtesy of the Editor and Publisher of the Advocate, space will be given every week for items of interest from the New Orleans District. I have asked for this space because I believe the readers of the Advocate everywhere are interested in our work in New Orleans, the largest distinctly Southern city in the bounds of our Church, the city in which the Advocate itself is published, and will read with pleasure this news column from week to week. I believe, too, it will be of great help to the district. It will create an interest on the part of our people in the Advocate, which ought to be in every Methodist home in this city. It will help us in establishing a connectionalism which we must have to do the work we ought to do. Let every preacher and layman in the district be a booster for the Advocate. Rev. R. H. Harper, Rev. A. J. Gearheard, and Rev. W. L. Doss, constitute the committee which shall have charge of this "News Column." All news items should be in the hands of the committee by Friday of each week.

W. W. HOLMES.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The 1915 session of the New Orleans District Conference was called to order in the Carrollton Avenue Church on April 8 at 7:45 p.m. Rev. W. W. Holmes, the presiding elder, was in the chair. After roll call, Rev. A. J. Gearheard was elected secretary. Brother Holmes announced the usual number of committees to look after the several interests of the Church, and nominated the following preachers as a licensing committee to serve in the interim between district and Annual Conference: S. H. Werlein, F. R. Hill, Jr., W. W. Drake, R. H. Harper, W. L. Doss, Jr., and A. J. Gearheard. The committee was elected. The rest of the evening was occupied by hearing addresses by Mr. W. S. Holmes, Conference Lay Leader of Baton Rouge; Rev. R. W. Vaughan, of the Orphanage; Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education, and Rev. H. W. Van Hook, President of the Seashore Camp Ground School. A collection amounting to $30 for the Seashore Divinity School was taken, and the first session closed.

The second day's sessions were of great interest. The day was properly begun. At 11 o'clock Brother Holmes delivered an inspiring pastoral sermon, using Elisha as an example for preachers of all the ages. The sermon was a revelation to the pastors of both their duties and opportunities. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to all present. At noon a most delightful luncheon was served by the ladies of Carrollton Avenue Church.

Friday afternoon was occupied by a round-table discussion of the work and needs of all the charges. The spirit of the session was beautiful, and in the spirit of brotherliness each one tried to help solve the problems of the charges. The delegates were delighted with the way the work is opening up along the Lower Coast, the infant charge of the district. After the reports were all in, the names of local preachers and elders were called and the roll of local preachers was completed. Brothers J. H. Stafford, J. C. McLean, R. L. Schroeder, P. C. Carpenter, T. B. Clifford and S. A. Seegars are licensed to preach for the year 1915-16, the last two having been licensed by this conference. H. H. Ahrens, W. G. Evans and E. N. Evans are local elders in good standing. The Secretary was instructed to furnish the foregoing list with correct addresses to the Secretary of the Louisiana Conference for record. After a short address by Dr. J. T. Sawyer, the afternoon session closed.

The last session was a full one. Mrs. C. F. Niebergal gave a most charming account of the work being promoted by the women of the New Orleans District. Bogalusa was selected as the next place of meeting. A report by R. M. Brown on the condition of quarterly conference records went to record. A summary of all the reports of the district was read by A. J. Gearheard and by vote of the conference he was asked to submit it to the Advocate for publication. C. O. Chalmers represented the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Four ballots were taken by the laymen for delegates to the Annual Conference and the results were as follows: W. W. Carre, G. D. Shands, W. B. Thomson and C. O. Chalmers were elected delegates, and H. H. Ahrens and G. W. Robotham were made alternates. W. S. Sherwood and S. H. Meyer were re-elected trustees of the Seashore Camp Ground.

At this time a lively discussion was precipitated by a motion calling for a financial statement from the financial secretary of the Camp Ground and asking that a committee be appointed to audit the Camp Ground treasurer's books. Opposition developed and some really good speeches were made. The motion finally prevailed and Brother Holmes appointed G. Wasson, C. F. Niebergal and E. Alvis as an auditing committee and instructed them to report back to this conference next year.

The secretary was instructed to write a letter of condolence to the family of the late Rev. G. A. Guice.

Looking back at this session of the New Orleans District Conference, there is much that could be said about it. There were 76 delegates present, which surpasses all former records for attendance. There has been a net increase in membership of 247 since Conference. The devotional exercises conducted by Dr. S. H. Werlein, Rev. D. L. Griffin and Rev. F. R. Hill, Jr., were real seasons of grace. The resolution committee prepared and delivered a set of resolutions that stood for something more than commonplaces. The presiding elder was in the chair for the first time as such, but proved himself to be master of all the details of his work. He told the conference that he was serving this district with a definite plan for results and as each pastor made his report there was evidence that the plan was getting results. Not a person failed to perform his part on the program and every pastor but one responded to the conference with either his presence or a written report. In all, there was nothing amiss and the Conference was a success from the opening session to the final benediction.

A. J. GEARHEARD, Secretary.

Editorial

"Say not my soul, 'From whence
Can God relieve my care?'
Remember that Omnipotence
Has servants everywhere."

There is no better way to help people religiously than to live a consecrated, holy life among them. And the door of opportunity to this highest form of service is wide open to all.

Billy Sunday, with numerous helpers to support, received $50,000 for nearly three months' work in Philadelphia, and those who do not like the famous evangelist made much ado about it. Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, received $30,000 for a brief performance on a single afternoon in Havana, and scarcely a note of protest has been heard. Comment is unnecessary.

* * *

We speak of the past as being gone, but it is never wholly so. In an important sense, it ever abides with us. A character in a recently published story is truthfully made to say: "We are today very much what we did and thought yesterday, and we will be tomorrow, in great part, what we do to-day." How important, therefore, it is to live right continuously!

There has never been a truly great Christian minister who was not a man of the people. Luther's heart was with the masses, and so was Wesley's. The same might be said of Spurgeon and General Booth, perhaps the two mightiest princes of the Kingdom that have been in the world since the colossal man of Epworth "fell on sleep." Of our Lord himself, it was said, "The common people heard him gladly," and it was among them that he lived and chiefly wrought. Every pastor ought to be a big-hearted commoner, seeking to touch people in all the walks of life. God is no respecter of persons, and every human being is priceless in his sight.

When Jesus was on earth he never sought to entice people into becoming his disciples by offering to gratify their pleasurable emotions or selfish appetites. His appeal was to their deep sense of need and obligation. To be sure, he held up before them the wealth of the Heavenly Father's love and the rich provisions of his grace, but along with it he presented faithfully to their view the self-denial and self-sacrifice that would be required. When an enthusiastic Scribe announced his purpose to follow him, he replied, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head." To seek to win men to the Church by appealing to wrong motives is to reduce Christianity to the low level of the heathen religions. Its challenge to the heroic in man has ever been one of the potent elements of strength in the Christian faith. This may repel some, but only those who are thus won will worthily represent our Lord.

A TIMELY AND INSPIRING APPEAL.

In the Presbyterian (Philadelphia) of April 22, under the caption, "BACK TO THE FUNDAMENTALS," the following significant and timely appeal is published:

"The undersigned, ministers and laymen of the Presbyterian Church, appeal to our churches, ministers, church officers, and church courts to unite in action in defense of the fundamentals of our common faith.

"In view of the deep unrest in the religious thought of the day, we believe that pronounced and persistent emphasis should be placed on the integrity and authority of the Bible as the Word of God, the deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, his vicarious atonement on the cross—the only way of salvation—and his resurrection.

"We believe these doctrines should be preached from our pulpits, and that the sessions of our churches should insist that this be done.

"We suggest, furthermore, when a church is seeking a minister to be its pastor, that it shall not call any man save one who unreservedly and heartily accepts the great fundamentals herein enumerated and taught by our standards.

"We have been led to express this belief and to offer these suggestions under the deep conviction that only on such a basis can the Church succeed in its mission, and the Gospel of Christ be propagated to his glory and according to his own will.

"May we not urge you to unite with us in prayer that all our churches, ministers, and officers may feel the supreme importance of this appeal?"

This earnest message is signed by Dr. Maitland Alexander of Pittsburgh, Penn., the present Moderator of the General Assembly of the Northern Presbyterian Church, Dr. M. A. Matthews of Seattle, his predecessor in that responsible office, by scores of prominent ministers, and by laymen representing leading Presbyterian Churches of the country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. Included in this list are such men as Dr. David J. Burrell of New York, Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, the well known evangelist, Dr. Charles R. Erdman, Professor of Christian Homiletics and Pastoral Theology in the Princeton (N. J.) Seminary, Dr. D. S. Kennedy, editor of The Presbyterian, Prof. George L. Robinson, of the McCormick Theological Seminary, John Wanamaker of Philadelphia, and a large array of others of equal attainments and distinction. Yet this is said to be only a beginning.

Dr. M. A. Matthews, Chairman of the Voluntary Committee that prepared this stirring address, says: "Many have written urging the taking of even more strenuous steps. Letters from earnest men are still arriving, asking that their names be attached. We had only a short time to send out letters to the different sections of the country from which to secure a general expression. Thousands of pens would leap from their scabbards into fingers, controlled by faith, to subscribe the names of men who have not bowed their knees to Baal nor turned aside to the flesh-pots of pagan thought. Their names continue to come and perhaps we will publish them later. * * * Sessions are urged to take the suggestion made and to examine ministers thoroughly. This is the crucial age. * * * The country needs to come to its knees in prayer, and to the daily study of God's Word."

We are highly pleased to see this sound and timely statement issued by representatives of the Northern Presbyterian Church, which is one of the most alert, virile, and rapidly growing religious denominations in the United States, and there are two or three things that we desire to say concerning it.

1. When such a body of men as those who have sent out this address feel moved to speak thus there can no longer be any doubt that orthodox Christianity is seriously menaced in this country. They can not be brushed aside as mere alarmists or pessimists. We have been telling the readers of the Advocate for some time that this was the true situation, but the correctness of our representation seems to have been largely distrusted. We could scarcely ask for a stronger confirmation of what we have been saying in these columns for months and years than is furnished by this clear and emphatic deliverance.

2. The men issuing this appeal are among the ablest and best equipped representatives of the Christian Church in America. What they have said cannot be discredited by sneering out, "They are ignorant mossbacks."

3. Though our Presbyterian brethren have sounded this bugle call only for their own denomination, we should like to see it rally those who are loyal to the "faith once delivered unto the saints" in all the Churches. Especially would we be gratified if the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, would take a like definite stand for the preservation of the fundamentals of Christianity and likewise resolve to begin faithfully to use the administrative forces of the Church to achieve this end. Nothing short of this will avail. Those who are propagating the "New Thought," which is in reality nothing but the old exploded skepticism and heresies that disturbed the Church in the past revamped, care comparatively little for occasional criticisms in the pulpit and press. But if our Bishops, our Boards of publication, and our Conferences would begin to make it clearly understood that utterances by our preachers and teachers impeaching the integrity and authority of the Holy Scriptures and clashing with the views of evangelical Christianity will not be lightly passed over, it is probable that things would soon begin to wear a different aspect.

Let none think that there is no need for this. With the exception of the Unitarians, the Congregationalists, and possibly the Episcopalians, the Northern Methodists are perhaps more largely under the influence of this rationalistic teaching than any other of the Protestant Evangelical denominations, and many in our Church are trailing along after them. Yet in the face of this perfectly obvious trend there is a strange inactivity among us concerning it. Which of our leaders, for instance, has protested against the publication in our Methodist Review Quarterly, uncombated, of the vicious writings of German and other unsound theologians? How many of our Southern Methodist papers are speaking out emphatically against this subtle propaganda, as The Presbyterian of Philadelphia, The Presbyterian of the South, and some of the ablest organs of other Churches are doing? The great body of our people are yet sound, but they need to be awakened to the true situation. Is there not among those who have the prestige and influence to do so, some one who will lift up the banner of orthodox Methodism and sound a rallying call to the conservative forces of the Church, as the leaders of the Northern Presbyterian Church have done in their denomination?

FANNY CROSBY.

(One evening of the Sunday meetings in Philadelphia, the death of Miss Crosby was announced, and the following poem by Miss E. E. Hewitt, the well-known hymn writer of Philadelphia, was read. It had been written on receipt of the news of Miss Crosby's death. Those familiar with Miss Crosby's hymns will note the skill with which Miss Hewitt has woven lines from these hymns, into her tribute, which follows.)

Away to the country of sunshine and song,
Our songbird has taken her flight;
And she who had sung in the darkness so long,
Now sings in the beautiful light;
The harp-strings here broken are sweetly restrung
To ring in a chorus sublime.
The hymns that on earth she so trustfully sung
Keep tune with eternity's chime!

What heart can conceive of the rapture she knows
Awakened to glories so bright,
Where radiant splendor unceasingly glows,
Where cometh no shadows of night?
Her "life work is ended," and over the tide,
"Redeemed" in his presence to stand,
She knows her Redeemer, for her crucified,
"By the print of the nails in his hand."

O, "Blessed Assurance"—the lamp in her soul
That made earthly midnight as naught!
A "new song" of joy shall unceasingly roll
To him who her ransom had bought.
To "Rescue the Perishing," her great delight,
What bliss, in the Homeland, to meet
With those she had told of the Lord's saving might,
Together to bow at his feet.

Good-bye, dearest friend, good-bye for awhile;
You walk in the shadows no more;
Around you the sunbeams of glory will smile;
The Lamb is the light of that shore!
Some day, we will meet in the city above;
Together, we'll look on his face;
Safe, "Safe in the Arms" of the Jesus we love;
Together we'll sing, "Saved By Grace."

—The Presbyterian (Philadelphia.)

FAITH'S BETTER KNOWLEDGE.

Dr. J. H. Jowett.

Mental conclusions and spiritual experiences are two quite different things. Reason may gather piles of knowledge concerning the historic Jesus, but reason alone will give me nothing about the risen Christ. I want to know the Jesus of history, but I want to have communion with the Christ of faith. Such knowledge of the Lord comes to us through the act and attitude of faith. Faith is more than a mental decision; it is a surrender of the will. It is more than a verdict; it is execution of the verdict.

It is of momentous importance to remember that the core of faith is motion—a movement of the will toward the holy Lord. The act of faith is the yielding of the personal life to the God who is revealed to us in Jesus Christ our Lord. And the life of faith is the constant repetition of that act of surrender until the repeated acts become an attitude and every choice and will in life is stamped with the pleasure and fear of God.

THE CONQUESTS OF PEACE.

Phillips Brooks.

There is nothing good or glorious which war has brought forth in human nature which peace may not produce more richly and more permanently. When we cease to think of peace as the negative of war, and think of war as the negative of peace, making war and not peace the exception and interruption of human life, making peace and not war the type and glory of existence, then shall shine forth the higher soldiership of the higher battles. Then the first military spirit and its work shall seem to be but crude struggles after, and rehearsals for, that higher fight, the fight after the eternal facts and their obedience, the fight against the perpetually intrusive lie, which is the richer glory of the riper man. The facts of government, the facts of commerce, the facts of society, the facts of history, the facts of man, the facts of God, in these, in the perception of their glory, in the obedience to their compulsion, shall be the possibility and promise of the soldier statesman, the soldier scientist, the soldier philanthropist, the soldier priest, the soldier man. "The sword is beaten into the plowshare, the spear into the pruning hook." "The war drum throbs no longer, and the battle flags are furled." But it is not that the power of fight has perished: it is that the battle has gone up on higher ground and into higher light. The battle is above the clouds.

VOLTAIRE AND THE BIBLE.

The circulation of the Scriptures increases as time goes on. Our readers will be interested in the following from The Christian, a London weekly: "It is but little more than a century ago that Voltaire prophesied that "in a hundred years the Bible would be an extinct book." How has that prophecy been fulfilled? From 1804 to 1817, the total issues of Bibles and portions of Scriptures in all Europe and America were about three million copies, or an average of less than a quarter of a million a year, distributed in less than seventy languages. At present the thirty Bible Societies of the world, which exist for the specific purpose of publishing the Work of God without note or comment, issue the whole Bible or portions of it in over 500 languages, and the aggregate circulation is about 18,000,000 copies a year. Then there are the Bibles and portions printed by private publishing firms, returns of which have recently been gathered for the first time, and these add 10,000,000 copies to the annual output. This total of 28,000,000, is more than 120 times the annual output of a century ago. Thus does the ever-living Word of God put to shame the ignorance of foolish men."—The Christian Intelligencer.

BIBLE READING AND DANCING IN OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Rev. J. B. Risk, D. D.

One argument that is strongly urged for substituting instead of the Bible carefully prepared selections, is that the Bible to be read in the public schools is for the benefit of the children of all the people without regard to sect or religious belief, and that for this reason all controversial passages of Scripture must be avoided.

All controversial passages must be avoided! If all controversial passages must be avoided, that means the throwing out of the whole Bible from our public schools; for there will always be in the schools all shades of opinion represented, and the children of agnostic and infidel parents would controvert and deny the whole of revelation.

Is it not here clearly apparent to the most obtuse that this driving out of the Bible from the public schools is not simply a defeat of the religious elements of the community, but that it is a victory for the infidel and secularistic forces—the basest, and most dangerous elements in our national life?

And where shall the line be drawn? What sort of an emasculated Bible are we going to have in the public schools? It will not do simply to say that it will be a selection from the whole Bible; for if a selection be made at all it must be selected from the whole Bible, but may not by any means include all of the books of the Bible—as, for example, we have selections from Wordsworth by his disciple and admirer Matthew Arnold, and yet whole tracts of Wordsworth's poetry are not represented.

But if the Bible may not be read in the public schools for fear either of contamination to morals or of arousing controversy, shall dancing be taught in the public schools, and shall our public school buildings be used by classes in dancing?

Remember that this is not a question simply of allowing dancing; it is an attempt to make us indorse a propaganda of dancing; to train the children of our homes in the art of dancing whether they will or not, or without respect to whether their parents are opposed to its practice or not. It throws the aegis of the public school's protection over the dance, and exposes our young men and women to frequent temptation in these functions presided over by teachers who act as chaperons. Is this to be unanimously and enthusiastically indorsed? Surely not. It is getting to be the fashion to make charges of immorality against the public schools. Startling revelations of laxity of morals in the public schools have, it is said, profoundly moved communities. We are shocked as we read of charges of immorality such as were made against the public schools at the National Educational Convention held last July. This we trust, however, is but another form of the old and exaggerated calumnies of Romanism against our public schools.

But if the Bible with its power of religious uplift is driven out of our schools, and the dance with its demoralizing fascinations is fostered, then the fear is that what Romanism has steadily claimed, although we know that chameleon-like Rome changes to the sentiment of the hour—she sees lately that she has gone too far, and now she claims to love the little red schoolhouse—but this change, if change it be, was wrought not by the cowardice of those who would basely surrender American ideals, but by the mighty protest of those who have manfully stood up against the machinations of this unscrupulous hierarchy; but if the dance shall supersede the Bible, Rome's old and persistent cry "that the public school is the hotbed of immorality" may yet to some lamentable extent come to be true.

We disclaim here that we have made extreme statements against the Romish Church. We would accord to men of every faith the right of conscience and the protection and inestimable advantages of our Christian civilization. But we believe that American institutions and ideals should be conserved.

We do not advocate an antipapal panic; nor have we much sympathy with those Protestant ministers who, forgetting the history of the past and blind to the encroachments which this vast ecclesiasticism has already made, think it shows true breadth of mind and serenity of culture to rail at those who lift up a voice of protest against papal domination in our civil and political and distinctly American institutions.

No, these liberalists are hardly consistent; for a well-known writer—the most extreme type of such a publicist—after all his tirade against the men who, alive to the issues of the hour, are guarding the welfare of State and Church, is compelled to concede that "if it is not true of all Roman Catholic hierarchs, it is true of some that their ambition to rule the State is not well concealed." And at last he is forced by the inevitable pressure of the situation to acknowledge what we alone contend for. "I think," he says, "that there is need of resisting such tendencies."

That the dance in the public school is a menace to the morals of the community is shown by a statement recently made by a prominent minister of this city; for if there is even a shadow of truth in the statement "that in his investigations of city conditions he found that the dance-halls—many of them—were open fields of solicitation for the panderer, and recruiting-stations for the brothel;" if this be so, then how can we put our imprimatur upon dancing lessons in the public schools which train our children in the art and render more easy the transition to these places of temptation?

Let no one be guilty of base compliance or of cowardly surrender in this matter.

Shall we take the ground that it is of no use to oppose it; that the spirit of the time favors dancing? No, surely not!

"Say not the times are evil; who's to blame?
And fold the hands and acquiesce; O Shame!
Stand up, speak out, and bravely, in God's name."

It has been acknowledged by those representing our public school system that the social dance, under chaperonage of teachers, is a function in high school life; more than this, it has been acknowledged that the dance in a modified form is taught in connection with the eveniug school activities. In the opinion of many, the courts would grant an injunction against such use of our high school and public school buildings. We are anxious to maintain great moderation of statement. We all believe in large tolerance, and in the spirit of charity. But, surely, this is a matter that calls for plain speaking.

We believe that the Protestant Churches of our and of every other city in our land where these abuses exist, representing in these great issues the moral forces of the community, should interpose objections to this subversion of a public trust; to this misuse of our educational machinery; to this flagrant and unblushing assault on the sentiment and conscience of the best elements in our Christian Churches.

On the one hand, the sentiments and prejudices of the agnostic, anarchistic, Jewish and Romish elements of society must be seduously guarded, by emasculating the Bible to be read in the public schools; on the other hand the religious sentiment and conscience of the Christian people who would shield their children from these contaminating influences must be violated by the pandering of our public school system to and by the use of our public school buildings for, the social dance.

These are questions, indeed, which should stir our entire citizenship. The situation which we confront brings us face to face with these grave and important issues. We can not escape and be true to ourselves from the responsibility thus thrust upon us. Aud we believe that the churches we represent and the patriotic people of the community who love American institutions, and American ideals expect us, as the issues have been clearly drawn, to stand fast to our principles and ideals.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

"OUR SUPERANNUATED PREACHERS."

A Plain Statement by a Superannuate.

Dear Dr. Meek: Your recent strong and timely editorial on the above subject, together with an editorial on the saiue subject in our General Organ, suggests to me the propriety of writing a plain statement of my experience with the hope of thereby helping to get this important subject on the heart and conscience of the Church.

I was an active itinerant Methodist preacher for twenty-seven years. Now, with an experience of something more than three years as a superannuate, I am fully convinced that during those twenty-seven years, I was very far from having a due appreciation of the delicate situation of the superannuate, and of his claim on the Church. Not that I have one word of complaint to make personally—no, not that; for really it seems to me, that I have received rather more consideration than the average of my brethren. Yet I do confess that I have felt very sorely the fact that the Church to which I gladly gave the strength and love of my life has no adequate plan by which to provide for the comfort of myself and family. So, for the reason above given, I ask that your readers bear patiently with me while they read the following plain statement.

The first twenty-five years of my effective ministry were spent in the North Mississippi Conference. In my judgment, this Conference ranks among the very best in the Connection, in the spirit of genuine brotherhood that pervades it. I know that my brethren of this Conference loved me while I was associated with them in the work, and I know that they love me still.

At the end of the twenty-five years, my health was seriously impaired. With the hope that by a change of climate, I might be able to continue in the work, and at the same time regain my health, I transferred, and for two years was an effective member of the Central Texas Conference. Viewed from every angle, this is easily one of the very greatest of all our Conferences.

After two years, my improvement in health not being sufficient to justify continuing in the work, I asked for and received a superannuate relation. I held this relation in the Central Texas Conference for two years, at the end of which time, still not being able to take work, I transferred back to North Mississippi, feeling that this was clearly the proper thing to do.

For a number of years just prior to leaving North Mississippi, my salaries were from $1200 to $1600 a year, and those whom I served conceded the fact that this was not really as much as was needed for the support of my family. However, we managed to live on it and keep out of debt.

During the two years of service in the Central Texas Conference, I labored under serious hindrances, and my support was so meager that I became considerably involved in debt. So, at the time of my superannuation, I found myself in debt, with shattered health, with an invalid wife, with no house to live in, with no house furniture, and with a necessarily expensive family to be provided for. To intensify the gravity of the situation, it was thought best that I should live in a somewhat different climate, the change involving a move of 300 miles. I had no one to depend on for financial aid except the Church.

At the same Conference at which I superannuated the Joint Board of Finance very kindly gave me $50. At the close of the first year I received from that board $400; at the end of the second year $300. Then I transferred back to the old home Conference, and at the end of the third year received from the Board of Finance of that Conference $175, making $925, for the three years—fully $400 less than was necessary to support us one year, when there was no house rent to pay, no furniture to buy, and practically no medicine bills.

The disease with which I am troubled has proven a treacherous one. I have from time to time fallen back just enough to prevent any substantial improvement in my health. In spite of all my expressions of hopefulness now and then made, I am still a sick man. I am at this time suffering from having unintentionally and unconsciously overtaxed my strength when I was feeling especially well.

My wife is still an invalid, and I am still paying house rent. Pardon me for making the case so bad. I am simply trying to make a plain statement. I can fancy some one asking, "How have you lived?" Well, of course, we have practiced economy to the limit, and have done what we could, under the conditions to make something ourselves. The first year I tried the milk and butter business on a small scale, operating on borrowed money. I found that expenses consumed practically all the profits.

The second year we tried the boarding house business and handled quite a good deal of money, but most of it went for paying grocery bills and house rent. Besides, my wife's strength was not equal to the strain. The third year I simply did such little jobs as I could get about town and some of the childen have been able to help a little.

Besides this, many of our friends in Mississippi and some in Texas, have on two accasions, responded generously to a kind cry of distress, that went out in our behalf. Many of the contributions were accompanied by sweet messages of love and the memory of them fills me with gratitude to this hour. I confess, however—whether it be the wrong or the right spirit—that the necessity for such appeals is deeply humiliating to me. How much less embarrassing both to me and to my friends, and how much more creditable to the Church it would have been, if in these times of emergency, relief could have been given in a quiet way, through some regularly organized plan of the Church! How much better still if the annual appropriations from the Board of Finance could have been large enough to have prevented these emergencies! For example, suppose the check the third year could have been for $500, instead of $175. What a relief it would have been both to me and to some of my creditors!

The one thing that troubles me now is that my income from all sources has not made it possible to keep out of debt. If fortune smiles on us, we can hope to make a living from now on; but it is going to be very hard indeed to have any surplus for the payment of old debts; particularly so, if even some slight disaster should come. I know that I have much to be thankful for; I am trying to be strong and patient. But in spite of myself, as the burden has pressed heavily from month to mouth, through these years, my soul has cried out within me, O Lord, how long, how long?

In closing, let me ask my friends and all who may read this to believe me. I do not write in the spirit of complaint; I am not sour. I simply desire to impress upon those active in the work of the Church, the lesson that I have learned by sore experience.

I still love the Church. To give her many more years of service would be my highest pleasure. And though I am denied this privilege, my highest interest is in her welfare.

I rejoice in the success of Dr. McMurry in his noble work for Church Extension; I am profoundly thankful for every forward movement in the great cause of missions, and for the many evidences of a general awakening in the interest of our colleges and universities; but can a great Church, capable of managing so well her other great interests afford to continue such inadequate provision for those who have made possible her great history and her far greater prospects? (Pardon this seeming immodesty).

Another word ought to be said: I am sure that my case is a somewhat extreme one. There are perhaps some claimants who are fortunate enough not to need more than the small amounts which they receive; perhaps others need to have these amounts only slightly increased. Still, doubtless there are many others whose experiences, if written, would not appear strikingly unlike this one.

MORE GIFTS TO EMORY UNIVERSITY.

In a communication telling of a large donation of valuable books to Emory University by Dr. J. W. Lee of St. Louis, an announcement of which has already been made in the Advocate, Bishop W. A. Candler further says:

"Dr. Fitzgerald S. Parker has recently sent an autograph letter of Bishop Enoch George, which will be added to the collection of rare autographs in possession of the University.

"Dr. Franklin N. Parker has sent a copy of the "Discipline" published in 1817. It is the purpose of the authorities of the University to collect a complete set of all Methodist "Disciplines" from the beginning of Methodism in America until the present time.

"Rev. H. H. Smith, of the Virginia Conference, has sent a photograph of the old Ebenezer Academy, one of the first institutions of learning established by American Methodists, having been erected in 1785.

"Scarcely a day passes without some valuable addition being made to the library or generous contribution given to the University."

The cotton crop of the past year, according to the Federal Census Bureau of Statistics, amounted to 15,873,002 actual bales, or 16,102,147 bales on the basis of 500 pounds to the bale. The crops of the three preceding years were as follows. 1913—13,982,811 actual, or 14,156,486 500-pound bales; 1912—13,488,539 actual, or 13,703,421 500-pound bales; 1911—15,553,073 actual, or 15,692,701 bales averaging 500 pounds each. These were the largest antecedent crops; so it will be seen that the crop of 1914 was the biggest ever produced.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., President

Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Sec'y

Rev. C. A. Battle, Treas., Baton Rouge, La.

(This Department is conducted hy Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education, and Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Puhlicity Commissioner.)

A MIRACLE FOR EDUCATION.

God blesses those movements that are for the uphuilding of his kingdom. It is perfectly proper to pray for divine help and the leadership of the Holy Spirit in a thing that we know is right. Prayer should he specific. A Christian should strive to accomplish a specific thing. It is well to pray for the whole world, hut it is hetter to pray for one man and keep after that one until he is won. Christ stopped a whole procession in order to save Bartimaeus, and deserted a multitude in order to take dinner with Zacchaeus. Christ died for the whole world, but he concentrated on one thing if that one thing was important.

It is important that the Church educate her sons. She must direct the studies of her young ministers. This is not a new policy. Elisha was the head of a great college to which came the sons of the prophets. He had some trouhle about convenience and equipment, and it was decided to move the school from Samaria to Dothan. The school was poorly equipped and one of the hoys horrowed an ax with which to work. The old story had its usual ending. The boy got into trouble over what he had horrowed. Borrowed capital has often been borrowed trouhle. But the sons of the prophets were engaged in a great work. God was with them. Eilsha performed one of his miracles by the power of God in order to hring to completion that college for the training of young prophets.

If Centenary College stands for what harmonizes with Christianity, then it is a proper subject of prayer. If God made a miracle possihle in order to establish a school for the prophets in the days of Elisha, will he not do the same to-day? We need Centenary to stand forth as the center of Christian education in Louisiana. Then we need specific prayer for the hand of God to rest upon some person that something miraculous may be done. Our God, who raised the ax and caused the iron to swim, can operate in a heart and cause something of consequence to he done for the cause of Christian education in Louisiana.

AN INTERESTING STORY.

During the recent hard times, many have heen the calls upon the Provident Association of Shreveport, La., for material assistance. Some weeks ago a young man of eighteen presented himself with a different request from that of the others, which had been for transportation, lodging, food, clothes, medicine, etc.

Said he, "What I want is an education; if I get that, I can get all these other things myself."

This young man is a native of Budapesth, Hungary, without a relative in America, his older hrother, with whom he sailed, having died in New York.

His manner seemed so sincere that a good Christian woman who consecrates much of her time to helping boys, and a most sympathetic pastor became deeply interested and managed to enter him in Centenary College. He has proved to me most worthy and appreciative.

Recently in a revival service Karl Winkler yielded his heart to Jesus at the altar of First Church, was hrightly converted, and applied for church membership. R. H. WYNN.

BACCALAUREATE ADDRESS AT CENTENARY.

The Baccalaureate address at the Centenary Commencement will be delivered by Dr. O. A. Wright, who is one of the most successful and influential business men of Shreveport and one of Centenary's hest friends. Dr. Wright is a fine product of the Church college, having received his education in one of the Northern denominational institutions, his success in the field of education heing attested by the degrees of Ph. D. and LL. D., which he has won, and his success in business is no less distinguished. As teacher of a great Bible class in the Sunday school of the First Methodist Church in Shreveport, he has shown his interest and efficiency in religious work. It is reported that 135 persons were in attendance on his class on a recent Sunday. From his reputation as a convincing and inspiring speaker, it may he safely predicted that those who may have the pleasure of hearing the Baccalaureate address on Tuesday, June 8, have a treat in store for them.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS.

The entire history of the Church has proved that the secret of any successful movement is to be found in prayer. The modern missionary movement ahouuds with illustrations of this axiom of Christian faith, as doors of opportunity have heen opened, gigantic difficulties overcome, and large gifts have heen secured in direct answer to definite prayer. In our educational work in Louisiana we are face to face with an imperative and pressing obligation to provide adequately for our institutions; great difficulties are in the way, and if our needs are to he met, God must touch the heart of men of means and lay on them the hurden of providing for the Christian education of our children. It is time for us, as a Conference, to offer definite, united prayer to God for the solution of our problem.

"THE ADVOCATE."

Dear Doctor Meek: In the issue of the Advocate of April 8, on the first page, column three, you make this quotation from a writer in the Baltimore Southern Methodist: "As a whole, our people do not read Methodist papers sufficiently to know what we stand for, or what we are doing in the world;" and your comment is: "We are inclined to think that this is lamentably true."

I wish to say that eleven years in the pastorate have convinced me of the truth of this observation. Each charge, except one, to which I have been appointed had very few subscribers to the Advocate, which is the organ of the Conference; and other church papers are scarcely heard of. Your statement and my experience have caused me to investigate somewhat as to the real and possible circulation of the New Orleans Christian Advocate in its legitimate territory.

I wish first to state that I am supposing that the Advocate has 7000 subscribers, and the calculation here made is on that hasis. According to the census of 1910, Louisiana and Mississippi together had a white population of 1,727,197. If we make no allowance for increase in population, this would give one Advocate for every 246 white people. Thus, as a general proposition, it is quite obvious that comparatively few people will learn anything of "What we are doing in the world." Now let us look at the proposition another way.

The 1910 census shows that the above named States had 361,593 white families, which would show one Advocate to every 51½ families. Could we not reach more of these by a little systematic work?

The average size of all families within the hounds of the Advocate's territory was 4.75; and, using that number—furnished by the Government—as applicable to our church population, our Conference organ has 32,000 families from which it might justly expect support. Now, if we are to grant that the present subscription list represents a family for every paper taken, there are left some 25,000 families who do not receive their church paper. The 7000, present list of subscribers, multiplied by 4.75—the number in the average sized family, equals 33,250 people now reached by this paper directly in their homes. But since Louisiana and Mississippi have a Southern Methodist membership of 152,000, there are 118,750 Southern Methodists in the two States who do not read the Conference organ.

Louisiana shows one member in twenty, or one family out of four, who take the Advocate.

If "knowledge is power," let our brethren bestir themselves to get our people more into touch with this great source of church knowledge—our Conference organ. W. W. PERRY.

Haynesville, La.

I yet have a few dozen copies, perhaps one hundred or more, of my hook, "Autobiography of Rev. H. P. Lewis," which I would like to sell as I need the money. Several brethren, preachers and others, have spoken or written to me how they enjoyed the hook and what a help it has been to them. One of our Jackson preachers told me he had read the hook twice, was reading it again, and enjoyed it as much as he did the first time he read it. Write me at 826 N. W. Street, and I will send as many copies as you think you can dispose of at 25 cents per copy.

Jackson, Miss. H. P. LEWIS.

A GOOD SPRING TONIC.

Perhaps your pastor needs a tonic. The best tonic that you can prescribe for him is to go to him with real earnestness and anxiety and ask him, "What can I do to help the cause of Christ?" When your pastor has had a number of doses of this tonic he will be stimulated to new zeal and activities, and you will find your church entering upon a great spiritual revival.—Christian Observer.

Our Mission Board in the April number of the Missionary Voice acknowledges the reception of a communication from the Rockefeller Foundation announcing its purpose to appropriate money for the work of medical missions in China, and expressing a desire to co-operate with the various Church Boards. Whether such an alliance would be wise, we do not know. Certainly the conditions prescribed by Mr. Rockefeller's Foundation ought to be very carefully scrutinized before the Churches agree to enter into co-operation with it. The influence of large wealth in the hands of men who do not believe in a pure Christianity is, in our opinion, one of the gravest perils of the Christian Church in this day.

In the Presbyterian (Philadelphia) of April 15 Prof. Andrew F. West, a member of the Presbyterian Church and a teacher in Princeton University, undertakes to justify the action of President Hibben in refusing to let Billy Sunday preach in any of the Princeton buildings. His defense is in reality a severe attack upon the famous evangelist, from which the Editor of the paper vigorously defends him, showing that Dr. Munhall has also been barred from coming to Princeton, while Dr. Fitch of Andover, who holds views that are largely Unitarian, has been cordially welcomed there. The manner in which the Presbyterian papers generally are speaking out against liberalism is very much to their credit. They are much more aggressive than most of the Methodist papers.

It is stated that Secretary Daniels has designed a white flag with a blue eagle to be known as the "Vice-President's flag." The Times-Picayune suggests that this design may have been intended to symbolize the Vice-President's pacificist tendencies, and that Mr. Daniels "figured it out that the white flag would naturally make the eagle blue."

FROM LABOR TO REWARD.

Brother Durrett, pastor of the North Carrollton Circuit, died suddenly of apoplexy in the parsonage at North Carrollton, Miss., on April 8. Brother Durrett was not the pastor of the town of North Carrollton, but the parsonage for the circuit is there, and Brother Durrett had lived in the midst of these good people for about eighteen months, and by his true and consecrated life he had won their confidence and affection.

Brother Durrett had been in feeble health for sometime,-but when it was known that he had passed away, it was a great shock to us all of both old Carrollton and North Carrollton.

The last sermon Brother Durrett preached was for me on Sunday night, April 4. He told us earnestly about Jonathan and his armor-bearer and their victory. The last public Scripture reading Brother Durrett did, was on Wednesday morning, April 7, at our Preachers' Association. He read the fifth chapter of 2d Corinthians, which begins, "For we know if this earthly house of our tabernacle were dissolved we have a building of God eternal in the heavens." How appropriate for a last reading! Brother Durrett was ready for the Master's call.

Before the family left with his body on the 2 o'clock train for Amory, Miss., his old home, where it was to be buried, we had a farewell memorial service in the church in North Carrollton which was largely attended by people from both towns, and many loving tributes were paid to the holy man of God. With Brother P. S. Crain, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, and Brother A. C. Mason, pastor of the Baptist Church, assisting, the writer conducted the service.

Several of Brother Durrett's members attended the service. Oh, how they loved him! Again and again we heard the expression, "What will we do without him?" But God buries his workmen and carries on his work.

With tender sympathy for the bereaved family and a prayer that God's grace may be sufficient for them, we desist.

J. H. SMITH,
Pastor of the Carrollton Charge.

ANNUAL MEETING OF MISSION BOARD.

The Board of Missions will hold its annual meeting in Nashville, Tenn., beginning on May 11. The conditions under which the board meets will render this session of peculiar interest and importance. One of the things that will come up for consideration will be the amendment of the charter of the board requiring a full attendance of the members. The board will need to give careful attention to its finances in the making of appropriations due to the depressing financial conditions that prevail, in order that our mission work may not suffer. The by-laws and manual are to be adapted to the changes that have been made in the constitution of the board, and other items of important business incident to the beginning of a new quadrennium will be before the board.

Our vanity would do all things at once; God takes his time and puts us all to shame.—Aaron Watson.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

A WORTHY AND USEFUL LAYMAN.

When, about 8 o'clock on the morning of December 6, 1914, the soul of William Bridges Campbell took its flight from its earthly dwelling place, the Lord received into his eternal fold one who had proved himself a faithful and trusted servant on earth.

William B. Campbell was born in Athens, Tenn., June 20, 1850. He was reared in an orthodox Presbyterian home amid Christian surroundings. Until his conversion at the age of 48 years he is known to have beeu religiously inclined and to have lived under the influence of Christianity. His activities after conversion in the cause of Christ were marked with influence. So that the period of his nearly sixty-four years of life was a consistent record.

His conversion was, in a degree, unique. It did not come when under the spell of an impassioned preacher; nor was it amid the confusing influences of a throng. It was in the quiet of his own room, with a Bible in his hand. A notation on a memorandum sheet in his Bible bears a simple record of the occasion. We know the time and the place by the few words of the memorandum: "In the corner by the trunk." To his wife, who found the sheet and wondered at its meaning, he explained the circumstances under which he experienced a thorough conviction of his sins and his duty to his Savior.

This conversion took place in July (?) 1898; and marked the beginning of his serious activities for Christ. The remaining sixteen years of his life were marked by effective work, both in the Church and among fellow workmen with whom he came in contact.

It was perhaps among his fellow workers of the Street Railway system that he accomplished some of his most lasting work for the Master. As an employee at the Arabella barns, and later at the Carrollton barns, he never lost an opportunity to talk with other employees about their souls' salvation and their duty in religious matters. This personal work was actively prosecuted until his retirement from these duties about two months prior to his death.

Soon after his conversion, Mr. Campbell was first married, Miss Marietta Agnes Baird becoming his wife. Together they joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, becoming connected with the Louisiana Avenue Church. After about a year and a half their membership was transferred to the Carrollton Avenue Church, where they were active workers, Mr. Campbell having charge of the Primary Department of the Sunday school work, and his wife being a teacher in the Sunday school.

His conscientiousness was exemplified in this work. His duties in earning a livelihood kept him awake practically all of Saturday night; yet after having had only a few hours of sleep and rest, he arose Sunday morning to attend to his duties in the Sunday school, after which he would return home for additional rest. He was entrusted with the duties of stewardship and trusteeship in the Carrollton Avenue Church, which he performed with honor and fidelity.

Of the first union in marriage one child, Bethula Sedgely Campbell, who remains to mourn his decease, was born. The wife died in 1905.

In 1909 Mr. Campbell, together with his widow, Elizabeth Fisher Campbell who was married to him in 1906, transferred his membership to Epworth Church. He was a trustee of that Church and always very much interested in its work. His employment at night kept him from attending many of the services, but he very often came in the morning after having been up and at work all of the previous night. His presence was always a source of help to the preacher and to those who were in attendance at the services. In his visits to the home of Brother Campbell his pastor was always helped and received a blessing.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES.

By J. D. Barbee.

For nearly two weeks recently our pastor, Rev. John Tillery Lewis, conducted revival services in our Church, assisted by his four brothers, Revs. Barney, Henry, James and Osmond Lewis, all of them members of the Mississippi Conference. The appearance of these five brothers in the pulpit together was most impressive, and the singing of the famous Lewis quartette was both pleasing and inspiring. Each of the brothers preached and all of them spoke with great earnestness and effectiveness.

The attendance upon these services was quite remarkable. I have never seen a meeting so largely attended in the Methodist Church in Greenville. Indeed, never, but on two occasions, to-wit, when Bishop Galloway and Bishop Hoss occupied the pulpit, have I seen such congregations in the Methodist Church as have regularly attended these services. The community has been edified, the Church revived, and unquestionably great good has been accomplished by the ministrations of these devoted brethren. They will ever find a warm welcome when they come this way again. Any community will be fortunate to secure their services.

At the closing service on April 20, which was largely attended despite the threatening weather, the following resolutions were adopted by the unaimous vote of the congregation:

"Whereas the Lewis brothers, James, Barney, Henry and Osmond, have conducted the revival services at the First Methodist Church of Greenville, Miss., for the past two weeks, and

"Whereas, we feel that the Church and its membership, as well as the commuuity as a whole, has derived great benefit from their ministrations and services, as well as from the elevating and unusual spectacle of five brothers consecrated to the service and ministry of God, and,

"Whereas, we feel that the lives of these brethren are tremendous tributes to the sanctity of the Christian home in which they were reared, the holy influence of their sainted mother and honored father, and the saving power of the religion whose ministers they are, and whose teachings they exemply in their lives, and,

"Whereas, the services conducted by them and our own pastor, their brother, Rev. Tillery Lewis, have in our opinion resulted in a great spiritual uplift to this church and community, and in the acquisition of new converts to the faith of Christ; therefore

"Be it resolved, that the thanks of the First Methodist Church of Greenville, Miss., as a body and for its individual members and on behalf of the people of Greenville, be tendered these brethren for their presence with us, their services rendered us, their example, and the beautiful music rendered by them during the services conducted; be it further,

"Resolved, that our best wishes go with them into their several homes to which they are returning, and that we hope for them increased happiness and spiritual success.

"Be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be given the Brothers Lewis, and a copy thereof be printed in the Greenville papers.

A POINTED INQUIRY.

Mr. Editor: In March 1910, Dr. G. B. Winton published a note in the Southern Christian Advocate under the heading "Vanderbilt: A Personal Word." A section of that note is this: "1. No movement is now on foot, nor within my knowledge of the government of the University has any been even indirectly proposed, to alienate Vanderbilt University from the Methodist Church. I should most vigorously resist such a proposal were it made." The following is at the bottom of the card: "The above card has my hearty approval and is correct in every particular.—J. H. Kirkland."

Four years after that card was written the Appellate Court of Tennessee took the University away from the Church—completely alienated it, saying that we had no property rights whatever in it. Dr. Winton was a trustee and Dr. Kirkland was Chancellor. Did they know what they were aiming at? Did the Court give them more than they could "ask or think?"

As the Vanderbilt matter is now settled, it is pertinent to ask, how far did these men intend to go? They said "no movement is now on foot" or even "indirectly proposed to alienate Vanderbilt University from the Methodist Church." These men were on the board which had the management of the whole affair. When the judgment was rendered, did they show any sign of dissatisfaction? Did Dr. Winton or Dr. Kirkland "vigorously resist" in any way? Dr. Kirkland marched at the head of a thousand students to celebrate the victory of the board and the alienation of the University from the Church. Did he forget to "vigorously resist?" Did either of these gentlemen make any effort to resist this alienation? It seems that they did not, but one of them treated the Church with aggravated contempt. It is not good morals to say they will resist alienation, and then when alienation comes not only to accept it but glory in it. Can men be sound in morals who do such things? Will they teach young men better morals thau this?

Another thing. I understand that some of our connectional officers not only approve the course of the Vanderbilt board in their dealings with the Church, but have advised young men to attend Vanderbilt University in preference to our own schools. In view of the open contempt which the Vanderbilt people have shown for the Church, it is amazing that any of our connectional officers or any one holding official place in our Church should do this thing. If it be true, they ought not be kept in office any longer. We should have men connected with our offices who are loyal to the Church. We ought to retire every man or woman who is making any effort to build up Vanderbilt at the expense of our own University.

THE HOLMES STORE

OF NEW ORLEANS

is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

THE CASTLE-BUILDER.

A gentle boy, with soft and silken locks,
A dreamy boy, with brown and tender eyes,
A castle-builder, with his wooden blocks,
And towers that touch imaginary skies.

A fearless rider on his father's knee,
An eager listener unto stories told
At the Round Table of the nursery,
Of heroes and adventures manifold.

There will be other towers for thee to build;
There will be other steeds for thee to ride;
There will be other legends, and all filled
With greater marvels and more glorified.

Build on and make thy castles high and fair,
Rising and reaching upward to the skies;
Listen to voices in the upper air,
Nor lose thy simple faith in mysteries!

ONLY A PUMPKIN.

"And I will bring a pumkin," said little Johnny Travis soberly. "My mamma said I could give a pumpkin."

"Only a pumpkin!" said Fred Nelson, out on the edge of the group. "I wonder what he thinks Mrs. Lucas can do with a pumpkin." Of course Johnny did not hear this, but the others did. "I'm going to take a basket of potatoes."

The children at the school—the little red schoolhouse at the turn in the road—were planning a shower of nice things for poor Mrs. Lucas. The old lady lived near the schoolhouse, and they were very kind to her. The big boys carried in wood and water for her, and the big girls helped her with her housework, while the little ones did what chores they could. The week before somebody had stolen all her hens, and the poor lady felt very much discouraged.

"My mamma said I could take a basket of apples," said Susie Flint. "I guess I can take some bread, too."

"And I am to have two hens to give her," said another. "My papa said he would go down and mend the lock on her hen-house door, so no thief could get in again."

"That is a good idea," said a big boy. "I'll get my father to let me bring some hens, too."

When the teacher had the list ready it certainly looked very long and nice, and they hoped Mrs. Lucas would like the things. "And all the things good and useful!" said Nellie Frost, looking over the list. "All but that pumpkin John Travis promised. Poor Mrs. Lucas hasn't a drop of milk to make a pumpkin pie. And Johnny's folks are about the richest in the district. That's the way it always goes, though."

Late that night the little procession went down the road, and very soon the good things were silently placed in the little sitting-room. Mrs. Lucas could not hear very well, so they were not afraid of being caught. The chickens squawked a little at having to find new beds in a strange place, but even their noise did not disturb the owner of the little brown cottage.

"Children! Come in! I want to show you something," called Mrs. Lucas next morning as they went to sweep her paths and do her chores. "I do believe the fairies were here last night. Somebody left a lot of good things for me."

Of course the young people all trooped into the little house, and there were the things just as they left them the night before. The pumpkin was on the table where Johnny had put it, and the chairs and tables and floor were crowded with baskets and boxes and bundles.

"Dear me! I upset something," said the poor old lady, as her arm struck the pumpkin and it rolled down on the floor. "There goes my pumpkin! Well, it doesn't matter, as I have no milk and eggs to make pumpkin pies with."

The pumpkin broke all to pieces as it smashed on the floor, but instead of seeds and yellow pulp out rolled dozens of little bundles. The wondering old lady picked them up and opened them one at a time, to find stockings, money, handkerchiefs, a little can of fragrant tea, and so many good things that she had a lap full.

"What a nice way to give things," cried the children. "We thought it was only a pumpkin and didn't amount to anything."

"It is the best pumpkin I ever saw," said the old lady. "I wish it had some seeds, so I could raise a whole crop of this kind of pumpkins."

And little Johnny Travis, out at the edge of the group, this time laughed happily to think that his little pumpkin joke had brought such happiness to Mrs. Lucas and his schoolmates, for he had heard the whisperings, and he knew that they thought "only a pumpkin" was a very tiny gift, even though the yellow globe was as big as a pumpkin could grow in a long summer.—Hilda Richmond, in the Michigan Christian Advocate.

TRUSTWORTHY.

"You will be careful of it? There is a check inside," said Robert's mother, as she handed the letter she had just sealed to her son.

"I'll take it right to the post-office and mail it before I do the other errands," the boy responded, and went his way. As the door closed behind him Aunt Mary, on a visit from a distant State, shook her head dubiously. "I wouldn't trust the best boy living with a such a letter as that," she declared grimly.

Mother smiled serenely. "Perhaps you would if you had already trusted him many times and found him trustworthy every single time," she said.

This reply tells the secret of how to win such high praise.—Methodist Recorder.

HIS QUICK TEMPER.

They were talking about a certain naughty boy who had just done something rude. "He has a quick temper," was the excuse some one put forward for him.

"Is he quick at his lessons?" was the question.

"No," was the reply.

"Is he quick at sports?" the questioner went on. Again the answer was "No."

"Is he quick in obedience?"

"No."

"Well," said the questioner, with a twinkle in his eye, "if he has so little quickness he'd better use it where it will do him some good. It's clear waste to put it on his temper."—The Lutheran.

JUNALUSKA MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

The Mission Board will hold its Annual Summer Conference at Junaluska, North Carolina from the 9th to the 20th of July next. The success of the meeting last year was so pronounced as to encourage the secretaries to expect a like success this year. The plan of the Conferenee will be similar to that of last summer. The daily program will be Study Classes in the early morning, Institute work in the middle of the forenoon, and platform addresses at 11 a. m. and in the evenings. The afternoons will be kept free for rest and recreation. The Conference missionary secretaries will hold their annual meeting during this period. The whole meeting will be one of special interest to missionary leaders and students of missionary methods in progress. It is especially desirable that pastors should be present at this Conference and also that lay leaders should make their arrangements to attend. There will be increased facilities for entertaining those who may attend and every effort will be made to make the occasion not only profitable, but of interest to all.

THE CARNEGIE FOUNDATION.

It is rumored that the Carnegie Foundation is bankrupt. Mr. Morrell Sayre, who was an official in connection with it, affirms this. Mr. Clyde Furst, who is secretary of the Foundation denies this, hut Mr. Furst admits that since the ten million dollar foundation was ereated as a pension fund for college professors it has had to be increased on three different occasions. A total of three millions has been added.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

A REAL DAY IN LIFE.

By Mr. W. F. Hamilton.

A day spent in the span of life,
Amid churches, creeds and clans;
What does it profit, creating strife,
And shooting venomed darts in the soul of man?

If a brother is weary and in need,
A dusty, rocky pathway he has trod;
If in the Savior you believe, do a kind deed,
Help him in his struggle on to God.

A day, a small white ray, spent in toil,
Living each moment near the Savior's side,
Will cause Satan's poisoned arrows to recoil,
They never harm, if in us Christ abide.

Remember that from the stars, the blue above,
Gushes forth a fountain, a cure for all pain,
Flows a river of everlasting love,
Then praise God again and again.

Give your brother or sister a kindly smile,
While the darkened pathway of life they plod,
Make their burdens lighter, traveling life's weary miles,
Strengthen their faith, love, and hope in God.

What does life hold for you in her azure folds,
Ere the sun of your life sinks beyond the western hill?
Remember, O man, the prophets of old
Said, "Lord we submit to Thy Divine will."

Friends, submit to the Master's Sovereign sway,
Make your choice, let God command;
Go through life praising him all the way,
Speak naught but good of any man.

Editorial

GREAT SUFFERING IN POLAND.

That there is great suffering in Poland as a result of the European war found further attestation a few days since in a letter writen to Mrs. Robert Von Moschzisker, Chairman of the Polish Division of the Emergency Aid Committee of Philadelphia, by Mr. Henry Sienkiewick, the author of Quo Vadis. The distinguished writer, who has been on the ground, states that 7,000,000 soldiers have been fighting over the fields of Poland during the last eight months, that 15,000 villages have been destroyed, and that more than 1,000,000 people are homeless and in dire distress. He bimself is at the head of a reiief commission which, he said, had been able to raise and disburse only about $100,000. On the reception of this communication $5100, Pennsylvania's first contribution to the Polish sufferers, was immediateiy forwarded to Mr. Sienkiewick.

The splendid philanthropy cailed forth by this gigantic war is one of the few silver linings to the dark cloud which it has spread over more than half the world. Never before in the annals of the human race has there been such an extended manifestation of sympathy for those overtaken by disaster and such an expenditure of money and humane effort to help the milllons in poverty and distress. There is not a single battlefield on which armies are engaged in strife, or a single land in which war has wrought its wreck and ruin, where the influence of Christianity is not being graciously felt. Horrible as it yet is, war is not what it would be if the spirit of the Son of man were not abroad in the earth.

NOT UNFRIENDLY TO THE NEGRO.

Even and anon the charge is made, or the insinuation is thrown out, that the people of the South are unfriendly to the Negro. Such, however, is not the case. The great body of the Southern people have a feeling of sympathy and kindness toward our colored population. The States of this section of the Union have for many years been taxing themselves heavily to provide free schools for Negro children, and the door of opportunity here stands open to the members of the colored race to an extent that is not surpassed, if indeed it is equaied, in any other part of the United States. The notion that the North is more disposed to treat tbe biack man justly and help him than is the South has little to sustain it. As is weli known, there are communities on the other side of the Ohio river in which not a single Negro is allowed to settle. What the colored man needs is not so much charity and expressions of sentimentality concerning his past and his future, as a chance to acquire a reasonabie amount of knowledge, to earn a livelihood, and to enjoy in security the fruits of his toil. Though we do not claim that the South has measured fully up to her duty to this large and needy element of her citizenship, we do affirm that what she has done in this respect, when all the circumstances are considered, is without a parallel in the annals of human history. Such utterances bearing on this subject as that which recently appeared in "Life" and as some which have been published in "The Independent" are gross and unwarranted misrepresentations of a nobie, generous, and high-minded people, who ever since the Civil War have been heroically struggling to carry worthily their tremendous burdens.

The following statement by Prof. Booker T. Washington, perhaps the abiest representative of his race in the world, made during his recent visit to Louisiana, is weil worth considering in this connection:

"Here in the South the colored man can buy property in practically every section, and on easy terms, even if it is true that in some cities it has been thought proper to pass laws preventing the Negro from buying property in certain sections. But such laws, from my point of view, are not only unjust, but useless, because every biack man in the South is abie to use good common sense in selecting the place where he will live. Here in the South we are surrounded by a class of white people whom we know and who know us. I have studied the white man in many parts of the world, and I am free to say that the Southern white man, in ali that concerns the Negro's life, is wiiling to give the Negro a chance that is seldom offered him by any white man outside of the South. This I say despite the fact that I know the Negro is often imposed upon and treated with injustice."

SOME DISTINGUISHED BIBLE READERS.

The Bible was never so widely circulated as it is to-day, as is shown by the figures given on page 2 of this issue of the Advocate. It is to be feared, however, that many who would not be wiiling to be without a copy of the Book of Holy Writ, are far too negligent in reading it. But there are not a few of the world's foremost men who, amid their pressing duties, find time to read a portion of the Holy Scriptures every day. As tending to confirm this statement, we quote the following from "The Religious World" Department of The Times-Picayune, which is conducted by Mr. William T. Ellis:

"Recent British publications have borne witness to the habits of daily devotions of the late Lord Roberts, of Admiral Fisher and of Lord Kitchener, commanders respectively of the fleet and the army. That the King of England himself is a daiiy reader of the Bible is shown by a letter from his private secretary, Lord Knollys, to an inquirer:

"'I have had the honor of submitting your letter to the king, and am directed to inform you in reply that it is quite true that he promised Queen Alexandra as long ago as 1881 that he would read a chapter of the Bible daiiy, and that he has ever since adhered to his promise.'"

A SPLENDID TRIBUTE TO MR. BRYAN.

In a Washington letter to a recent issue of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, Daisy Fitzhugh Ayres thus refers to Mr. W. J. Bryan, Secretary of State of the present National Administration:

"The Secretary of State came to our studio dance the other afternoon only he came after the dancing was all done. Or, rather, the dancing was all over as soon as the phantom footfall of our peerless one was even faintly suspected upon the stair. Because, you know, nobody dast to dance or drink or cuss or smoke or throw stones or kiss the girls when Mr. Bryan is on the grounds.

"No indeedy! He don't stand for no monkey-business like that—Billy don't. He's mighty particular about us. It's killingly funny to see the young folks stand in awe, and stop red-handed, hot-footed in the middle of the most inspiring fox-trot, when the word goes forth, 'the Philistines be upon us!'

"The Secretary of State had been invited to the studio that afternoon, for a private view of himself. As big as life and half as handsome, in canvass and oils, our premier reposed upon an easel in a strong northern light, fresh from the palette of Mr. Michel Jacobs, an attractive young artist of Paris and Washington, and the rest of the world."

If what is here said concerning Mr. Bryan is true, it is certainly very much to his credit. Whatever may be his proper rank as a statesman, we are, as we have before said. Inclined to believe that of all our noted public men, this distinguished son of Nebraska is the most pronounced and consistent in his Christian life. Would that many more of those in high public places were like him in this respect! Though it is scarcely to be thought that she intended to do so, the correspondent of The Times-Picayune in the foregoing reference paid Mr. Bryan a very lofty tribute.

THE FACTIONS IN MEXICO.

The situation in Mexico is so chaotic that it is very difficult to obtain clear and dependable information from that torn and distracted land. The following statement recently contained in a dispatch to the New York Times, for which we are indebted to The Literary Digest, seems to be somewhat more definite than most of the news dealing with Mexican affairs published in the daily papers:

"The five factions operating in the field consist of the Villa-Zapata coalition, controlling a broad strip running south from the American border to Southern Mexico; the Carranza forces, which occupy the eastern seaboard and some garrisons on the west coast; the forces of Gen. Eulalio Gutierrez, occupying portions of the States of San Luis Potosi and Nuevo Leon; the bands of Gen. Inez Salazar, operating in the States of Chihuahua and Sonora in the vicinity of the Mexican Northwestern Railroad; and independent troops of the State of Yucatan, in revolt against Carranza and not affiliated with any other faction."

THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL.

The meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, lately held in Little Rock, Ark., was an occasion of much interest. The address of Miss Belle Bennett, the President, was a strong and suggestive utterance. Mrs. F. S. Parker, of Nashville, Tenn., performed the duties of secretary with her accustomed tact and skill. The reports of the various officers were full of interest and showed the work to be in an encouraging condition, though suffering to some extent as a result of the situation produced by the great European war. The special devotional services were in charge of Mr. S. D. Gordon, and Dr. Josiah Strong, of New York, was present and delivered some informing and helpful messages. There were nine young ladies desiring to go to the foreign field, among them being Miss Olive Watkins Lipscomb, a daughter of the late Rev. G. H. Lipscomb of the North Mississippi Conference. There were ten candidates for places as deaconesses, and in the number was included Miss Maud Fail, of North Mississippi. The pledges taken on Tuesday night, April 20, footed up to the sum of $224,520. The Conferences in the Advocate's territory promised the following amounts: Louisiana, $4125; Mississippi, $5000; North Mississippi $4500. The next session of the Council will be held in Atlanta, Ga.

LAW ENFORCEMENT IN VICKSBURG.

Ever since the State prohibition law went into effect in Mississippi there has been more or less complaint concerning its violation in Vicksburg, and within recent months there seems to have been a good deal more lawlessness than usual in that historic city. This has led the ministers and other good citizens there to inaugurate a fight for the betterment of conditions, and this movement has been ably supported by the Vicksburg Herald, which is controlled by Capt. J. S. McNeily, the most brilliant editor in Mississippi and one of the ablest writers in the South. We scarcely need to say that our two pastors in Vicksburg, Dr. T. B. Holloman and Rev. L. L. Roberts, are making their influence felt in this campaign for civic righteousness. Vicksburg is in many respects one of the most interesting cities in the United States, and we sincerely hope that the moral element of its citizenship will succeed in wiping out the disregard for law and order which is giving it an unenviable name abroad. Such a state of affairs as has been described as existing there is a reproach to any people.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Bishop J. C. Kilgo has recently led a successful revival campaign in Waco, Texas. When on his way to the Lone Star State, the Bishop spent a Sabbath in Shreveport, La., where he delighted our First Church congregation with his preaching.

In a business note to our office, bringing us some subscriptions, Rev. A. L. Davenport, of Walnut, Miss., says: "The work is moving along nicely on the Chaiybeate Circuit." We are pleased to know that this faithful pastor is having a good year.

The contract was let for a new church in De Ridder, La., on April 23 and the work of construction will begin at once. Rev. W. S. Henry, the popular pastor of this congregation, is activo in carrying forward all the interests of the Kingdom.

Our esteemed brother, Rev. J. H. Foreman, of Silver City, Miss., sent us a few days since 5 new and 3 renewal subscriptions, for which we extend him our thanks. It scarcely needs to be said that Brother Foreman is giving a good account of himself in his present field of labor.

Rev. J. T. Abney, of Bay Springs, Miss., in a communication bringing us some names for our mailing files, appends the following note: "The work in this charge is moving along smoothly. We are having large congregations, and the indications are that things are on an upward trend."

We acknowledge the reception of an attractive card from Rev. and Mrs. Francis R. Power announcing the arrival in their parsonage home at Pelican, La., of a babe, Annyemaye Power, on April 21, 1915. We extend congratulations to the happy parents, and pray God's richest blessings on the little one.

Rev. C. T. Floyd, of Abbeville, Miss., reports that his work is progressing favorably and that the outlook is quite hopeful. Brother Floyd has been looking after the interests of the Conference organ in his field, and we acknowledge ourselves indebted to him for a club of 6 subscriptions, forwarded on April 17.

The Board of Trustees of Centenary College met in Shreveport, La., this week. Rev. W. W. Drake and Rev. W. W. Holmes, of this city, attended. Brother Holmes went by way of Ruston, that he might fellowship for a brief season with his former parishioners and many friends in that progressive Methodist center.

We are informed that the Missionary Institute recently held at Boyce, La., was a great success. Among the best features of the occasion was a spiritual and inspirational address by Mr. T. W. Holloman and a delightful and helpful talk by Mrs. G. E. Cameron on "How to Increase Missionary Interest in our Sunday Schools."

Rev. I. T. Reames, pastor of the Queenshorough Church, Shreveport, La., finds much to keep him busy in his developing field. Notwithstanding the prevailing business depression, $300 has been raised on the church debt since Conference, and he is hopeful of wiping out the remainder of the indebtedness on his house of worship by the close of the year.

Referring to the recent session of the Gallatin (Tenn.) District Conference, the Midland Methodist says: "Bishop Murrah presided on Saturday and preached on Saturday and Sunday, and the session was a most profitable one. The Bishop was in a happy mood, and to say that the people enjoyed his visit and preaching would be to make a mild statement. Bishop Murrah is very popular in the Tennessee Conference."

Dr. A. F. Watkins, President of Millsaps College, left Jackson for Chattanooga, Tenn., last Monday, where he will attend the Southern Educational Conference, now in session in that city, of which body he is Secretary. Referring to the work at Millsaps College in a note to the Editor, Dr. Watkins says: "The college is doing well. I think that we are winding up one of the best sessions in the history of the institution."

Rev. H. W. May, presiding elder of the Alexandria District, writes as follows: "A site for the erection of a church has recently been secured at Reaves, La., a new sawmill and turpentine town, and a building committee has been appointed. I am planning for a revival campaign there in the month of May. The preachers of this district are happy and hard at work, and a spiritual wave seems to be sweeping over our territory."

On Sunday, May 30, Dr. Stonewall Anderson will preach the Commencement sermon of Whitworth College, and on the evening of the same day Rev. H. B. Watkins, of Natchez, will preach the annual sermon for the Y. W. C. A. On Monday, May 31, Dr. E. H. Mounger will deliver the Alumnae Address, and on June 1, at 8 p. m., Dr. Stonewall Anderson will deliver the Baccalaureate Address. Whitworth is rounding out a fine session.

Our Church at Ripley, Miss., of which Rev. R. P. Neblett is the energetic pastor, is planning for a great Sunday School Rally on Tuesday evening, May 20. The principal address of the occasion will be delivered by Mr. W. A. Chisholm, a well known worker connected with the International Sunday School Association. Mr. H. R. Spight is chairman of the Committee which has in hand the work of arranging for the contemplated rally.

In a note to the Editor, Rev. Paul D. Hardin, presiding elder of the Jackson District, says: "Everything over the district is encouraging. No nobler and more faithful band of pastors can be found anywhere. I am glad to state that work has been resumed on the new Galloway Memorial Church and that this splendid structure will be pushed to an early completion." We are grateful to Brother Hardin for a cordial invitation to attend his district conference.

Bishop R. G. Waterhouse, upon the advice of his physician, has recently gone to Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., for special medical treatment. His condition is not thought to be grave, and it is expected that he will soon be able to resume his labors. We regret to know that this faithful servant of the Church has been even temporarily unwell, and we trust that he will be careful to safeguard his health until he is assured that it is perfectly restored.

Rev. Leon I. McCain, of Dubach, La., who has the good habit of making things go forward where he labors, writes: "We are making progress along all lines. Our offering for the Orphanage on Easter Sunday amounted to about $70. We have raised in full our assessments for foreign, domestic, and Conference missions, and also the whole of our Centenary Special assessment. The congregations are so large at Dubach that our present house of worship is proving inadequate."

The Commencement sermon of the Memphis Conference Female Institute, at Jackson, Tenn., will be preached on May 9 by Rev. J. H. Felts, of Corinth, Miss., and Rev. E. M. Mathis, of Henderson, Tenn., will preach at the evening hour on the same day. The Baccalaureate Address will be delivered by Dr. J. E. Winston of the University of Mississippi on May 12. There are in this institution this year fifteen candidates for literary diplomas, and several who will be awarded special diplomas and certificates.

Through the courtesy of Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Purcell, we received an attractively printed invitation to attend the Commencement exercises of the Mississippi Conference Training School, at Montrose, Miss., April 23-27. The Commencement Sermon was preached on April 25 by Rev. J. R. Jones, of Meridian, and the Epworth League Sermon by Rev. W. W. Graves, of Newton, at the evening hour of the same day. The Baccalaureate Address was delivered on Tuesday, April 27, by Mr. H. P. Heidelberg.

Rev. Stonewall Anderson, D. D., Secretary of our General Board of Education, will make an itinerary in Louisiana in the interest of the educational campaign now on in this State during the second week in May. Rev. W. W. Drake, the Conference Secretary of Education, hopes that Dr. Anderson's visit will help to so arouse the Methodists of Louisiana that they will see to an extent that they have never before done the opportunity presented in our Church schools, and the necessity of strengthening and equipping them.

The following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. J. V. Bennett, Monticello, Miss., 6; Rev. J. C. Chambers, Sumrall, Miss., 2; Rev. F. R. Power, Pelican, La., 7; Rev. R. F. Harrell, Centreville, Miss., 5; Rev. J. A. Wells, Topisaw (Miss.) charge, 2; Rev. A. J. Bonnette, Sulphur, La., 2; Rev. M. W. Porter, Harperville, Miss., 3; Rev. Paul H. Grice, Brooklyn, Miss., 6; Rev. W. W. Nelson, Pleasant Grove (Miss.) charge, 3.

As is stated in our New Orleans Notes appearing on another page, the Rayne Memorial Church, this city, is soon to be thoroughly overhauled, modernized, and generally improved. This historic church edifice is situated on the beautiful St. Charles Avenue, perhaps the finest street in any Southern city, and the Methodists of this entire section will be glad to learn that this finely located house of worship is to be made more imposing and attractive. We congratulate Dr. F. R. Hill, Jr., and his congregation upon this forward movement.

We are indebted to Mrs. Vic T. Hoyle, of Tupelo, Miss., the accomplished President of the North Mississippi Conference organization of the Woman's Missionary Society, for a copy of the handsome program of the Fifth Annual Session of the Woman's Missionary Council, which met in Little Rock, Ark., on April 14 and adjourned Wednesday of last week. The Editor was also a subscriber to The Council Daily and tried to keep up with the proceedings of that great gathering. Our Southern Methodist women are doing a magnificent work for the Master.

A letter from Rev. J. H. Holder, our pastor at Pontotoc, Miss., written from the Cragmont Sanitarium at Black Mountain, N. C., states that he is there with Sister Holder, who has been ill for quite awhile, and who will remain there for several weeks. We are pleased to know, however, that her physicians have given assurance that she will recover her health, though they state that it may take some time for her to do so. Brother Holder expects to return to Pontotoc this week and will come by Chattanooga on his way home and look in on the Southern Educational Conference, now being held there.

Dr. I. W. Cooper, President of Whitworth College, was in New Orleans last Monday and called at the Advocate office, but, much to the Editor's regret, he was not in and missed seeing him. The Doctor attended the meeting of the General Board of Education in Nashville last week, and while there sent us a post-card picture of "The Hermitage." Perhaps no man in our territory is so much in demand on Commencement occasions as is Dr. Cooper. He preached the Commencement sermon for the Vancleave (Miss.) High School last Sunday, and has had on his slate this spring some eight or ten similar engagements.

Dr. J. S. York, of Rayville, La., passed through New Orleans last week en route to the Louisiana State Medical Association in Lake Charles, and paid the Advocate office a visit; but, being absent, the Editor did not have the pleasure of seeing him. Our esteemed friend penciled on a sheet of paper on our desk the following message: "Have called to see you several times, but have not found you in. I have about come to the conclusion that this paper has no editor, but only a 'devil,' as he has been the only one I have seen." Nevertheless, we do occasionally find our way to the Advocate office, though our principal work shop is at home.

It was our pleasure to worship last Sunday morning at the Louisiana Avenue Church, of this city. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. A. J. Gearheard, who was assisting in a meeting at Slidell, La., the pulpit was filled by Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, who delivered an eloquent and informing sermon on "The Life of David Livingstone." We do not know when we have seen so many children and young people present in a congregation, and their behavior was perfect. One who discourses to such an audience from week to week certainly has an opportunity to sow seed that may produce a glorious harvest in the coming years.

From the Magnolia (Miss.) Gazette of April 21, we take the following: "According to the latest news received in Magnolia, the condition of Mrs. Geo. W. Eichelberger, formerly Miss Mattie Alford of this county, continues to be critical. Mrs. Eichelberger underwent an operation for appendicitis in Atlanta about two weeks ago, and since then has been very ill. Last week, the doctors declared that she was afflicted with pellagra in its most malignant form and that her recovery was extremely doubtful." We sympathize with Dr. Eichelberger and the relatives of his stricken wife in this time of great anxiety, and pray that they may have with them the conscious presence of the Heavenly Father. In the absence of any later information, we cannot but hope that ere this Mrs. Eichelberger's condition has materially improved.

VISITORS APPOINTED.

The following brethren have been appointed by the Executive Committee of the Board of Education of the North Mississippi Conference to act as Visitors to Grenada College and Millsaps College. They will be expected to visit these institutions during the approaching Commencement, look carefully into their affairs and report to the Conference the results of their investigations:

Visitors to Grenada College: Revs. J. M. Wyatt and R. O. Brown.

Visitors to Millsaps College: Revs. L. M. Lipscomb and W. M. Young.

FRECKLE-FACE
Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily
Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.
Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.
Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

JOHN W. ENNIS was born on August 24, 1895, and departed this life on July 15, 1914, being nearly 19 years of age. He was killed accidentally by electricity while at his post of duty. He was working for promotion and had expected to be promoted in a short time. At the time of the accident his first thought was for his mother and his young sisters and brother. He joined the Methodist Church when a small child and remained a member until his death. The remains were laid to rest at his home church in Greendale, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives all of whom loved him. We all miss him so much, and it grieves our hearts to give him up, but we sorrow not as those who have no hope.

ONE WHO LOVED HIM.

HILDRETH LEEROY BUFORD, the only child of Frank and Bell Buford, departed this life on Jan. 8, 1915. He lacked a few days of being one year old, but he had been here long enough for mother's and father's hearts to be centered in him, and for them to learn to love him dearly. All was done that skill and love could do, but to no avail. God saw fit to call him to a hetter world, and just as the sun was sinking in the west his pure spirit went back to God, who gave it. We laid his body to rest in Truslow Cemetery to await the resurrection of the dead. May God comfort the grief-stricken parents with the sweet anticipation of meeting him in the glory world, where there will no more death nor sorrow, and where God shall wipe away all tears from our eyes.

W. R. GOUDELOCK, Pastor.

On April 5, 1915, the many friends and loved ones of Campbelle Smith met at Oak Grove (Miss.) Cemetery, and laid his body away to await the resurrection morning. Brother Smith was born on June 9, 1855. Early in life he joined the Methodist Church and lived a consistent member of the same until death, part of the time serving as a steward of his Church. Brother Smith had many trials in his earthly life, but always bore his burdens without a murmur. As a citizen he was of the finest type. In December, 1884, he married Miss Bettie McLendon, and to them were given four sons and one daughter. He leaves his wife, three sons and his daughter to mourn the loss of hushand and father. He was confined many months to his room, and the greater part of the time to his bed, before his spirit took its departure to the other world; but through all his suffering, he never murmured or complained. May the Lord bless, keep and comfort the bereaved ones; and may they not weep as those without hope, but may they all he prepared to meet him in 'the By and By.'

R. H. CLEGG, Pastor.

JAMES WILLIAM PROUTY was born on May 10, 1843, near Athens, Ohio. His parents died when he was young, and he was reared in the home of Mrs. Wm. Watkins, whose husband was at one time sheriff of Bond County, Ill. Brother Prouty was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church when a young man, and when he came to Mississippi he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. In his temperament he was bright, sunny, and joyous; and whatever his cares may have been he burdened no one with them, and although he suffered much during his last sickness, he never complained. Up to the end he declared that God had been good to him, and manifested a living faith in his Redeemer. He died on March 30, 1915, and was buried the following day in the Black Water Church Cemetery in Kemper County, Miss. He leaves a faithful and devoted wife, three noble sons, and four affectionate daughters to mourn his departure. To the bereaved family, their many friends extend sympathy, and we pray God's blessings upon them, that they may be as faithful as he, and finally go to dwell with him in that land where partings never come.

C. A. SCHULTZ, Pastor.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

(Adopted by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church, Woodville, Miss.)

Whereas it has pleased our heavenly Father to call from our midst one of our best and most faithful coworkers, Mrs. F. D. Lewis, whose noble Christian life was an inspiration to all with whom she was associated;

We, the members of this Society, wish to express our love and appreciation of the beautiful life and faithful work of our president and dear friend, whom we will so greatly miss, and whose place can never be filled; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That as a Society we know that we have lost one of our most efficient members. We shall miss her words of encouragement, her wise counsel, her ready sympathy.

2. That we, her friends, extend to her sorrowing family our unbounded sympathy and trust that the knowledge of her long and useful life will alleviate the grief with which their hearts are filled.

3. That we request the publication of these resolutions in the Woodville Republican and the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and that they be placed on the records of our Society.

Signed: Mrs. N. B. Richardson, Mrs. Josie O'Fallon, Mrs. H. B. McGehee.

From the Field.

Eucutta Ct., Miss. Conf.

The second quarterly conference of the Eucutta Charge was held April 6 at New Hope Church. All the churches were represented. General conditions on the charge appear to be fairly good. Brother Geo. Thompson, our able presiding elder, preached at 11 a. m., a splendid sermon to an appreciative congregation. As chief pastor of the district, his presence is always welcomed in our charge. A recent visit from Miss Rosalie Edwards, State Sunday School Field Worker, also one on April 11 and 12 from our Field Secretary, Brother R. A. Maddox, brought messages of information and inspiration to our people at Eucutta, Goodwater, and Boyles Chapel; who had representatives present Sunday attending the institute.—Chas. E. Downer.

Houma, La.

We have just closed a meeting in Houma in which I was assisted by Rev. A. F. Vaughan of Franklin, La. In many respects this was the best revival we have ever had here in Houma. Brother Vaughan had just closed a meeting in his own church in which he had 58 accessions; so he was in good trim when he came to us. We had 19 accessions, a number of reclamations, and a spiritual quickening of the Church which is fine. Brother Louis Hoffpauir comes to me to-day for another two weeks' seige in other parts of the field. Brother Anatole Martin has had 8 accessions over in Lafourche this year. Brother Martin Hebert spent about three days with us, but was called back to his work.

April 20. C. V. BREITHAUPT.

Pachuta, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are in the midst of the greatest meeting that has ever been held in the town of Pachuta. The preaching is being done by Rev. D. E. Kelly, Conference evangelist of the Mississippi Conference, and the music is in charge of Brother John Kelly, of Gloster, Miss. There has never been anything like this meeting in this country—never such crowds of people, never such interest, never so many conversions, reclamations, confessions, and restitutions. All who had differences have made friends, burying their old hatchets, and everybody loves everybody else. The first time the door of the church was opened 25 joined, nearly all on profession of faith. Glory to God for such preachers as Brother Kelly. The meeting will close some time during the week, and Brother Kelly will go to assist Brother Jim Lewis, at Slidell, La.—A. B. Barry, P.C.

April 19, 1915.

New Albany, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We closed our revival services here on Tuesday night, April 20, Brother J. A. Bowen was with us through the whole of the meeting, and rendered most acceptable service as a preacher, personal worker, and in the social circle. The meeting was deep and far-reaching, and the spirit of Christian fellowship and Christly love was the most pronounced I ever witnessed. Men often wept out of a sense of his great love for them. I was constantly reminded of Paul's words: "The love of Christ constraineth me." We saw in this meeting the vast difference between flattery and encouragement. Brother Bowen doesn't flatter, but encourages the saints; he denounces sin, but in a way not often heard. The vision of Love eternal, of eternal divine longing for the salvation of this world is never allowed to fade from the mind. I have also had this other truth impressed on my heart, namely, IT TAKES A HEART OF LOVE TO REALLY PREACH A GOSPEL OF LOVE. But given a heart of real burning, self-sacrificing love preaching God's great gospel of love—you have that that will win. It has won with us; it has won elsewhere; it will win everywhere. Eighteen were received into the Church Sunday morning, and there will be possibly 25 in all. Things go well with us here. Our people are faithful, loyal, and aggressive. This is a delightful church to serve.—S. L. Pope.

South Mansfield, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: At the last session of our Annual Conference I was read out for South Mansfield. This is a mission field—a saw mill town and an oil field. There was no organization at the oil field. The hills were dotted with tents, very few people living in houses. During the first three months we had rain and mud in abundance; but now we have dust and we need rain. Early in the year Brother T. H. Morris, the pastor at First Church in the town of Mansfield, arranged with me to get the evangelist Rev. J. E. Green of Houston, Tex., to hold a tent meeting at Naborton, the oil field appointment; and then at Mansfield, finishing up the campaign at South Mansfield. The tent arrived and was put up on April 3, and Brother Green being present began the meeting that night. The congregation was small at first but the crowd increased and on the last night of the meeting the tent was full. Brother Green did the preaching to the satisfaction of all, Brother Morris assisting him with his presence, prayers and several good talks. We closed the meeting on the night of April 16, with 25 accessions to the Church, and we organized the church with that number. Brother Green is now assisting Brother Morris at Mansfield and we look for him at South Mansfield about May 1. In conclusion I will say that Rev. T. H. Morris planned the campaign and stood by it. He had great faith in it and put forth earnest efforts, which of course resulted in victory. When the campaign is finished I think we will have more good news to write. The end is not yet.—S. S. Holladay, P. C.

MEETING AT COLUMBIA, MISS.

On Sunday, April 11, we closed a two weeks' series of revival services, in Columbia, Miss. Rev. W. B. Hogg, and Rev. W. J. Ferguson, our helpers, did good preaching, each in his own unique way. Both of these brethren are earnest and spiritual men.

The meeting did not reach out much in the way of gaining members, but much good was done in the churches, which was needed and will abide. Four adults were added to the Church and about 30 children from our Sunday school, between the ages of seven and eleven years, became applicants for membership. These will be received as soon as the pastor is satisfied as to their having a fair understanding of the step to be taken—some earlier and some later according to their ages and mental and spiritual development. They will be kept under special pastoral supervision and training until their reception, and then put in charge of a class leader

The other Churches here—Baptist and Presbyterian—showed a brotherly interest in the meeting. Rev. Zeno Wall, the Baptist pastor, very rarely missed a service, while the Rev. Mr. Bowling, of the Presbyterian Church, attended most of the time. This we appreciated. M. B. SHARBROUGH.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Send Children's Day money to Rev. V. C. Curtis, Lexington, Miss.

Como has paid $24, the full assessment for the work of the Sunday School Board. Lexington has paid $10. The work has been going nearly five months and these are the only churches that have paid anything so far.

Myrtle Circuit has a large membership. The Sunday school workers under the leadership of Rev. E. H. Cunningham will never take a vacation until the entire membership has an invitation to join the Sunday school. Myrtle takes her place in the standard class.

Of course, Oxford is in the standard class. This church has the best of preachers to look after its varied and growing interests. The Sunday school is richly endowed with the full, ripe Christian life of Dr. A. W. Melden, the superintendent. The Oxford church is alive to the fact that it touches the life of our entire State.

The Greenville district leads the Conference in Sunday school work. The membership of the church is only three hundred more than are in the different departments of the Sunday school. Only four churches are without Sunday schools. Brother Lagrone has put Clarksdaie in the standard class. He is correct in believing that he has one of the best schools in the Conference.

IN THE OLD DAYS.

How close to our hearts are the memories of our childhood. When you were a barefooted little urchin running in the grass, and munching green apples, you were abie to digest anything and feel all right the next day. Sunshine and good air gave you an appetite. For many peopie it is impossible to get out in the sunshine and good air, and for those who are doomed to sit for hours within four walls, perhaps alongside of consumptives or those suffering from catarrh or other disease, it means sickness and ill-health. Indigestion is only one of the many symptoms of impure biood as weil as a disordered condition of the stomach. Fifty years ago, Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., found that certain barks and roots manufactured by using glycerine without the use of alcohol or opiates, made into a concentrated extract, which he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, made a stimuiating tonic for the stomach, helped the digestion and assimilation of the food and eradicated poisons from the biood. This is nature's cure for indigestion, and by correcting the stomach, and thereby feeding the biood on pure materials, the red biood corpuscies are increased and the body established in a healthy state. No one suffers from catarrh who has plenty of red biood corpuscies and a good digestion. Catarrh in all its forms is a stagnation of the blood. Introduce pure red biood into the system by taking the "Medical Discovery" and health is assured. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has borne the stamp of public approval for nearly half a century, and will do more to improve the health than any other remedy.—Adv.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the best laxative and liver regulator, cures constipation, biliousness and headache.

WINONA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

All who expect to attend the Winona District Conference at Drew, May 28-30, will please send me at once their names and let me know on what train they will arrive. We have each day two trains going South, one at 6:55 a. m. and one at 4:50 p. m., and two going North, one at 9:45 a. m. and one at 7:40 p. m. Let each pastor let me know how many will come from his charge. You, Mr. Editor, the old pastors of the Church here, and the presiding elders of the Conference have a special invitation, and all others from out the district that can come will be welcome. Come praying for a good meeting, brethren.

CORINTH DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Corinth District Conference will be held at Ripley, Miss., May 20-23. Rev. W. D. McCullough will preach Thursday at 7:30 o'clock p.m. On Friday at 8:30 a. m. the business session will begin. Bishop Waterhouse is to preside. The following committees are appointed:

For License to Preach and Admission on Trial—L. M. Lipscomb, S. L. Pope, E. H. Cunningham.

For Deacon's and Elder's Orders—J. H. Felts, W. C. Carlisle, D. L. Cogdell.

Come up, Mr. Editor, and be with us at the conference.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT NOTES.

In the Parker Memorial Sunday School 218 were present on April 18. Only two teachers were absent, and one of those was out of the city.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard is assisting Rev. D. L. Griffin in a meeting at Slidell. In his absence Sunday, the presiding elder preached at the Louisiana Avenue Church at the morning hour, and Rev. W. G. Evans filled the pulpit at night.

On Sunday, April 18, five persons were received into the Louisiana Avenue Methodist Church, one by letter and four upon profession of faith. As an evidence of her lively interest in church affairs, one of these, Mrs. Evans, at once subscribed to the Advocate.

In this connection, Rev. T. V. Peters he baptized an infant recently and that stated at the Preachers' Meeting that the parents subscribed to the Advocate. May the good work go on, not only in baptizing infants and receiving persons in the Church, but also in placing such good and instructive reading in the Methodist homes of the city.

Plans are now being made for the payment of the indebtedness on the Rayne Memorial parsonage and an extensive remodeling of the church building. It is said that it will be practically a new structure, "scarcely recognizable" as the house of worship which has stood so long at the corner of St. Charles Avenue and General Taylor Street.

After the session of the District Conference, Rev. W. W. Holmes appointed Rev. F. R. Hill, Jr., Rev. A. J. Gearheard, and Rev. T. V. Peters, a Missionary Committee to consider beginning Christian work in Amesville and Harvey. They report that the services of Miss Winnie Thorton, of the McDonoghville Church, have been secured, and that she is now engaged in a house-to-house canvass in the field named.

The meeting of the District Sunday School Union, Tuesday evening, at Rayne Memorial, was well attended. Interesting talks on different phases of Sunday school work were made. The Union moved to suggest to all the schools May 22 as a union day for a picnic at City Park, and it is probable that all the schools will act upon the suggestion. It is also expected that sports will be arranged in which representatives from the various schools will participate.

The Carrollton Avenue Sunday school broke all its former records on April 18, with an attendance of 172. On Easter the school raised $42 for the Orphanage. On that day the church raised over $850 as an Easter offering on the church debt. Ten persons were received into the Church, three by letter, and seven upon profession of faith. This makes the total of those received by the Carrollton Church to date, twenty-seven. Once a month the prayer meeting service is given to the study of Missions —the "Call of the World" is the book used.

"He that prayeth for another is heard for himself."

THE BIBLE IN THE PHILIPPINES.

In the Philippines, very many different languages and dialects are current among the islands of that great archipelago. Tagalog, however, is the chief language in Manila, and the central provinces of Luzon, as well as in many of the smaller islands, and is spoken altogether by about 1,500,000 people. The complete Bible in Tagalog was the earliest to be printed in any language of the Philippines, and was first published at Manila in 1905. Since that date, the Old Testament has been revised by the Rev. C. N. Magill of the American Presbyterian Mission, who has been assisted in his task by educated Filipinos. He has also prepared a set of references for the New Testament, in the text of which he has made certain necessary corrections. This revised Bible is now being printed.

WHEN EVERY EFFORT TIRES YOU OUT

Don't let the idea that you may feel better in a day or two prevent you from getting a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla today and being at once on the road to health and strength.

Your blood is impure and impoverished. It lacks vitality. Your digestion is poor, and all the functions of your body are impaired..

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla. It will build you up quicker than anything else. It gives strength to do and power to endure.

DANGER FROM LITTLE WOUNDS.

A little cut or wound that looks trivial frequently develops into a serious and possibly fatal case of blood poisoning. Don't take any risk. Apply a little Gray's Ointment—it speedily heals the wound and leaves you safe and sound. Gray's Ointment is the time-tested cure for sores, boils, carbuncles, cuts, bruises, burns, and all skin abrasions and eruptions. It was discovered in 1820—for nearly a century an indispensable household remedy the country over. Keep a box in the house. It heals the little troubles and prevents the big ones. Only 25c a box—at druggists—and it will save you many an ache and possibly a life. Get a free sample by writing W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Since Jan. 1 three adult Koreans have been baptized at our San Francisco Korean mission, eight men and an infant at the Sacramento Korean mission, and two adult Japanese, man and wife, at the Walnut Grove mission—thirteen adults and one child. We hope these are but drops preceding a plenteous shower.—William Acton, San Francisco.

MISS MARY ELIZABETH SMITH DEAD.

Our beloved deaconess, Miss Mary E. Smith, passed from her earthly father's home to her Heavenly Father's home on Wednesday, March 31, after a protracted illness. She was consecrated a deaconess by Bishop Ward at Houston, Texas, in 1908 and served three years as head resident of the Wesley House, at Louisville, Ky., and for eighteen months as Church deaconess at St. John's, St. Louis, Mo. She was given a year's leave of absence for study and matriculated at Chicago University in the fall of 1913, but was unable to enter upon the work. As the author of "In Bethany House" she is known throughout the country.

A PEACE MOVEMENT AMONG CHRISTIAN WOMEN.

If sounds of war be borne to us on every breeze, nevertheless peace is in the air, for never before have so many minds and hearts been concerned with the means of bringing about the reign of love heralded by the Prince of Peace nearly two score centuries ago.

The minds of the people being diverse, the methods vary according to the spirit of the seekers, and there are various organizations and movements, all with the same object. The latest endeavor comes from the Christian women of America, beginning with those who have long had the world vision of a federation of all nations in the Church of Christ, in the missionary societies.

Realizing as they do the futility of anything savoring of political effort at this time when the neutrality of America is its greatest asset, they have asked themselves what they can do to bring about the desired end. Clearly the answer has come that only through the spirit of God can such a consummation be attained, and so they have planned to make use of their strong, ready forged weapons, prayer and persuasion.

To this end they have formed a Christian Woman's Peace Movement, whose object is to stimulate existing organizations and individuals to work for peace along these lines. When it is asked what women can do, they reply with a number of suggestions which are available for everyone, hoping that the sense of united effort will have its influnece upon those who have sat still wishing they could do something to stay the horrors of war, yet feeling their powerlessness.

First of all, they urge all women to cultivate a spirit of love and peace, laying aside all race prejudice and bitterness against any nation or nations, since each thinks the right is on its side. A study of the New Testament and its ideals of peace will help to this end. They can talk peace or write for peace, distribute literature and call attention to articles and books on the subject, all of which will create public sentiment. Above all they can pray without ceasing for the blessing of peace.

Not the least of the possibilities is the teaching of children that heroism is not a part of war alone, but that peace has heroes unnumbered quite as worthy of emulation, and that patriotism may be shown in many ways. One way in which this can be done is by means of a Pageant of Peace, which has been arranged and may be presented in every town and city, being adaptable to places of all sizes.

The missionary societies of all the Churches are in sympathy with this work, and it is asked that each one of them shall devote a portion of every meeting to prayer for peace and something to direct the thoughts to this end. The first specific request that is made is to have the ministers of all the Churches preach on peace on Memorial Sunday. When it is remembered that there are 700,000 ministers in the United States, the tremendous force they could exert will be understood.

A call for a day of prayer for peace on the Fourth of July is going out through the various woman's missionary boards, hoping that the thought of what peace has done for our country will stimulate others. As there are more than 3,000,000 women enrolled in the foreign missiouary societies of America alone the possibilities before them are seen. There is nothing in the program that the most retiring woman cannot attempt, nor is there any limit to the scope of the influence the most active may exert. It is a call to the women of America of every creed, of every race affiliation and of every class. "Peace in our time, O Lord," is the prayer they breathe. And prayer is an immeasurable force.—"Federation Bulletin," by request of Mrs. H. W. Peabody, Beverly, Mass.

THE DEMAND AND THE SUPPLY.

One-third of our working force in Brazil has dropped from the ranks during the past year. It would require ten new workers to restore us to our regular number.

Korea is calling this year for three evangelistic workers, three nurses, and two teachers.

China asks for three evangelistic workers, three teachers, three schools, one doctor and one nurse.

Japan wants two evangelists and the demand is repeated and urgent.

This is a total of 28 new workers needed to keep our work upon its present basis of efficiency. We are sending out only nine missionaries to recruit the ranks. The supply is only one-third of the demand. Our demand is for strong, well equipped young women and the money for their support.—Council Daily.

MISS BENNETT'S MESSAGE TO THE COUNCIL MEETING IN LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

After briefly discussing the meaning of organic union Miss Bennett made a plea for unity of spirit in our new order of work. She dwelt with earnestness upon the need of united and self-sacrificing effort as we face the great world crisis. Her one recommendation was: A campaign of church-wide organization:

"The task committed to us is one the angels in heaven might covet, and our divine Leader is saying to us as he did to his chosen people of old: 'Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward.' We must advance. I come to you therefore in this message with one insistent appeal. Let this historic Council meeting be further marked as the beginning of a church-wide campaign of organization. Here and now draft and mature plans, and go back to your Conferences to make the remaining months of this calendar year memorable as the greatest season of united successful effort in organizing missionary auxiliaries in unorganized congregations, the church has ever known. 'We can do it if we will.' May I not add, 'We can do it and we will?'"

From Miss Bennett's message we find that there are 12,000 congregations in our connection without missionary societies. No wonder she had the vision of campaign organization! In 1900, the assessment on the membership of the entire church for foreign missions was but twenty-nine and two-thirds cents per member. In 1914 the assessment had slightly increased, but the membership had grown until we averaged less than twenty cents per member.

The message closed with the following words:

"The Woman's Missionary Society is your organization called into existence by your prayers, in answer to the appeal of our Lord Jesus Christ. An hour of crisis has come and he still appeals for your help and mine.

He cannot fail us. God grant that we may not fail him."

PROTECT THE POULTRY.

Every poultry raiser should, if possible, raise several times as many fowls as he knows he will require for the following year—this gives him a better chance for selection in the fall. Greatest care should be taken in the prevention of disease. The following directions are safe and reliable for keeping fowls sturdy, to better enable them to resist White Diarrhoea, Diarrhoea from Indigestion, Cholera, Roup, Limberneck, Gapes and Worms. Thoroughly mix one teaspoonful Merry War Lye in two gallons of drinking water. Or it may be mixed with dry feed or mash by thoroughly dissolving one teaspoonful of Merry War Lye in one pint of water, which should then be stirred into two gallons of dry feed or mash. Feed regularly. Poultry raisers who have tried this simple and inexpensive treatment are enthusiastic in its praise.

WHITE FLOATING SOAP.

You will never know how great is the satisfaction of using a mild, home made, white soap that floats, until you have tried it. Easy to make, too: just put two quarts melted grease into a kettle; then stir one can of Merry War Lye which has previously been dissolved in a quart of hot water and allowed to cool until luke warm, into the grease; add immediately one cup of ammonia and two tablespoonfuls of borax dissolved in half cup of warm water. Stir five minutes; beat the warm soap until it is too stiff to be handled, and put away to cool. Do not use until four weeks old. (All soap improves with age). This formula which is so simple that anyone can follow it makes, at small cost, a batch of excellent floating soap which will give the greatest satisfaction in use.

CALOMEL WHEN BILIOUS? NO! STOP! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Is Harmless To Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

SINCE CONFERENCE.

By Rev. H. H. Lewis, Sr.

Mrs. Martha R. Howard, widow of the late Rev. P. Howard of the Mississippi Conference, was married early in the year to Mr. Owens.

Rev. Ralph Bradley, one of the superannuated brethren of the Mississippi Conference, is supplying a charge in the North Mississippi Conference. Some of our old "war horses" are still able to do effective work.

Brother S. M. Thames, a retired member of the North Mississippi Conference, is now making his home in Jackson, and lives out on West Street, not far from Millsaps College.

Dr. W. G. Henry, our pastor of the Galloway Memorial Church, was recently called to the funeral of his mother. He is passing through an experience I had to undergo more than forty years ago. Precious mother! Mother in Glory! Name and thought so sacred.

Two from the Honor Roll of our Conference, Dr. W. C. Black and Rev. J. S. Parker, have answered to the roll call from on High.

The protestant ministers of Vicksburg are bending their efforts towards the proper enforcement of the prohibition laws of the State in that city. Our preachers are always strong champions of law-abiding-citizenship.

Whole Family Benefited By Wonderful Remedy

There are many little things to annoy us, under present conditions of life. The hurry, hard work, noise and strain all tell on us and tend to provoke nervousness and irritability.. We are frequently so worn out we can neither eat, sleep nor work with any comfort. We are out of line with ourselves and others as well.

A good thing to do under such circumstances is to take something like to relieve the strain on the nerves. Mrs. J. B. Hartsfield, 82 Plum St., Atlanta Ga., writes:

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

"I have on several occasions been vastly relieved by the use of your medicines, especially the Anti-Pain Pills, which I keep constantly on hand for the use of myself, husband and two sons. Nothing in the world equals them as a headache remedy. Often I am enabled by the use of one or two of the Pills to continue my housework when otherwise I would be in bed. My husband joins me in my praise of the Anti-Pain Pills and Nervine."

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

are relied upon to relieve pain, nervousness and irritability in thousands of households. Of proven merit after twenty years' use, you can have no reason for being longer without them.

At all Druggists, 25 doses 25 cents.

TO THE EPWORTH LEAGUES OF NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

Attention is hereby called to three things:

1. To "Anniversary Day," the second Sunday in May, which is to celebrate the beginning of the Epworth League in May, 1890, and to help you in bringing the League to the attention of your people, as well as to provide funds for the future work, both for the Central Office and for your Conference League Board. W. E. Kenedy, Columbus, Miss., is the Treasurer to whom money should be sent. See Era of April, page 132.

2. Learn what "C. M. F." means. See Era of February, page 323. Send in your "Chapter Membership Fee" and get your Certificate from the Central Office. This takes the place of the "Ten-Cent-Assessment" and dignifies the work of the League and gives you license to carry on the work in your local Chapter.

3. Plan at once to have one or more representatives at the "League Conference," at Grenada, June 7-10. There will be a good program, good music. We will meet in a good town, and we hope for good weather. Do not neglect this important matter. It will mean life to your League as well as prove that your League has life.

Renew Your Health
At Nature's Fountain

Without the Expense and Loss of Time Necessary for a Visit to the Spring

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about as much harm as good for their systems rebel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. I do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read my answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

I have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for to it I owe my Restoration to Health and probably my Life. It has made me tens of thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries, whose faces I have never seen. Yet I count them my friends for the Shivar Spring Water has bound them to me by lasting gratitude.

I ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which I publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health do not hesitate to accept my offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon. If you could read the letters that come to me daily, numbering about ten thousand a year, and the vast majority of them similar to those printed below, you would not wonder that I make this offer displaying my absolute confidence in the restorative powers of Shivar Mineral Water.

INDIGESTION

Savannah, Georgia.
I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

La Grange, Ga., Nov. 25, 1914.
I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to make public announcement of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for the past twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen ponnds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this Water to any one with stomach trouble of any character, and truly believe it will cnre nlcer of the stomach. I am writing this volnntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to he afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia.
C. V. TRUITT,
President Unity Cotton Mills.

Johnston, S. C.
I wish to add my testimony to the wonderful curative powers of the Shivar Mineral Water. For a nnmber of years my wife has heen a sufferer from indigestion and nervons debility, and her condition had reached such a stage as to hafle the skill of our most eminent physicians. Her extreme nervousness and heart troubles at times were alarming and she had become almost a nervous wreck. The latter part of last May she hegan using the Shivar Water, which she has continued to this date with most satisfactory results.
H. C. BAILEY,
Editor Johnston News-Monitor.

DYSPEPSIA

Blaney, S. C.
I have suffered for many years from gastric tronhles, stomach puffed and food sour. I have tried many remedies and a good many waters. Some have helped, hut none have given me snch relief as yonr Spring Water. I use it and recommend it to my patients.
W. D. GRIGGSBY, M. D.

Baltimore, Md., April 30, 1914.
For many years I suffered with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in tbis conntry, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold ofone of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfuliy recommend the nse of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble.
OSCAR T. SMITH,
Vice-Pres. Young & Selden Co., Bank Stationers.

RHEUMATISM

Leeds, S. C.
I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and hladder tronhles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find tbat it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and hladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.
C. A. CROSBY, M. D.

Fredericksburg, Va.
Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints upon her hands, caused by rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement.
WM. C. CARTER.

Roper, N. C., Oct. 30, 1914.
I am anxious to get more of the Water. It has done me more good than anything I have ever tried for rheumatism.
MRS. H. C. EDWARDS.

Florence, S. C., Dec. 1, 1911.
I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble, and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your Spring Water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it.
MRS. THEO. KUKER.

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 24, 1914.
It is doing my rheumatism so much good. My limbs are beginning to feel like new ones.
MRS. JAMES R. CARTER.

BILIOUSNESS

Greenville, S. C., Feb. 26, 1914.
For over two years, following a nervous breakdown, I have suffered with a liver so torpid that ordinary remedies were absolutely powerless. Under such circumstances, I came to Shivar Spring, and began drinking the Water. Upon advice however, the first night I took a laxative; the second night a milder one. Since then I have taken none at all. The effect of the water bas been remarkable—its action on my livermost marked, and my health and spirits greatly improved. I am satisfied that the laxative, followed by the Water, was the proper treatment in my case. My condition is now perfect.
S. A. DERIEUX.

Buena Vista, Va., Oct. 2, 1914.
It is a great pleasure to tell you that your Water has heeh a great benefit, I may say a great hiessing, to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble.
REV. E. H. ROWE,
Co-President Southern Seminary.

LIVER AND KIDNEY

Ohoopee, Ga., Aug. 21, 1914.
I feel that it is due you that I should give my testimony, unsolicited, as to the benefits derived from the use of your Shivar Springs Water. I was unable to do my work, and had been under the treatment of physicians for six months for kidney and liver troubles when I decided to try your Spring Water, and now after using it for about thirty days I am able to do my work, feel good, and have gained about twenty pounds. I most heartily recommend its use to all who suffer from disorder of the liver and kidneys.
M. L. STEPHENS.

Carlisle, S. C.
It is fine for liver tronhles, also for constipation. I cheerfully give you this information as to beneficial results in my case.
REV. A. McA. PITTMAN.

RENAL AND CYSTIC

Colnmbia, S. C.
I suffered for eight years with kidney tronble and inflammation of the hladder to the extent that I would have to get up during the night some five or six times. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever.
J. P. D.

Virginina, Va., March 28, 1914.
Your Water has done me more good than anything I ever tried for hladder trouble.
A. R. F.

Wesley, Ga., May 12, 1914.
I had been down with hladder tronble. Couldn't stand on my feet three minntes at a time. In three days after I commenced drinking your Mineral Water my pain was all gone, could walk where I pleased, and felt like a new man.
S. B. D.

High Point, N. C., Oct. 6, 1914.
My wife has had a had kidney trouble for several years. She has been using the water only about three weeks and it has already made her a new woman. Her color is much improved her appetite is all that she could wish for, her digestion seems to be perfect. We give Shivar Springs credit for it all.
T. G. S.

GALLSTONES

Greenville, S. C.
Shivar Spring Water cured my mother of gallstones, or, I might say, it snatched her from the hospital door, as the doctors had said nothing short of an operation would do her any good. After drinking the Water she was able to get out of bed, and is today stout and healthy. I hope these few lines will be of help to some one suffering as my mother did.
W. J. STRAWN.

Williamston, N. C. Oct. 8, 1914
My doctor said I would have to he operated on for gallstones, hut since I have heen drinking your water I haven't had to have a doctor.
W. H. EDWARDS.

Colnmbia, S. C.
My wife was a chronic sufferer from gallstones. She was stricken critically ill, and nothing but morphine seemed to relieve her pain by rendering her unconscious. My physician, who is a good one, seemed to do very little good. Rev. A. J. Foster, pastor of Sbandon Baptist Church of Columbia, S. C., advised me to take her immediately to Shivar Spring. On consulting my physician he agreed that it would be best to do so without delay. In about three days after arriving at the Spring she was apparently relieved and had regained her appetite. She has suffered no ill effect of the trouble since. Please publish this for the benefit of sufferers
J. P. DRAFFIN.

URIC ACID & DIABETES

Chancellor, Ala.
I have heen for many years affected with uric acid and kidney trouble, and the Mineral Water has helped me more than anything I have ever done for them and therefore heartily recommend same to all who need a speedy relief and cure.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 62.—No. 18. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3089.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, MAY 6, 1915. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

Editorial

The best place to start a revival is in one's own heart.

* * *

More field hands are urgently needed in the Church, but of officials and dress paraders we have "a plenty and to spare."

* * *

"According to your faith, be it unto you," is the law of the spiritual kingdom. If we believe but little, we can accomplish but little religiously either for ourselves or others.

* * *

Martin Luther said that the doctrine, "The just shall live by faith," was to him "the gate to paradise." Such it has been to discerning, seeking souls in all the ages. The mightiest movements of Christianity have found their origin and inspiration in this great truth. Luther learned it from the writings of Paul, and Wesley from the writings of Luther. The wonder is that the Church should ever have allowed this fundamental doctrine to have become so obscured that it needed to be re-discovered. But men seem to be more blind to the simple, spiritual truths of Christianity than to anything else. It is not unusual for them to stand poverty-stricken amid the rich glories of the Christian faith, without seeing or appropriating them.

We have noticed of late that politicians addressing religious assemblies seem to be given to a voluble advocacy of Church union. This can scarcely be said to be surprising. The average politician doesn't care enough about the Churches to bother himself about the things for which they stand. In the same address in a Campbellite Church in this city on a recent Sabbath evening, Speaker Champ Clark was reported as expressing the hope that the prize fight in Havana would come out right and stating that the Northern and Southern Methodists ought to unite. But even this was somewhat better than he since did in an attempted lecture in Little Rock, if we may believe the statement concerning his effort there which appeared in a late number of the Western Methodist.

* * *

The opinion seems to prevail to some extent that scholarship and religious liberalism go hand in hand, but this is not true. Perhaps the best educated ministry in the South is that of the Presbyterian Church, which, so far as we are able to judge, is quite orthodox. The right kind of education is a safeguard against the subtle snares of modern unbelief. The trouble with Methodism, North and South, within recent years has been that its theological teaching has been too much tinctured with German rationalism. Orthodox Southern Methodists, who are in an overwhelming majority, should see that this pernicious influence is kept out of our new universities, even if to do so they have to raise a storm that will stir the Church from center to circumference. This is their golden opportunity.

A SIXTH SENSE.

In Hebrews it is said that Moses endured all the vicissitudes of his great career, "as seeing Him who is invisible." The man who can not "read between the lines" will never understand the poets. The man who sees in one of the old masterpieces only so much paint, only a picture of material objects, more beautiful in nature than on canvass, will turn away from a Raphael, or an Angelo, to the comic section, or to a penny print.

The man who can not hear the unheard will never be feelingly moved by the concord of sweet sounds. For there is no music in the curious symbols of the scale, arranged in relative positions on sheets of paper; there is no music in the stops of the organ, nor yet in the lofty pipes that tremble responsive to the touch of the master's magic hand. The music is in the soul of the organist, and through that which is only a grand instrument, he speaks to the deepest emotions and longings of the human heart. And God pity the man who cries that the instrument is at fault, or gives the master the blame, when there is no response, no music in his own soul.

A small lad was flying his kite in the twilight. "What are you doing, my boy?" a man paused and asked. "Flying my kite," the boy replied. The man looked up into the darkening sky and saw nothing. "Why, I don't see any kite," he said. "I don't, either," answered the boy, "but I feel it pull." You and I have not seen God at any time, but we may feel his presence in our lives.

"How do I know whether a man or a camel passed by my tent last night?" a wise old Arab asked. "By his track in the sand." So we know that God has passed in blessing by the habitations of his creatures by his mighty footprints in the sands of time. The whole creation is a vast and sublime symbol of the Great Architect. So we read in the Nineteenth Psalm.

Science is said to be a most exact thing. Its truths are said to be clearly proven and conclusively demonstrated, to rest upon inexorable mathematics. But science also requires faith. It depends, in many instances, upon axioms which are incapable of proof. What scientist has ever seen an atom, or sailed away in an aeroplane through the "illimitable ether?" Yet upon unseen things may rest theories of worlds and systems.

So it is with strange inconsistency that some scientists would rule out the sixth sense of faith in religion, and bring an eternal God within the limits of the laws of matter.

In an age when there are some such scientists it is very satisfying to turn from an explanation of how a column of air vibrates in the pipe of an organ and produces sound; to listen to the music of the master as his fingers move in harmony over the ivory keys.

It is very satisfying to say with those who once read in our hearing from a certain old Book and sent our own names heavenward on the breath of prayer, "I believe, I believe." It is good to know that a Shepherd leads us in green pastures and by still waters. And when we are called to walk with halting footsteps down the dark valley of the shadow of death it is good to fear no evil, because Thou art with us, because thy rod, and thy staff, O God, they comfort us. In the hour of sorrow blessed is the hope that can > "Reach a hand thro' time to catch

> The far-off interest of tears."

In the hour of penitence it is life to know that our "Redeemer liveth." And in all the pilgrimage of life it is enough to believe that we journey, with the friend of God, toward "a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God."

Then God pity the man who cries that the instrument is at fault, or gives the master the blame, when there is no response, no music in his own soul.

> "Like tides on a crescent seabeach,
> When the moon is new and thin,
> Into our hearts high yearnings,

CONGREGATIONAL SINGING IMPORTANT.

We have lately read "A Life of Martin Luther," by Lovick Pierce Winter, which is an excellently written and charming volume. It sketches the career of the great reformer in a manner that holds the attention of the reader from the first page to the last and leaves him profoundly impressed with the greatness of both the man and his work. The following is a quotation from this informing and stimulating publication:

"It was about this time that Luther turned his attention to providing hymns for the people. The early Christians sang, as we know from the testimony of the apostles and from the report to the Roman Emperor by Pliny the Younger. But through the Middle Ages Rome had discouraged congregational singing. She relegated this important part of public worship to choir boys and others specially designated for the purpose, and the singing was done in Latin, a language utterly foreign to the common people. For a thousand years the voice of song had been silent in the Church, with only an occasional outburst of sacred melody. It is not surprising that spiritual life reached its lowest plane. When the Church's praying is done by priests and preachers, and its singing is done by choirs, no matter how grand the chant or anthem, spirituality wanes to its death."

Is not this last sentence worth meditating upon in this day?

Getting people into the Church is not necessarily building up the Kingdom: that depends upon what their motives in coming in are. The cause of Christ is stronger with some people outside of the Church than it is with them in it. We want more members of the right sort, but not of any sort.

MORE RELIANCE UPON GOD NEEDED.

(In an editorial in a recent issue of the Advocate we tried to utter a word of warning against the tendency to ignore and leave out God in the so-called twentieth century religion. The following extract from Bishop Candler's great sermon at the late session of the Baltimore Conference, which has since come under our eye, bears so impressively upon the same point that we are led to give it a place in our columns.—Editor's note.)

I alluded yesterday to the great sermon of Canon Mosely in which he warns against magnifying our mission more than our relation to God. We need to lay it to heart. We have many discussions of methods now, many discussions of plans, much of what they call far-seeing policies—a phrase that is not in the New Testament; much of strategic points and ecclesiastical statesmanship—a lot of pretentious rubbish. Worship! Everything that we are relying upon that leaves Him out of account in the end will be a disappointment to us. We need to go back to the Church's great source of power—standing in His presence, praying to Him, looking to Him for deliverance and crying, "Lord, save us or we perish." It is not in us to care for His Church; not in us to fashion a ship that shall outride the storms. He can make a storm bigger than any of our ships. We must rely upon Him who is God of wind and storm and head over all the forces of heaven and earth.

PROHIBITION AND THE GREAT WAR.

The readers of The Commoner have doubtless followed with interest the growth of prohibition in Europe. The war is throwing a ghastly light upon the evils of intemperance. Russia was the first of the belligerent nations to realize the menace of the traffic and she acted promptly and with remarkable results.

Then came France, with the prohibition of absinthe. The press dispatches report that her legislature is now considering the entire liquor question. Germany, too, has found restrictions necessary.

Now comes Great Britain with a terrific indictment. Lloyd George, one of the greatest men who has appeared in British politics in recent years, is quoted as saying—"We are fighting Germany, Austria, and drink, and so far as I can see the greatest of these three deadly foes is drink." He adds, "We have a great conviction based on accumulating evidence that nothing but root and branch methods would be of the slightest avail." King George, in a letter written recently, expresses a willingness to set an example in total abstinence.

It is found that even patriotism, inspired by the most pressing national needs, is not sufficient to overcome the demoralizing influence of intemperance. The war, awful as it is, will confer upon the world some real benefits if it opens the eyes of the people to the fact that the use of alcohol is even more to be feared than the slaughter of the battlefield. If, as is estimated, the people of the United States expend on liquor each day one-tenth of the cost of the war now raging in Europe, what is the cost of drink to the belligerent nations? When it is remembered that this cost is CONTINUING while war is only intermittent, is it strange that public sentiment is rising against the liquor traffic?—The Commoner.

THE ABOLISHMENT OF THE DEATH PENALTY.

Duke C. Bowers.

The question in regard to crime should be: What and how is the best way to handle it in order that society shall be protected and the criminal made better?

Is the death penalty a deterrent of crime? Judge W. C. Cherry, of Nashville, writes: "At one time England tried to discourage piracy by hanging and allowing to remain strung up the bodies of the pirates at the mouth of the Thames. In six months piracy had increased tenfold."

Brand Whitlock states: "In the debate in the House of Lords on the bill to abolish the death penalty for stealing from a dwelling house to the amount of fifty shillings, Lord Chief Justice Ellenborough declared that, if the bill passed, 'the property of every householder in the kingdom would be left wholly without protection.' But his lordship's fears have not been justified in England."

The death penalty has been abolished in Rhode Island since 1852, in Michigan since 1847, in Maine since 1887, in Wisconsin for quite a number of years, in Kansas since 1907, in Holland since 1860, in Saxony since 1868, and in Belgium since 1831. It has been abolished in Italy, Switzerland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Portugal, and elsewhere.

The average number of homicides committed in the States where the death penalty has been abolished is far below those committed in the States that still retain capital punishment.

The Governor of Maine during 1914 stated: "The sentiment of our people is now so strong against capital punishment that it may be safely assumed that it will never again be enacted in Maine."

The Governor of Michigan said: "So far as this office knows, no concerted effort has been made at any time within twenty or twenty-five years to reinstate capital punishment, the general opinion prevailing that the laws of this State, punishing by imprisonment for higher crimes, are satisfactory."

The Governor of Kansas: "There is general satisfaction with the present law. There is absolutely no question in this State of a return to capital punishment."

The Governor of Wisconsin: "The effects of the abolition of capital punishment in this State have been so satisfactory that no effort has been made to return to the old method of punishment."

If the experience of the States that have not now the death penalty is such, then how can one keep from feeling that capital punishment is not necessary as a deterrent to crime? The experience is that life imprisonment is as great a deterrent as is needed for the protection of society. This being the case, the death penalty is unnecessary and is, therefore legalized murder if practiced.—Missionary Voice.

EMORY UNIVERSITY.

By Rev. S. A. Steel, D. D.

It is a matter of profound satisfaction to see the interest that is being manifested in the new university we have undertaken to establish at Atlanta. The cause it represents, the faith it expresses, the zeal it has already evoked, and the scale on which it has been projected, all awaken the highest hopes for its future. For one I hope it will become the pride of every Methodist south of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi, as the Dallas University will be that of the west. But there is one point on which I am especially solicitous, and that is that it shall be kept immovably true to the religious teachings of the Church that is founding it. We lost Vanderbilt through carelessness at this point. So far as all the moral and religious purposes for which we founded Vanderbilt were concerned, the institution was lost to the Church before the legal robbery was consummated through its domination by the infidelity that had crept into it. Our legal title to the property of Emory University may be as clear as crystal, and after our sad experience with Vanderbilt, I suppose will be made as safe as possible. But if the faith of our fathers is not to be lost there as in Nashville, we must be on the alert. We know now how unscrupulous anti-church sentiment is when it gets a hand.

The announcement is being made that Emory University has added to it the Medical College of Atlanta—I believe that is the name of the institution that has recently been made a part of the new university. As far as I know, this is a good move, and the university is to be congratulated on such a valuable addition. But it recalls very vividly a conversation I had with Bishop McTyeire. I was on a visit to Nashville and walking along Spruce Street, when he was coming down the street in his buggy. Driving up to the sidewalk, he stopped me, asked me what I was doing there, and said to me, "Get right in and go to dinner with me." I accepted his invitation. When I was seated in the buggy, he said that he had just come from a meeting where they did some things he thought I would be glad to hear about. Then he told me they had just merged into Vanderbilt some department of an institution there in Nashville, I am not now sure just what it was. He asked me what I thought of it. I told him I did not know enough about it to express an opinion on the case, except in a general way; but I thought there was great danger in that process. "How so?" he asked. I then said that by taking over the faculties of other schools in that wholesale way there was danger, as I saw it, of getting men who were not in sympathy with the ideal of Vanderbilt, men who could not be assimilated to the system of a church school. I will never forget the way in which, arching his eyebrows in his peculiar manner, he said, "There is danger there. We must watch that point."

It was at that point that the foe entered our fortress. They took over and incorporated into the institution, men who had no sympathy with the Church, some who were positively antagonistic to church education, and they did not rest till they put us out of our own house. Men like Dr. Kirkland, and those who backed up his policy, will do it again if we give them a chance. Rank infidelity was taught in Vanderbilt University. One of the theological students, who attended McKendree Church, of which I was pastor, came to see me about what he ought to do. He was taking a course in Biology, and he said that his professor stated to his class that there was no need of the hypothesis of a God to explain nature. It was self-explanatory. Biology, and the laws of mechanism, made everything clear! KEEP INFIDELITY OUT OF EMORY UNIVERSITY. I know Candler is on guard. I have the highest confidence in him. But the Devil tricked McTyeire, and got Vanderbilt. Let us keep our eyes open at Emory University. Let none teach there but those who believe. If that is to be narrow, then let us be narrow. Better be narrow and go to heaven, than broad and go to hell. "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be that go in thereat; because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth to life, and few there be that find it."

"PASTOR RUSSELL" AGAIN.

We have received a number of letters about "Pastor Russell" as he calls himself, some inquiring, some criticising, some defending. We have let the matter lie over for some weeks because it is a very disagreeable subject, and we hate to touch it; but we cannot refuse to utter a needed warning in answer to inquiries.

Mr. Russell gives the lie to Jesus Christ most emphatically, and is therefore an enemy of Christ. No one who knows the teaching of Christ could accept Mr. Russell's teaching without consciously turning his back on Christ. The reason why so many persons who think themselves Christians become infatuated with this self-constituted "prophet" is that they do not really know Christ, because they have never really studied his teaching.

Russell quotes the Bible to them, just as the Devil quoted the Bible to Jesus, picking out texts to suit himself and giving them a meaning to suit his purposes. But Jesus knew his Bible and therefore could not be fooled by specious quotations from it. Unfortunately an intimate acquaintance with the Bible is almost a lost art among church members. And persons who like to think that they have got hold of some wonderful new truth are easily captivated by this man's plausible sophistries.

And the fact that Mr. Russell is able to spend many thousands of dollars to get his sermons published as advertisements in the daily papers shows that he must have a splendid faculty for getting money out of his disciples. No preacher of truth could afford to squander money in that way, but people who become infatuated with such a man as Mr. Russell is are ready to pour out money like water at his bidding.

The Continent says that two Chicago dailies, the Tribune and the Herald have cancelled Mr. Russell's advertising contracts, "and the former openly apologized to its readers for having published the pastor's sermons even for cash."

When even a secular daily paper is ashamed of having published these sermons as advertisements, religious people should have more wisdom than to think they can get any light from them.—New York Weekly Witness.

"THE UNIFICATION OF METHODISM."

(The substance of the memorable address delivered before the Boston Social Union on March 8, 1915 by Bishop Earl Cranston, Senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church and a member of the Federal Council of Methodism. We are indebted to Zion's Herald for this extended report of this very able utterance.—Editor of the Advocate.)

To proceed intelligently we must first understand the present treaty relations of the two Episcopal Methodisms. Every good Methodist should recognize the Cape May "Declaration and Basis of Fraternity" (1876) as a sacred and inviolable covenant. It contains the first agreed statement of the status created by the events of 1844, and covers all disputed points between the two churches down to 1876. This declaration, which was the condition precedent to further fraternal negotiations, affirmed:

1. That both Churches were equally legitimate branches of Episcopal Methodism, having a common origin in the organization of 1784.

2. That "the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was consummated in 1845 by the voluntary exercise of the right of the Southern Annual Conferences, ministers and members to adhere to that communion," (not to "constitute" or "create" but "adhere to"—as a body already lawfully existing).

3. That since its organization the Church, South had been "an evangelical church, reared on Scriptural foundations."

4. That the ministers and members of the two bodies "constitute one Methodist family though in distinct ecclesiastical connections."

Upon that treaty interpretation of the relation of the two churches, duly ratified by our General Conference (1880), all subsequent intercourse has been predicated. By that vote of the General Conference of 1880 all contention over what was done or meant in 1844 was officially closed. Between 1876 and 1908 through continuous interchange of fraternal messengers there have been evolved the Commission on Federation and finally the Federal Council, which is really a court of arbitration composed of six Bishops, six ministers and six laymen, with authority to adjust cases of conflict arising in territory occupied by both churches.

In 1910 there was held at Baltimore a joint meeting of the commissioners of the two Episcopal Methodisms and the Methodist Protestant Church, at which meeting the following statement was adopted preliminary to a discussion of the practicability of union between the three bodies.

It was agreed that these Churches "are equally apostolic in faith and purpose and have a common origin in the Methodist Episcopal Church organized in 1784. They are joint heirs of the traditions and doctrinal standards of the fathers and have proved their loyalty to the faith and spirit which characterized early Methodists."

In the spirit of this statement the commissioners proceeded to explore the contested ground that lay between them and to formulate a series of "suggestions" indicating the obstructions to union encountered in this preliminary survey; but their report, though very informing, was not presented as a final plan. This document, on our side much misunderstood because hastily judged, has since, with one item omitted, been substantially approved by the Church, South, and by a unanimous vote of its General Conference proposed as a basis of negotiations for ultimate unification. The omission related to the status of the Negro in the reorganized body, which point is referred to later. The "suggestions" offered by the Joint Commission gave to the colored membership of the Churches concerned an equal place as one of the Quadrennial Conferences. The Church, South, expresses now a preference for a separate organization in fraternal relation, but I do not believe that point will be insisted upon. My own belief is that so important a matter should be decided by the colored brethren for themselves, without pressure either way. Self-reliance is an indispensable quality of manhood. But in any event our educational help to that race must continue for a while. We notice as the next preliminary the present working status of the two churches. It means much that the two General Conferences have proceeded so far as they have in their fraternal action in the face of the steadfast belief of our Southern brethren that our Church was barred by the Plan of Separation from entering the South. They feel aggrieved and yet they do not refuse to be friends. We should honor them for that. The war carried us into the South and we have done a work that our Southern brethren could not have done. Our Conference organizations and consequent connectional obligations have anchored us there. Our Bishops, ministers and members are doing the work that falls to them in the order of the Church, and we cannot regard their relations to our body as discreditable to either them or the Church they serve. Our attitude is consistent in that we do not challenge the right of our Southern brethren to go where they will in the North. But our agreed principles of federated or co-ordinated effort do not give peace along our borders, and the first attempt to use the joint court of arbitration started a controversial excitement that threatened the internal peace of our Church. For myself I do not believe that federation can go on to perfection as a remedy for family troubles. There is but one Voice that can quiet this tempestuous sea, and that Voice bids us be one and love as brothers should.

As to the plan for unification outlined by the Joint Commission and now before the Churches, it is fair to say that no well-informed leader, North or South, expects it to be adopted without modification. This is not the place to discuss constructive details. We must first agree on the fundamental principles to be followed in the work of reorganization.

Pronounced for Methodist Unification.

As for myself, I speak for Methodist unification because I must. Woe is me, if I preach not this gospel of reconciliation. It must be admitted that the declaration made or sanctioned by the two General Conferences in reciprocal statements have the force and sanctity of treaties duly signed and officially published; that these agreements contain concessions and recognitions which place both Churches upon an equal footing, and under equal duty as to further negotiations. That being true, these negotiations should proceed from the point already attained, and not from the period of disruption. Whatever has been settled by these treaty agreements must stand unquestioned. Of but two points may I speak here—the duty of unification, and, in briefest outline, the essential principles underlying the proposed plan.

From the "divine side" the first consideration with every loyal soul will be, not any man's will or wish, but the efficiency of Methodism as a power in the kingdom of our Lord. Its mission is to save and to serve. Which promises better results—union or division? Are the separated bodies of Methodism, for example, faithfully representing the normal apostolic Church, with its one body, one spirit, one Lord, one faith, one baptism? Let us come still closer to the issue. Today, now, in America, under one national flag, does our divided Episcopal Methodism fairly express to the world the saving grace of Jesus Christ? Our answer must be that, on the contrary, these two Methodisms among all ecclesiastical bodies of to-day present the most conspicuous example of perverse persistency in perpetuating strife where unity should prevail.

It is passing strange how both Churches could trust their ecclesiastically inexperienced converts of Japan to unite, but dare not manifest any such degree of confidence in American Methodism, that we can combine schools and publishing interests and co-ordinate missionary work in China and Korea for economy's sake, and that the Gospel be not blamed, but balk before all such practical fellowships and economies where our own long-seasoned Methodist preachers and people in America are concerned, and where waste and hurt are so much greater.

It ought not to require argument to show that an apostolic Church will obey Christ. The chief discouragement in the outlook for unification today is that the most distinctive teachings and commands of our divine Lord are forgotten or ignored in his family strife. It is not preposterous to ask, Do these two Episcopal Methodist apostolic Churches recognize the authority of their acknowledged Lord? If they do, why are they not one communion to-day? And if all their preachers and people and properties and institutions really belong to him, why should the first question in considering any proposed plan of union be, What will the plan give to us, and what to them? Who will have the better in the bargain? It does seem as if these two apostolic bodies should be asking rather, What will our Lord receive by the arrangement? What advantage will accrue to his kingdom? What waste will be avoided? What increase of power and efficiency to his Gospel and its influence among men may be expected? Is that test too severe for our kind of apostolicity?

Inconsistency of Present Attitude.

The inconsistency of our present attitude may best be perceived in the light of a concrete illustration in the disregard by governments of the laws of righteousness, which to-day is disturbing the peace of the world. But before the Church can condemn human governments for their failure at this point, let her look to herself. As a matter of fact, the Church of Christ is untrue to the ethical principle which she is seeking to enforce upon human governments. Every Church must in its behavior towards other bodies of Christians be as sincere, as obedient to the law of love, as unselfish, as the individual Christian is required to be. How can a Church, then, escape the imputation of shameless hypocrisy when it is constantly discrediting its own evangel by an attitude of jealousy and partisan self-love toward other bodies of disciples? That "all denominations do it" does not change the Word of God, nor heal the broken law of love. The bane of our denominationalism in America—Methodism included—is the spirit of self-aggrandizement. Where is our tribunal for the settlement of inter-denominational controversies over territorial invasions and rights of precedence in occupation? Where is our Methodist palace of peace? Two great General Conferences spent forty years and a lot of money and sentiment in building one, known as the Federal Council of Methodism, but the first attempt to use it spread a local controversy over a continent. It simply proved that the whole head was sick and the whole heart of American Methodism faint from the long burning fever of family strife. Until the Church shall become Christian, let no man say that Christianity has failed with the nations.

Ecclesiastical greed and denominational strife have obscured the vision of the Christ. The only strife that is more deadly and defiant of decency than church strife is a family quarrel over the division of the family estate. What we have had in American Methodism is a combination of the two. For after all, what have we been contending over? The bald answer is: Territory. It is not worth our while to go into details. When we stop fighting over what belongs to God, and begin to behave ourselves as God's children should behave, all the outcry about "invasion" on one side, and "our rights and our mission" on the other side, will cease.

The Spirit of Sectionalism.

The tallest ghost that stalks over the battlefields of Methodism is the spirit of sectionalism. We are liable to think of the South as more provincial than ourselves. However, it is quite possible that to our Southern brethren we may appear somewhat provincial in our high valuation of our own missionary propaganda, when we pass by great multitudes of unevangelized foreign-born people in the North, whose thoughts and ways are a menace to our cities and our most cherished institutions, and when we skimp our own clamoring Western frontiers that we may specialize among our own countrymen in the South, where, by our own clear admission, there is already a Methodism "equally legitimate and apostolic" with our own, and a population distinctively American by birth. It is not a welcome suspicion that there may be a taint of sectionalism in our own brand of Methodist legitimacy, but we may not be taking the better way to prove the contrary.

It should be a great comfort to remind ourselves that it was not Methodism that made the South sectional. Moreover, it would be as untrue to say that any Church is responsible for the institution of slavery as to say that any church is responsible for the tariff issue in our own day. I venture to say here in New England that had we been born in the toils of an inherited labor and property system which had already become imbedded in our State constitutions and thoroughly ingrained into all our people's habits of thought, so that our politics, our education, our ethics, and our religious training had all been predetermined for us, we would have been held by every impulse of loyalty to our environment. Surely we of this generation can be fair in our estimate of the South.

Let me quote here another statement agreed upon by the Joint Commission of Methodism in 1910, and sanctioned by our General Conference in 1912:

"We are mutually agreed that our fathers settled the issues of the past conscientiously for themselves respectively, and separated regretfully, believing that only such action could insure their continued access to the people they were called to serve."

I believe that statement to be honorable to our Church. Others may think as they may, but I cannot censure those shepherds of souls in either section who, seeing the storm at hand, tried to save their sheep from scattering.

The institution that sectionalized the South is gone. The mental habit which it generated cannot be eradicated in a day; but it is rapidly changing. The Christian Advocate of Nashville, the official organ of Southern Methodism, said recently:

"It seems almost incredible that the most desperate defense of slavery that ever occurred in human history took place only half a century ago. * * * Yesterday millions of intelligent men, many of them good men, believed in slavery. To-day no one can understand how such a belief could have been held."

Some of our leaders do not yet realize that it will take another war to put slavery back upon the South. The whole nation had to pay the penalty for the national sin. But now, reunited, it is retrieving its losses and multiplying its resources. Why should Methodism go on paying the penalty forever? The National Government is dominantly of the longdreaded sectional South—and the Union is still safe. But it is a shame to the Churches of Jesus Christ that they have lagged so far behind partisan politicians and sagacious business men in the path of reconciliation and reconstruction. We should, by every Christ-like motive and impulse, have been the leaders.

Confronting the Task.

At last, however, we confront the task. On what and for what shall we build? And what shall we build? Shall we make the old feud our corner-stone, and start with the war of 1844, or shall we build on the chief corner-stone, Jesus Christ? Architects may differ, but for a living Church I would choose a living Christ. Love is the only peacemaker. Does some one say, It takes two to love, as it does to quarrel? Yes, but these two Churches have been courting across the fence for nearly forty years. If they have not been lying, they do love each other—when they are not fussing about 1844 or 1876. The trouble is in the line fence.

And that brings up the property question. What will we turn over to them? What will they turn over to us? Nothing. If we have been telling the truth to tax collectors all these years, God has some property which our Church holds in trust, and the other Churches that may come into the reorganization have some property by the same tenure. Not a foot of this real estate, not a dollar of endowment, belongs to any Bishop, or preacher, or layman, or congregation. That simplifies matters. How the problem clears up when we put our deluded selves out of the way! A unified Methodism could protect all property and guarantee its lawful use, both civilly and administratively far better than any one of the separated bodies could do it alone. Unification contemplates the merging of the capital and opportunities which God has entrusted to these equally apostolic and legitimate branches of Methodism—and this for his glory. Much of this capital could at once be turned from competitive to co-operative use.

It does not seem quite ingenuous for any one who has ever heard of "E pluribus unum" to object to the proposed plan as meaning unification by division. The fact is, we start with division in its very worst form. Methodism is just now where the country would have been had the Confederacy succeeded. We should then have had two governments at least, with divergent interests and no end of friction along the border, with further division ever impending. It was this that caused the Civil War. That war was not waged to destroy slavery, but to save the Union. The main question having been settled—that the American people were to be one nation and not two or more—the people of the restored States were finally allowed to resume their normal status of autonomous government under the amended National Constitution, to which all the other States were also bound to conform. Thus God makes a mighty nation when he has his way with the people; and so he will make of our divided Methodism a mighty Church, if he can have his way with alienated Methodists.

No Fears for the Future.

Once united, I have no fear for the peace of our Zion. The Spirit of Christ never suggested the good of threatened absorption. Let us fairly try the call of brotherhood—and in this business brotherhood means simply an equal chance under a fairly balanced government. Taking our National Constitution as our guide, this means a government having its power from the people governed, its policies determined by the will of the majority, expressed in a free ballot, under constitutional provisions that give adequate protection to the minority. These distinctly American principles must be admitted if we are to work hopefully for the reorganization of Methodism. All the other Methodist bodies, being smaller than our own, will rightly ask some form of protection for minority constituencies entering the union. Instead of calling such a concession of them a surrender to the weaker body—a capitulation—I would call it the highest possible expression of real greatness. This, first, because it is Golden Rule justice, and second, because it lifts the whole movement on our part above suspicion of ambitious worldly expediency to the high plane of loving obedience to the Spirit of Christ.

Here is the crucial question: Is the Methodist Episcopal Church great enough to give to other divided communions, which, like our Methodism, hold the essentials of unity, the inspiration of a great example; or will she insist that as a condition of union the other Methodist bodies, so often invited to consider terms, must, if they come, pass under the domination of her numerical majority? This is testing the quality of our purpose in seeking to unite Methodism. We may hide it from the sight of our people under obscuring appeals to sectional prejudice or selfish denominational pride; but that course, it seems to me, would be a miserable confession that we have been seeking an increase of power under the pretext of a holy impulse. Our sole aim should be increased efficiency in God's work.

Ready for Reorganization.

I am ready, therefore, for a reorganization of Methodism under one General Conference, supreme in all connectional affairs, except as limited by the restrictive rules. In view of the diversities existing among the peoples to be included in the reorganization, and firmly believing that contact with and a better knowledge of each other would soon result in a cohesive Methodistic homogeneity—and that is all we should aim at—I am willing that local administrative affairs should be left to the proposed Quadrennial Conferences, with power to make such regulations as may suit the people served. A great Quadrennial Conference should be entitled to at least as much consideration as a State of the American Union. In doing this, the suggested plan proposes nothing worse than that the Annual Conferences, including lay delegates, shall choose their house of representatives as they do now, and that the Quadrennial Conferences, as such, shall choose the senate, with equal representation from each jurisdiction, and that no legislation can be passed without the concurrent action of both houses. Should any legislative act be challenged by the connectional court of appeals, it would have to run the gauntlet of all the Annual Conferences, just as proposed constitutional amendments do now.

And this kind of government is what some of our brethren are calling "unification by division"—whereas, in fact, it substitutes unity for existing division, confidence for suspicion, peace for contention, co-ordination for scatteration, and Scriptural consistency for unholy rivalry between two or more great church families which are now contentiously trying to spread Scriptural holiness over these lands!

Brethren of the ministry, seek the vision shining in the face of Jesus Christ. Then remember that the prophet is not only to publish the vision, but to proclaim in unwavering faith the divine certainty of its realization. The people are burdened and busy. They look over to their leaders for the timely word and the impelling inspiration. Never have I heard challenged my utterance of three years ago—that it is in the power of the Bishops and editors of divided Methodism to guide the people into organic union. I still believe it, and here reiterate that fixed opinion. But if there be Bishops who will not lead, and editors who will not heed the twentieth century call to unselfish brotherhood—in the church as well as in Wall Street—then let the laymen stand forth in their might, and in terms of the coin of both realms, material and spiritual, demand as God's stewards that this war of waste shall cease, and that God's Suirit shall have free right of way to the hearts of men through a Gospel hindered no longer by petty sectional jealousies or selfish denominational aims, or the personal ambitions of its recognized ambassadors.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

A BEAUTIFUL SPOT.

By C. A. Battle.

On Tuesday, April 27, 1915, the writer went to Mansfield, La., in the interest of Mansfield Female College, as one of a committee of three from the Board of Education of the Louisiana Conference. The other members of this committee were Rev. W. W. Drake and Rev. J. M. Henry. We met the following members of the Board of Trustees of the College in the office of Major H. T. Liverman: R. T. Moore, A. H. Jordan, D. C. Boyd, R. E. Bobbitt, H. T. Liverman, and S. A. Kidd. Other members of the Board of local residence would have been present but they happened to be away from the city. The meeting was in no sense official, and it was intended to be merely a conference between the official committee of the Board of Education and the members of the Board of Trustees of the College that all points of relationship between the two bodies might be exactly understood by all. The gathering was a happy one: the spirit prevailing was brotherly and co-operative. It seemed to be the concensus of opinion that a bright future was in store for the College.

Perhaps there is no spot in Louisiana that is more inviting than the campus of Mansfield Female College. The grounds are very extensive, covered with grass: great oaks, stately pines, sycamore and cedar trees adorn the campus, making it shady and comfortable for recreation and athletics. The main building of the College is an imposing structure of brick three stories high, to which has been added an annex that furnishes fine classrooms and dormitory apartments. The dining room is behind the dormitory and is connected with it by a covered passage which protects the girls from any exposure during bad weather. The First Methodist Church of Mansfield, a beautiful brick building that is handsomely furnished, is situated just off the campus, and it is as convenient as it could possibly be for the student body to attend church.

The President, Brother Bobbitt, showed us through the classrooms and the dormitory apartments. The writer was surprised and much impressed with the comforts and conveniences of the dormitory rooms. The rooms are electric-lighted, heated by gas, well furnished, and presented the appearance of rooms in a family of means and of refined tastes. Some of them are indeed beautifully furnished. They are large and well ventilated. Nice bathrooms with every convenience are accessible from every room.

We were also impressed with the orderliness and becoming behavior of the girls of the student body on every occasion. We visited them in their classrooms, saw them at leisure, and took dinner with them in the dining-room. A protracted meeting was being held by Rev. T. H. Morris, the pastor of the First Methodist Church, and Brother Bobbitt and his good wife took those of the student body who found it possible to go to all the services. One could not but be forcibly impressed by the mark of efficiency that was shown from every side. Mansfield College is undoubtedly a fine school and no parent could scarcely regret sending his daughter to this institution.

The city of Mansfield is attractive. It appears to be quite prosperous; it has a population of over four thousand, the facilities of two first-class railroads, and is the capital of De Soto Parish. The inhabitants of the city appear to be in good financial condition; and it is said that many of the citizens of Mansfield are very wealthy.

This was the writer's first visit to this prosperous community and he is delighted to have the opportunity of saying a few words of unstinted praise for the people and the place. The next session of the Louisiana Annual Conference will be held at Mansfield and we anticipate one of the most pleasant visits possible on that occasion.

MEETING OF CENTENARY COLLEGE TRUSTEES.

On call of the Chairman, the Board of Trustees of Centenary College met at the First Methodist Church in Shreveport on Tuesday evening, April 27. The purpose of the meeting was stated by Dr. Wynn to be the discussion of plans for the work of next session, the call being made necessary by the fact that some matters of importance needed careful consideration before the regular meeting at Commencement. The whole situation was carefully considered, the work of the campaign for endowment was discussed, and while no statement was ready to be given out for publication, the entire feeling of the Board was characterized by hopefulness for the future, and a strong determination to carry the work of placing the College on a firm basis to a successful completion.

DR. WYNN'S PLAIN FACTS FOR LOUISIANA METHODISTS.

In the statement sent out by Dr. Wynn according to the order of the Conference, to be placed in the hands of every Methodist in the State, there is an unanswerable appeal for immediate and generous action for the benefit of Centenary that can not fail to stir the loyalty and liberality of everybody interested in the future success of Methodism in Louisiana. Let the preachers see that this appeal is put into the hands of their people, and then second the appeal by discussing the needs of the College with them. It is to be hoped that no discouraging or pessimistic note will be sounded by any preacher or leader of our people.

Nothing is more necessary to the success of our Colleges at this time than practical working friendship on the part of their natural friends. The success of a college, no matter how rich, is dependent on securing the "raw material," the boys or girls on whom its work is to be expended. Let everybody who knows a boy or girl who may go to college, send the name to Dr. Wynn or Brother Bobbitt.

DR. ANDERSON IN LOUISIANA.

Dr. Stonewall Anderson, General Secretary of Education for our Church, accompanied by Dr. R. H. Wynn, President of Centenary College, is making a brief tour of the Louisiana Conference this week, preaching the gospel of Christian Education and enlisting interest in Centenary College. His itineracy includes Rayville, Ruston, Alexandria, New Orleans and Lake Charles.

WORTH THINKING ABOUT.

A pertinent question has been propounded by an esteemed exchange. It is this: Why should we appoint young ministers as students in institutions of learning that are hostile to the faith of the Church? We have had enough of a "thinly veneered agnosticism" masquerading in the name of scholarship. That much of this is fostered in a number of universities is beyond controversy. We do not believe that our young ministers ought to be thrown into them with the consent of the authorities of the Church. The world may be faithless, and educational institutions may flaunt their infidelity in the face of the Church and charge us with narrowness; but the Church of Jesus Christ is the custodian of a faith—a very definite faith in certain very well defined eternal realities as they have been revealed to us in the Word of God. It is our business to stand for these things, and we shall be recreant to our trust and forfeit our relationship to Christ whenever we abandon them. It is all well enough to claim the liberty to think for ourselves, and Protestantism has never denied this right to her sons; but infidelity to the cardinal truths of the gospel cannot cloak itself in that thin disguise. Men can think without flying into the face of divinely revealed truth; and, when the Church appoints her young ministers to educational institutions, they ought to be such institutions only as stand for the fundamentals of Christian truth.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

MORE CHAPLAINS.

During the next three years the Secretary of the Navy will appoint twenty-eight or thirty new chaplains in the United States Navy. Congress has provided for an increase from twenty-four to fifty-two naval chaplains, and Secretary Daniels is giving his personal attention to the selection of men for this important service. He hopes to appoint fifteen or more of the additional number before July, 1916. Ministers not exceeding thirty or thirty-two years of age, of good character, education and health, with some experience in preaching and pastoral work, are invited to make application. To be chaplain of a battleship or cruiser and care for the spiritual needs of from 800 to 1000 men is to have opportunity for a great service. Circulars giving information will be furnished. Denominational approval will be required as a prerequisite to appointment. Ministers of all denominations are eligible. The Associate Secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, 1111 Woodward Building, Washington, D. C., will be glad to receive and answer inquiries.

GREENVILLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The 1915 meeting of the Greenville District Conference convened at Tunica, Miss., on Wednesday, April 21, at 7:45 p.m. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. E. R. Smoot, one of our promising young preachers of the North Mississippi Conference.

The first business session was called to order by the presiding elder, Rev. Hal S. Spragins, Thursday morning at 8:30. Rev. A. T. McIlwain was elected secretary. After roll call the President announced the usual committees to look after the several interests of the Church. The charges were called and the preachers gave a good account of their work. It was gratifying to note that practically all the preachers reported many additions to the Church since the beginning of the Conference year. One of the important features of the first session was an able address by Rev. L. P. Wasson, on "The Importance of Team Work in Carrying Forward the Work of the Church." The first session adjourned with preaching at 11 o'clock by Rev. W. C. Lester.

Afternoon session, Thursday: After hearing further reports from the charges, Brother J. H. Sherard made an interesting and encouraging report on the condition of the Methodist Orphanage at Jackson. Brother W. M. Williams, manager of the Orphanage, was then given the platform and spoke in the interest of that worthy institution of the Church. Brother Williams told how God had heard his prayers, also the prayers of the children of the Home, and had sent sufficient money, through the good people of Mississippi, to pay all debts and put the Home in good shape financially.

The local preachers of the district were called and the license of F. C. Williams was renewed and the character of J. D. Parmer, a local elder, was passed. The following were elected a licensing committee: J. J. Brooks, W. C. Lester, E. M. Shaw and J. T. Lewis. With the announcement that Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, Secretary of the Conference Board of Education, would preach at 7:45, Conference adjourned.

Friday, morning session. After reading of minutes of last session, the following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas affliction prevents Bishop R. G. Waterhouse from presiding over this session of the Greenville District Conference, be it resolved:

"That we, the members ofthis Conference, express our regret and disappointment in his absence, and extend to him our sympathy and regard."

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary, was given the platform and spoke in the interest of the Sunday school work, giving some very interesting and helpful instruction regarding this important work.

Brother J. H. Sherard made an interesting report for the committee on Hospitals, and the secretary was ordered to send a copy of the report to the following church papers for publication: New Orleans Christian Advocate, Midland Methodist, Nashville, and the Western Methodist, Little Rock. Brother Sherard also made a very impressive talk on the importance of Hospital work. Brother H. M. Ellis, agent for the Methodist Hospital at Memphis, was introduced to the conference and spoke in the interest of that institution. Brother W. S. Lagrone also made a short address in behalf of the Hospital. Rev. J. R. Countiss, President of Grenada College, was introduced and spoke in the interest of that worthy institution. With preaching at 11 o'clock by Brother L. P. Wasson, the conference adjourned.

Friday, afternoon session: A resolution, urging every pastor in the district, who had not already done so, to observe Hospital Day and Grenada College Day, was adopted.

Mrs. Dr. Shaw was introduced to the Conference and made a short talk on Woman's Work. Dr. Sullivan, representing Millsaps College, was introduced and spoke in the interest of that institution.

Brother J. D. Barbee read an able paper on "Our Duty to the Negro."

The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: J. H. Sherard, J. T. Mathis, J. D. Barbee and H. D. Chaney.

Prof. J. R. Brinston was given the platform and made a very able address on "The Layman's Place in the Church." Reports from all committees were made and adopted. Prof. J. R. Brinston was elected District Lay Leader.

In response to the question, "Where shall the next Conference be held?" E. M. Shaw, pastor at Benoit, placed Benoit in nomination, and this place was unanimously chosen as the next meeting place.

A resolution, thanking the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCorkle, and the hospitable people of Tunica, for their hospitable and cordial entertainment of the delegates of the Conference, was adopted. A special resolution of thanks was extended the citizens of Tunica and vicinity for the auto ride furnished the delegates immediately after final adjournment.

After singing, "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," the presiding elder pronounced the benediction, which brought to a close one of the most helpful and interesting sessions of the Greenville District Conferences ever held.

We would not overlook the fact that the success of the Conference was due in a great measure to the efficiency of our presiding elder, Brother Spragins, who had a well arranged program which added much to the interest and profit of the occasion. The manner in which he dispatched the business of the Conference proved him to be possessed of unusual executive ability. He was positive and firm in all his rulings, but all his acts were tempered with love. We feel fortunate indeed in having such a lovable character as Brother Spragins as our presiding elder.

A. T. McILWAIN, Secretary.

ROBERT MARION KAISER.

Tuesday morning, February 23, 1915, was made a sad and notahle anniversary to our Brother and Sister W. J. Kaiser and family by the death at Starkville, Miss., where he was a student in the Mississippi A and M College, of their son and brother, Robert Marion Kaiser. He was born at Natchez on August 31, 1896. Besides his father and mother, he leaves four brothers and two sisters to grieve for his going. One sister had gone before and without douht gave him a joyous welcome in the better world.

In 1914, in the midst of one of the largest and brightest classes the Natchez Institute ever had, Marion graduated, certainly the equal of the most efficient and faithful among them all. His fine record as a High School student was being fully lived up to as a Freshman at the A and M College, when disease laid its hand upon him and, before his hurriedly summoned parents could realize his danger, took him away from earth forever. That they reached him and ministered to him during those last few days will always be a matter of grateful memory to them.

In February, 1911, this pastor received him into our Church here. To the vows taken then he was steadfast. His many friends among our delightful circle of boys and girls here have repeatedly declared that none was better prepared for the high call that so unexpectedly came to him. His friends at college hore high tribute to his good life, to his fidelity to duty, to his love of his Bible, and to his quiet, uniform life of prayer. How sweet a comfort this has been to those who have so grieved at his going! Sweet shall this writer's memory he of the industrious boy at home, busy at his daily taks; sweet also of him on the athletic field, where his prowess was acknowledged by all; sweet the memory of the earnest-hearted student—a quiet, persistent leader; sweet of him at home—a bountiful giver and receiver of a family's affection. But sweeter than all is the memory of him as the devoted young Christian, with the face of his youth toward the Sun of righteousness.

Scarcely nineteen years' old, bright, fresh, strong, happy, Marion, shall we grieve for you as for one who fell defeated, his work unfinished? No, no! Success is fulfilling not ours, but God's plan for us, and as you came and lived your nineteen years among us, your precious alabaster box of ointment broken, the world left fragrant with a happy, pure memory, our faces turned much more steadfastly toward heaven with determination to follow—who could say more truly, "I have finished the work thou gavest me to do!"

Not in all our pastorate has the nature of a funeral borne so high a tribute to a departed one. Friendship without restraint unloosed its sympathy and poured it into wounded lives. Tears made the only language of the multitude who followed him to the grave. The lingering winter gathered from the hidden warmth a wealth of lovely flowers and covered deeply the sacred mound. Grief was hushed by gratitude for so much love and so much tenderness.

On the other side the angels, doubtless, sang a song of triumphant gladness, because in such a scene death had no real sting and the grave no victory, thanks be unto God!

LITTLE CHILD TO LOVE.

When there's a little child to love the world's a sweeter place,
With more of resurrection in the wild old daily race;
So many things to think about you never knew before,
And one more life to love, my dear—thank God for one life more!

When there's a little child to love the weary way turns sweet
With blossoms where we used to find rough rocks beneath our feet;
A little child to love and rear and pity and behold--
Thank God for one more life, my dear, with all its dreams of gold!

When there's a little child to love the skies turn sweet again
And in the sunlight of the days we soon forget the rain;
A little life leans on us and longs to fill its part—
Thank God for one more child to love while love still rules the heart!

When there's a little child to love the little cares seem less,
The echo of a childhood laugh has such a way to bless;
More human beauty fills the earth and softer grows the strife—
Thank God for one more life to love, for one more little life! —Baltimore Sun.

A STRANGE PET.

In a country town in northern Pennsylvania there lives a little old man who sells milk, carrying it from house to house morning and evening in a small hand-cart. There is nothing strange about that, but his companion on these daily trips is the very strangest you ever heard of—an old gray goose, who follows him about in the most dignified manner, and stands watch over the cart, letting no one go near it in his master's absence. His name is Major, and his master says that he is just as useful as a dog would be.—Our Dumb Animals.

FLITTERMICE.

By Margaret W. Leighton.

When you see the bats flitting about in the twilight, you may be sure spring has come to stay. All winter long they have hung in bunches, heads downward, in their gloomy caves and hollow trees. Now they are hurrying to make up for their long fast by catching as many gnats as possible. How many of the tiny insects it must take to satisfy a flittermouse after a five months' fast!

Mrs. Bat is a model mother, and never neglects her children to go hunting or gossiping with the neighbors. When she is ready to leave home, she says to them: "Come, children, hook on, and we will go a-flying." What a fine air ship for the baby flittermouse! Each one has strong hooks on his wings, and with these he fastens himself to his mother's fur, and away they all go as happy as can be.

Did you ever know that many of the little wood folk never venture out in the daytime? But when the first stars begin to twinkle in the evening sky, they open their eyes, stretch their limbs and their wings, and cry to one another, "Wake up! Time for breakfast!" and troop out to work or play or hunt, as the case may be. The flittermice are night lovers; but once in a while you will see one hanging in a tree fast asleep in the daytime.—Boys and Girls.

LOST IN THE WOODS.

"We're lost!" exclaimed Ethel. "We're lost! I never saw this little creek before."

"We're lost, we're lost!" echoed Ruth. "O, I want to go back, I want to go back!" and she set up a very dismal cry.

Billy said nothing, but it came over him suddenly that he was the only boy, and the oldest of three besides, and that if his little cousins reached camp before dark he must find the way for them. If they were not in before dark, then the men would take Watch and some lanterns, and Watch would put his nose close to the ground, just as if he were smelling a rabbit, and he would follow their trails and find them. Watch could do that, he knew. But it was not pleasant to think of spending even a part of the long night all alone by themselves in the big, dark woods, and so Billy thought hard.

"Ah, holler!" he said. "One, two, three, now!"

And they shouted, even little Ruth, whose voice was choked with a sob.

"Now, listen," he directed.

They listened, but there was no answer, only the chatter of a squirrel on a branch above and the "caw, caw," of the crows as if they were making fun of them.

"Try again," he said.

And again they shouted and listened, and no answer came.

Ruth began to cry once more; Ethel's chin was quivering and her eyes full of tears, and Billy saw clearly that if he showed a moment's weakening there would be a panic.

"Papa told me," he began, his voice very even and unconcerned, "that if I ever got lost in the woods I must holler first, and then, if nobody answered, I must make a 'base' by tying my handkerchief to a bush, and then keep trying different directions until I found the right path. But he said I mustn't go far, and keep turning back to the base, and holler every time I came back."

The others began to look more hopeful.

"Now this," he went on, tying his handkerchief to a bush, "is our base, and whatever you do, you mustn't lose it. We'll go off, one one way and one another, and every step or two you must break over a bush, so you can find your way back to the handkerchief. You see the underside of the leaves is a different color, so you can see them right away. Just go a little way, and then if you don't find a path or anything, you must follow back and start over. It'll be lots easier for three than for one, because we can holler to each other. Now——"

"But we can't do that!" exclaimed Ethel.

"Why not?"

"Why, Ruth is too little and she is too tired. We've walked a long way, and—and if we leave her alone, she'll cry."

That was all very true, and Billy thought again.

"She'll have to stay at the base," he said. "But —now—I'll tell you," as there came a brilliant idea, "she must sing, good and loud; then we can't lose the place. See, Ruth!" and he explained.

Ruth nodded a grave approval of the suggestion and then complacently sat down upon the moss-grown log.

"I'll sing 'Ve Friend of Little Children,'" she said. "I've heard it in ve Sunday school; all ve verses. Good-bye."

She waved her hand, and as Billy and Ethel disappeared into the undergrowth, breaking bushes and calling now and then, they heard behind them the voice of little Ruth singing in the lonely woods:

"Vere's a Friend of little children
Above ve bright blue s'y;
A Friend who never changes,
Whose love vill never die."

A couple of rods away Billy climbed upon a stump to get a wider view, but all looked unfamiliar. There were the trees and flowers that were the same in all parts of the woods; there was the calling of cows, who must have known where the camp was, and who would not tell. But nowhere was there a sign of heaten path or any "blazed" tree or a glimpse of the white canvass of the tents.

He was nearing the top of a little hillock, and Ruth, hidden among the dense brush, had finished her song and begun again, when suddenly he stopped and listened. Was the voice fainter? Or—no; it was moving away. What could it mean?

It was dangerous hurrying; one might miss the trail. But he went back from broken bush to broken bush twice as fast as he had come, and stopped, panting, at the base. There hung the waving bandkerchief, there was the moss-grown log, but no sign of Ruth or of Ethel. He shouted and listened, and then the next moment Ethel burst through the undergrowth.

"What's the matter?" she asked.

"She's gone."

Ethel was crying now and very badly frightened.

"Ruth!" shouted Billy at the top of his voice. "Ruth, come back! Come back here!"

"I ca-a-n't come back. He won't let me."

Ethel's tears burst out afresh, for this sounded very bearlike. Could it be some animal dragging the child away? They dared not think what they would do; they could only press on.

"What's the matter?" he called.

"Tell us who is with you."

"He've got me by ve dress. Let go, you naughty, bad—let go or I'll stwike you—I'll——"

And the rest was lost in a sound of scuffling and sobs.

The rescuers were hurrying as fast as they could, but there was danger of having no sound to guide them. They looked this way and that, and Billy called once more:

"Ruth, Ruth," he commanded, "sing, sing loud as you can! We'll be there in a minute!"

And in obellence came through the matted undergrowth, in broken and interrupted snatches, tears in the child's voice, but bravely, as well:

"Vere's a Friend--of little chil'ren—
A Friend——"

And then, as they burst through a tangle of sumac and hazel they saw it all—faithful Watch, with his teeth firmly set in Ruth's skirt and dragging her relentlessly along in spite of her cuffs and kicks.

That night, when Billy lay snug in bed and the rain he so loved to hear had begun to fall softly upon the canvas roof, he called:

"How did Watch happen to come looking for us, mamma?"

"Aunt Lida sent him. She said: "Watch, I haven't seen the children for a long time. You go find them;' and off he started as if he knew what she meant.

"But I think," said Billy, "that 'the Friend of little children' helped a good deal."—Youth's Companion.

Editorial

THE WORLD'S MOST PHENOMENAL MAN.

Napoléon Bonaparte, though his great talents were chiefly directed to unworthy ends, is almost universally conceded to have been the most masterful man of modern times. Indeed, in a number of respects he seemed scarcely to be human, as, for instance, in the extraordinary slowness of his pulse, in the little sleep that he required, and in his wonderful capacity for labor and achievement. We have seen the statement (we do not know how authentic it is) that Mr. Gladstone declared that he had the most marvelous brain that was ever in a human skull. Of him Lord Rosebery, said by some to be the most brilliant living Englishman, in his interesting volume, "Napoleon—the Last Phase," says: "He represents a combination of intellect and energy which has never perhaps been equalled—never, certainly, surpassed. He carried human faculty to the farthest point of which we have accurate knowledge. Alexander is a remote prodigy, too remote for precise comparison. To Caesar the same objection is applicable. Homer and Shakespeare are impersonal names. Besides, we need for comparison men of action and business. Of all these great figures it may be said that we do not know enough. But Napoleon lived under the modern microscope. Under the fiercest glare of scrutiny he enlarged indefinitely the limits of human conception and human possibility. Till he had lived no one could realize that there could be so stupendous a combination of military and civil genius, such comprehension of view united to such grasp of detail, such prodigious vitality of body and mind."

As an illustration of the phenomenal mental activity of this extraordinary man, we quote also from Lord Rosebery's work, referred to above, the following account of how he fed upon the world's literature: "When he was a scholar at Brienne the frequency of his demand for books was the torment of the college librarian. When he was a lieutenant in garrison he read ravenously and indiscriminately everything he could lay his hands on. * * * Later, we read of his tearing along to join his armies, his coach full of books and pamphlets, which he flung out of the window when he had run through them. When he traveled with Josephine, all the newest books were put in the carriage for her to read to him. And though he declared that his reading was purely practical, he always had a traveling library of general literature, with which he took great pains. He had planned a portable collection of three thousand choice volumes which should be printed for him. But when he found it would take six years, and a quarter of million sterling, to complete it, he wisely abandoned the project. Even to Waterloo he was accompanied by a traveling library of eight hundred volumes, in six cases—the Bible, Homer, Ossian, Bossuet, and all the seventy volumes of Voltaire. Three days after his final abdication we find him writing for a library from Malmaison—books on America, his chosen destination, books on himself and his campaigns, a collection of the Moniteur, the best dictionaries and encyclopedias. Now, in his solitude he devoured them—history, philosophy, strategy, and memoirs. Of these last alone he read seventy-two volumes in twelve months. Nor was he by any means a passive reader; he would scribble on margins, be would dictate notes or criticisms."

What other man in human history ever exhibited such an insatiable intellectual appetite? And what a tragedy it was that powers so transcendant should have been devoted to selfish and improper purposes rather than to the promotion of the good of humanity!

IN FAVOR OF UNION.

In their recent session at Des Moines, Ia., the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, after stating that the formal and official response to the paper on the unification of Methodism approved by the Southern Methodist Church and the Methodist Protestant Church would have to be made by the General Conference of their denomination, which will meet in May, 1916, unanimously adopted the following declaration:

"We are convinced of the essential unity of the two great Methodisms in doctrine and in life and that their essential unity must in due season express itself in outward and organic forms. Without presuming to pronounce the terms of the union, we declare ourselves earnestly in favor of organic union with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and such other Methodist bodies as may share our common faith and experience.

"Moreover, we declare ourselves in favor of such a union on terms that shall provide ample and brotherly protection for any minority."

FACULTY ANNOUNCED.

Bishop E. D. Mouzon, who is the Dean of the Faculty of the School of Theology of the Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Texas, has announced the members of the faculty of that department of the University, as follows:

Department of English Bible—Paul B. Kern, A.M., B.D., Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Department of Hebrew and Old Testament Interpretation—Ivan Lee Holt, B.D., Ph.D., Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Department of New Testament Greek and Interpretation — Frank Seay, A.M., B.D., Southwestern University.

Department of Pastoral Theology and Religious Education—James Kilgore, A.M., D.D., Houston, Texas, with Frank Reedy, A.B., as assistant, who will offer courses in Sunday School organization.

Department of Christian Doctrine — Frank M. Thomas, A.M., B.D., D.D., Louisville, Ky.

Department of Church History—Gross Alexander, B.D., S.T.D., D.D., Nashville, Tenn.

Bishop Mouzon states that the Southern Methodist University will open next September, the exact date to be announced later.

BISHOP WATERHOUSE BETTER.

A note from Bishop Waterhouse, written from the Johns Hopkins Hospital, at Baltimore, on April 28, stated that his three weeks' stay there had proved to be appreciably beneficial to him physically. His physicians had given their consent for him to attend the meeting of the College of Bishops in St. Louis, Mo., this week and some other connectional meetings; but they insisted that all other engagements should be canceled and no new ones made for several weeks. The Bishop has been suffering from a high blood pressure and it is thought to be necessary that he desist from all active work for a season. His condition, however, is not considered very grave, and it is believed that a few weeks of rest will effect a complete restoration of his health.

Bishop Waterhouse requests us to state that he greatly regrets his inability to be with the brethren of the North Mississippi Conference in their district conferences, as he had planned to do. He was especially anxious to lend a helping hand to the work in that part of the field. His address for some time will be Emory, Va.

COST OF WORLD'S GREAT WARS.

Mr. Edward Ewing Pratt, Chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the United States Department of Commerce, in an address to the Detroit (Mich.) Board of Trade on March 9, presented the following figures on the cost of wars:

	Total Cost.	Cost Per Day.	Cost Per Capita.
Crimean War ...	$1,699,600,000	$2,036,700	$10
U. S. Civil War.	5,000,000,000	3,392,130	159
Franco-Prussian.	2,534,400,000	11,572,603	33
Russian-Japanese	2,675,000,000	4,972,119	16
First Balkan	940,000,000	4,331,797	20
Second Balkan..	450,000,000	15,000,000	28

In the present European War the loans thus far have been as follows:

	War Debt.	Per Capita Debt.
Great Britain	$1,560,000,000	$34
France	1,815,000,000	46
Germany	2,600,000,000	39
Belgium	130,000,000	17
Austria-Hungary	1,815,000,000	35
Russia	2,600,000,000	15
Servia	130,000,000	44

Grand total present war: Debt, $10,650,000,000; cost each day, $50,000,000; per capita debt, $28.

TO OUR PASTORS IN LOUISIANA.

Dear Brethren: Please urge every congregation to pass at once resolutions requesting the special session of the State Legislature to amend the laws of Louisiana so as to protect dry territory. The desired amendments will be presented by the Anti-Saloon League. Get your resolutions printed in the secular papers, preferably in a daily. This is a most urgent matter which admits of no delay.

A. W. TURNER,
Superintendent of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League, Shreveport, La.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. H. Bowman writes: "The date of the Baton Rouge District Conference has been changed to June 8-11. The place of meeting remains the same—Kentwood, La."

The Sunday school of our Church at Lexington, Miss., has an adult Bible class with an enrollment of 75. Mr. H. H. Elmore is the teacher of this class and Mr. W. M. Meek is its president.

Rev. Hugh C. Castles of Harrisville, Miss., has our thanks for a club of 5 subscriptions from his charge. He is pleased with the progress that is being made by the churches to which he ministers.

It is stated that the Protestant Chapel at the Lepers' Home near this city is nearing completion and that it will probably be dedicated in June. About $200 more is needed to finish this urgently needed structure.

Rev. J. E. Stephens, of Duck Hill, Miss., writes: "The pastors in the Holly Springs District are requested to send me at once the names of all delegates who will attend the District Conference, soon to be held at this place."

Rev. Jasper L. Smith, of Gallman, Miss., writes encouragingly of the work in his field. He has been pressing the claims of the Advocate among his parishioners and his letter brought us a club of 5 subscriptions. Thank you, brother.

Rev. V. C. Curtis, of Lexington, Miss., has been quite ill for ten days or two weeks. He was somewhat better last Sunday, his fever having receded to about a degree. We trust that he will soon be up and able to resume his loved employ.

Under date of May 3, Rev. Paul F. Daniel, of Logansport, La., writes: "A new 8-pound baby girl, Sarah Frances, arrived in our parsonage home this morning at 5:35 o'clock." We congratulate the happy parents, and pray God's blessings on the little one.

The Protestant Ministers' Association of New Orleans held its regularly monthly meeting last Monday morning. It was well attended, and was gracefully presided over by Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, the newly elected president of that organization.

We are glad to state that Col. J. M. Johnson, of Acona, Miss., who has been seriously ill for some weeks, is considerably better, and that the indications now point to his recovery. Col. Johnson is the father of Rev. W. J. Johnson, the capable pastor of our First Church at Beaumont, Texas.

Rev. W. L. Anderson, of Sayre, Oklahoma, writing in the Texas Christian Advocate, highly compliments Bishop Murrah's preaching and presidency at the late session of the Clinton District Conference, in that State. Everywhere that Bisbop Murrah goes he seems to make a fine impression.

In a personal note to the Editor, Judge J. G. McGowen, of Water Valley, Miss., says: "Brother T. H. Dorsey is well on the way in his fourth and most successful year at this place, and every department of the church is doing better work than ever before in the history of our congregation."

The spring meeting of the College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is being held in St. Louis, Mo., this week. Douhtless by the time this issue of the Advocate is in the hands of its readers the plan of episcopal visitation for the current year will have been announced.

The Commencement sermon of the Louisiana State University, at Baton Rouge, will be preached on Sunday, May 30, by Dr. H. M. DuBose of Atlanta, Ga. We repeat this announcement, as some of Dr. DuBose's friends from a distance who desire to attend may have forgotten the time when he is to be in Baton Rouge.

We acknowledge ourselves indebted to Brother P. M. Franklin, of Delay, Miss., for a club of six subscriptions, forwarded on May 1. Brother Franklin states that this is the thirteenth year that he has performed a similar service for the Conference organ. He may be assured that his kindly interest in the welfare of the Advocate is much appreciated.

Rev. W. S. Lagrone began a revival meeting at Clarksdale, Miss., last week. He is being assisted by Evangelist J. O. Hanes, of Birmingham, Ala. We are informed that Brother Lagrone is having a most successful pastorate at Clarksdale. His Sunday school has overflowed the church and he has been forced to provide temporary quarters for some of the classes.

From a recent issue of The Western Methodist (Little Rock, Ark.), we take the following: "Rev. W. Fred Long, who was for some time the State Sunday School Secretary in Arkansas, has occupied a similar position in Mississippi since he left our State, and judging by the reports of his activities, he is the same cheery, pushing, successful worker that he was when here."

Rev. E.. Nash Broyles, of Durant, Miss., preached the Commencement sermon for the Ackerman (Miss.) High School last Sunday. Brother Broyles' pulpit at Durant was filled in his absence by Rev. J. M. Wyatt, of Ackerman. The new church at Durant is going up rapidly and promises to be a thing of beauty. It will cost when completed and fully furnished approximately $15,000.

Rev. M. M. Black, of Canton, Miss., has had an attractive card printed announcing the subjects of his sermons for a month, beginning with April 25. The night series is specially designed for young men, and includes the following themes: "The Young Man and His Dreams"; "The Young Man and His Friends"; "The Young Man and His Equipment," and "The Young Man and His Capital."

In a letter to our office bringing us a number of subscriptions, for which he has our thanks, Rev. J. T. Lewis, of Greenville, Miss., says: "As a result of our recent twelve days' meeting, in which I was assisted by my four brothers, we will have about 25 accessions to the Church. Besides this, the services were a great blessing spiritually to those who were already of the household of faith."

Rev. A. T. McIlwain reports that his work is moving along nicely in the Glen Allan (Miss.) charge. We have heard from several sources that the people of that community are much pleased with the ministry of Brother McIlwain. He states that Children's Day was successfully observed at Glen Allan on April 25, and that it will be observed at the other churches of his charge in the near future.

We are printing in this week's issue of the Advocate an article on, "The Abolishment of the Death Penalty," for which we are indebted to The Missionary Voice. We do not mean to commit ourself to the views therein set forth, but this question is one that is commanding increasing consideration and we thought it well to bring it to the attention of our readers. There is wisdom in looking at both sides of an issue.

The Southern cities are beginning to seek the services of Evangelist Billy Sunday. He has already given Louisville, Ky., a definite date, and has promised to come to Memphis, Tenn., when the way opens; and a Committee, consisting of Dr. George Summey, Dr. S. H. Werlein, and Rev. U. D. Mooney, has been appointed by the Protestant Ministers' Association of New Orleans to take up the work of bringing Mr. Sunday to the Crescent City.

We extract the following from a personal letter from Rev. H. S. Spragins, presiding elder of the Greenville District: "Rev. E. M. Shaw is in the midst of a good meeting at Shipman's Chapel, near Cleveland, with Rev. J. A. Poe helping him. He received 19 persons into the Church last Sunday morning, the larger number of them on profession of faith. The services will continue through this week. A letter from Brother Lagrone states that his meeting at Clarksdale has opened well."

In the oratorical contest at the recent Commencement of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose, Miss., which was held under the auspices of the Waldo Moore Literary Society, the medal was awarded to Mr. Leland Clegg, a young local preacher 17 years of age, who is a son of Brother C. M. Clegg, of Enterprise, Miss., and a brother of Rev. R. H. Clegg, of Porterville, Miss. The judges in the contest were Rev. J. R. Jones of Meridian, Mr. O. M. Abney of Montrose, and Dr. Griffin of Laurel.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. L. T. Sargent (Okolona, Miss., Ct.), 6; Rev. W. J. Dawson, Bolton, Miss., 3; Rev. R. A. Allums, Blodgett, Miss., 11; Rev. T. H. Porter, Olive Branch, Miss., 6; Rev. C. A. Battle, Baton Rouge, La., 3; Rev. W. M. Young, Amory, Miss., 4; Rev. Chas. E. Downer, Shubuta, Miss., 5; Rev. A. M. Bennett, Sarah, Miss., 4; Rev. P. H. Howse, McLain charge, Miss. Conf., 2; Rev. D. R. McDougal, Kossuth, Miss., 3.

Sister Lewis, the wife of Rev. J. T. Lewis, our pastor at Greenville, Miss., was operated on for appendicitis in a sanitarium at Greenville on Thursday, April 29. She stood the trying ordeal well and a note from Mr. Robert Somerville written on May 1 stated that her condition was at that time thought to be quite satisfactory. We hope that her recovery will be speedy and complete. (Since the above was written, a note from Rev. H. S. Spragins, bearing date of Monday, May 3, brings the information that, though she has suffered considerably, Sister Lewis continues to do well.)

Rev. F. L. Appiewhite says: "Please state that my address is Tylertown, Miss., R. F. D. No. 3, Instead of Fernwood, as is announced in the Journal of the Mississippi Conference. I am living within the bounds of the Fernwood charge, which probably accounts for the mistake. I am farming at present with a view to building up my health, as well as to make a living. Rev. W. H. Saunders is doing a fine work on the Fernwood charge. He is an energetic pastor and a forceful preacher. The new church at Knoxo, which is an excellent structure, is about completed and will probably be dedicated soon."

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, of Sherman, Miss., in a note to our office a few days ago, said: "My work has an upward tendency and the outlook is good. I took up the task of raising my Conference collections early in April and have succeeded in getting about 50 per cent of the assessment at each place so far. I feel sure that we will pay everything in full. Mrs. Bowlin's health has not been good of late." Brother Bowlin's communication brought us some additional subscriptions. We regret to note what he says about Sister Bowlin's physical condition, and we trust that it will soon improve.

No pastor in our patronizing territory is more painstaking in looking after the interests of the Advocate than Rev. W. M. Young, of Amory, Miss., and we desire to express our high appreciation of the good service which he has lately rendered our paper in his charge. If more of our pastors were like Brother Young in this respect, the Conference organ would have a much larger circulation. Brother Young is in his fourth year in his present field and he has done a monumental work. If he does not mind, the extraordinary record that he has made may lead the Bishop to draft him into the presiding eldership again.

Dr. J. T. Sawyer, of New Orleans, preached last Sunday at 11 o'clock a.m. for Rev. R. M. Brown, the wide-awake pastor of our church in Algiers. He reports that he had a large and attentive congregation, and that he greatly enjoyed being with this worthy flock on the other side of the river. He found in session upon his arrival a Sunday school completely filling the basement of the house of worship, with Brother Sid Daniels in charge. More room is needed, he thinks, and he declares that the proposed new church should be built as soon as possible to accommodate this steadily growing Sunday school and church.

Rev. W. J. Wood, of Sweatman, Miss., sends us a new subscription, and adds: "I am trying to get all of our church officials to take the Advocate. I cannot see how Methodist workers and Methodist families can get along without their church paper." Brother Wood has touched the weak spot in many of our congregations. One who is uninformed as to the progress of the Master's cause cannot render the intelligent service that is needed to promote its various interests. What sort of a politician would he be who completely ignored the press of his party? It is even more important for the followers of Christ to keep up with the affairs of his increasing kingdom.

A correspondent informs us that the recent session of the Greenville District Conference at Tunica, Miss., was largely attended, and was up to the high-water mark in every respect. This is not surprising. The presiding elder of that district, Rev. H. S. Spragins, is a most capable leader and he enjoys to an unusual extent the confidence and affection of his associates in the work, both clerical and lay. This is the district with which the Editor is connected and it was a distinct disappointment to him that he could not be present. Rev. R. H. B. Gladney was on hand and effectively represented the Sunday school cause. The Conference Board of Education was represented by Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, who preached an able sermon on "The Call to the Christian Ministry."

Mr. J. D. Barbee, of Greenville, Miss., who recently was in Jackson to attend the Y. M. C. A. meeting held there, writes as follows: "In company with my friend, Mr. W. P. Kretschmar of Greenville, I visited Millsaps College, with which he was much impressed. It was the first time I had seen the new Main Building. If it be true that 'a thing of beauty is a joy forever,' they have much in this new structure to make them happy. It is an architectural beauty and seems to be well adapted to its uses. The chapel especially is very attractive. I also inspected, while in the Capital City, the Galloway Memorial Church which is in process of construction. It is a building of vast extent, and will doubtless be of great advantage to those who will use it and to Methodism in Mississippi."

Prof. W. H. Holtzclaw, Principal of the Utica (Miss.) Normal and Industrial Institute for the training of colored young men and women, writes us appreciatingly of our editorial, "Not Unfriendly to the Negro," which appeared in a recent issue of the Advocate. Among other things, he says: "I have seen the two races under various conditions in different parts of this country, and, like Dr. Washington, I have been forced to the conclusion that the South is, all in all, the best place for the Negro and that the Southern white man is his best friend; and furthermore I do not believe that the Southern white man has anywhere in the world a friend who is more loyal and faithful than the Southern Negro." Prof. Holtzclaw is the author of a volume entitled, "The Black Man's Burden," which has been highly commended by many of the leading journals of both the South and North.

THE TYRANT WAR.

O monstrous War, your carnage turns to blood
the dew of morn;
Your cruel hand has blighted generations yet unborn!
You force brave men of vigor death in woeful form to face,
And leave unfitted weaklings to be fathers of a race.
You ruin mighty cities with your hostile torch and shell,
Then you treat your helpless victims to a vision of their hell.
You spread disease and famine as you torture and bereave,
You stay the hand of progress in her effort to achieve.
May Man through coming ages from your power
find release,
And feel the blessed comfort of a universal peace.
—Susan Fishner Milner, in Kansas City Journal.

SELF-SACRIFICING.

Some deep and significant giving of one's self there must be in any personal relation that is to greatly count. Sacrifices increase love. Our hearts are where our treasures are. Where we have invested little, we shall care little. And one need not be surprised to find that his Christian life means little to him, if he has not been willing to render to Christ the sacrifice of time, of thought, of attention, of giving, of talents that should really mean something in helping to bring to its goal that great kingdom of God that is to satisfy the longing heart of our Lord.—Henry Churchill King.

FRECKLES
Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With The Othine Prescription
This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.
Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.
Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

On March 10, 1915, the death angel visited the home of Brother and Sister Joe Horn and bore away little VERA. She was only about nine years old and in disposition was a model child. We can not understand why one so young should be taken from us. She was indeed a true child in her home where she is so sadly missed; but we know that our Father doeth all things for the best and we must bow in humble submission to his will for we know that she is safe in the arms of Jesus. Our hearts go out in tenderest sympathy to the lonely heart-broken father and mother, and to them we would say, "Look up, for Vera is just across the river, and you will find her there with other dear ones where there is neither pain nor separation." We laid her body away in Mount Nebo Cemetery to await the resurrection morn. T. G. ADAIR, Pastor.

Mrs. TRACY ELIZABETH BARR (nee Robinson) was born in Clarke County, Ala., on Sept. 14, 1847, and died in Jackson Parish in Louisiana, on March 14, 1915. The deceased was a pupil of this writer during the Civil War, near Grove Hill, Ala., and at that early age her gentle manners and the transparent candor of her guileless spirit, made her a favorite with all her associates. She became a member of the Horeb Baptist Church in early girlhood, and when she, with her father and mother, left Alabama and came to Louisiana in 1884, at once became a member of the Salem Baptist Church, near Enos, Jackson Parish, and remained a faithful member until called to her reward. Soon after locating in Louisiana she was united in marriage with J. M. Barr, who together with one son, Frank R. Barr, survives her. She leaves many relatives and friends to mourn their loss. T. J. FORD.

In sweet remembrance of little HERBERT EUGENE BEARD, who was born on Dec. 24, 1914; and died on Feb. 17, 1915. He was the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie I. Beard.

A little one from them is gone
A voice they loved is still,
A place is vacant in their home,
Which only Christ can fill.

The One who is high over all, saw fit in his infinite wisdom to call this little tender flower from Brother and Sister Beard and plant it in his beautiful garden above, to bloom, "making heaven the sweeter" through all eternity. He knew not a sorrow nor care, neither did he know sin in its odious forms. Jesus emphatically said, "For of such is the kingdom of heaven." We cannot understand why God took him. But we know that our Father doeth all things well. And may his grace enable those who sorrow to say, "Thy will be done."
HILARY S. WESTBROOK.
Waynesboro, Miss.

The subject of this sketch, JAMES FREEMAN EVANS, was born on August 6, 1900, and died on April 10, 1915. He was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Evans. He was ill for only four days, when death came to his relief. Oh! 'Tis hard to have the ties of friendship and love severed by the icy hand of death, while in this old world of mutation. His place is vacant in the home, and none can fill it. He has gone to that home from whence no traveler returns. He was permitted to shed sunshine in his home and joy in his parents' hearts for only fourteen short summers. May the faith of the bereaved ones be made strong in God, in this dark hour of sorrow. His funeral service was conducted by the writer at Big Rock Church on April 11, 1915, in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends. He will be greatly missed. This is one of those strange mysteries that we can not understand now but we have God's promise that we shall know hereafter.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Z. M. Stephens, a charter member of the New Albany Woman's Missionary Society, died on April 4, 1915. The following resolutions were adopted by this auxiliary:

Even as the spirit of God hath made us, and the breath of the Almighty hath given us life, so, when it pleaseth him, he doth send his messenger to call us hence. That messenger hath called one of our members,

And whereas, our beloved friend, Mrs. Z. M. Stephens, has, in answer to the summons, entered into rest in that house not made with hands,

And whereas, her expressed faith, her useful life, her never-failing charity in word and deed have borne witness that she was a true Christian, therefore be it resolved:

1. That we, the members of the Woman's Missionary Society will, while life lasts, keep, in our hearts, her memory.

2. That as a body from whom her wise and kindly counsel has been taken, while we deplore our own loss, we thank our heavenly Father for her example and influence.

3. That to her sorrowing husband, children, and other dear ones, we bring our tenderest sympathy with the prayer that he who alone can give the peace which passeth understanding, may dwell in their hearts and comfort them.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, to the town papers, and to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication, and that they be entered upon the minutes of our Society.

Signed: Miss Ida Cameron, Mrs. T. D. Rice, Mrs. W. T. Boswell.

ENTERED INTO ETERNAL REST.

Mrs. Julia C. Bailey, born Sept. 7, 1849, died April 14, 1915, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. J. R. Henderson, at Shelby, Miss.

The interval of time spanned by the years between the two dates mentioned above, an interval connecting the cradle and the grave, covers a life record that was beautiful in its consecration to lofty ideals, a life sacred to home ties and friends, to every relation that had Duty for its watchword and Love for its key-note.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Weissinger, of Carroll County, Miss., Mrs. Bailey was reared according to the best traditions of the Old South, so many of which have become obsolete in a newer and more strenuous age. To be true to her home, her family, her friends, her church, was her conception of loyalty and the trust she owed to God the Father, in whose sight she lived, and to whom she so fearlessly rendered back the life he had given.

Mrs. Bailey was twice married, first to Mr. Richard Shryock, and of this union were born three sons and one daughter. In December, 1880, she was married to Mr. W. S. Bailey of Tate County, Miss. Of this union were born five children. Two of her nine children died in early infancy, and two others later in life, one a son, W. W. Shryock, who was just entering upon young manhood, the other, Gypsie Bailey, just budding into womanhood. The other five survive her, and to them her memory will become sweeter as the years roll by.

Mrs. Bailey was a consistent member of the Methodist Church, quiet and unostentatious in her religious life, but having a firmness of conviction that befitted her strong character. She was a woman of remarkable poise and dignity, one to whose native ability years of reading and observation had added their stores of knowledge. The home over which she presided was a center of Christian influence, blessing all who came in touch with it.

After her husband's death, and as her health slowly declined, she made her home with her children, whose tender care greatly brightened the path which led to the inevitable end—the grave.

So conscious was she of approaching death that she prepared the minds of her loved ones to anticipate its approach, and when the grim messenger came she met his as one,

"Who wraps the drapery of his couch about him,
And lies down to pleasant dreams."

Then sweetly falling asleep, she awoke to the glories of that City "Whose builder and maker is God."
A FRIEND.

From the Field.

Campti, La., Charge.

Dear Dr. Meek: Once in a while, I give some account of my work through the Advocate, so I am now asking for a little space. I wish to say we have been kindly received by the people of the charge. They had been very thoughtful and kind in preparing for us even before our arrival. Some new furniture had been bought as well as groceries for the larder. It goes without saying that we appreciate these material blessings. Our second quarterly conference was held at Davis Springs Church (my old home church) last Saturday and Sunday. That is where I worshiped years before I entered the ministry. This occasion very much resembled the quarterly meeting of some years ago. Brother H. W. May, our presiding elder, was with us and preached three most helpful sermons. He seems to have things well in hand, and is a very busy man. We are making some progress. The layman's missionary committee has been elected for each church on the charge, and a missionary committee has been appointed for each of our three Sunday schools. We will observe Children's Day here next Sunday; and the other two schools will observe the day soon. We have recently organized at Campti a Bible Study Circle, which meets weekly in the homes of the members. I believe this is destined to do much good. The outlook for a good year's work is encouraging. The Lord willing, I will be with our pastor, Rev. P. A. Swann, in the near future at Elizabeth in a revival meeting. Pray for us, brethren, that the meeting may be a great success.—E. L. Cargill, P. C.

Pontotoc, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: Old friends of Pontotoc will be glad to have a message from this place. Our predecessor, Rev. W. D. Wendel, wrought well during a three years' pastorate. In spite of ill health he helped to carry through, oftentimes directing and helping from a sick bed, the seemingly impossible task of paying off the large church debt. With our beautiful new church out of debt, we will soon begin to build a parsonage in keeping with our church and town.

Our work grows with surprising rapidity. Our congregations have been large, and our prayer meetings well attended with increasing interest on the part of those attending. The Sunday school under the wise direction of that great layman, Mr. W. A. Boone, has grown in attendance from less than one hundred to 242 on a recent Sunday. We had the pleasure of receiving into the Church two bright young men on profession of faith at the morning service recently. The Epworth Leagues are both doing good work.

The brethren, with a purpose to put Pontotoc at the front, took full time and made the salary $1400, with the purpose of adding to it another hundred dollars next year. They pay monthly which is a great relief to the preacher in charge.

One other thing particularly we desire to emphasize is the spirituality that characterizes all the church work. The church and Sunday school are well organized and it is the power in the organization that makes it go. Each Sunday morning at 9:30 the officers and teachers meet in the church parlor for fifteen minutes of prayer and consultation. It is seldom that any one of the twenty or more are not there. Fifteen minutes before the eleven o'clock service the official board and pastor meet in the church parlor for a season of prayer. Almost invariably there are as many as eighteen present. These two prayer circles "set the pace" for the services of the day. What a joy to be pastor of such a people who hold up the pastor's hands continually and are always seeking opportunities to show him and his family kindnesses! You can see how easy it is for the superintendent of the Sunday school to stand and exhort the unsaved to come to Christ, and how natural that the pastor should make every service an evangelistic one. Great is Pontotoc and greater still to be.—J. H. Holder, Pastor.

Booneville, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: Four months of this Conference year have gone, and we seldom have as much bad weather in the same length of time as we have had in these four months. But spring has come again and with it the birds and flowers. The earth is covered with a carpet of green, the trees have budded into new life, all nature is alive; and we are made to exclaim, "The Lord is good," and "How wonderful are his works."

The church work here under the leadership of our pastor, Rev. L. M. Lipscomb is progressing nicely. Our congregations at preaching services are large and attentive. We have a fine midweek prayer-meeting with an average attendance of about fifty, and it is growing in numbers and interest at every meeting. We have a number of men and women who will lead in prayer. We also have an Epworth League that is doing good work. Our Sunday school is one of the best. We have in the person of Brother J. J. Taylor one of the best superintendents in the Conference, and with a larger attendance and the united support of the church, we might have a banner school. On last Sunday we observed Children's Day and the exercises were both inspiring and uplifting. It was the best Children's Day service this writer ever attended. There were not seats enough for all who were present. The regular program was used and the children were well drilled both in recitations and singing. It was indeed a beautiful sight to see so many children occupying the front pews and engaged in rendering praise unto the Lord. We have as fine children in Booneville as can be found anywhere and we are proud of them. They are the men and women of to-morrow. God grant that they may be more faithful and efficient than we of to-day have been. Brother Lipscomb gave them a short and inspiring talk. A good collection was taken, the benediction was pronounced and we went home feeling it was good to have been there.

The prospect for a great year in Booneville was never better and we are looking for and expecting a great revival. Brother Lipscomb is a strong preacher, a model pastor and an untiring worker. He is loved not only by his flock but by the whole people.

Brother Armour, pastor of the Booneville Circuit, is making a fine impression upon his people and the work is progressing under his leadership. He is a citizen of our town and preached for us once.

Brother E. C. Sullivan also lives here and is rendering us valuable service. Doctor, we hope to see you at Ripley at the District Conference. God bless you and the Advocate.—Harry W. Rees.

Sunday School

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By R. A. Maddox.

The Field Secretary has just finished the work in the Hattiesburg District, working all the places as requested by the presiding elder, except two. We had a very good institute at each place and organized a Sunday school at Hathorn, on the Silver Creek charge. At other places we organized Teacher-training Classes and Bible Classes, started Home Departments, Cradle Rolls, and awakened interest in general.

The next work is in the Meridian District, as follows: District Sunday School Institute at Meridian on May 5; at Enterprise, May 8 and 9; at Pachuta, May 10 and 11; at De Soto, May 12 and 13; at Buckatunna and Clara, May 14 and 16; at Scooba, May 25 and 26; at De Kalb, May 27 and 23; Moscow, at Shiloh, May 29 and 30; at Porterville, May 31 and June 1; at Lauderdale, June 2 and 3; Vimville, at Coker's Chapel, June 5 and 6.

The following program will he executed at the District Conference Sunday School Institute of the Jackson District, at Terry on May 18:

"The Graded Lessons," by Rev. R. P. Fikes; "The Pastor's Place in the Sunday School," by Rev. B. E. Meigs; "The Primary Department," by Mrs. Sue Brame; "The Intermediate Department, or Teen Age," by Rev. W. G. Henry; "Teacher-training and the Finances," by R. A. Maddox. A Round Table for 20 minutes. Sunday school Sermon by Dr. A. F. Watkins.

The Sunday school at Sumrall has been doing things of late. They have almost as many in the Primary Department of the school now as were in the whole school at the beginning of this year. But Brother J. C. Chambers, the pastor, and Brother Campbell, the superintendent, never stop until they have done all.

HAVE YOU OBSERVED CHILDREN'S DAY? IT IS NOT TOO LATE. SEE IF YOU CAN DOUBLE YOUR OFFERING OF LAST YEAR.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Under the skillful leadership of Judge McGowen, our school at Water Valley is forging ahead toward the one thousand goal. That sounds big, but it is true.

Rev. W. M. Young, of Amory, is watching his school grow into one of the big ones. With a teacher like Dr. Baker and a class like Nine Plus One no wonder this school is nearing the three hundred mark.

Rev. W. B. Baker, pastor of the Hickory Flat circuit, has organized two new schools recently and is working hard to make these schools do good work. The name of his superintendent at Hickory Flat is, A. Darling.

Fifteen of our Sunday schools come up to the standard of efficiency. There may be others; if so, brother superintendent, let us know it and you will thus provoke others to good works. Help us get thirty-five more this summer and we will have the revival fires burning perpetually.

The Children's Day services heard from so far are said to be the best ever held. Let the whole column of five hundred schools fall into line and bombard the strongholds of Satan this year. It is possible for this to be done if we can find leaders for the children.

For Weakness and Loss of Appetite

The Old Standard general strengthening tonic, GROVE'S TASTELESS chill TONIC, drives out Malaria and builds up the system. A true tonic and sure Appetizer. For adults and children. 50c.

BELZONI, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have just closed a nine days' meeting at Belzoni and have received into the Church 25 on profession of faith and 4 by letter. Brother J. E. Thomas, of Itta Bena, led the services. He delighted my people with his strong gospel sermons. Our church has more than doubled in membership during the past three and a half years. We have completed two new churches and put pews in the church at Swiftown that cost $402, all of which is paid except $93.78. We have improved the parsonage materially. The entire town was greatly blessed during our meeting and we trust that much good has been accomplished. The outlook is "as bright as the promises of God." O. L. SAVAGE.

JACKSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

At Terry, Miss., May 18, 1915.

We are planning to make our approaching District Conference an occasion of great interest and profit. We are very anxious to have a full attendance of both preachers and laymen. Wednesday morning, the 19th, will be devoted to the Sunday school work and the afternoon to missions. Interesting programs have been prepared and it is especially important that the charge lay leaders be present on this day.

Will the pastors please see that the Quarterly Conference Records are brought to the Conference and presented to the Committee for examination?"

Let all local preachers who desire passage of character and renewal of license be present, or if this is impossible, send written reports as required by the discipline.

Let those who have not sent in names of delegates, do so at once. It is important that the brethren reach Terry Tuesday afternoon on the train over the Illinois Central due in Jackson at 4:55 p. m., in order that they may hear the opening sermon by Brother Forsyth that night and be on hand for the organization of the Conference at 8:30 next morning.

PAUL D. HARDIN, P. E.

Jackson, Miss., April 30, 1915.

THE TUPELO CONVENTION.

Dear Dr. Meek: Mr. W. C. Pearce, of Chicago, made some good statements in his address of Thursday evening at the Mississippi State Sunday School Convention, at Tupelo, Miss. He said, in part: "All the work of salvation is founded upon teaching, and home teaching is counted the most important; parental duty can not be relegated to others. Sunday school teaching is great, and teaching by the pulpit and by the printed page are not to be dispensed with, and are vastly important. Church people are to be Christians, rather than simply of some church attachment and church belief, and the man true to his own Church is more reliable in dealing with the other Churches and with the general work of God. The man who can be counted on in his own home is more to be trusted in dealing with other homes. Independence, pluck and push are all needed, and personal effort is at a premium, but the hand of help, the opportune 'boost' is exceedingly to be appreciated for lending inspiration to a proper effort and to individual aspirations."

Mr. Pearce spoke in glowing terms of this Sunday school occasion, and of the captivating hospitality of the Tupelo people, and all without so much as a reference to the mazes of "psychology" or to the profundity of "worth while."

A late auto call at Shannon by the Sunday School Field Secretary, Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, was courteously dealt with by the Sunday school people here. "His speech was all right," they said. Brother Gladney remarks of this school in his Advocate notes, "In a very short time the Sunday school was raised about 40 per cent." Naturally, it raised during his visit and helpful services, and the gains have been pronounced and constant during the several recent months. Come again, Dr. Gladney. The parsonage residents were sorry to have been absent. A. H. WILLIAMS.

EXERCISE AND GRECIAN BEAUTY WHAT IT MEANS.

Many thousands of women are now-a-days paying attention to physical culture and the proper exercise of their body muscles, where, thirty years ago or fifty years ago there was no thought expended on this science, which is quite necessary to physical beauty. The reason the Greeks, both men and women, excelled in beautiful and symmetrical forms was because of the attention they paid to the proper exercise. Then, too, they were untrammeled by corsets, shoes and the inconveniences of clothing. To the minds of some women the idea of physical exercise conveys only the idea of hard fatiguing work. Mild exercise continued day after day is best for the body and spirits and health. Without proper exercise there can be no health, and without health there can be no real beauty.

There is no stronger proof of the sound remedial value of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription than that it restores the wasted form to its wonted roundness.

The mighty restorative power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear—compels the organs to properly perform their natural functions, corrects displacements, overcomes irregularities, removes pain and misery at certain times and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from Nature's roots with glycerine, with no alcohol to falsely stimulate. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensations, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. Address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

FACTS THAT COUNT.

Though John R. Mott has circled the globe four times, he has but one aim in his journeyings, and that is to survey and strengthen the forces at work for the evangelization of the nations and to get the ear in particular of the hosts of students in the great universities. The eagerness with which they flock to hear him in Egypt, Russia, India, China and Japan shows how the balance is wavering at these seats of learning between Christianity and agnosticism. For many thoughtful young minds in non-Christian lands have long ago ceased to be satisfied with the religion of their fathers.

FINDS A CURE FOR PELLAGRA

All Skin Eruptions Gone. Doctors Now Convinced Mrs. Vaughn is Entirely Well.

Mrs. C. H. Vaughn, Millville, Ark., writes: "There is nothing I ever could do but what I can do it now. There is no sign of skin eruption. One of our local doctors told me that my cure was one of the grandest things that ever happened—not only for me, but for the whole community, to let them know that there is a cure for Pellagra.

"All the doctors that waited on me are convinced that your remedy is a real cure."

There's the true word from a cured patient. If you have Pellagra, or know of anyone who suffers from Pellagra, it is your duty to consult the resourceful Raughn, who has fought and conquered the dreadful malady right in the heart of the Pellagra belt in Alabama.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red with much mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea; either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope. Get Raughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., Box 587-X, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—Advertisement.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT NOTES.

On Wednesday evening, April 28, Rev. Hugh Jamieson delivered an illustrated lecture on Esther in the Sunday school rooms of Parker Memorial Church. A large number were present and enjoyed the lecture very much.

The prayer meetings at Felicity Church are largely attended. The Sunday congregations have increased. The pastor states that almost every Sunday some one is received into the Church upon profession of faith, and that the people of Felicity are full of heart and hope.

On April 18 there were seventy-six present in the Wesley Bible Class of First Church. Mr. C. F. Niebergall is the teacher of this class. The attendance in the whole Sunday school is the largest since the occupancy of the present church edifice on St. Charles Avenue. The attendance upon the regular services is large, and members are received almost every Sunday.

The condition of Epworth Church is better than it has been for a very long time. Thirty-eight new members have been received into the Church since Conference. The attendance at the different services of the church has very materially increased recently and the spirit of all the people is much better and more hopeful. The present pastor is in his fourth year, and he believes that the condition of the church is better now than at any other time since he has been pastor. There is a good future before this young and growing congregation. The completion of the church building is very much needed. The congregation is hopeful of being able to complete it within a few years. The membership is largely made up of young people.

On Friday of this week, May 7, at 6:30 p. m., a "Methodist Get-Together Banquet" will be given in the Social Hall of the First Methodist Church. Addresses will be made by leading laymen and women of the Church in this city. This is a move toward bringing the Methodist forces of the city into closer and more sympathetic relationship, and it is hoped that a very large attendance may be had. One who ought to know has stated that a very substantial repast will be prepared. The moderate cost of 35 cents per plate should insure a large attendance. A proportionate number of tickets has been sent out to each church and may be easily secured by those desiring to be present at the banquet. Some of the women have declared that there will not be more than two hundred present. Some of the preachers have claimed that there ought to be four or five hundred present. Let us see who are right.

LOSS OF APPETITE IN THE SPRING

Loss of appetite is accompanied by loss of vitality, vigor or tone, which is a more serious loss. It is common in the spring because at this time the blood is impure and impoverished and fails to give the digestive organs what they need for the proper performance of their functions.

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla. It makes the rich red blood your whole system demands. It is not simply a spring medicine—but it is the best spring medicine.

"The Woman's Missionary Council has determined on a Church-wide campaign of organization. There are 19,000 churches in Southern Methodism and only 7000 with Missionary Societies, Adult, Young People and Junior in them.

"There are more than 1,200,000 women and girls in the Church and less than 200,000 who are members of the Woman's Missionary Society.

"Our slogan must be an auxiliary in every church and every woman a member.

"Let the Church be belted with a prayer circle that should not cease, night or day, to cry to God for this great uninterested multitude."

A NEW FIELD FOR THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL.

The Woman's Missionary Council has entered Japan. For 25 years the General Board has had a great school for girls in Hiroshima under the leadership of Miss Nannie Gaines. It has also had a school for training Bible women with a great woman of God, Miss Maude Bonnell, as its principal, and Miss Bennett as assistant.

A new era has dawned, and after years of materialism, Japan is recognizing the power of Christianity. It is said that the 125,000 Christians of Japan hold as much power in the thought of the people as do the 52,000,000 Buddhists who have held an age-long sway.

Appeal after appeal has come from the missionaries on the field for the entrance of the Woman's Council. Bishop Atkins and Dr. Cooke, the missionary secretary, came back from their recent visit to these Oriental missions pleading for the same. The times are critical—critical for the General Board as well as for the Council; but God's leading seemed so clear that, after earnest prayer and long consideration, the women of the Council decided by an overwhelming vote to enter this white harvest field. They have taken for support the Bible School, with its trained evangelistic native workers, the four missionaries who direct these Bible women, two new missionaries to be sent out, and six kindergartners.

The cost will be as follows: One Bible School, $1730; two missionary Bible teachers, $750 each; two missionary evangelists, $750 each; two new missionaries going out this year, outfit, travel and salary, $1000 each; 19 Bible women, $75 each; six kindergartners, $125 each.

Salaries for two missionaries and for four Bible women have already been pledged. Are there not other individuals who above and beyond that which they have given in the past, will help our Lord win the heart and home life of Japan? The money must be raised over and above our present obligations.

Miss BELLE H. BENNETT.

APPOINTMENT OF NEW FOREIGN CANDIDATES.

Miss Olive Lipscomb, Mississippi Conference, China. Miss Charlie Holland, Texas Conference, Japan. Miss Maud Mathis, Texas Conference, Brazil. Miss Ruth Brittain, North Alabama, Brazil. Miss Ellie Gray, North Georgia, Korea. Miss Mary Sue Brown, Central Texas, Brazil. Miss Kate Hackney, West North Carolina, China. Miss Ethel Brown, Virginia Conference, Brazil. Miss Annette Gist, Florida Conference, Japan.

WHAT THE MISSIONARIES SAY.

In this, the first year that Chinese women have been allowed to compete for the scholarships supported by the Boxer Indemnity Fund, McTyeire school graduates won six of the ten scholarships awarded to women. One of the Laura Haygood girls is also a beneficiary. These young women are now in our schools and Miss Head will be glad to furnish their addresses upon application.

A Chinese woman patient in our Mary Black Hospital, with its American cleanliness, said she was as near heaven as she cared to be.

Three year old boys smoke American cigarettes, because everything from America must be good!!!

There are only 1 nurses' training school and 40 trained nurses in all China with its population of 400,000,000; 4 women physicians in Soochow, with a population of 750,000. We have 5 boarding schools, 7 kindergartens and 11 day schools in the Soochow District.

Deaconess Ethel Jackson has a well organized Mother's Club in each of the Negro schools. She gives them occasional Bible lessons and is instrumental in getting into their hands books sent out by our Mission Boards. —Council Daily.

THE COUNCIL GOES TO ATLANTA IN 1916.

How could they refuse? If you want to accomplish a thing "keep at it." Atlanta certinly knows how to do this; for from one to three telegrams were received from there each day. It was a pleasure to accept such an urgent invitation and after a large majority vote, it was made unanimous.

SOME DEACONESS APPOINTMENTS.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK. DON'T STAY BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Will Clean Your Sluggish Liver Better Than Calomel and Can Not Salivate.

Calomel makes you sick; you lose a day's work. Calomel is quicksilver and it salivates; calomel injures your liver.

If you are bilious; feel lazy, sluggish and all knocked out, if your bowels are constipated and your head aches or stomach is sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone instead of using sickening, salivating calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and bowels regular. You will feel like working. You'll be cheerful; full of energy, vigor and ambition.

Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal guarantee that it will clean your sluggish liver better than nasty calomel; it won't make you sick and you can eat anything you want without being salivated. Your druggist guarantees that each spoonful will start your liver, clean your bowels and straighten you up by morning or you get your money back. Children gladly take Dodson's Liver Tone because it is pleasant tasting and doesn't gripe or cramp or make them sick.

I am selling millions of bottles of Dodson's Liver Tone to people who have found that this pleasant, vegetable, liver medicine takes the place of dangerous calomel. Buy one bottle on my sound, reliable guarantee. Ask your druggist about me.

NOTICE.

To the Pastors and Sunday School Superintendents of the North Mississippi Conference.

Dear Dr. Meek: Will you spare me space through the columns of the New Orleans Christian Advocate to convey a message to the pastors and superintendents of the Sunday schools of the North Mississippi Conference?

The language of the Discipline as to the holding of Children's Day does not restrict us to the Fourth Sunday in April, but fixes that as a date and then adds, 'or as near thereto as practicable.'

My dear pastors and superintendents, if you have not already held Children's Day, will you not on next Sunday announce to your Sunday school that in the near future you will observe Children's Day?

Now just a word to those who have already held Children's Day and who are going to hold Children's Day this year. When you have taken the collection, please forward your offering to Rev. V. C. Curtis at Lexington, Miss.

Many pastors and superintendents make it a practice to delay the remitting of this fund until they go up to the Annual Conference. In the meantime your Conference Sunday School Board is paying eight per cent interest on that money which has already been collected and which is a waste because of a lack of prompt business efficiency on the part of those to whom the Church must look to administer and obey its laws.

Our efficient Field Secretary is being asked for on every hand and this year it is extremely doubtful if the Board will be able to borrow money to continue his work, so that it is imperative that Children's Day be observed by every Methodist Sunday school; and then having done one good thing in the observance of your Children's Day, complete the good work, and relieve your Sunday School Board of the embarrassment which now confronts us by remitting the money promptly to the treasurer.

It is worthy of note that the growth of our Church depends largely upon the efficiency and growth of our Sunday schools and your Conference Sunday School Board, as well as your General Sunday School Board, is largely dependent upon your small Children's Day offering for the maintenance of its work in the Sunday school field.

Brother Gladney is working hard, his expense accounts are extremely economical, requests are coming to me constantly to send him here and there, and we have no money.

In view of the fact that the day is now dawning when Mississippi will join the other States which have made the work in the Sunday schools a part of the State educational school by which the pupils of the Sunday school get credit for their work, it behooves us to do all we can to raise our standard and prove our efficiency and liberally and heartily support our own institutions.

J. G. McGOWEN,
Chairman Sunday School Board,
North Mississippi Conference.

DURANT DISTRICT CONFERENCE,

Eupora, May 25 to 27.

The Conference will open at 2:30 p. m., Tuesday, May 25. I hope the pastors will often call attention to who compose the membership of the district conference, and encourage their members to come, and come on time, and stay until the business of the conference is completed. I have observed a tendency on the part of some to arrange before they leave home to return before the adjournment of the Conference. I do hope all will be able to stay until the work is done.

The following committees are appointed:

License to Preach—G. W. Gordon, W. M. Langley, J. B. Randolph.

Admission on Trial—J. D. Simpson, J. A. Poe, V. C. Curtis.

Orders—J. M. Wyatt, W. F. Rogers, J. J. Garner.

Local Preachers—E. Nash, Broyles, W. J. O'Bryant, E. D. Simpson.

Quarterly Conference Records—J. T. McCafferty, W. M. Commander, F. A. Howell.

We have up to this time two applicants for license to preach, and trust that there will be others by the time the district conference meets. Bishop Waterhouse is to be with us, and I trust that many of our people will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing him preach, and attending the conference. Judge E. V. Hughston, our Conference Lay Leader, is to be with us and tell us how to make the layman's movements move. He is a live wire, and I hope all our Lay Leaders will be there.

W. S. SHIPMAN, P. E.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON HOSPITALS.

To the Members of the Greenville District Conference.

Dear Brethren: When our Savior was on earth laboring with his apostles in an effort to teach and instruct them in the ways of good fellowship and love, that they likewise, might instruct and teach others, he very forcibly called their attention to caring for the sick. He comforted the broken-hearted and healed the sick wherever he found them. When he sent out the twelve to preach, and also the seventy, he gave them specific instructions to heal the sick. God could have so ordained it that there would have been no sickness and affliction, no widows and orphans, and no infirmities in old age; but is it not a fact that if he had not permitted these we would have been so independent and self-sufficient that he would have had a much harder time getting us into his kingdom?

We are glad that our Church is taking a positive stand for benevolent institutions, for by so doing we are fully in accord with, and are carrying out the direct wishes and will of our Heavenly Father. We are especially glad to report that our own North Mississippi Conference in conjunction with the Mississippi, the Memphis, and North Arkansas Conferences have bought, through their board of commissioners, a most beautiful and well located hospital site, consisting of 8½ acres of ground, on which stands a palatial brick residence of 22 large rooms, in the city of Memphis, Tenn. We learn that it is the wish of our board of commissioners to formally open this hospital for the caring of the sick on the first of next September. To carry out the wishes of our commissioners would require an expenditure of $30,000.

We find upon examination that we have about 2400 churches, 2000 Sabbath schools, and a church membership of 247,000 within the bounds of this movement. We would therefore recommend and urge that the pastors and Sabbath school superintendents throughout the bounds of this entire movement take up collections and solicit contributions at once and raise at least the minimum amount asked for in the last Annual Conference resolution, that the hospital may be formally opened next September and thereby place us as a great Church fully abreast with other denominations in this great and very much needed, noble Christian work.

The amounts coming in are so pitifully small, that there must be a great many of them if we are to get sufficient funds to open the hospital in September. There are many good men who are thinking of doing something big, but they are not so situated as to do what they intend to do now.

We would further recommend that our Bishops in presiding over the four patronizing Conferences in the bounds of this movement at the Annual Conferences be requested to ask each preacher how much he has raised for the hospital during the year.

We would further recommend that a copy of this report be sent by the secretary of this conference to each of the Bishops.

Respectfully submitted,
JOHN H. SHEPARD,
D. R. WASSON,
Committee.

"HE PLANTED BETTER THAN HE KNEW."

H. E. Loveless.

I gave some lily bulbs one day
To a little ragged lad at play,
Told him to plant them with great care
And lovely lilies they would bear.
I glanced around; what did I see?
Filth, and waste, and poverty,
And wondered if a bulb so rare
Could blossom in that atmosphere.
Chance led me to that street again—
Behold the lilies tall and clean!
Like white-robed sentinels they stood,
A blessing to the neighborhood;
Sending their perfume as a prayer
For all to be as pure and fair.
Proving that in the vilest place
The choicest seeds oft grow in grace.
Blessings on the laddie who
Had planted better than he knew.

THE BRAVEST DEED.

A group of old United States soldiers, both North and South, were telling stories of the Civil War.

At last they fell to comparing the greatest acts of bravery that each had known, and a Southerner told the following story:

"It was a hot day in July, in 1864, and General Grant was after us. Our men had hurriedly dug rifle pits to protect themselves from the Northern sharpshooters, and dead and dying Northerners were lying up to the very edge of those pits.

"In one of those pits was an ungainly, raw, red-headed boy. He was a retiring lad, green as grass, but a reliable fighter. We never paid much attention to him, one way or another.

"The wounded had been lying for hours unattended before the pits, and the sun was getting hotter. They were suffering horribly from pain and thirst. Not fifteen feet away, outside the rifle pit, lay a mortally wounded officer, who was our enemy.

"As the heat grew more intolerable, the officer's cries for water increased. He was evidently dying hard, and his appeals were of the most piteous nature. The red-headed boy found it very hard to bear them. He had just joined the regiment and was not yet callous to suffering. At last, with tears flooding his grimy face, he cried out: 'I can't stand it no longer, boys! I'm going to take that poor fellow my canteen.' For answer to this foolhardy speech, one of us put a cap on a ramrod and holsted it above the pit. Instantly it was pierced by a dozen bullets. To venture outside a step was the maddest suicide. And all the while we could hear the officer's moans: 'Water, water! Just one drop, for God's sake, somebody! Only one drop!'

"The tender-hearted boy could stand the appeal no longer. Once, twice, three times, in spite of our utmost remonstrances, he tried unsuccessfully to clear the pit.

"At last he gave a desperate leap over the embankment, and once on the other side, threw himself flat on the ground and crawled toward his dying foe. He could not get close to him because of the terrible fire, but he broke a sumac bush, tied to the stick his precious canteen, and landed it in the sufferer's trembling hands.

"You never heard such gratitude in your life. The officer was for tying his gold watch on the stick and sending it back as a slight return for the disinterested act. But this the boy would not allow. He only smiled happily, and returned as he had gone, crawling amid a hailstorm of bullets.

"When he reached the edge of the pit he called out to his comrades to clear the way for him, and with a mighty leap he was among us once more. He was not even scratched.

"He took our congratulations calmly. We said it was the bravest deed we had seen during the war. He did not answer. His eyes had a soft, musing look.

"'How could you do it?' I asked in a whisper later, when the crack of the rifles ceased for a moment.

"'It was something I thought of,' he said, simply. Something my mother used to say to me. 'I was thirsty and ye gave me drink,' she said. She read it out of the Bible, and she taught it to me till I never could forget it. When I heard that man crying for water I remembered it. The words stood still in my head. I couldn't get rid of 'em. So I thought they meant me— and I went. That's all.'

"This was the reason why the boy was ready to sacrifice his life for an enemy. And it was reason enough," said the soldier in a quivering voice.—Southern Churchman.

WHAT HE MIGHT HAVE DRUNK.

A well known preacher riding in a London omnibus was entertained by a dialogue which was sustained upon the one side by the driver and upon the other by an elderly passenger.

"I understand you're temperance?" began the driver.

"Yes, I'm pretty strong against liquor," returned the other. I've been set against it now for thirty-five years."

"Scared it will ruin your health?"

"Yes, but that isn't the main thing."

"Perhaps it don't agree with you?" ventured the driver.

"Well, it really don't agree with anybody. But that ain't it, either. The thing that sets me against it is a horrible idea."

"A horrible idea! What is it?"

"Well, thirty-five years ago I was sitting in a hotel in America with a friend of mine, and I says, 'Let's order a bottle of something.' And he says, 'No, sir. I'm saving my money to buy government land at 7s. and 6d. per acre. I'm going to buy to-morrow, and you'd better let me take the money you would have spent for the liquor and buy a couple of acres along with mine. I says, 'All right.' So we didn't drink, and he bought me two acres.

"Well, sir, to-day those two acres are right in the middle of a flourishing town, and if I'd taken that drink I'd have swallowed a city block, a grocery store, an apothecary's shop, four lawyers' offices, and it's hard to say what else. That's the idea. Ain't it horrible?"—Author Unknown.

A HAPPY SUGGESTION.

In the Nashville Christian Advocate of May 7, Dr. T. N. Ivey makes the following suggestion:

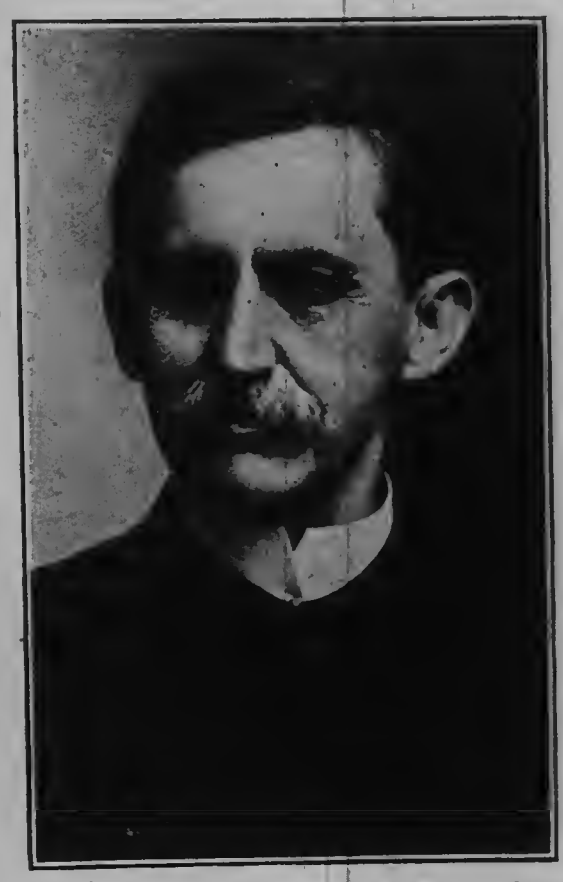
"Emory University, with its three schools, lacks but one school to make it a real university. That is the School of Law. It seems to us that now is the time for the Church to begin a movement for the establishment of a School of Law. It should be the Lamar School of Law. Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar, one of the most illustrious statesmen the South ever produced and who in his last years was a devout Christian of the Methodist faith, was a graduate of Emory College, which is now the Academic Department of our university. He was converted at Emory College, and almost the last address he ever delivered was delivered to the alumni of Emory College. What could be more appropriate than to establish a School of Law bearing his name? With a building costing $50,000 well furnished and supplied, there could hardly be a question as to its adequate endowment. Men and brethren, what say you?"

We heartily second this proposal. Mr. Lamar viewed from any standpoint was a truly great man. He was an accomplished scholar, a brilliant and forceful orator, a profound and sagacious satesman, an astute and resourceful diplomat, and an able lawyer and eminent jurist. And even greater than his remarkable intellect and attainments were his unshakable integrity and his splendid moral courage. Taken all in all, he is easily the most masterful man that the South has given to the Nation since the Civil War, and certainly none has rendered either his own section or the entire country a more distinguished service. Always a firm believer in the Holy Scriptures, toward the end of his illustrious career he leaned more strongly upon their teachings and drew closer to the Church which from his youth he had reverenced and loved. Nothing could be more fitting than to connect his imperishable name and fame with Emory University, the academic department of which was his Alma Mater. To lift up before its law students as an example his life and character could not but be an inspiration to lofty ideals and high endeavor. And the Methodists of the South in thus honoring Mr. Lamar would also worthily honor themselves.

No happier suggestion has been made concerning our new University than this one which Dr. Ivey has given us. And we believe that he is correct in the view that if the law school were thus designated and an adequate building provided, a call for funds to endow it would meet with an enthusiastic and generous response from our people. The names of Washington and Lee are an unfailing source of strength to the Virginia institution with which they are connected, and the name of Lamar conspicuously linked with our great school in Atlanta would be a valuable asset to it through all the coming years.

BISHOP JAMES ATKINS.

At the recent meeting of the College of Bishops in St. Louis, Mo., our three patronizing Conferences were placed in the same episcopal district and assigned to the supervision of Bishop James Atkins, of Waynesville, N. C. Bishop Atkins was born in Knoxville, Tenn., on April 15, 1850, being a son of James and Mary F. Atkins. He was trained for college at the Riceville Academy, a Tennessee institution, and received the A.M. degree from Emory and Henry College in 1872, and joined the Holston Conference that year. He was married on September 14, 1876, to Miss Ella M. Branner. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by Trinity College, Durham, N. C. From 1879 to 1889 he was the President of the Asheville (N. C.) Female



College, and from 1889 to 1893 was President of Emory and Henry College. He then again became the official head of the Asheville Female College, which position he was holding in 1896 when he was elected Sunday School Editor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He was the originator of the Bible Teachers' Study Circle, and is the author of "The Kingdom in the Cradle," and a number of other books and pamphlets bearing on Sunday school work. He was a member of five General Conferences and was chosen to the episcopacy at Birmingham in 1906, along with Bishop J. J. Tigert and Bishop Seth Ward, both of whom have passed to the Church Triumphant. Bishop Atkins presided over the North Mississippi Conference at Tupelo in 1913, but has never visited the Louisiana and Mississippi Conferences in the capacity of a Chief Pastor. He spent a good portion of last year in the Orient, having been given the supervision of our work in China, Japan, and Korea. He is popularly known as "the Sunday School Bishop" of our Church, a designation of which he is not ashamed.

WANT MORTMAIN SECTIONS REPEALED.

At the call of Dr. J. B. Hutton, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Jackson, Miss., a meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A. building at Jackson to consider the question of securing the repeal of the Mortmain Sections of the Mississippi State Constitution which forbids the bequeathing of property to any religious organization in that commonwealth. A number of representatives of the leading Christian denominations of the State were present, and Major R. W. Millsaps was made permanent chairman of the meeting. Among the out-of-town visitors in attendance were Dr. T. B. Holloman of Vicksburg, Rev. C. W. Crisler of Hattiesburg, and Capt. W. T. Ratliff of Raymond. After an informal and somewhat extended discussion, the chairman was authorized to appoint a permanent committee of five persons, of which he is also to be a member, making six, to conduct a vigorous campaign with a view to getting the next State Legislature to submit to the people an amendment to the State Constitution eliminating the features regarded as discriminatory against the Christian Churches.

We scarcely need to say that we are heartily in sympathy with this movement. Little that is founded in reason can be said in favor of keeping these obnoxious provisions in the organic law of Mississippi. Bishop Galloway, one of the broadest and most patriotic of men, always deplored their existence and earnestly desired to see them stricken out. At any rate, no man who believes in democracy ought to object to letting the people pass upon the matter.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS.

Vice President and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall spent Thursday, May 6, in New Orleans. They were shown much attention by the people of the Crescent City and participated in several meetings of a public character. Mr. Marshall made the principal address at the dedication of the attractive new quarters of the New Orleans Press Club on Thursday evening. He is a man of philosophic temperament, and his speeches abound in striking utterances. We quote a single one of the many impressive observations that he made in his several happy talks here:

"Take an interest in your profession: take an interest in your church, society and the affairs of government. Some day when you have reached the age of 61, as I have, you will understand that the best thing, the real thing in life, is friendship. When you have turned into the evening of life, when your intellect begins to dull, it will be nice to peer into the retrospect, and know that you had one, two or three real, true friends—friends who were ready and willing to aid you, to come to you when you were in distress."

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall went from New Orleans to Mississippi, where the Vice-President had engagements to lecture at Pontotoc, Tupelo, Starkville, Meridian, Laurel, and Hattiesburg.

MY MISSION.

Eben E. Rexford.

I was longing for a mission—
  Fancy made it something grand,
Something that would win the praises
  Of the world on every hand:
So I squandered time in waiting
  For the chance that never came—
Quite forgot to think of others
  In my longings after fame.

But one day I had a vision
  Of the needy ones near by—
Of the hearts that starve with hunger
  Till they faint, and fall, and die;
Starve for little deeds of kindness,
  Or a word of hope and cheer,
And for smiles that cost so little
  But can make it heaven here.

Then it was I found my mission,
  Knew what work God meant for me,
And I cried: "Forgive my blindness,
  Now, at last, thank God, I see!"
And my heart, that had been selfish
  In its longings to be great,
Saw great fields of labor waiting
  For me just outside the gate.

So I seek to scatter sunshine
  In a dark and cheerless place;
Loving words have given courage,
  Smiles have cheered the tearful face.
In the joy of helping others
  God's good time I waste no more,
Since my life has found its mission
  Waiting at the very door.

AN UNTENABLE VIEW.

John Fletcher.

If faith is so closely connected with truth, present salvation with faith, and eternal salvation with the works of faith, how injudicious are those gentlemen who assert that principles are nothing, and that it little matters what doctrines we hold, provided our actions be good.

OUR LOVE TO GOD.

Henry C. King.

God can not truly give himself to us, except in the proportion in which we give ourselves to him. Even in our human relations, the calculating, self-withholding friend is necessarily shut out from the best his unselfish friend would give him; he simply can not understand it, share it or enter into it. He lacks the capacity even to receive his friend's best blessing. That could come only as his own self responded to the dominant note of his friend. Still more must this be true in our relation to God.

THE SECRET OF POWER.

Theodore L. Cuyler.

Where is the secret of power? In my college days the professor of natural philosophy used to exhibit his great horseshoe-magnet, wound about with coils of wire. He hung it up, charged the wire with a galvanic current, and it caught up and held four thousand pounds. He signalled to his assistant to draw off the current, and the power was gone. My brother, encircle your soul with faith, and let the divine electricity of the love of Jesus Christ charge it. Then you can lift anything, you can do anything that God wants you to do. Draw it off, and you are a shorn Samson, a weakling.

WANTED—FEWER TRIMMERS.

Zoologists divide the animal kingdom into two classes, vertebrates and invertebrates—animals having a vertebra, or backbone, and those having none. The same principle of division might well be applied to men. Who has not seen "a being erect upon two legs, and bearing all the outward semblance of a man," in whom a backbone nevertheless appears to be totally wanting? Your invertebrate man has no more firmness than a lump of putty; his opinions are those of the last man who has his ear; he is vacillating, hesitating, and, like Butler's hero, is "everything by turns and nothing long."

If the invertebrate man is a pastor, he is always in a flutter for fear he will preach something that will hurt somebody's feelings. It is the chief aim of the Rev. Mr. Trimmer to preach a gospel of velvet and lavender water, one that can not possibly give offense to anybody. Everybody has laughed at the court preacher who said: "We must all die," but fearing that this bold truth might be unpalatable to his royal auditor, qualified it by adding, "almost all, sire." Yet we have known men whose desperate attempts to blow both hot and cold at once were little less ludicrous. If the invertebrate happens to be a layman, he wants his pastor to "preach the simple gospel," and to avoid doctrine, controversy and stewardship. If he is a journalist, he produces a namby-pamby sheet which stands for nothing. If he is a politician, he will shout himself hoarse for one thing to-day and for its opposite to-morrow, swallowing his own words as if he relished such food better than anything else. Whatever he is, he is a failure.

It is impossible to respect a man who never had such a thing as a conviction in his life, or, if he did, lacked courage to express it. The man who has decided convictions, and is not afraid to let the world know what they are, is the one on whom men can rely. His positiveness may lead him sometimes to make mistakes, but the invertebrate man is a perpetual mistake. Rome never had a citizen of more sincere patriotism or of purer character than Cicero, but just because he lacked backbone he was a mere "trimmer" between the parties of Caesar and Pompey, and lost the confidence of both. No man ever did anything great and enduring who was not a man of positive convictions. No matter how excellent a man's character may be in other respects, if he lacks convictions and the courage to stand by them he may be despised or pitied, but he can not be respected or loved.

Men of positive convictions, men with good stiff back-bones, are the great need of our time. The invertebrate species is quite numerous enough, but there is room for an indefinite growth among the vertebrates. They are needed in the church, in the counting room, in public life, everywhere. Above all, there are needed men who have firm moral principles, men who can not be tempted to do a mean act.—Watchman-Examiner.

THE PROBLEM OF THE YOUNG IN 1915.

(This suggestive utterance recently appeared as an editorial in the Memphis Commercial Appeal.)

Revelations in the trial of a young man charged with violating the age of consent law showed an appalling condition of youthful male morals in this city. And what is true of Memphis is true of every other city in the country.

We shall give attention to things at home, for a home missionary effort is surely needed.

A young girl, aged 15 years, was a prosecuting witness against a young man not 21. It was charged that he accomplished her ruin. When the case came to trial the defense sought to break the force of the indictment by alleging the previous bad character of the girl. Young boys not of age and young men around town got on the witness stand and swore to insinuations that the girl, previous to the affair on which the indictment was found, was worthless. They were glib of tongue and swift witnesses up to a certain point. In murdering the good name of the girl they were as indifferent as a small boy killing a toad.

There was a hung jury. Eight stood for conviction and four stood for acquittal. One of those who stood out for acquittal intimated that it was merely a question of a young man "sowing his wild oats." One pimple-faced juror of middle life said human nature was human nature and that he was not adverse to a flirtation and what might follow. The others thought that such things were a matter of course, and thus the case was not decided.

A girl only 15 years old cannot be entirely bad, but this girl in the court was treated as if she were a woman of experience, mature in years and wise to the ways of the world. She was given no consideration because of her tender years. She was scarcely more than a child, but she was treated in the court as if she were old enough to take care of herself. The stranger in the court would have thought that she and not the boy was on trial.

There are many young men in this town between the ages of 16 and 21 who are doing nothing. They are silly and snobbish. The social viewpoint has come to making it a distinction if a young man is idle. A father who may have toiled in the field or in the shop, who may be prematurely old because of the excess of his labor, after having secured a competency will not train his own son in habits of industry. A misguided affection causes him to want his boy to have a good time and not work as he worked. The sons of such parents, many of them not encouraged to labor, are given money to spend and are given by their parents automobiles for riding around. By day they fill the pool rooms, picture shows and cigar stands. By night they run from place to place. They ought to be at home and in bed at 10 o'clock. Daylight often finds them awake. Those who work at night and go home at 2 o'clock and 3 o'clock in the morning often see groups of these young men suffering from the excesses of their first drunk. Nothing so brings out the latent frailties and idiocies of humanity as a boy's first drunk. In these cases idleness is both the father and mother of vice. These idle boys do not prey upon the girls of their own station of life. But many of them do take advantage of young girls who, because of our rotten economic conditions, are compelled to labor away from home when they should be constantly under their mothers' care.

These girls are regarded as legitimate prey for the idle sons of indulgent parents. The burdens of poverty as to females is not in the loss of the comforts that the rich enjoy, but in the moral danger, in the temptations that surround the conditions of poverty, even when the child is but a child. The poor young girl may have an ambitious mother, whose ambition is for vain and foolish things. When the mother hears her daughter speaking of the attention she may be receiving from one in a different station of life or alleged social position she too often regards it as a tribute to the intelligence and beauty of her daughter and as a prospect for an advancement into a social career.

The busy father usually leaves the training of the family to the wife, and when the boys get around 16 years, instead of talking to them and counseling them, he lets them go their way, says little to them and then is surprised when he finds them fetching up at the police station. When he suggests to his son that there is no double standard of morals and that he must keep his body and soul clean, he is informed by his would-be blase youth that in these days such preachments are not in "good form." A homily on the observance of the Ten Commandments is answered with a yawn and a statement that such sermons might have been in vogue 50 years ago, but are now out of date in this age of lady-killing clothes and class rings. The problem of the morals of young men and the evil of their seeking out for destruction young girls are more serious than any other thing worth considering. A confusion of license with freedom which is in our attitude of mind towards government goes even into the home. If a father attempts to exercise the right of parent over his 18-year-old boy there is probably a revolt. The young upstart announces that he is a free agent and that it would be a "sacrifice of his liberty" if he gave unquestioned obedience to his father's commands.

Religion seems to have lost its grip on the 16-21-year-old boys. The pulpits resound with denunciation of evils which we seek to remedy by political agencies. Often are the sins of the mature thundered at, but seldom do we hear sermons to parents on their duty in regulating the lives of their children. As for the children themselves, they are practically ignored in the things that are of vital importance until they become the victims of excesses into which they go often unwarned, unconscious of the end of the journey they begin. Men and women ought to have sense enough to save themselves. Young boys and young girls are incapable of rational thinking, and yet there are few of the older ones who attempt to do their thinking for them and direct their lives along lines which the elders, in the light of their experience know to be safe. If human society should concentrate its effort upon the proper rearing of boys and girls until they are 21 years old, then indeed many of the evils which men and women are now fighting would not exist. Their beginnings are usually in the youthful brain. What are the ministers, the teachers, the parents of Memphis going to do about this problem, and what are the ministers, the teachers and parents of all the other communities of this country going to do?

The work of the devil among children was never prosecuted under better advantages than in this year of our Lord 1915. Young girls begin to have beaux when they are about 15. Twenty years ago they did not begin to wear long dresses until they were 17. This comes from the social ambition of foolish mothers. In the winter time the society columns of this paper and other papers are filled with stories of matinee parties, etc., given by the "younger set" (girls 13-14, boys 16-19), and this younger set ought never to be out after dark without a chaperon. They should be in bed before 10 o'clock.

We have the theaters and the picture shows and other places where children unescorted are permitted to go, and these same children, when they go to our beautiful parks, are often not accompanied by parents. Then we have the pool room for the boys and other places where young men congregate, and there their minds are inflamed and their curiosity excited by the vulgarity of boys a few years older and sometimes by the indecent conversations of men who have lived long enough to lose their teeth. A corrupt-minded old man is like a pestilence-breeding leper. And then we have a line of literature and pictures that are as poisonous to the soul as strychnine is to the body. Yes, the devil finds in our advancing civilization many devices which make his work pleasant and easy.

Let's begin to conserve the children. The present old ones must take care of themselves. If the children are properly trained, then as they grow into men and women, they will be stronger to resist those things which they know if they embrace will finally destroy them.

SOME QUERIES ANSWERED.

Dear Doctor Meek: In the Baptist Chronicle of April 15, 1915, on the first page appeared the following article:

"There are falsehoods and falsehoods. There are fresh lies that catch by their very verdancy. Then there are lies that are hoary with age-long acceptation.

"This latter character of falsehood is chargeable with the misconception and misstatements that are so often made concerning the morality and religion of the rural districts. The country is often in righteousness contrasted with the city. In the South, the cities are practically new institutions, hence, we do not find the vast meanness and congested wickedness that are found in the modern centers of population. The temptation is therefore, to cry down the city and to cry up the country. This article is to explode this holy heresy. The country is not good and never has been. There is no righteous rural community in the world.

"A few years ago this writer made a trip to a Baptist Association. A part of the route lay through a strip of country thirty-five miles long. We traveled that distance from a little town to the place where the Association met. Most of the people lived far from the railroad. It was all strictly country. Nearly every house passed on the long day's route in a farm wagon, was occupied by a widow. The explanation was that all the men were dead, having been slain in personal combat during the years since the war. This was a percentage of murder which would make sordid the criminal records of New York City.

"A few years ago at a Baptist gathering in a country tabernacle among the hills of one of our Southern States one of the most noted preachers in all the land was present to address the meeting. This great leader viewing the congregation remarked to the pastor, beside him: "See how teachable these people are. They are so open-minded and innocent. Without a doubt it must be easy to lead such a folk." Yet, before the year was out these "innocent" (?) people had driven away the able and worthy pastor and in another year had treated his successor in the same manner, and while in these churches revivals were constantly taking place the following tragedies occurred: A poor lost girl in the community committed suicide. Two young men members of the Church were indicted for complicity in the murder of a Negro, and one of the most prominent churchmen of the neighborhood was shot to death at his own gate. This is a typical country community. It was rather notable for its protracted meetings and the people were extremely particular about the character of preaching they had. They demanded soft and tender pulpit ministrations. Fiery and denunciatory preaching was one thing they would not abide. They searched the land over for mild and meek-mannered men to hold their meetings.

"Is not the lesson obvious? Has the country been fairly dealt with? Has there been a courageous Gospel preached throughout the length and breath of the hills and bottoms. Is it not strictly true that the country has been brought up on a namby-pamby milk and water diet? Is there a country neighborhood in the South that ever heard a series of sermons on the Ten Commandments? Have any of our preachers ever thundered in the country pulpits against murder and against divorce? Until there is a radical change might we not have a rest on prating about the righteousness of the country. T."

As will be noticed, the author of the above article fires a blank cartridge at "The Goodness of the Country," utterly demolishing or "exploding," as he puts it, "the lies that are hoary with age-long acceptation." It struck me rather forcibly, not the cartridge, but the article. Perhaps this was because I have been intimately associated with country, and country life for about half a century, and think I know a few things about it.

But for the air of finality precluding all possibility of an appeal, I might undertake a reply; but when a thing is "exploded," and the dust settled, one might as well accept the ultimatum. However I will just say in passing, that the tragedies he mentioned as having occurred once in a rural community, are duplicated many times a day in every large city, and it seems a bit hard to condemn the whole Southern rural district because a few individuals lost control of themselves, imitated their city cousins, and ran amuck.

It is to answer the series of questions in the last paragraph of his letter that I presume to intrude upon your time and patience.

Question 1. "Has the country been fairly dealt with?" Most assuredly not in this letter.

2. "Has there been a courageous Gospel preached throughout the length and breadth of the hills and bottoms?" I have lived in both the hills and bottoms. The most courageous preaching I ever heard was in the rural districts, where everybody knew his neighbor's "besetting sin." Its condemnation was often made as personal as though the preacher had said, "Thou art the man," or the woman.

3. "Is it not strictly true that the country has been brought up on a namby pamby milk and water diet?" Yes, while our city cousins have been drinking beer and whiskey, we plead guilty to the charge of having slaked our thirst with milk and water. Any thing wrong about that?

4. "Is there a country neighborhood in the South that ever heard a series of sermons on the Ten Commandments?" I do not know so much about "a series"—you see we only have preaching once a month in rural districts, and a preacher would only have two Sundays left out of the year in which to treat the many other subjects he might like to discourse on—but unless this is a case of "mistaken identity," I heard "I" preach a sermon on the whole "Ten Commandments," in which he said they were never meant to be kept; and in that case why should he want a country preacher to give a whole year to preaching to them?

5. "Have any of our preachers ever thundered in the country pulpits against murder and divorce?" I never had any personal knowledge of but one murder, and no one ever knew who the murderer was, and of but one divorced woman, until I "moved to town." Most of our country preachers have more sense than to waste ammunition. They will need all that "thunder" when they come to town.

THE DALLAS THEOLOGICAL SCHOOL.

Along with the announcement of the Faculty of the School of Theology of the Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Texas, which we published last week, the following additional statements concerning the work of that department were officially made:

1. Graduates of Colleges of recognized standing, holding a Bachelor's degree, will be admitted without examination as candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

2. Students who have completed two full years' work in an approved College may be admitted to the School of Theology. The courses in the Academic and Theological Departments will be arranged so as to permit a student to complete the work of both departments and receive the A. B. and B. D. degrees in six years, thus saving one full year.

3. Young men who have not had college training and who are at least twenty-one years of age, may be admitted. But each case must stand on its own merits and must be passed upon by the Theological Faculty.

4. The courses of study will be arranged so as to permit special students (preachers desiring to do special work and laymen wishing to prepare for greater efficiency) to spend one-third of the University year in the School of Theology.

The School of Theology is able to announce that proper financial assistance will be given to students who need such help. A number of pastoral charges and single appointments will be opened in the Presiding Elders' districts adjacent to the city to young men who are members of Annual Conferences and to others who have had experience in the pastorate. The number of such appointments is necessarily limited. Scholarships will be offered those who are candidates for the B. D. degree. Loan funds are now being provided for other students. Room rent will be free, but students will pay for board and for light and fuel.

Students from other Theological Seminaries will be permitted to enter the higher classes of the School of Theology upon presentation of satisfactory certificates of work done by them. Credit will be allowed for theological work done in Colleges, but each Professor in the School of Theology shall determine what credit is to be allowed. For further information, address

EDWIN D. MOUZON,
Dean of the School of Theology, Southern Methodist University.

He has also achieved distinction as an author.

PORT GIBSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

It was held at the beautiful new Gibson Memorial Church in Vicksburg, and began on the afternoon of Tuesday, April 27. We went from the trains directly to the Church on our arrival, which was close to the noon hour, and were served at the proper time with a splendid dinner in the basement. This was repeated at the supper hour on the opening day. The ladies of Gibson Memorial are loyal, alert and hospitable, as this arrangement clearly indicates.

The Presiding Elder, Rev. T. W. Adams, was in the chair; the Rev. M. Favre Adams was made Secretary. Every pastor was present to represent his charge and participate in the deliberations. The presiding elder introduced a new method, the pre-eminent success of which demonstrated its wisdom. The questions to bring out reports on each item were propounded by a member—generally chairman of a committee on that item—who kept a careful record of the reports relating to the matter of his item, and after all the charges had reported these chairmen summarized before the Conference the results. Thus we got a clear and concise presentation of the work being done throughout the district.

The outlook is very encouraging. There were difficulties mentioned; but not a hopeless note was heard. One thing was noteworthy: the preachers are holding church conferences and attending to the matter of the sacraments better, I think, than in any district I have ever heard reports from on these matters.

The preaching was done by Rev. H. B. Watkins, Rev. J. H. Foreman, and this scribe. Rev. R. Selby, Rev. W. M. Williams, and Rev. J. R. Jones represented, respectfully, the Board of Education, the Orphans' Home and the Tri-State Hospital, while President O'Neil and Dr. Linn talked interestingly about Port Gibson and Millsaps Colleges.

One young man, Clay W. Hillman, a pupil of the College at Port Gibson, was licensed to preach.

Rev. C. A. Massey and Rev. J. M. Griffing, local preachers, were recommended to the Annual Conference for Deacon's Orders. L. L. Roberts, T. B. Holloman, T. J. O'Neil and H. Walter Featherstun were appointed the Licensing Committee.

The lay delegates to the Annual Conference, as elected are: M. M. Satterfield, R. C. Lum, J. K. Sessions and Guy Foreman. Alternates: J. M. Hasie and J. M. Bush.

Something over a hundred dollars were raised to aid Rev. C. A. Massey to attend Millsaps College.

After every item of business had been carefully attended to, the conference without haste quietly adjourned sine die on Thursday afternoon.

Strong resolutions were passed commending the Protestant Pastors of Vicksburg and the Vicksburg Daily Herald for their brave and timely fight for law-enforcement in that city. Resolutions of thanks were unanimously voted; and the good people of Gibson Memorial deserved all the good things we felt and said. H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES WANTED.

Mr. Henry E. Harman of Atlanta, Ga., who is writing "History of the Old South," wishes to buy old libraries, books, magazines and newspapers printed before the war. No school books, novels, or medical books are wanted. Old books printed back in 1600 and 1700 specially wanted. Our readers who have such old publications can realize cash for them by sending Mr. Harman a list of what they have and at the same time help him in the great work he is doing.

WORK WANTED.

A refined middle-aged widow, Methodist, is anxious to obtain employment as housekeeper or assistant in housework. Can do plain sewing, mending, etc. Address 920 Josephine Street, New Orleans, La.

TO BE INDEPENDENT.

It is stated that after the present session the Biblical Department of Vanderbilt University will be operated as an independent school, and that representatives of various Churches will be given places in the faculty. The idea seems to be to model it after some of the non-denominational theological seminaries of the North. If a Biblical Department is to be maintained at all at Vanderbilt under the present management of the University, it ought undoubtedly to hoist the independent flag. It is no longer in any sense whatever a Methodist institution.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Presldent

DR. ANDERSON IN LOUISIANA.

Dr. Stonewall Anderson spent last week in Louisiana in the lnterest of the $200,000 endowment campaign for Centenary College. It is hardly possible and certainly not to be expected that Dr. Anderson could solve the whole problem of Christian education in this State in one week, but there was no better way for him to get at the crux of the situation here than to make an ltinerary of the State and meet representative preachers and laymen and get their views. Enterlng the State at Rayville, he passed on to Ruston, and from thero to Alexandria, and then to Crowley, from there to New Orleans, and lastly to Lake Charles. With the exception of Crowley, where he was caught in the sweep of the storm that wrecked Mermentau and did great damago to South Louisiana, he was accorded an opportunlty of meeting representative audiences at each place.

Dr. Anderson did not attempt to raise money, but rather to arouse enthusiasm. A eollection on a cold collar ls never a real offerlng. We dld not have the pleasure of hearing him except ln New Orleans, but if his utterances at the other places measured up to this address here, we are hopeful of a harvest as a result of his sowing. While in New Orleans the Conference Educational Secretary and Publicity Commissioner of the Board of Edtication held an extended conference with him with the purpose of working out the result of his campaign into concrete form for the benefit of the whole Conference. We were not disappointed so far as we were concerned, but we are burdened with a hard task ln trying to write so that others may get the same vision of service and opportunity that Dr. Anderson has given to us.

Our General Secretary of Education has looked at Centenary College from the outslde. He sees it ln lts relatlon to other Methodist schools and in relation to the future of Louisiana Methodism. It stands within a eircle with a radlus of nearly 200 mlles without touching another Methodist College ln any State. This vast territory ls scarcely equaled by the size of any other contrlbuting terrltory adjacent to any other college in Southern Methodism. It stands as the only Methodist college of a great State, and that State one that is known for its great industrial resources and men of large capital. These geographical and natural advantages stand out alongside the fact that the experience of the Church is that wherever a school with such advantages has been neglected, lt has resulted ln another college springlng up ln the same terrltory and becoming an ultimate success. In other words, if Centenary College should be closed now, in less than five years it would be necessary for Louisiana Methodists to father a plan for the founding of another college.

Wlth practlcally nothing to begin on, five hundred men in Arkansas five years ago made possible the giving of $300,000 endowment to Hendrix College. In comparison, Arkansas does not afford as many men and women of means as does Louisiana, although Methodism is numerically much stronger there than here. We have the five hundred men and women in Louisiana who could do as much for Centenary as did the Arkansas men and women for Hendrix. At present the air is full of hope. Elaborate plans are being made for the openlng of Centenary College next fall. Men are studying our educational needs as never before. Dr. Anderson is wlth us in our eampaign and is ready to spend and be spent for us in our fight for a greater Centenary. We have the stage set and all is ready for the first great forward movement. It is our hope that within the next thirty days the work of the last fivo months may crystallize into something large in the way of gifts for endowment.

SUBSCRIPTION BY THE PREACHERS FOR CENTENARY.

At the Conference session at Shreveport, during the educational rally, a subscription for the Centenary endowment and equipment was started spontaneously, a number of the preachers offering definite subscriptions, and others subscribing two per cent of their salary for five years, in each case payment to be extended if necessary through five years. The following is the list of such subscriptions. If any names of subscribers have been omitted by mistake, it is hoped that the error will bo promptly corrected:

F. S. Parker, D. D., $100 cash and $300 or $400 later; J. F. Foster, $50 cash, and $250 per year; R. H. Wynn, D. D., $50 per year; T. L. Bryson, $25 per year; J. A. Alford, $25 per year; T. H. Morris, $20 per year; Wm. Schuhle, $100, as ahle; J. G. Snelling, $50 per year; W. Winans Drake, $50 per year.

The following subscribed on the basis of two per cent for five years:

Geo. S. Sexton, D. D., F. R. Hill, Jr., Robt. Randle, P. O. Lowrey, D. L. Griffin, T. J. Warlick, W. J. Porter, H. T. Young, J. M. Alford, and W. F. Roberts.

The attention of the preachers generally is now being called to this subscription and an opportunity given each to get into the list. The names of addltlonal subscribers wlll be published in this column from tlme to time. Somewhere near $3000 ls pledged in the above list, and it is hoped that it may shortly be more than doubled.

CALL FOR THE NATIONAL CONVENTION OF THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE OF AMERICA.

To be Held in Atlantic City, N. J., July 6 to 9 (inclusive) 1915.

This Nation is moving rapidly toward the absolute prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. Already eighteen of the forty-eight States in the Union have adopted Prohibition, while the legislatures of four others have submitted the question to a vote of the people. In all probability twenty-four States will be under State-wide prohibition before the presidential election of 1916. When the laws go into effect in all the above mentioned eighteen States, more than sixty million people will be living in territory where the liquor traffic has been prohibited, and more than 80 per cent of the area of the United States will be dry by law.

The skirmish period of the anti-saloon warfare is over—the real conflict is on. The far-flung battle line will witness most active service from this time forward, until the liquor traffic lives only in the memory of an emancipated race.

We have reached a point in this movement for sobriety when every twenty-four hours marks a day's march nearer the goal of the moral forces of the Republic, which eventually means a square deal to every man and woman who struggles with the problems of life, together with a larger portion of justice to the millions yet unborn.

This mighty uprising of the hosts of righteousness against the saloon is significant, answering as it does the twentieth century demand, "Let the people rule," with the fearless, confident reply of America's Christian citizenship, "The people shall rule."

No longer is the prediction of the enlisted anti-liquor prophet "a voice crying in the wilderness." That voice has become a triumphant shout of an intelligent and enlightened populace which moves in quick response to the God-given command "Forward!"

The present is no time for compromise, equivocation, or excuse. The reign of the politician, so far as this question is concerned, has been superseded by the new epoch of constructive temperance statesmanship. We have passed the forks of the road and are well along on the highway toward the realization of the highest moral ideals in Christian government.

The National Anti-Saloon League Convention, to be held in Atlantic City from July 6 to 9, inclusive, will unquestionably be the greatest war council ever assembled in America or in the world. It promises to be one of the most important historic events in the record of our development as a Nation.

We call upon every minister of the Gospel, every layman in the Church, every woman who believes in national sobriety and every person whose moral sense is touched with the appeal for a redeemed citizenship, to lend a hand in making this Convention the beginning of the end of the arrogant domination of our industrial and political life by the Moloch of human greed which, for want of a more suitable name, we call the liquor traffic.

Every Church, Sunday school, young people's society, as well as every temperance and uplift organization, should be officially represented at this great July gathering.

This call is extended to every individual, whether officially representing an organization, or directly representing his own sentiments and devotion to the cause of righteousness, to be present at this gathering of the clans, to take counsel and to catch a new inspiration for the titanic struggle just ahead. This Convention is called for the double purpose of thanksgiving for victories already secured, and reconsecration for the Herculean task yet to be performed.

In the truest sense this is a call to the nobility of service. May the moral forces of the United States respond by sending to the Atlantic City Congress the most representative body which has ever assembled for the purpose of seeking redress of wrongs by the enthronement of civic righteousness.

Fillmore Condit, H. B. Carre, E. J. Moore, James Cannon, Jr.; Wayne B. Wheeler, R. H. Scott, A. J. Scrogin, William H. Anderson, H. H. McNeill, A. J. Barton, J. E. Cannaday, L. H. Keller, S. K. Warrick, D. M. Gandier, Fletcher Homan, William F. Cochran,

The Executive Committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

MR. A. H. COURTS,

Treasurer of the Board of Stewards of the Methodist Church at Yazoo City, Miss.

For the past 20 years, he has so wisely managed the affairs of the Yazoo City Church that no pastor has ever gone to an Annual Conference without every assessment being paid in full. Gladly do we commend such a record. Supporting him, is a board of stewards whose ability and loyalty deserve unstinted praise. This tribute is but giving honor to whom honor is due.

WORK.

The Negro in the woodland felling trees and hewing them into firewood for the coming winter is heated and drenched with the efforts that he is putting forth. The man running the lawn mower on the streets and in the parks of the city is also hot and weary with the effort expended. This is work. We sometime call work of this sort "manual labor." There are still other kinds of work. Bent upon making some discovery that will become a blessing to humanity, the scientist has fixed his mind with riveted attention upon some enterprise and has gone on with his experiments through long days and nights until he has finally been honored with success in his efforts. This, too, is work.

Travelers tell us of the great pyramids of Egypt. Great piles of granite blocks that would baffle the skill of modern engineers to rear, there have they stood for many long centuries, monuments to the toil and labor of multitudes. Erected as tombs for rulers and kings, they have become to all succeeding ages monuments of toil. And such likewise is true of many other achievements of man. Long lines of railway stretching out into thousands of miles, intricate and delicate machines of one sort and another, great skyscrapers in our American cities, age-old castles and cathedrals in the old world, a Great Wall in China, a Panama Canal—all these are monuments of toil and of labor. Everything that is worthwhile that has been accomplished by man in his long career in this world has been made possible through unremitting effort put forth by some man. Gems of literature, marvelous paintings, exquisite pieces of statuary, the world's masterpieces in music—all these have been made possible because there have been those who have been willing to toil.

In our modern civilization we enjoy the blessings that have been brought to us through the inventive genius of Edisou. When we come to know more of Edison we find that his genius consists in the ability of taking infinite paius and of toiling through long hours of sustained effort. Medical research has done much to alleviate the pains and the sorrows of humanity. This, too, has come because there have been those who have toiled. In the religious world we think of the marvelous achievements of Wesley and Calvin, and of Edwards, Asbury and McKendree. These too, have been men of prodigious labor.

"There is no excellence without toil." No, there is none. This is eminently true of the Christian ministry. The preacher deals with matters that not only wear the body and the mind, but the soul also. The temptation often comes to relax. Perhaps some relaxation might be good. However, it is not by turning loose the task that we are made strong and are enabled to accomplish something in this world, but rather by keeping continuously at the thing before us with unceasing faithfulness. A very successful minister was asked to tell a gathering of young preachers how it had been possible for him to accomplish the great work for the Lord that he had done. He said that he had not done this, but that the Lord had done it. Then he said if he had had any share in this thing it had been through "living on his knees and wearing out sole leather." Who will begin to doubt but that such a man had had a very large share in building up the great congregation brought together under his ministry? His program was work. This should also be the program of every Christian minister. It should likewise be the program of every earnest Christian man and woman. We ought to honor our Master with toil for him and with toil to do something in this world for the good of humanity, for whom he gave himself in glad surrender to make possible the program of the atonement.

"Trust no Future, howe'er pleasant!
Let the dead Past bury its dead!
Act—act in the living Present!
Heart within, and God o'erhead.

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time."

HOW THE WOODPECKER KNOWS.

"How does he know where to dig his hole,
The woodpecker there on the elm tree bole?
How does he know what kind of a limb
To use for a drum, or to burrow in?
How does he find where the young grubs grow?—
I'd like to know."

The woodpecker flew to a maple limb,
And drummed a tattoo that was fun for him.
"No breakfast here! It's too hard for that,"
He said, as down on his tail he sat,
"Just listen to this: rrr rat-tat-tat."

Away to the pear tree out of sight,
With a cheery call and a jumping flight!
He hopped around till he found a stub.
"Ah, here's a place to look for grub!
'Tis moist and dead—rrr rub-dub-dub."

To a branch of the apple tree Downy hied,
And hung by his toes on the under side.
"'Twill be sunny here in this hollow trunk,
It's dry and soft, with a heart of punk.
Just the place for a nest!—rrr runk-tunk-tunk."

"I see," said the boy, "just a tap or two,
Then listen, as any bright boy might do.
You can tell ripe melons and garden stuff
In the very same way—it's easy enough."

LITTLE FRANCIS AND THE SAND MAN.

By Willie Conger Page.

The clock on the mantle struck seven. Little Francis was very busy coloring pictures with his crayon pencils.

One—two—free—seven, counted the little boy.

"Muver" please don't make me go to bed; let me stay up just a leetle teensy bitawhile," pleaded the little fellow.

"No," said his mother firmly, "seven o'clock is your bed time. Come, nurse, and carry him up stairs."

The night before Sunday, when the clock chimed out half past six, Francis slipped behind the big leather couch, sat on the floor, very still, his head resting against the back of the couch.

How pleasant it all was, so bright and warm. Father was reading near the table, mother and the children were at the open piano. She was teaching them to sing "Merry, Merry Sabbath Bells" for to-morrow.

"When I grow to be a big man," said little Francis to himself—" I will never go to bed till I get ready"—nod-nod.

"Hello there," said a kind jolly man, peering down at him. "So you are the little boy who fights me so often, and never wants to go to bed—always worries mother so, to let you sit up longer."

"Come. I want to take you on my rounds to night. I am the Sand Man; this sack on my shoulder is full of sand; I sprinkle it on little children's eyes to keep the eyelids down and make them sleep soundly."

Taking the little boy in his arms the Sand Man left the room silently. "The first place we go is to put a baby to sleep," said the big man.

The baby was lying in her white crib, cooing and playing with her pink toes.

"Oh! you darling," both exclaimed at once. The Sand Man waved his wand over the cradle. Presently the baby yawned, stretched her soft dimpled limbs, closed drowsy, dreamy eyes and fell softly to sleep.

"There is a little sick boy at our next place. I often slip in there; of course no one can see or hear me."

The child was moaning and turning restlessly on his bed, as if in great pain. The Sand Man began to sing a soft low lullaby as sweet as the distant strains of an angel's harp. The little feverish form was soon resting peacefully, fast asleep.

So they went from bedside to bedside, the Sand Man waving his wand, or sprinkling sand on their eyes, till all the little children were fast asleep.

"Now, I have one other place to carry you, then home," whispered the Sand Man. "It is called the White Palace of Dreams. Only the pure and beautiful enter there; prayers, dreams, and thoughts of little children are only worthy to enter. We can not go inside the door, just peep in. We are mortals you know."

They saw white lights gleaming softly. The air was sweet with the fragrance of white lillies, roses, violets, and carnations.

White doves flitted about on noiseless wings. Over all this beautiful Palace angels, with wide outspread wings, guarded and watched, and played on harps of gold, making music so entrancingly sweet it pained the ears of mortals.

"Oh! so bootiful," whispered the little boy. "Is it heaven? I will never fight you again, or hide from you Mr. Sand Man. I will always go to bed when the clock strikes seven."

"It's a bargain," said the kind man smiling. "Be ready when I come for you."

"Oh, I will; I surely will," said Francis.

* * * * * * * * * * * * *

"Oh! Will," said mother in a frightened voice. "Francis is not in his bed. I went up to kiss him good night, thinking the nurse had put him to bed, but he has not been there at all. Suppose some one has stolen him!"

"Don't worry, dear; he is about somewhere. No one has kidnaped him."

* * * * * * * * * * * * *

Francis waked and came from behind the couch, rubbing his eyes.

"Oh! Muver I have been going round with the Sand Man," and he began to try to tell them all about it.

"I will not beg you to let me stay up again. When the clock strikes seven, the Sand Man said he would come for me."

"Oh! Muver it was so bootiful and sweet."

Ever afterward Little Francis could hardly wait for his bed time to come, being always willing and eager to go and be "tucked in" and have mother kiss him good night. "I want to go back to the Bootiful Palace of Dreams," he would whisper softly. "Come on, Mr. Sand Man. I am ready"—holding down his eyelids with soft dimpled fingers—"come on."

THE ROAD UP THE HILL.

One day Bess was automobile riding with Uncle David.

Uncle David is a minister, and very fond of his little niece. So the two were soon busy chatting.

After awhile they came to a steep hill. The road looked like a long gray ribbon stretched to the top of the hill, and Bess began to wonder how they were ever going to climb to such a high place.

"Uncle David," she asked at last, "aren't you afraid we shall have to turn around and go home some other way? We never can climb that great hill!"

"Just be patient a few minutes, my dear," smiled Uncle David, who had climbed hills before. "Wait until we begin to climb."

Bess waited, but they seemed to be always on a level road. She wondered when they were going to really come to the hill. Pretty soon they began to look down into a little valley, and Uncle David exclaimed, "Now look back!"

And there they were at the top of the hill!

"You will find a good many things like that as you grow older," said Uncle David, as they glided down the hill. "Before you begin them, they will look so hard that they will frighten you, and you will think you can never, never do them. But if you go right at them without stopping to worry or fuss—why, they will be all done and over with before you really know they have been hard at all!"

And that is true, isn't it? Please try it some time, won't you?—Baltimore and Richmond Advocate.

It may be that the present obstacle, which seems like a ponderous iron door across your path in the distance is, after all, unlatched and standing ajar, awaiting your approach.—Edward Leigh Pell.

THE SALOON.

Bob Burdette.

I do not know one good thing about the saloon. It is an evil thing that has not one redeeming thing in all its history to commend it to good men. It breaks the laws of God and man, it desecrates the Sabbath; it profanes the name of religion; it defies public order; it tramples under foot the tenderest feeling of humanity; it is a moral pestilence that blights the very atmosphere of town and country; it is a stain upon honesty; a blur upon purity; a clog upon progress; a check upon the nobler impulses; it is an incentive to falsehood, deceit and crime. Search through the history of this hateful thing and find one page over which some mother can bow her grateful head and thank God for all the saloon did for her boy. There is no such record. All its history is written in tears and blood, with smears of shame and stains of crime and dark blots of disgrace.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

Editorial

IS OUR TYPE OF CHRISTIANITY FAILING?

We are carrying on another page a recent editorial utterance of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, entitled "The Problem of the Young in 1915," which deserves more consideration than a mere cursory reading. It deals with the most stupendous task of both the State and Church—the right rearing of our youth. The condition of affairs therein set forth, if it be true, is certainly most deplorable and alarming. And that it depicts things substantially as they are, is our firm belief. At any rate, it is in accord with our observation as to what is going on.

We are living in a most perplexing age. Perhaps never before was there so much boasting of what we are doing for the moral uplift of the world—so much ecclesiastical spreadeagleism. Our Church and school material equipment surpasses that of any preceding period. The Bible is more widely circulated than at any former time, the various religious denominations are numerically stronger, and in the aggregate, if not proportionately, the gifts to benevolent causes are much larger than they were in the past. Various reforms are noisily advocated and we are loud in our assertions that we are much better than were our fathers and mothers. Yet to the man of insight indications are not lacking that the agencies at work among us for the upbuilding of society are falling far short of accomplishing what is claimed for them. The true test of such agencies is to be found in the influences which they exert in the making of men and women. Something is radically wrong with a civilization that allows its youth to grow up without adequate restraints and to become immoral and vicious. True Christianity can never fail either in what it does for an individual or a nation; but weakened and inefficient types of Christianity have failed and will continue to do so. This, both the rationalistic type in Germany and the ritualistic type in the Roman Catholic countries have done. Is the type now prevailing in America succeeding or failing? If it is failing short, where is it defective? This is a question of the most profound and far-reaching importance.

We cannot now discuss this question comprehensively, but there are one or two observations that we desire to make. 1. There is grave peril in the decadence of the religious home life of the American people. None of the modern organizations and devices, however much they are to be commended, can take the place of home example, home authority, and home teaching. Their relation to the young is too remote and their touch too superficial and intermittent. True and faithful Christian parents, seeking to do their whole duty to their offspring in the fear of God, can alone successfully train our youth. We may as well squarely face the fact that if Christian homes of the purest and best type cease to exist Christianity will have been struck a tremendously damaging, if not a really fatal, blow. No matter how much it may beat the tom-toms and fly the flag of reform, any movement that tends to weaken the religious family life of our people must in the end prove hurtful.

2. Only spiritual Christianity in its truest and deepest significance is adequate to cope with the forces of evil and save mankind. There is none of it to spare in the work of destroying sin in human hearts and making them pure and upright. The whole of it is needed to accomplish this most stupendous of all tasks known to earth, and it is utterly futile for any other agency beneath the skies to attempt it. The real strength of Christianity is not in fine churches, nor in learned and eloquent preaching, nor in grand choirs and splendid music, nor in well endowed colleges and a magnificent literature, nor even in an intellectual knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, but in the mighty, life-giving power of the Holy Spirit. Take the latter away from the Church, and she is as weak as any other merely human organization and is wholly impotent to do her Heaven-appointed work. Is there not too much tinsel, too much glitter and show, too much worldly pomp and pride, too much magnifying of material things and too much neglecting of spiritual life and power, in the Christianity of our Nation? Alas! we fear that this is true. And if it is, final failure is inevitable.

The Bible itself is only indirectly the power of God unto salvation. Its highest value lies not in its ethics or ideals, not in the abstract truths that it teaches, but in the fact that it instructs men how to find the Triune God that he may renovate their moral natures and impart spiritual life and strength to their perishing souls. When the Church is self-sufficient and self-reliant, she can do but little; it is when she looks most to God and feels most her dependence upon him that she is strongest and most invincible. This is the most outstanding, and yet apparently the most easily forgotten, truth in human history. Shall we in this great Western World forget this fundamental fact as other peoples have done, and, like them, tread the path to disaster and ruin? Time alone will tell.

THE TWO EPISCOPAL METHODISMS.

(We take the figures below from the Northwestern Christian Advocate. They were tabulated for that journal by Rev. J. D. Walsh, who is said to be a well posted statistician. They differ appreciably from the statistics given out recently by Dr. H. K. Carroll, but this discrepancy may be due to the fact that Mr. Walsh's figures include foreign countries as well as the United States. This comparative exhibit is quite interesting at this time when the union of the two Churches is under consideration.—Editor of the Advocate.)

A HORRIBLE TRAGEDY.

The sinking by a German submarine of the Cunard liner, Lusitania, in the Irish Channel about 220 miles from Liverpool, on May 7, has shocked the whole civilized world. There were more than 2000 persons on board, of whom nearly 1500 are said to have perished. The passenger list included 188 Americans, of whom it is stated about 75 escaped. Among those who were lost were Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Mr. Elbert Hubbard, editor of The Philistine; Justus Miles Forman, the author; Dr. F. S. Pearson, of New York, and other widely known citizens of the United States. The best information is that the Lusitania carried neither guns, nor anything that was contraband of war. No warning was given the vessel before she was torpedoed, and those on board were left absolutely to their fate by the attacking crafts. Nothing more barbaric and outrageous has occurred in the whole European war than the sinking of this great ship, crowded with innocent men, women, and children. The Germans are undertaking to justify their attack by declaring that they had given notice to the neutral nations that the waters surrounding the British Isles are in the war zone and had advised them to keep their people away. It is also claimed that specific warning was given the American public that the Lusitania would be in danger of being attacked on her homeward voyage. But none of these pleas are sufficient. In civilized warfare it is the rule before an attack is made to give non-combatants an opportunity to withdraw to places of safety whenever possible.

But Germany is not the only one of the warring nations that has shown a disregard for international law during the present great conflict. England also has been guilty of doing this. She and Japan violated the neutrality of China in taking Kiao Chow, and her war vessels did the same thing in attacking a German ship near the coast of Chile. The present blockade which she is seeking to maintain is said by competent authorities to be wholly without precedent. The fact is, none of the nations seem to care much for treaty rights when it is to their interest to violate them. The story of Great Britain going to war for "a scrap of paper" sounded well when it was first published and paraded, but in all probability it was never anything but a beautiful piece of fiction.

DR. PARKER TO GO TO EMORY UNIVERSITY.

Rev. John W. Chisholm, an Emory University theologue, writes as follows: "Dr. F. N. Parker, of the Louisiana Conference, now the head of the Biblical Department of Trinity College, has been added to the Faculty of the Candler School of Theology for next year. He will have the Chair of Systematic Theology. Dr. H. C. Howard, who was in charge of this Department, has been placed in the Department of Homiletics, and Dr. Young has been transferred from the latter Chair to the Department of Missions, which has been added."

We congratulate Emory University upon having secured the services of Dr. Parker. His new position will be second in importance to none in the Church, and he is in every way admirably qualified to fill it. He is not only a man of large ability and of a wide reach of scholarship, but, in our opinion, he is also sound in his faith, which means much in this day of theological looseness. It is highly encouraging to know that the ministerial students attending our school for the prophets east of the Mississippi River will have the tutorage of such an instructor. May we not hope that the summoning of Dr. Parker to this responsible and influential place in our foremost institution of learning marks the beginning of a brighter and better day for Southern Methodism, so far as the type of our educated ministry is concerned?

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Commencement sermon of the Eupora (Miss.) High School will be preached on Sunday, May 23, by Rev. E. Nash Broyles, of Durant, Miss.

Rev. W. N. Duncan, of Holly Springs, Miss., recently assisted Rev. E. A. Tucker in a successful meeting at the Fountain Heights Methodist Church of Memphis.

As a result of the late revival in his Church at Columbus, Miss., in which he was assisted by Evangelist J. O. Hanes of Birmingham, Rev. W. L. Duren received 46 members.

Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, of Booneville, Miss., preached the annual sermon for the Amory (Miss.) High School last Sunday. His discourse was an able and appropriate one.

Rev. W. M. Commander, pastor of the Hesterville (Miss.) charge, sends us some subscriptions and adds: "The outlook is promising on my work." Brother Commander has a habit of giving a good account of himself in every field to which he is assigned.

Rev. W. Fred Long, of Jackson, Miss., was in New Orleans last week and favored the Advocate office with a call.

Rev. A. S. Lutz began a series of revival services at New Iberia, La., last Sunday. He is being assisted by Rev. Floyd Vaughan.

The press dispatches have announced that Col. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt are soon to be guests of Mr. John M. Parker at his summer home near Pass Christian, Miss.

Dr. John T. Sawyer reports having conducted a very delightful service at the Mary Werlein Church, this city, at 8 p.m. last Sunday, a large and very attentive audience being present. He says that the work of that congregation is moving on well.

Dr. Theo. Copeland, of Hot Springs, Ark., writes as follows: "We closed a great meeting at Hope, Ark., on the evening of April 16. The services were attended by great crowds, and between 90 and 100 persons applied for membership in our Church."

Some of our friends persist in sending us matter written with a lead pencil. Such copy is unacceptable because it is liable to become dim in handling it, so that it is difficult for a linotypist to read it. Ink is cheap and persons writing for publication ought invariably to use it.

Rev. D. R. McDougal reports that the work is going forward on the Kossuth (Miss.) Circuit and that the outlook is gratifying. Brother McDougal, among his many other duties, is effectively taking care of the interests of the Advocate, for which we are grateful to him.

The total cost of the litigation for the ownership and control of Vanderbilt University was $36,212.33. This sum was well spent, since it has taught us that we have a legal title to nothing at Vanderbilt and will keep us from placing our money where it would be taken from us in the future.

Rev. T. J. Halfacre, of Lulu, Miss., reports as follows concerning his charge: "Everything is going well with us. We are having good congregations and the interest in the work of the Church seems to be increasing. We are planning our revival campaigns and are expecting gracious results to crown our efforts."

The Commencement exercises of Meridian College, at Meridian, Miss., will begin on May 22 and continue through Tuesday, May 25. Dr. J. M. Moore, of Nashville, Tenn., will preach both in the morning and evening on Sunday, May 23, and Dr. D. C. Hull will deliver the Baccalaureate Address on the following Tuesday evening.

Rev. W. H. Lewis, the consecrated pastor of the Capitol Street Methodist Church of Jackson, Miss., writes as follows: "I have reason to feel encouraged in my work here. The people have been very cordial; congregations have been good, and there have been a number of accessions on profession of faith, as well as by certificate."

Rev. W. G. Henry, pastor of the Galloway Memorial Church of Jackson, Miss., was in New Orleans on Thursday, May 6, and paid the Advocate office an appreciated call. Brother Henry stated that the $80,000 new church that his congregation is erecting is progressing steadily toward completion, and that when it is finished there will be no debt on it. This will be something unusual.

We are indebted to Mr. Staples B. Porter, a member of the graduating class, for an invitation to the Commencement exercises of the Bienville (La.) High School. The baccalaureate sermon will be preached on Sunday, May 16, by Rev. Paul M. Brown, of Natchitoches, La. The Principal of this school is Mr. John P. Wagner and the Superintendent is Mr. E. H. Fisher. There are seven graduates.

Rev. J. J. Brooks, of Boyle, Miss., has our thanks for a club of 6 subscriptions from his charge. He states that the work is progressing favorably in his field. Brother Brooks is a steady toiler, who for many years has made his influence helpfully felt in the building up of Methodism in the Mississippi Delta. And he has been most fortunate where he has wrought in having Sister Brooks to re-enforce his efforts.

Rev. D. W. Bahb, of Crawford, Miss., writes: "I hereby request the pastors in the Columbus District to send me at once the names of all the delegates to the district conference to be held here June 10-13. We shall be glad if the preachers and delegates will make their arrangements to arrive on the first day and remain until the end of the session. Come filled with the Spirit, brethren."

A correspondent sends us the following note: "In the annual contest of the W.C.T.U. held in connection with the Commencement of the Mississippi Conference Training School, at Montrose, Miss., the medal was won by little Joy Burton. The judges were Rev. J. C. Ellis of Homewood, Miss., Hon. Charles Foley of Rose Hill, Miss., and Rev. W. R. McPhearson of New Orleans, La."

Methodists going to the Panama-Pacific Exposition and desiring to secure satisfactory accommodations at reasonable rates would do well to write the M. E. Church, South, Headquarters, 958 Pacific Building, San Francisco, Calif.

Mr. S. M. Byrd, superintendent of the city schools at Kosciusko, Miss., during the past scholastic year, has made an excellent impression upon the people of that community as an educator. He is a steward in our Church at that place.

The Baptist Chronicle, issued at Alexandria, La., has reduced its size from sixteen to eight pages, presumably as a result of conditions produced by the European war. The Advocate is still struggling to keep its head above the waves. What have you done to help the Conference organ in this time of need, brother pastor? We appeal to you to lend us a helping hand by looking after the renewals in your charge AT ONCE.

Rev. W. B. Baker, of Hickory Flat, Miss., reports favorably of his work. Though the roads have been bad and the weather often unfavorable, he has missed since the Annual Conference only one appointment. The congregations through the winter and early spring were small, but lately have been rapidly increasing. Brother Baker believes it is important to circulate the Conference organ, and has been pressing its claims upon his parishioners in his rounds with some degree of success.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. T. J. Halfacre, Lulu, Miss., 2; Rev. H. E. Carter, Leakesville, Miss., 3; Rev. H. M. Young, Gunnison, Miss., 3; Rev. J. R. Bright, Friar's Point, Miss., 5; Rev. T. H. Dorsey, Water Valley, Miss., 5; Dr. J. M. Brown, Haughton, La., 5; Rev. J. F. Campbell, Lorman, Miss., 5; Rev. J. W. Price, Benton, Miss., 3; Rev. O. P. Armour, Booneville (Miss.) Ct., 2.

Through the courtesy of Miss Maria L. Gibson, the President, we have received an invitation to the Twenty-Second Commencement of the Scarritt Bible and Training School, at Kansas City, Mo., May 15-18. The Commencement sermon will be preached by Rev. James A. Bradley, pastor of the Melrose Methodist Church of Kansas City on Sunday, May 16; Bishop E. D. Mouzon will deliver the Annual Address on Tuesday evening, May 18, and Miss Mabel Head will deliver the charge to the graduates, who this year number 26.

Brother F. A. Howell, of Durant, Miss., in a business letter to our office, appends the following note: "I am to-day mailing Dr. Andrew Sledd for the library of Emory University Bishop Francis Ashury's Journal in three leather-bound volumes. It begins with August 7, 1771, and closes a few months before his death. In a few days I will be 75 years old, and I am doing this while I can. I got these books a number of years ago because my name is Francis Asbury Howell." No truer or more faithful layman can be found anywhere than Brother Howell. He has served the Church long and well, and we pray that his approaching birthday may in every respect be a happy one.

The Commencement exercises of Mansfield Female College will begin on Friday evening, May 28, with a Junior-Senior Reception; on Saturday night there will be an Art Levee, and on Sunday, May 30, the Commencement sermon will be preached by Dr. G. S. Sexton, and at the evening hour there will be a Sacred Concert. The Class Day Program will be given on Monday at 11 a.m.; on Tuesday morning the Seniors will deliver their orations, and at 8 p.m. Mr. O. A. Wright will deliver the Baccalaureate Address. In a note to the Editor, President R. E. Bobbitt says: "We are closing a good year. Our girls are earnest, loyal, and happy, and our teachers have done honest, faithful work."

Our congregation at Amory, Miss., is making fine headway since the completion of its new $25,000 house of worship, which is one of the handsomest and most complete church edifices in North Mississippi. The Sunday school has increased from an attendance of 135 to more than 300; the Wesley Bible Class organized by Dr. C. B. Baker last October has a regular attendance of about 50, and there were 60 present on Easter Sunday. Of the $9000 debt on the new church, nearly $1000 has been paid since the last Annual Conference. A recent religious census of the town showed the Methodists to be decidedly in the lead numerically. The pastor of this active and growing flock is Rev. W. M. Young, who is in his fourth year.

The Baptist Record (Jackson, Miss.) of May 6 had the following to say concerning Associate Justice Reed, who has lately retired from the Supreme Bench of Mississippi: "The many friends, in Jackson of Judge R. F. Reed will regret to see him leave the city. He retires from the Supreme Bench this month and will return to the practice of law in Natchez, his home town. He is a man of clean heart and life, a clear head, and has enjoyed the high esteem of all who have had business with him in or out of the court room. He is in the prime and vigor of life and will realize the ambition of his friends for an honorable career." Judge Reed is an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and has been rendering fine service as an instructor in the Millsaps College Law Department. He has been succeeded on the Supreme Bench by Judge J. Morgan Stevens, of Hattiesburg, another active Methodist layman, who was sworn into office on May 10.

THE COMMENCEMENT AT PORT GIBSON

By H. Walter Featherstun.

The session of 1914 and 1915 came to its Commencement time on Friday, April 30. A contest in reading by the Freshmen Class occupying the evening hour. Another contest, but in declamation, entertained us on Saturday evening. On Sunday morning Rev. H. F. Tolle preached an unusually good Commencement sermon, and at night Rev. C. M. Chapman preached interestingly to the young people. On Monday morning the essays, orations, and such from the Senior Class were heard. These were all much above the ordinary—that means that they were unusually good. The classes in Expression, and Violin, and the Primaries with a May Queen crowning kept us interested that night. Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock the Trustees met in Annual Session, and at 11 o'clock the graduating exercises were held, a very practical address by Brother Tolle being the feature of the hour. Tuesday night the occasion closed with a grand concert.

Ninety-six pupils matriculated for the session, two of whom remained but a little while. This means that in counting no pupil was counted twice. In the College Department there were 82, in the Primary 14, in Music 42, in Expression 14, in Art 7, in Commercial studies 5, making an enrollment by this method of counting, common in some colleges, a grand total of 161. The year has, under the current depression, been eminently successful. One of my stewards, who has been in Port Gibson for twenty years, unhesitatingly declares it the best he has known, all things considered. I spent three weeks of the spring teaching there in Miss Kennard's place, she being at the time in the hands of her oculist, and I am ready to believe what the brother said. President O'Neil is in high favor, and growing steadily in this favor.

Degrees were conferred as follows: Bachelor of Arts on Laura Belle Smith, Dan Ree Holloman, Emmitt Jackson Rutledge, and James Madison Smith. (These two young men are preparing for the ministry). Bachelor of Science—Mary Jefferies Whitfield and Emmitt Fuston Whatley. A diploma in Commercial course was awarded Miss Lula Lucile Abraham, a sweet Syrian girl; and an English certificate to Miss Stella Yates. Certificates in the Teachers' Course were given Misses Carrie Dean, Vada Ramsey, Frieda Bruce, Effie Pickett, Ione Purvis, Lula Neal and Allie May Latham. The winners of medals were Myrtle Bryant, Ruth Selis, Louise Anderson, Grace Featherstun, Pearl Powers, Jas. W. O'Neil, Jas. M. Smith, Loretta Brieger, and Vena Trapp. This demonstrates that these young people have worked hard and wrought well.

The Port Gibson Female College is a large factor in the building up of Methodism and "Christianity in earnest" throughout these river counties of Mississippi.

Throughout the whole year a live Epworth League with a large and enthusiastic membership has been maintained in the college. It has been a great spiritual force.

Mrs. ANNIE HIGHLANDER was born in the year 1857, and died on April 4, 1915. A shadow has fallen upon this home and all their sunshine has grown strangely dark. How yearningly their hearts go out after the dear mother who has gone to dwell in a heavenly mansion prepared for her above. The Master had need of her and called her to himself. Let not your heart be troubled; and some day you shall know the full import of these words: "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." HUGH C. CASTLES.

On March 13, 1915, little WILLIE LAW was called home to rest. He was 12 years 5 months and 18 days old. He was fast becoming a man when he was summoned away. We do not understand why he was taken, but God knoweth best. He is now waiting and watching for us at the beautiful gate. Little Willie was a good boy and was very bright. His hands are now folded and his footfalls will be heard on earth no more; but precious memories of him will abide. We shall greatly miss him, but we hope to see him again in the sweet by and by. His mother, Mrs. RUBY LAW.

WILLIAM TRALLES, aged 82 years 8 months and 13 days, passed from this life on April 15, 1915, at his home in Magee, Miss. The remains were brought back to his old home and church, Piny Grove, Smith County, Miss., for interment. Brother Tralles was born near Charleston, S. C., having moved to this State 50 years ago. Brother Tralles had been a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for 55 years. The parting words of this godly man before he passed away were: "I have tried to keep the faith, I believe I am going home to God." He leaves to mourn his going, a wife, three sons, and two daughters, and a host of friends. The funeral service was conducted in the Piny Grove Church by his pastor.
J. W. EVANS.

Miss JULIA A. McLEOD was born in Covington County, Miss., in January, 1831. She joined the Methodist Church in the year 1859, and from that time on lived a devout Christian life till April 28, 1915, when her spirit took its flight after several weeks of suffering. It was my privilege to visit her several times and she was never heard to murmur. Language fails to express our grief and scarcely enables us to put in form our appreciation of her worth and character. Her serenity of mind, gentleness of disposition, and dignity of manner, were all through life the constant manifestation of the nobility of her nature. She was always ready to share another's burden and to carry a load of their sorrow. Loved ones, think of her as faring on, as dear in the love of There as the love of Here. HUGH C. CASTLES.

CHARLINE KNIGHT, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Knight, of Zona, La., departed this life on March 28, 1915, aged 5 years. She was the very picture of health before she was taken sick and no one thought of her going away so soon. Charline was a beautiful child and a great favorite with the people of Zona and her death brought sadness to many hearts. She was one of our faithful Sunday school pupils and will be greatly missed in our Sunday school. In the presence of many relatives and friends we laid her little body away in old Enon Cemetery to await the resurrection morn. She tarried with us but a few years, but we thank God for his precious gift. The fragrance of her sweet, innocent life will linger with us through the years. We pray that the grief-stricken father and mother may look to Jesus, who alone is able to help them bear their sorrow. Let us say with David, "We can not bring her back, but we can go to her."
J. A. McCORMACK.

Mr. WASH BREWSTER was born in Alabama on June 4, 1838. He moved to Louisiana in 1845 and made his home in this State till God called him to his heavenly home on April 1, 1915. He served for four years in the Confederate Army. In December of 1866 he was married to Miss Mary Rainey of Union Parish, La., and unto them were born eight children, seven of whom were with him during his illness and at the time of his death. He joined the Methodist Church in his boyhood days and was faithful and loyal to his church, always loving and contributing to the support of his pastors. He belonged to the Masonic Fraternity for 45 years or longer; and his funeral service was conducted by Rev. John Terry, of the M. E. Church, his brothers both in the Church and of the Masonic Order assisting. He lived almost 77 years, and nothing was ever known to have been said against him. His body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Ebenezer Church. J. J. FUTRELL.

Mrs. LILLIAN FURR died at Memphis, Tenn., on April 24, 1915, from the effects of an operation. She was born on Dec. 28, 1887, and joined the M. E. Church, South, in August, 1900, living a consecrated life till her death. Since an All-Wise God has seen fit to take her from us, we bow in sorrow and submission to his will. Hers was a truly noble character and she was loved by all who knew her. She lived a happy, useful life of unselfish devotion not only to her family, but also to others. She was especially concerned for the comfort of those who ministered to her in her last illness. She had no fear of death but grieved for the loved ones she was leaving. How we shall miss her cheerful voice and the familiar footsteps, and more than all, her sweet counsel and loving care! Yet we are comforted by the thought that she is happy in a better world above. The funeral service was conducted by the writer at Ebenezer Church. We pray that God's richest blessings may rest upon and abide with the bereaved ones.
Her pastor, W. B. BAKER.

Another of Holmes County's good and loyal citizens has been called from the walks of men in the death of Mr. T. A. LUNSFORD on Feb. 1, 1915. It was the writer's privilege to know him from boyhood, and he has found him true to every trust imposed on him, as a citizen, a neighbor, and as a Christian husband and father. He was sympathetic, charitable and slow to criticise. No sacrifice was too great if he thought it would add to the comfort or happiness of the home. He was born in Alabama on May 19, 1839, and came to Mississippi when quite young. He was a member of the Methodist Church, acting as steward for several years. He also served in the Confederate Army. During his young manhood he was married to Miss India Wells, who survives him, and who spent a life of devotion with him in rearing and training a large family of sons and daughters, who now take a useful place in life. He was buried at Lexington, Miss., by members of the Confederate Veterans' Camp, Rev. W. J. O'Bryant, his pastor, assisting. May the tender mercies of an All-Wise Providence unite his loved ones with him in heaven. PARHAM WILLIAMS.

MATILDA BONNETT was born in Edgefield, S. C., on July 7, 1818, and died in Walker, La., on April 16, 1915, being almost 97 years old. This dear old saint bore her afflictions patiently, greeting all about her kindly and affectionately. She was ever an inspiration to her visitors by her godly admonitions and her loving disposition. She had been a member of the Methodist Church for more than 80 years. A husband and three daughters preceded her to the heavenly land. She leaves three sons and one daughter, besides a host of other relatives, even to the fifth generation, and friends to mourn her departure. She was cared for by her granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Gordy, in their home during the last days of her life. Her remains were laid away in the old Fellowship Cemetery in the presence of a large congregation. The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by a Baptist preacher, Rev. Mike Smith, who had known her since or before the beginning of his ministry, and who attributed his continuance in the work and his success in a great measure to the encouragement he received from her.
Her pastor, L. E. CROOKS.

From the Field.

Hickory Flat, Miss.

The fourth Sunday in April was a great day with us at Hickory Flat. Rev. R. H. B. Gladney was with us and preached three masterly and helpful sermons, which were highly appreciated. I am sure he did us all a great deal of good. All my churches were represented except one. I think our Sunday schools were raised from about ten to almost one hundred per cent. Brother Gladney is a great power for good. I wish I could have him at all my churches. Come again, Brother Gladney. May God bless the Editor and all the readers of the Advocate.—W. B. Baker.

Eden, Miss.

Brother C. M. Crossley came to us on April 5 to help our consecrated pastor, Rev. Algie Oliver, in a meeting at this place. Brother Crossley did some faithful work. He gave us some old-time gospel sermons. When he began to visit and to preach a spiritual uplift was manifest, and as from time to time he preached heart-searching sermons, we felt that much good was being done. We know that the Lord will bless the good seed that he sowed. Two members were received into the church. The church membership was greatly revived. That the Lord may bless Brother Crossley in his work, is my prayer.—Mrs. J. F. Wilson.

Harrisville, Miss.

The Harrisville charge is a very desirable work. I have never known a better people, and we are anticipating a good year. It is just since Saturday April 24 that I can say "We," personally speaking. I guess the youngest preacher in the Mississippi Conference is married. Only an eyewitness could appreciate the reception that we were given on our arrival at the parsonage. I will not attempt to describe it. The supper and the many things given us were highly appreciated. Too much could not be said in praise of the liberality of the good people of Harrisville. Our work is moving along very well. A parsonage debt of over $200 has been reduced about one-half. Our prayer meetings —six in number—are doing a great work. The good ladies are standing by me, as well as the church officials. We are expecting by the help of the Lord to turn the Harrisville charge up side down, so that the right side may be up.—H. C. Castles, P. C.

Baton Rouge Dist., La. Conf.

Many indications of revivals in the district are seen. We are hoping, praying and trusting that a revival of religion will sweep through our whole territory. Every pastor is awake to the need, and all are planning for such to be. The evidences as shown at quarterly conferences is that the laity are becoming impressed with the need of a genuine spiritual awakening in the fullest sense, one that will convict men of sin, and bring them to a knowledge of Christ. Are we not on the eve of a great revival period, such as we of the present generation have not seen? It seems so to me, and in a letter received from Bishop Candler, he says: "Every day brings me letters from every section of my episcopal district telling me of remarkable revivals. I believe our country is already in the beginning of such a revival of religion as we have not seen since 1858." Trusting that this is so, let us pray that our Conference may be in the grand sweep.—H. W. Bowman.

Carriere and Picayune (Miss. Conf.)

The first three months of this year we had a siege of sickness in our home. Some one was down nearly all the time and things got very gloomy for a while: but the good Lord gave us grace to go through it all and the people were exceedingly kind to us. Our people at Picayune later gave us a big pounding which was highly appreciated, and later on the dear people of Carriere sent in a full supply of groceries—enough to last a month. For all of this we praise the Lord. Brother Dan Kelly came to us at Picayune on the fourth Sunday in April and the Lord was with us from the very beginning. In twenty-four hours after the meeting began the whole town was on fire, it seemed. I never saw a revival pick up so fast in all my life. The Lord laid bare his arm, slew many sinners and scores were swept into the Kingdom. Brother Dan Kelly is a Holy Ghost preacher, lifting high the standard of Christianity and causing people to hunger for the Christ life. Brother John Kelly was with us also, with his cornet. The sweet music he gets out of his horn is the grandest, I think, that I have heard. He played with understanding and with power. There were 33 who united with our Church, the most of them strong men and women. Methodism in Picayune is going to make a better showing than it has ever done before. Pray for our church there that it may continue to grow in power and strength as a soul-winning church.—Jas. M. Lewis.

THE ADVOCATE.

From my earlist recollection, its weekly visit to my home, has been as sure as anything ever is. My father was a devoted Methodist and trained all his children to love that Church. Two sons were ministers, the eldest son, his namesake, was a Bishop, and his youngest, Rev. J. G. Galloway, is the only minister left in our immediate family. As I sat this morning in my desolate home, thinking of my helplessness, because of increasing blindness and deafness, a feeling of hopelessness of doing anything in life overwhelmed me. Almost immediately, the mail was brought. I opened the dear old Advocate, and the very first paragraph my dim eyes rested on was: "There is no better way to help people religiously than to live a consecrated, holy life among them; and the door of opportunity to this highest form of service, is wide open to all."

I felt this was a message to me. I have tried to live worthy of the dear husband, so devoted to his work—always brave and true. I rarely get to Church and my way seems so hedged in, but I want you to know, Mr. Editor, how your message helped me. And may I not ask you to pray for me, that when the Lord calls, I may be ready to meet him and the loved ones gone before.

A WOMAN'S PRAYER FOR PEACE.

Unto Thee, O Lord, we cry in the night of the world's darkness for the coming of the dawn of peace. Is not the earth Thine? Are not the hearts of all men in Thy keeping? Remember the desolated homes, the long suspense of waiting, the sorrows of the exiled and the poor, the growth of hate, the hindrance of good, and make an end of war. By the love we bear toward fathers, brothers, lovers, sons; by the long agony of trench and battlefield and hospital, by the woe brought home to the hearts of mothers, and by the orphaned children's need—hasten Thou the coming of the ages of good will. Raise up leaders for the work of peace. Show us our part in this redemption of the world from cruelty and hate and make us faithful and courageous. In the name of Christ, whose kingdom is our heart's desire and whose will for men is love. Amen.—Selected.

REPORT OF FINANCE COMMITTEE.

At the recent Council meeting the finance committee submitted the following report:

1. We recommend that tithing be urged upon auxiliaries, believing if this could be accomplished the difficulty of our financial problems would be solved. We suggest as a means to this end that the Corresponding Secretary present the subject quarterly, thus bringing it more prominently before our menbers.

2. That members of young people and junior societies be requred to pay a conference expense fund of ten cents per year for young people and five cents for children.

3. We insist that auxiliary treasurers use record books and that they be prompt in forwarding all remittances to the Conference Treasurer, always specifying for what money is intended.

4. That auxiliary treasurers remit to Conference Treasurer ALL funds in treasury at end of each quarter.

5. That all reports of auxiliary treasurers should be sent to the Conference treasurer quarterly, remembering that quarters end the first of April, July, October and January. Reports received later than January 10 will be credited on following year.

6. That we keep before our auxiliaries the importance of paying $4 to Scarritt Endowment Fund.

7. That since our constitution requires the Treasurer's book to be audited, we recommend the President, Recording and Corresponding Secretaries as a standing committee to do this quarterly.

8. That when possible have local treasurer, and she shall make a monthly report to auxiliary and furnish the treasurer a quarterly statement to be included in her report. She shall pay out money from local treasury only upon an order signed by the President of auxiliary and chairman of local committee.

9. That the extra five cents above dues for first two months be applied to Relief and Retirement Fund, and remaining months to Conference Expense Fund.

10. That all money raised for any purpose locally, viz.: for parsonage, church, or to the poor, also delegates' expense fund, be reported to Conference Treasurer that due credit be given for all work done.

11. Money sent to Orphans' Home, if sent through Confereuce Treasurer, be credited to auxlliary, otherwise it should be reported as supplies sent.

Mrs. W. W. WILBURN,
Chairman.

NOTE FROM MISS HAYES, SOOCHOW, CHINA.

There are two little day schools connected with the Laura Haygood School. They are both taught in Chinese houses, which means stone floors and no way of heating the buildings. The dear little children look so cold on these raw, penetrating days. It is a great joy to me to be able to give them a few exercises for warming their feet and putting their blood in circulation. Those who can afford it have a foot stove, but many cannot have this comfort. It looks so queer to see the little folks in school wearing red hoods and gloves. They are so sweet and dear. I love them every one. The "Ming Teh" has twenty-seven girl students and one Chinese teacher, who speaks no English. I am teaching these Children a Christmas song—"Christ Was Once a Little Baby"—that my Chinese teacher and I translated into Chinese.

MARY HELM SCHOOL.

The new building of Japanese construction that was ordered by the Woman's Missionary Council last year is in process of erection. Miss Reed writes as follows concerning the school: "The Mary Helm School for widows and married women has had a good year, although for the first six months the entire classroom work of four grades was carried on in two small Korean rooms. We had no seats, and the pupils sat on the floor. The enrollment since April has been twenty-nine; previous to this for six months the enrollment was eighteen. We have three splendid teachers, two women and a man. All of them have done faithful work. The pupils have improved every opportunity and have made good progress in their studies. On Sundays some six or more of the girls teach in the morning and afternoon Sunday schools of the different churches. One student, the wife of one of our preachers, completed the course of study during the year and is now teaching a country school. One of our most felt needs is some kind of industrial work that would assist the girls to earn all or a part of their board while in school and that would be a means of a livelihood after leaving school, if it should be necessary."

MISSION STUDY BOOKS FOR 1915-16.

The Interdenominational Committee appointed to select a theme for 1915-16 and to have the books prepared, have issued the following statement:

"The theme for 1915-16 will be the "Church and the Nations" and the following books have been selected for study by the classes:

"Native Church in non-Christian Lands," by Dr. A. J. Brown.

"Mission of the Church in America," by Dr. C. L. White.

"The King's Highway," by Mrs. Montgomery.

"Home Missions in Action," by Mrs. John Allen.

"Kingdom Efficiency," by W. E. Doughty.

"Christian Missions and National Peace," by C. E. Jefferson.

JUBILEE YEAR OF MISSION.

This is the Jubilee year of the China Inland Mission, June 25, 1865, being the date of its organization under the late J. Hudson Taylor. It is interesting to note that the pioneer missionary in China who was the inspiration of Mr. Taylor in his youth, was one Gutslaff, a German, of great zeal and faith. The German missionary spirit has ever been strong, and not all theologians of Germany are higher critics.—The Presbyterian.

THE GET-TOGETHER BANQUET.

A get-together banquet in the Social Hall of the First Methodist Church last Friday night provided the occasion for more than 200 leading Methodist men and women to meet together and enjoy several hours of most delightful intercourse, as well as to be provided with those delicacies that delight the "inner man." Dr. S. H. Werlein, the pastor of First Church, himself a pastmaster in the art of sociability, was master of ceremonies. It was indeed most appropriate that Dr. F. R. Hill should be called upon to lead the devotions with which the banquet was begun. A delightful repast was served, and the ladies of First Church did themselves proud as cooks of rare ability, while the young ladies, representing all the Methodist churches of New Orleans, proved themselves adepts in the capacity of obliging waiters.

Before the tables were cleared, and while the physical man was yet being soothed to perfect satisfaction, the feast of good things for mind and soul was spread. Dr. George S. Brown was the first speaker and his discussion of "A Layman's Opportunity" was both informing and entertaining. If it were possible, the words of the second speaker, Ex-Governor G. D. Shands, should be published in full. He gave a most excellent argument in favor of a Bible study movement, claiming that the hope of Protestantism is in the path of Bible teaching. He appealed to Methodists to stand firmly by the divinely revealed doctrines of the Scriptures, such as the divinity of Jesus Christ, and the authority and inspiration of the Bible, and concluded his remarks with the statement that it is a rare thing that any man is ever a faithful and consistent worker in the Church of God who is not a regular reader of a church paper.

Mr. J. H. Carter was the next speaker, and in his remarks he stressed the point that as Methodists we are existing in this generation and in this State and this city to lead souls to Christ. He made an earnest appeal for the support of Mansfield and Centenary Colleges. Mr. J. W. Bellamy was unable to attend the banquet, but his subject, "The Handshake," was discussed in an acceptable, inspiring and amusing way by Mr. C. F. Niebergal. "How to Become a Live Church Worker" was the theme assigned to Mr. H. H. Gibson, and there was no doubt but that his plan was a good one if adopted by each individual. Mrs. R. H. Harper spoke on the subject, "What Can Women Do?" and it is not flattery to say that there was not a speaker on the program that spoke more to his subject and kept closer to a high standard of Christianity than did Mrs. Harper. But, since the subject of the woman speaker is up, it may be added that Miss Martha Nutt, who answered the question, "What is Giving Christ the Best?" not only won applause, but applause to the echo, and Mrs. Edward Alvis, who discussed the "Value of a Smile," struck a vein of "fine gold." The ladies on the program were not a whit behind the best speakers who were heard. Dr. Luther Sexton gave a well thought-out plan as to "How to Help Each Other's Church," and Mr. Paul Renshaw told the banqueters "How to Treat the Stranger Within Our Gates." Both subjects were important and were handled in a masterly way by the speakers.

The last speaker on the program was Dr. Stonewall Anderson, Secretary of our General Board of Education. A more appropriate time and occasion, a more appropriate message, and a better prepared man could not have been found than was summed up in the speaker, his message and its fitting place as the climax of a get-together banquet of Methodists. Dr. Anderson told the banqueters that Centenary was necessary for the future growth of our Church in Louisiana and that we must rally to its endowment and rally at this time. His argument was unanswerable and his hearers responded with perfect approval of his suggestions.

The get-together banquet was a great success in every way, and we dare say that it presages many more such gatherings in the future.

EPWORTH SUNDAY SCHOOL.

On May 2 there were 155 present at the Epworth Sunday school and only two teachers were absent. The Epworth Sunday school has started a red and blue contest. It is showing good results from the very beginning. There is a good spirit among the members of the Sunday school, and it might be added that congregations were excellent on May 2.

WHO ARE MEMBERS OF THE DISTRICT CONFERENCE?

All the preachers in the District, traveling and local, including superannuated preachers, the District Lay Leader, the Charge Lay Leaders, the Recording Stewards, Sunday school superintendents, and two delegates elected from each pastoral charge should feel in duty bound to be at Eupora on May 25, at 3:30 p. m. when the Durant District Conference will be called to order. Visitors are most cordially invited.

Eupora no doubt will be disappointed if we do not tax her splendid hospitality. There are a great many two-story chicken coops over there, and their hearts are warmer than their chicken coops are high. These good people as well as many others are hoping and praying that this may be the greatest district conference in the history of the Durant District. Let's all pray and work to that end.

W. S. SHIPMAN, P. E.

N. B.—Pastors will please help the Recording Stewards to get their Quarterly Conference Records to the district conference. W. S. S.

IN MEMORIAM.

Rev. Lysander Louis Spinks was born near Mobile, Ala., Feb. 5, 1879. He was converted in a meeting at Ebenezer Camp Ground, near Crowley, La., held by Rev. J. S. Sanders, in July, 1901. On Dec. 18 of that year he was married to Miss Ora Edith O'Mealy, at Crowley, and moved to New Orleans. He became identified with one of the large churches in New Orleans, but later united with the St. Charles Avenue M. E. Church in which he obtained license to preach, and served the Gueydan and Estherwood circuit during 1906. Later he was compelled to give up this work, and being a machinist, he went to Longville to secure employment and while there joined the Conference of the M. E. Church, South, and was sent to Bell City and Hayes, which included Grand Cheniere and Pecan Island, the two latter places being almost inaccessible without ample means. He went to these points as long as possible, but finally because of a meager salary had to give them up. Later he took work with the American Sunday School Association, and while thus engaged he organized thirty-three Sunday schools for the several denominations. He also lived and worked faithfully with the mill people at Longville during his stay there.

His last work on earth was in connection with the Queensborough and Claiborne Sunday schools in Shreveport, La., where the writer learned to know and love him.

His consuming desire was to preach the gospel, and if he had been blessed with this opportunity he would have achieved much for the Master. He was an earnest and fluent speaker, and all who heard him once desired to hear him again.

He laid down his labor and life on April 3, 1915, surrounded by his loved ones and friends, and was buried from the Methodist Church on Easter Sunday, a large number of persons being present to pay this last tribute of respect to one of the purest and best of God's servants.

I. T. REAMES, Pastor.

Minister's Wife is Cured of Pellagra.

Lamar, Miss.—W. S. Selman, a Methodist minister of this place says: "I have advertised your remedy as far as I have been and have received several letters asking for your address. I wish you great success in your work. I believe it (Baughn's Pellagra Treatment) is THE treatment and I will advertise it wherever I go. Mrs. Selman is just fine. Will also state that her general health is better than it has been for years past."

This is the heartfelt word of a minister, grateful that his wife has been spared to him. There is no need to suffer from pellagra when a cure is at hand. Don't delay a minute.

The symptons—hands red like sunburn; skin peeling off; sore mouth; the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with much mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea; either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on pellagra, and learn about the remedy for Pellagra, that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co.; Box 587-X, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—Advertisement.

RESOLUTIONS

Passed by the Earnest Workers' Bible Class of Queensborough Methodist Church.

Whereas, Rev. L. L. Spinks has, by death, been removed from our midst, and the companionship of his loved ones and from the Master's service which he loved so well, therefore, be it resolved,

1. That in the death of Brother Spinks the Earnest Workers' Bible Class has lost a true friend and ever willing and efficient helper, and the Church a faithful follower of the meek and lowly Savior.

2. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and pray that the loving, compassionate Savior may be their constant and abiding source of comfort.

Signed: Mrs. I. T. Reames, Mrs. M. Watts, R. B. Roscoe, Committee.

CHURCH UNION IN CANADA.

The Presbyterian reports: "The efforts at union with the Congregationalists, Methodists, and Presbyterians in Canada is still moving on. One very commendable feature in this movement has been the exemplification of patience. There has been no attempt at sharpness, no endeavor to force through a misunderstanding. The result is that thus far good feeling and confidence have been preserved and if union results it will be in good feeling and mutual confidence. If it fails, there will be mutual confidence and hope for the future. Another union which has been accomplished in Canada has been that between the Baptists and the Free Baptists. A similar union has also taken place between the same denominations in America. This latter is the kind of union which is most natural and most hopeful."

NEW REGULATIONS PROPOSED.

S. H. Meyer, A. S. Daniels and W. F. Sherwood, trustees, were recently appointed a committee to draft new rules and regulations for the Seashore Camp Ground near Biloxi, Miss., and submit them for final action before the entire board.

The committee will recommend that hereafter persons on the grounds be permitted to buy milk, bread and ice on Sundays. Heretofore, according to the former rules, nothing could be purchased but meals on Sunday. Formerly it was unlawful for men and women to promenade on any part of the grounds during divine services, but now the only restriction will be against promenading in front of or near the auditorium during services.

For several years the men were permitted to take their blankets and sleep on the pier head, but this permission will be revoked.

It will be decreed that no one will be allowed to keep fowls near their premises. In the future, chickens must be kept only on certain portions of the grounds set aside for them.

The old book of rules placed the tax rate at $10, $12.50 and $15, but it was found that these sums were inadequate to meet the expenses of the meetings, therefore the taxes in the new rule book will read, $20, $25 and $30.

The meeting this year, which will open on the second Wednesday in July, promises to be largely attended, and the three presiding elders in charge of the preaching services, are now in communication with noted divines throughout the South, in an effort to secure their presence during the camp meeting.—The Times-Picayune.

CODDLING THE STOMACH.

The So-Called "Scientific" Feeding.

In this 20th century of advancement, people are too apt to listen to new theories and put into practice new-fangled notions of feeding. Not only do adults follow so-called "scientific systems," but they cram down the mouths of their children such scientific soft foods that require no exercise of the digestive organs, and the children are apt to become fragile and their stomachs too weak to take in strength-giving food and be able to assimilate it. This is a hot-house condition that no man, woman or child should permit. The muscles of the stomach require exercise just as any other muscles of the body; neglect them with too much ease and inaction and you raise a dyspeptic. Use a tonic made of medicinal herbs which will stimulate the stomach into greater activity—a remedy which will do this is one which has stood the test of public approval for over forty years, containing no alcohol or narcotic. We refer to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It arouses the little muscular fibres into activity and causes the gastric juices to thoroughly mix with the food you eat, simply because it supplies the stomach with pure, rich blood. It's weak, impure blood that causes stomach weakness. Get good blood through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you will have no more indigestion.

Sick people are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential.

KNOW THYSELF.

Read all about yourself, your system, the physiology of life, anatomy, hygiene, simple home cures, etc., in the "Common Sense Medical Adviser," a book of 1008 pages. Send to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 3 dimes (or stamps) for a cloth-bound copy.—Adv.

EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

To the Presiding Elders, Pastors and Epworth League Presidents:

I wish to call your attention to our approaching Epworth League Conference, to be held at the Capitol Street Church, Jackson, June 10-13. The program this year will be specially in the interest of the Missionary Department. We are expecting to have with us Dr. E. H. Rawlings and Dr. M. L. Culbreth from the General Office. We also expect to feature the Junior League work, making especial mention of the Knights of Ezelah. This is the boys' secret organization in the Junior League. Mr. C. H. Poythress of Meridian will have charge of this phase of the program, having been very successful in this work.

Please see that your League is represented. We would like to have the presiding elders in making their rounds to call attention to the date and urge the Leagues to send representatives. We should also like to have the pastors interest themselves in our approaching conference. I hope the presiding elders and pastors will try to arrange to be with us. I realize fully the many calls on both pastors and presiding elders, but at the same time, I feel that we should make a strong appeal to them in the interest of our young people. Do not forget the time and place, June 10-13, Capitol Street Church, Jackson.

Yours very truly,
W. D. HAWKINS,
President Mississippi Conference Epworth League.

Whenever You Need a General Tonic Take Grove's

The Old Standard Grove's Tasteless chill Tonic is equally valuable as a General Tonic because it contains the well known tonic properties of QUININE and IRON. It acts on the Liver, Drives out Malaria, Enriches the Blood and Builds up the Whole System. 50 cents.

SOME STATISTICAL ERRORS.

The statistics of the Alexandria District in our last Conference Minutes show some very large errors.

The present total membership in the District as reported in the Minutes show that the District has 5081 members; while the additions by profession of faith were 516 and the additions by certificate and otherwise were 548, making a total increase of 1064 members. The removals by death and otherwise as shown by the Minutes were 369, leaving a net gain of 695 members, while the Minutes of this year show a net increase of only 283, which is a difference of 412 members.

These errors are due to at least two causes: 1. Several of the charges failed to report in the column for the present total membership. 2. The 1914 Minutes show that the reports for several charges fall to tally with the reports from the same charges for 1913. These charges reported a net gain in membership in 1914, yet their present total membership is not as large as it was in 1913.

Again, there is an error in the column relating to the value of churches. The district built several new churches and repaired some others, yet this column shows a decrease to the amount of $3744.

A comparison of the Minutes of 1913 with the Minutes of 1914 shows that this error is due to the difference in values that the preachers have made of the churches in their various charges; that is, the estimates of the value of churches in the same charge show in a number of instances a large decrease.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES YOUR LIVER! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and You Don't Lose a Day's Work

Liven up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

Listen to me! If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever expericnced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working; headache and dizziness gone; stomach will be sweet and bowels regular.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and can not salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of Calomel is almost stopped entirely here.

Grow Corns If You Will

But don't keep them

One can't well avoid corns in these days of dainty shoes. But it's folly to keep them, pare them and doctor them.

A chemist has invented a way to end corns quickly. It is known as Blue-jay. Attach it and the corn pain stops at once. Then a bit of wax—called B & B wax—loosens the corn very gently. In two days the whole corn disappears without any pain or soreness.

It seems magical. After a Blue-jay plaster is applied, the shoe can't hurt the corn. After 48 hours there is no corn to hurt.

Folks have proved this on some 70 million corns. They are removing in this way a million corns a month.

That's why corns are not so common as they used to be. Blue-jay plasters came—folks found them out—and half the corns that grow today are quickly ended by them.

Don't be Thin --Scrawny

Have a Figure of Curves

No woman need be flat chested, thin or angular—my picture proves that. Yet for years I was a pack of bones, had absolutely no form, no bust. I couldn't help but feel that I was the laughing stock of my more fortunate friends. I was miserable, but determined that I should have what was rightfully mine—what every woman is entitled to—an attractive form, a full, perfectly proportioned bust and clear skin. Oh, the different things I tried, the nostrums I took, the time and money I wasted. But at last I found the way, and it was so simple.

Now I want to give you the benefit of my experience. You may have tried just as many unavailing methods as I did, but now success is yours. A womanly form, attractive face and the happiness of a full figure are now yours. You can't fail if you do as I did. A well proportioned figure, a beautiful bust, clear complexion, sparkling eyes and better health in general are assured you.

Yes, dear friend, I mean what I say. You can't afford to doubt and you won't. You want what I have found, what I struggled so hard for and what I now promise for you.

Write me today, enclosing a 2c stamp and I will gladly, willingly, tell you without further charge how I was able to do these things for myself. There is only one right way, and for your future good and happiness you must let me tell you about this method. Do not delay—you may lose this address. Just mail your letter to Mrs. Louise Ingram, Suite 365, 408 Adams St., Toledo, Ohio, and I will answer by return mail.

A GREAT REVIVAL.

We have just closed one of the greatest revivals in the history of Corinth. Klein and Boyd came to us April 11, remaining three weeks. The Presbyterian brethren joined us in the meeting. From the opening service to the closing hour the interest grew. Brother Klein has a great message for the Church. His methods are sane, Scriptural, impressive. His message is shot through with Scripture, illuminated by illustration and incident, and filled with a faith in God and love for men all but unique. To say that he is a successful evangelist does not express it. He grips the hearts of men and women to an unusual extent. They believe in the man. They accept the message.

Brother Boyd sings the gospel. Modest, spirit-filled, a voice of rare sweetness, he charms the ear and moves the heart. His wife is a skilled pianist. Her accompaniments provoked constant words of appreciation and her personal work added much to the ultimate good accomplished.

The congregations filled every inch of space in the church, and often hundreds were turned away. From time to time overflow services were held in the First Presbyterian Church. There were more than one hundred conversions, and I think there is not one of them but will join some church. But the work done in the church, reclaiming the backslidden, stirring up the lukewarm, bringing them to definite consecration, provoking them to paying church dues as a privilege, setting up family altars, tithing, "believing God and blocking the devil," was perhaps the best of all. Every department of the church is doing better work.

Men who never attended a service were reached for good. Religion is talked on the streets, in business houses, homes. There was never a period of "great excitement," but a constant rising of the spiritual temperature that bodes good for the future. There is no aftermath of ill, no financial depression, no glorying in the evangelist to the discounting of the pastor. Not a pastor in Corinth but is in closer touch with his people. We love the men who led us; but we love God who led them as we never did. I think I am the happiest man in the Conference. I am closing my second quadrennium here, and will leave the church in the best condition every way in its history.

Some one said that Klein did not preach much—just depended on "testimony" to "work up an interest." Preach! There were times when he rose to great heights, and there never was a service that he did not bring a definite message, "magnifying the word of God." He is the most effective pastor's helper I have ever worked with. My people wanted him to come again next fall. Whatever may be true of evangelists as a whole, here is one "team" that is making a contribution to the Church that will abide. Blessings on them wherever they go! They are men of God and deserve the heartiest co-operation of the church.

We have received 75 into the Church, many have gone to other churches, and others will be received from time to time. During my pastorate here I have received nearly 500 into the Church. I have spoken the words that united our young people in the holy bonds of wedlock, received them into the Church, baptized their children, and during this meeting have received those children into the Church. Yes, I am a happy man, and my charge is on "praying and working ground."

AVOID DOUBTFUL PATHS.

Oh, beware of your own way! Follow the Lord fully. Take no path that conscience tells you is doubtful. If God's smile is not on it, abandon it forever. Christians bring sorrow of heart upon themselves, darkness of soul and loss of peace, not so much by taking wrong paths as by taking doubtful ones.—Frederick Whitfield.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 62.—No. 20 Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3091.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, MAY 20, 1915. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

Editorial

"Think and be careful what thou art within,
For there is sin in the desire to sin."

* * *

If the world is not saved, surely it will not be for the lack of conventions, conferences, and new devices.

* * *

It is announced that the new liquor organ to be issued in New Orleans will be called "Facts." We haven't the least doubt, however, that it will publish mostly fiction.

* * *

Mr. Roosevelt in a public utterance calls Pontius Pilate "the arch-typical neutral of all time." Like Billy Sunday, the Colonel knows how to use words that are expressive and that stick.

* * *

A man is responsible for the whole of his influence. He has no right to allow any portion of it to be used to assist a bad cause, nor to sit supinely down and not exert it in the great world-wide struggle between good and evil. Unused power will have to be accounted for when the Master comes to reckon with his servants.

* * *

"The Eyes of the Heart" is a theme discussed by a writer in a current religious weekly. This expression is a most suggestive one, and it is thoroughly Scriptural. The moral nature, which is represented by the word "heart" as thus used, is indeed a mighty organ of vision, discerning precious truths not discoverable by any other sense or faculty. He who knew all things said: "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God."

* * *

The first and highest duty of every human being who has heard the Gospel is to be a Christian in all the deep significance of that meaningful word. He who is most completely so has reached the loftiest goal that is possible to man on earth. It is far better to be a great Christian than to be a great preacher, a great scholar, a great thinker, or a great anything else. All other gifts and acquirements are but as grains of dust, when placed in the balance against the priceless elements of true Christian character.

* * *

What is the true test of a Church's vitality and strength? The amount of money raised, the number of fine churches built, or the numerical gain in adherents? Nay, not so. To be sure, when a religious denomination is true to God and faithfully fulfilling its mission its success is usually partially reflected in the particulars mentioned; but all of these so-called marks of progress may exist when a Church is making little or no advancement in the more vital things. Many of the false faiths of the world are securing large funds, piling up bricks and mortar, and rapidly gaining recruits. The right measure of a Church's success is the spiritual power that it wields in making men and women really Christlike in life and character. Building up a worldly ecclesiasticism, thinly veneered with Christianity, is a vastly different thing from building up the spiritual kingdom that Jesus came to establish.

A NEEDED EXHORTATION.

Bishop J. H. Vincent, who is 83 years of age, is quoted as saying: "It is a pity to see men and women eighty years of age indifferent to the world's literature open and ever opening to them. A person 50 or 60 years of age makes the best kind of a student. Familiarity with real life and every-day folks gives them the advantage over young people as they read history and general literature. I therefore urge all persons of all ages and social positions to read, think, and converse, and never say, or for a moment think, 'I am too old to learn.'"

It gives us pleasure to print this exhortation from this grand old man of Northern Methodism. Far too often it is the case that when people begin to get a little old they lose interest in books and current events and become careless in their speaking and writing. We are frequently astonished at the reckless disregard for grammar and correct spelling manifested by persons who have had pretty good advantages after they have been out of school for a few years. One ought to stubbornly resist every such tendency to become slipshod. It is well worth while for one to keep up as nearly as one can to the best standards of cultivated society.

THE DIFFERENCE.

We take from the Southern Churchman the following stanzas, which were copied from another periodical and credited as "Exchange"—in our opinion, a very reprehensible practice, though it is adopted by many of our leading religious journals:

"'Unc' Si, de Holy Bible say.
In speakin' ob de jus',
Dat he do fall sebben times a day;
Now, how's de sinner wuss?'

"'Well, chile, de slip may come to ail;
But den de diff'ence foller;
For, if ye watch him when he fail.
De jus' man do not waller.'"

These homely lines set forth in a unique way an important truth. There are very few Christians who live upon such a high plane that they do not sometimes do things that are wrong, being overtaken by some strong or sudden temptation; but they do not find pleasure in doing evil as the habitual sinner does. On the contrary, it grieves them to know that they have erred, and as soon as that fact has dawned upon them, in penitence they seek forgiveness. The manner in which a man picks himself up when he has fallen and finds his way back into the divine favor, repairing as far as he can any injury that has resulted from his wrong-doing, is sometimes a striking attestation of the fact that at heart his character is sound.

But there are many people who love sin, cling to it—"waller" in it. They are those who have never been regenerated or who have become completely backslidden. There is an essential difference between falling into the mire and not liking it and floundering to get out, and dwelling in the mire and rejoicing in being in it.

UNION BREEZES BLOWING.

By no means all the breezes blowing on the other side of the Potomac and Ohio are unfavorable to "the unification of American Methodism," according to the plan formulated by the Federal Council of Methodism and approved by our General Conference and that of the Methodist Protestant Church. As was stated in the Advocate a couple of weeks ago, the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church in their recent meeting in Des Moines, Ia., without discussing specifically the conditions, declared themselves in favor of union upon such terms as would give adequate protection to minorities; and the Washington (D. C.) Annual Conference of that denomination (colored) at its late session adopted strong resolutions endorsing the proposed plan of unification, from which we extract the following:

"Whereas in our judgment this tentative plan providing for Jurisdictional Conferences would throw us upon our own resources, would enable us to stand upon our own feet, would make us competent to act and to plan for ourselves, would quicken race consciousness, self-reliance, self-independence and race solidarity; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we in order to facilitate action record ourselves as a Conference as favoring the Jurisdictional or Quadrennial plan; that we regard it as a providential way which, if adopted by the next General Conference, will lead the Church out of difficulties and embarrassments, the result of natural differences, which neither time nor circumstances have been able to control."

These happenings indicate that possibly when the new "Battle of Saratoga" is fought next May, the Unionists may win the day. Our esteemed friend, Dr. Lovett, had better keep his guns roaring at Atlanta, or he may yet have to sit in a General Council of a united American Methodism presided over by Bishop Cranston or Bishop Leete. And it may be that our greatest pulpit orator, Dr. S. A. Steel, despite his strenuous opposition to the movement, will before he passes to the Church Triumphant be called upon to make the principal address at a grand celebration of the coming together in one great body of all the spiritual children of Wesley beneath our starry flag. Stranger things have happened.

Are we advocating union? Nay, not so. Neither are we opposing it. We are giving the news as to what is going on, and waiting to learn more definitely what the final terms of the proposed unification are to be before we commit ourself on the question. This is not evading the issue; it is merely deferring a decision until we know clearly what is contemplated and involved. The plan that we have sent to our Sister Church for consideration is spoken of on all sides as a "tentative" one.

If one were to judge alone by the epitaphs on the tombstones in our cemeteries one would be forced to conclude that none but good people die. These partial verdicts, however, count for but little: the important question is, What will God think of us when we stand before him in the judgment?

IMMORTALITY.

I say to thee, do thou repeat
To the first man thou mayest meet
In lane, highway or open street—

That he and we and all men move
Under a canopy of love
As broad as the blue sky above;

That doubt and trouble, fear and pain
And anguish, all are shadows, vain,
That death itself shall not remain;

That weary deserts we may tread,
A dreary labyrinth may thread,
Though dark ways underground be led;

Yet if we will one Guide obey,
The dreariest path, the darkest way,
Shall issue out in heavenly day,

And we, on divers shores now cast,
Shall meet, our perilous voyage past,
All in our Father's house at last.

—Richard Chenevix Trench.

THE HABIT OF PRAYER.

A minister of some experience lately made the assertion that out of every ten church members, as far as he has been able to find out, only three have a fixed daily habit of sincere prayer. It is to be hoped that his experience is misleading. Yet many Christians, it is certain, neglect prayer in a manner most dangerous to their souls; and too many more merely "say their prayers" daily, and never really pray at all, except in times of crisis. The habit of earnest prayer is a habit of strength and peace.

"We kneel, how weak! we rise, how full of power!
Why, therefore, should we do ourselves this wrong,
That we should ever weak or heartless be,
Anxious or troubled, when with us is prayer,
And joy and strength and courage are with Thee?"

The young Christian needs prayer even more vitally than older disciples. Let us early form the habit of thus seeking God daily, and never let it go.—New York Christian Advocate.

"DON'TS" FOR SUNDAY STAY-AT-HOMES.

Don't stay away because company came; bring them.

Don't let the Sunday paper keep you; we have something better.

Don't stay away because it rains. That would not keep you from business.

Don't stay away because you won't be missed in the crowd. God misses you.

Don't stay away because it isn't your denomination; the same excuse would keep you out of heaven.

Don't stay away because you have no influence; the church-goer preaches a sermon as long as the way thither.

Don't stay away because you know more than the preacher; God may have something to say to you worth hearing.

Don't stay away because the church does not need you; never did the church need more and better men and women.

Don't stay away because the church is imperfect; should you find and join the perfect church, its perfection would cease.

Don't stay away because you do not need the church; 'tisn't so. If you must look at the dirt six days, take one to examine the clouds.

—The Christian Age.

SUGGESTIVE.

Yet, on the whole, there is no possession so valuable as good habits, for this means that not only is the mind pledged and covenanted to good, but that the muscles are supple, and even the bones are bent to what is good.—James Stalker.

We shall be made truly wise if we can be made content not only with what we can understand but content with what we do not understand—the habit of mind which theologians call—and rightly—faith in God.—Charles Kingsley.

IN THE LIGHT OF BILLY SUNDAY.

By William T. Ellis.

(Reprinted by permission from The Outlook of March 24, 1915.)

"Billy has put religion under the spot-light, where it belongs. It does not often get there, and it isn't easy to keep it there, but wherever Billy goes he gets the spot-light for religion." That shrewd comment upon the Rev. William A. Sunday's greatest achievement was made to me by the manager of a Chautauqua. In the speech of the stage, that expressed the greatest work that this unconventional evangelist has done. He puts the master subject into the plain man's thinking and conversation. The average minister is fearful of being sensational; consequently he escapes that peril utterly. There are few inherently important things that create less sensation of any sort than the average church; whereas Jesus, who defied the conventions and traditions of his day, was, in his own dignified way, as truly sensational as Billy Sunday. He made himself, and therefore his message, the talk of the countryside.

A certain grim humor attaches to the fact that Billy Sunday is really interesting. All sorts of people like to hear him speak. Some of us who are ourselves guiltless of the offense of being interesting charge this against the evangelist—as if to preach religion in a way that grips the attention and imagination of the crowd were a sin! There is grave importance to the issue which this condition raises before all ministers: Is Christianity really so dull that an entertaining preacher of it affronts his message by being interesting? or is it that the intrinsic interest of Christianity is obscured by dull preaching?

That question straightway brings to the fore the subject of Sunday's slang. He is colloquial to the limit. His sort of speech is oftener heard in bar-rooms and workshops than in religious conventions. It is as far removed from the petrified phraseology of the pulpit as Niagara is from the Arctic glaciers. I hold no brief for Sunday's speech; some of it affronts me and makes me cringe. That it does not seem to "faze" his crowds for an instant makes me ask whether I am not dwelling in a world apart from men, where a hypersensitive few pay undue regard to the nicetles of language. Beyond all question Billy's vocabulary makes his meaning plain to the people, and it does not offend them. When he calls a certain type of theatrical performance a "leg show," I revolt; but when I search my memory I recall that that is the name, and no other, which the majority of men naturally use for the performances they attend.

Billy knows the big crowd, and surely speaks the language of the people, especially the city people. I wish their language were more elevated; but I remember what the sporting editor of a Scranton newspaper once said to me: "What Billy says ain't slang. That's the way people talk. It's the language that the preachers use that is slang." The argot of the pulpit, the shop talk of the preaching profession, is perhaps less comprehensible to the average man than the colloquialisms of the street corner. There is real evidence that, taking them by small and large, people do not really expect to understand the exact meaning of the average preacher. Sunday's success is vocal with the message to the ministry that they should use a speech which can "get across," as the theatrical lingo has it. Nor would they have to go to this evangelist's lengths to do this. Would, however, that they knew real life as he knows it! They would then exchange some of their conventional generalities for living particularities and specifications.

When Billy goes after a sin, he furnishes a bill of particulars. There is little left to the imagination after he is through painting the portrait of the frivolous and useless society woman or the "man about town." When indicting popular taste, and its loss of respect for womanhood and the marriage vows, the evangelist cites recent popular songs, as "I Love My Wife, but, O You Kid," and "My Wife's Gone to the Country, Hurrah! Hurrah!"

Sunday's speech is extravagant. His diamonds are "as big as hazel nuts;" his well-dressed women not only wear silks and furs, but also diamond tiaras, whether it be morning, noon, or night. Everything is in the superiative degree with him, even as he knows nothing short of highest heaven or blackest hell for the soul's abode. But this is the American temperament, which Kipling hit off in his

"Enslaved, illogical, elate,
He greets the embarrassed gods, nor fears
To shake the iron hand of Fate
Or match with Destiny for beers."

Americans who hear him seem quickly to sense his real meaning. They take him "for substance of doctrine," and laugh away his excesses and excrescences. Imagine Sunday, though, in England or Scotland!

As day after day I have watched hundreds of ministers, many of them having made pilgrimage to Philadelphia from afar, listening to his son of the log cabin and baseball diamond, I have wondered whether they are making mental notes on how to tell stories. Billy is the best story-teller in the pulpit to-day. He knows how to bring out the high lights by added touches of detail. He has the courage to omit non-essentials. He sees his climax from the beginning and marches straight on to it. And his stories thrill and move men. Especially do his patriotic anecdotes lift people to the fighting pitch. They are not "illustrations" dragged in by the ears; they incarnate the message of the moment.

The stories he tells, Sunday also acts. Perhaps he is "a born actor," yet credible report says that he once was as tedious and tiresome a speaker as the average preacher. At some point in his experience he dared speak with abandonment. Flinging dignity into the ash-can, he became the embodiment of his stories. If he speaks of throwing a ball, he throws it. When the Marathon winner falls prone—"plump," there lies Billy on the platform. (Which is an athletic feat that I would not counsel the average minister to attempt, and for other reasons than those of dignity.) "Animation" is the first adjective to use concerning Billy Sunday's preaching.

Gifts differ, of course, but the general proposition is safe that if there were more perspiration in the pulpit there would be more power. Why should not a man seem to be as earnest as he really is? If Billy Sunday should get through a sermon without wilting his collar, probably "Ma" Sunday would become solicitous. The spectacle of that tireless, tense, dripping figure, with gray, drawn features, at the close of a sermon is itself a moving exhortation. No wonder Billy does not wear (or own) a frock coat, and no wonder he has to be rubbed down by a trainer after every sermon!

Moody used to mimic the surprise of some pastors should anybody be converted under their preaching: "If converts came down the aisle, you would not know what to do with them." Billy is so sure of his message that he expects results; and takes it as a matter of course that more than a thousand persons should in a single day "hit the sawdust trail," grasping his hand in token of desire to begin the Christian life. His sermons take aim and bring down the game. Nothing is easier to hit than nothing—which is what many sermons are aimed at.

Of course Sunday's theology is old-fashioned. But it is the same body of teaching which the Christian Church has preached for well-nigh two thousand years. He adds nothing to it and subtracts nothing from it. Most to the point, he believes it utterly and unequivocally. If he were to have any doubts, Billy Sunday would be done for. Evidently the multitude of men—university graduates as well as mechanics—prefer Sunday's convictions to other men's speculations. Clearly, the world wants a religion of authority. Had Billy not preached with absolute and convincing assurance, it would not have been his privilege to grasp the hands of more than a quarter of a million persons professing conversion.

"Thus saith the Lord" is the preacher's privilege and power. Billy Sunday uses it oftener in denunciation than in invitation. The prophet's acient art of arraigning evil, apparently long lost, has been found again by this master of the biting word. He shows the ministry how to denounce sin. Therein he has stumbled upon a tremendous truth. The pulpit to-day has lost the words of satire, scorn, and condemnation from its vocabulary. Yet these words abound in the speech of Jesus and of the Apostles and of the prophets. The modern ministry is trying to entreat some men who, as Billy says, "need a currycomb and a fly-blister." The excoriation of sin, which is so plentiful in a Sunday campaign—definite dealing with sin by its own every-day name—is responsible for most of the response of the strong men who want to "quit their meanness." This is the secret of Sunday's potency as a moral, social, and civic factor. Repentance, restitution, and righteousness are inseparable from his programme of redemption. For illustration, some men are trying to wash out the liquor traffic with tears; Sunday is trying to burn it up with scorn and hot indignation.

Remembering how the average pastor works with one eye ever upon the statistical tables in his denominational year-book, so that he may make a good showing, it is refreshing to find a minister—especially an evangelist—who is blithesomely indifferent to figures and reports. Billy Sunday himself does not know how many converts he has made. Only a toilsome digging out of the local reports of his meetings for the past eighteen years uncovers the fact that his total number of professed conversions reaches the unprecedented total of more than a quarter of a million. He keeps no records and wears no scalps at his belt. Thus one must learn from other sources than from him that out of his Wichita meetings grew the "Gospel Teams" of laymen, a movement that has become National and that has brought hundreds of business and professional men into active Christian work and won literally thousands of new members for the Church. Neither can Sunday pass an examination in the number of towns, cities, and States that have gone "dry" following his campaigns.

One solicitude Sunday shows. He wants crowds. He is after people, multitudes of people. He plans for them and expects them. His huge, nondescript "tabernacles" are built so that multitudes may gather in comfort aud every one hear. In Philadelphia the turtle-backed building holds twenty thousand persons. On one single night a crowd estimated at twenty-five thousand was unable to secure admittance to the overflowing structure. Hundreds and thousands are turned away daily, and those who do get in are present hours before the time set for opening. Every Sunday Billy addresses in three services sixty thousand persons, and forty thousand on week-days in two services. Probably no other living man has ever spoken directly to so many of his fellow-men as Billy Sunday. His zeal for preaching is so insatiable that his Mondays, the day of rest, are usually spent in addressing out-of-town meetings.

Although his work marks a high-water achievement in religious publicity—all the great Philadelphia newspapers give him first-page position regularly, with many columns and even pages daily—Billy Sunday has never spent a dollar for publicity. He employs no press agent and supplies no advance notices to the papers. But he is always accessible to reporters and photographers, and his secretary gives out, a few hours in advance of delivery, to papers asking for them, copies of his sermons. He is himself good "copy," and his meetings are more so. The great choirs, the nightly visits of delegations from stores, factories, schools, organizations, and institutions, the dramatic scenes when the converts "hit the trail," all give the livest sort of material for the most skillful pens. There are authentic instances of persons having been led into church membership merely by reading the reports of Billy Sunday's meetings and sermons. He effects a natural co-operation of the secular press and the Gospel ministry which is eloquent with exhortation to the Church.

Without knowing anything about psychology, Sunday has a capital substitute for it in his sound "horse sense." He understands what works. That people are chiefly interested in people, and that crowds attract crowds, is a principle which he puts into operation in every campaign. The intense human interest of the spectacle of men and women "hitting the trail" itself is enough to draw a multitude; the congregation mounts the benches with craning necks to witness this daily climax of the Sunday meetings.

Always he is assured of a crowd by the co-operation of the churches. Sunday never accepts an invitation unless there is a substantial unanimity of support on the part of the local congregations. Berating the churches and the ministers as he does, Billy yet holds the most old-fashioned belief as to the place of the Church. "All my work is for the Church," he says. Without the organization, the tireless and devoted labor, and the militant loyalty of the churches he could accomplish nothing. The idea may be novel, but it is true that Billy Sunday is simply an agency of the Church—an extraordinary tool for a great task.

This little story of a unique personality and work is not a plea for more Billy Sundays; the imitations of him who are appearing in various places are a nuisance and worse. My purpose is merely to remind the Church that new times and new tasks may require new methods; also that God still seems to be using the weak and foolish things of earth to confound the mighty. This man Sunday, poorly equipped, ill-balanced, intellectually negligible, seems to be an instrument chosen to call the Christian Church back to the first task of preaching to the whole mass of mankind a gospel which she believes, and of preaching it in ways that attract and convince men. Humanity has not lost its interest in vital religion. It was never more eager than to-day for a clear, comprehensible message of conviction upon the theme of God and of man's relation to him.

SOME NEWSPAPER UTTERANCES, ETC.

By Bishop E. E. Hoss.

Begging the pardon of The Commercial Appeal, I venture to say that there are few things more interesting than the self-confident bumptiousness of a metropolitan newspaper. Not many weeks ago I read in Harper's Weekly, which still, as of old, professes to be "a journal of civilization," the rather remarkable statement that Thomas Jefferson ordered to be carved on his tombstone the fact that he was, among other things, the author of the bill of rights of the Virginia constitution. Now, Thomas Jefferson was beyond doubt a very great man, and had his hand in many great matters of moment during the early days of the republic. But it is not quite fair nor just to give him credit, especially as he does not need it, for a piece of work which every schoolboy ought to know belongs to George Mason. Mr. Hapgood writes so interestingly that he should be a little bit more careful of his facts, else he may mislead a too credulous public.

It was characteristic of Jefferson that in framing his epitath he did not say a word about any of the great offices that he had filled—though he had been a member of the Continental Congress, Governor of Virginia, Minister Plenipotentiary to France, Secretary of State under Washington, and Vice-President and President of the United States. All these things he passed by as of minor importance. But he wanted posterity to remember that he wrote the Declaration of Independence and the statute for religious freedom in Virginia, and that he was the founder of the University of Virginia. Most versatile and most erudite of all our presidents, he had a deep and true sense of his supreme achievements. Several rather commonplace men have been presidents of the United States; but not one of them could have dipped out of an inkstand the immortal words of the Declaration. Office is often a mere accident, but intellectual ability is a divine inheritance.

While I am on this subject I may as well say that a recent decision of the learned Supreme Court of Tennessee has stripped Mr. Jefferson of one of the claims to which he held most tenaciously; for while it is true that he conceived the whole plan of the University of Virginia, and gave it a vast amount of intelligent attention, it is not true that he furnished the money which made it a going institution; and he had, therefore, no right to call himself the "founder" of it. The doctrine of the above-mentioned court, as set forth in the sole and only opinion of Mr. Justice Turner and endorsed by his worthy colleagues, appears to be that neither brains nor energy nor personal and ecclesiastical influence, nor religious faith and hope, nor anything except money can enter into the foundation of a great school. Still it is not likely that the United States government, which is soon to become the owner of Monticello, will chisel out any portion of the inscription that the great Virginian chose for his own memorial. The jurisdiction of the Tennessee court does not run that far, but only up to the point where it can work harm and damage to the Methodist Church.

There is another New York journal that fully rivals Harper's Weekly in the oracular tone of its utterances. I refer to The Independent. Confessedly able, it has always been bitterly partisan. At one time in its history it belonged to the Congregationalists, or at least represented them. Nowadays, however, it makes no pretense of allegiance to any particular ecclesiastical organization. One of its chief functions is to "reprove, rebuke and exhort" all the churches. In a recent issue it puts out a dogmatic argument—if an argument can be framed out of naked assertions—for the organic union of the different bodies of American Christians. Without qualifying words, it says: "There are three great churches that were divided by the war—the Methodist, the Baptist and the Presbyterian."

Now the man who does not know his history any better than that is not competent to give serious advice. The division of the Methodist Church took place in 1844, 17 full years before hostilities began between the sections. What the war had to do with it is more than a plain, unimaginative man can understand. The Christian spirit of The Independent appears in sentences like this: "Union has been suggested and talked of by many well meaning people, but some objection has always been presented by suspicious ecclesiastics." The easiest way in the world to deal with a man that does not agree with you is to fasten an offensive epithet on him, but it proves nothing except that you are lacking in good manners.

Worse than all the foregoing is still another paragraph: "Is Christ divided? Yes, Christ is divided so far as the American Presbyterian Church, or the Methodist Episcopal Church, or the Baptist communion can keep him divided. Paul wrote to the Christians of Corinth a letter rebuking them for a schism far less abhorrent than that which now divides three of our strongest denominations." For crude ignorance and narrow bigotry this "takes the cake." The only unity on which the New Testament insists is "the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace." The notion of a national or ecumenical church existing under one visible organization was not even known among the earliest Christians. The Roman Catholics may consistently hold it; but the Protestant who tries to do so cuts the ground from underneath his feet. If it is correct, then the great reformers of the sixteenth century were guilty of a sin of the first magnitude in withdrawing from the jurisdiction of Rome. As to the Methodists, in particular, they were guilty of schism in leaving the Church of England, and the Church of England was guilty of the same sin in setting up as an independent organization in the sixteenth century. But as a matter of fact, schism consists, not in separating from a church but in carrying on a chronic quarrel inside of it.

Whether two separate churches should come together depends on many things. Union is good, but liberty is also good. If all the Methodists in the United States could get together on brotherly terms in one body, it might be better. That it appeals to the imagination is beyond a doubt. Yet big churches are not without their dangers. They are likely to grow proud of their own obesity, intolerant of smaller organizations, and often corrupt. Denominationalism, on the other hand, is not without its advantages. A dead uniformity of faith and life is not so desirable as an active variety. One thing at least is certain, and that is that the using of the lash of censorious speech for the purpose of driving Christian men into an outward coalescence with one another is as unchristian a thing as could be well imagined.

The church to which I belong—the Methodist Episcopal Church, South—has made a direct and straightforward offer of union to the Methodist Episcopal Church on certain conditions. Whether this offer will prove acceptable to our brethren beyond the Potomac and the Ohio I am not prepared to say. If they shall see fit to decline it, I shall not blame them. It is for them to determine whether they can best serve the kingdom by heeding our proposal or by rejecting it.

While all Christians are under the most solemn obligation to love one another as brethren, the question of their being consolidated into one visible host, under the rule and authority of one ecclesiasticism, is quite another thing—a matter to be settled by the honest consideration of all the circumstances.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION AND ELSE.

Dear Doctor Meek: I have just returned from a meeting of our Board of Church Extension at St. Louis, and I bring back very pleasant recollections of my visit to that city and my attendance upon the meeting of the Board.

During our stay in St. Louis we were entertained at the Washington Hotel and the meetings of the Board were held at St. John's M. E. Church, South, just across the street from the hotel. Many courtesies were showed to us by Dr. Lee, the presiding elder of the St. Louis District, Dr. Rice, the pastor of St. John's, and the other St. Louis brethren. We were invited to the Barnes Hospital and were shown through that magnificent Methodist institution. Brother Kennard, of the Board of Trustees of the Barnes Hospital, went into details as to the bequest of Mr. Barnes, the handling of the trust put into the care of his Board, and the policy of the Board toward the patients of the hospital, both rich and poor. The expressions of joy on the part of the members of the Board of Trustees of this institution at the oversight of our Church and the loyalty of the Board to our Church was very gratifying.

Mr. Robert Brookings, President of the Board of Trust of Washington University, explained the terms of the contract between the Barnes Hospital and the University. He spoke in very high terms of the completeness of the equipment of the hospital, and assured us that it had no superior in the world, this opinion being expressed after a personal inspection of the great hospitals of Europe and America, and being confirmed by such authorities as the leading men from Johns Hopkins and Harvard.

The sessions of the Board were very pleasant. Harmony prevailed, and there was a general desire apparent to distribute the funds in the hands of the Board where the needs were most urgent. Owing to the financial shortage now existing, there were many demands from all parts of the connection, both for donations and for loans, and the funds in hand were far short of the applications. There were therefore many disappointments, especially in those sections of the Church where Methodism is most firmly established.

There were many expressions of friendliness on the part of the members of the Board for our work in New Orleans, and a desire was expressed to do larger things in the future for New Orleans Methodism. In my opinion, New Orleans will have larger recognition in the near future and stronger efforts will be made to give assistance to our work in that city.

Dr. McMurry is a wonder as a Corresponding Secretary. He had all the details of his office at his finger-tips and was ready with reasons for the action taken by the Executive and Finance Committees in all cases; and besides familiarizing himself with these facts, he has had time to visit nearly all the Annual Conferences in the connection and to add largely to the finances of the Board.

In December, the Board of Church Extension will move into its own quarters in Louisville, the contract having been let and work begun on a new office building to cost $46,701.

This was my first meeting with the Board and I enjoyed the fellowship with the brethren very much. They were very considerate and gave me a patient hearing on Louisiana claims.

Monroe, La. ROBERT O. RANDLE.

A NOTE FROM DR. ANDERSON.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have just returned from Louisiana, where I have been in the interest of Centenary College. I was in New Orleans a part of one day, but did not have an opportunity to see you.

I am writing to express my appreciation of the good work which The New Orleans Advocate is doing in this campaign. I think the paper is doing the College a great service in opening its pages to an advocacy of this important cause. I came out of my ten days' campaign feeling that the enterprise must succeed. There is no State in the South where conditions make it more important for our Church to maintain a strong institution than in Louisiana. I hope the paper, and the brethren generally, will keep up the campaign until the work is done. And be sure I am willing to give every ounce of service I can to help the movement to succeed.

Yours fraternally,

May 12, 1915. STONEWALL ANDERSON.

MEETING OF CENTENARY TRUSTEES.

A meeting of the Board of Trustees of Centenary College was held in the parlors of the First Methodist Church at Shreveport on the evening of April 27, with the following members present: Rev. R. H. Wynn, D. D., president of the college; Rev. J. M. Henry, D. D., who presided in the absence of the president of the Board; Rev. W. W. Holmes, Rev. William Schuhle, Rev. T. J. Warlick, Rev. W. W. Drake, and Messrs. J. J. Booth, J. B. Ardis, P. M. Welsh, and S. C. Fullilove. Rev. A. W. Turner was a welcome and helpful visitor.

The meeting was characterized with much optimism, and the opinion was freely expressed that the efforts now being put forth to properly endow the college would result in great success; that the Methodists of Louisiana realized as never before the value of Centenary and the necessity of increasing its usefulness by enlarging the plant to a point where high-class and effective work can be done.

Several matters relating to the business part of the school were discussed with the President, and his actions were unanimously ratified. Business connected with the next session was also considered and certain tentative plans were made, announcement of which will be made at the annual meeting in June. It is hoped that these plans will show marked advancement in the management of the school, and will enable Dr. Wynn to offer inducements not heretofore possible.

Much pleasure was manifested in the plans and work of the Committee now conducting the educational campaign. The work already done by these preachers, and by those who have assisted them, was highly appreciated and is very gratifying to all members of the Board. It is believed that Centenary and her needs and her mission are being put before our people in a more effective way than ever before, and that this effort is bound to result in a success which will insure the future of the college.

After thoroughly considering all business of a pressing nature and after solving such difficulties as presented themselves, the Board adjourned to meet in June during the approaching Commencement exercises of the college.

OUR LIBRARY TABLE.

The Man Who Forgot. By James Hay, Jr. Doubleday, Page & Company (New York), Publishers.

This is a well written and wonderfully fascinating novel. The scene is in Washington City and it deals with the great problem of national prohibition. Though it can scarcely be pronounced Christian in tone, it is pitched upon a comparatively high moral plane and the main trend of its teaching is wholesome. The hero of the story is a most interesting character whose recollection of the past was completely destroyed by the excessive use of intoxicants, and in narrating the events of his life a very remarkable physochological problem is presented. The corrupt and unscrupulous methods of the liquor forces are set forth impressively in the volume. On the whole, the publication may be said to possess more than ordinary merit and to be well worth reading. One who begins it is certain to finish it without much delay.

My Brother's Keeper. By Rev. R. T. D. Carpenter, A. B., Th. G.

This is a story depicting by means of concrete illustrations the fearful evils of intemperance, and incidentally the cause of woman suffrage is advocated. The plot is principally laid in Fort Worth, Texas, and embraces to some extent Nashville, Tenn., and Crowley, La. The highest moral standards are upheld and the volume is caculated to exert a healthful influence. It grips the attention in the outset and holds it to the end. It is to be regretted that so many typographical errors exist in the text. Mr. Carpenter is the pastor of the Baptist Church at Crowley, La., and we should be pleased to see this product of his pen have a wide circulation, though we are not in accord with him on the subject of woman suffrage. The book has as a frontispiece a picture of the author.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., President

Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Sec'y

Rev. C. A. Battle, Treas., Baton Rouge, La.

(This Department is conducted by Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education, and Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Publicity Commissioner.)

A VISION AND A TASK.

There are moments when we feel blue. Elijah had one of the worst cases of blues ever recorded. He was a good man, but he had found a cave to dwell in. (Many a man would crawl in a hole if he could.) The Lord came to him and he confessed that the children of Israel had forsaken the covenant of the Lord, that prophets had been killed, that they were after him and that he was about the only man interested in religion in all the world. No wonder he was blue. Sometimes some of those who are active in trying to establish a greater Centenary feel much like Elijah except we have no cave to hide in.

The Lord helped Elijah out of the blues by two things: He first gave him a vision and then gave him a task. The vision taught him that the power of God rests not in great demonstrations but in the still, small voice. The task led him to find 7000 men who had not bowed the knee to Baal and to find Elisha, his most worthy successor as prophet of God. Is it not true that there is no occasion for those active in establishing a greater Centenary to have the blues? Grant us a vision at this time, and may we go out and find the great rank and file of Methodists ready to stand by our college, and some man, a man of God, who will stand forth and do a great thing to make possible a greater Centenary College!

"PLAIN FACTS FOR METHODISTS."

The Louisiana Conference requested me to send to the membership at large some printed matter on the subject of the endowment of Centenary College. The leaflet with the above title has been prepared and mailed to the preachers in charge for distribution among the membership at large. The Conference instructed me to mail them, but the difficulty of getting complete lists of members from the entire Conference seemed a practical impossibility.

I sent out reply postals and a large number of the pastors have assured me that they would gladly distribute them in their respective charges. I have now mailed a number to each charge, and hope that no preacher will fail to comply with this simple request of giving them to the members with a request to read them. R. H. WYNN.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUBSCRIPTIONS.

In the list of subscriptions published in last week's Advocate one error occcurs, due to some slip in copying, in which Rev. Jno. F. Foster is credited with a subscription of $250 a year for five years instead of $50 a year.

Rev. T. V. Peters, who subscribed at Conference $125 on the five-year plan, but was somehow omitted from the list, now authorizes the statement that he will make it $500 if $200,000 is raised.

Rev. W. W. Holmes subscribes 2 per cent of his salary for five years.

Rev. C. E. Fike subscribes 1 per cent.

Rev. W. A. Mangum subscribes $25, payable within five years.

Dr. F. N. Parker, while not yet giving a definite subscription, desires to be represented in the list and will contribute $25 or more this year.

One pastor who is doing notably faithful and efficient work on a salary below the cost of living, does the courteous thing, and at the same time indicates his interest, by writing a prompt reply expressing regret at his inability at present to make a subscription.

We should like to hear from every member of the Conference.

Acknowledgment of subscriptions will be made through the Advocate rather than by personal letter.

CENTENARY COLLEGE BEREAVED.

Centenary College was overwhelmed with grief recently when Elizabeth Atkins, daughter of Dr. Hugh E. Atkins, of Shreveport, was claimed by death. For three years she has been one of the most loyal, faithful and enthusiastic students any school ever enrolled. With marked devotion to every task assigned, she allowed nothing whatever to divert her from its fullest accomplishment.

She loved Centenary with her whole heart and found her chief joy within its walls. She was fond of sport, too, entering into it with the same zest that characterized all her activities.

When so many of our young people seem to be aimlessly drifting it was refreshing to note the fixed, serious, lofty purposes that dominated her life, working out in her that fine quality of character which is the end of all true education. The entire student body was deeply stirred as they realized a rare spirit had slipped away from their midst. She certainly left the impress of her splendid personality upon all who knew her.

Rev. R. H. Wynn conducted the funeral service, six of the students acting as pall-bearers.

We are grief-stricken over the loss, but if we felt that her activities had ceased at the tomb, we would be inconsolable. Even in our grief comes the assurance that she who wrought so nobly, so unselfishly and efficiently, has really been promoted by our Father to a higher realm and given tasks which will bring to her spirit joys eternal.

It is claimed that the students of the Boston School of Theology (Methodist Episcopal) were instrumental in leading between 1500 and 1600 persons to Christ during the year ending April 1, 1915. Such work, along with their theological studies, ought to be a fine training for young ministers.

The following utterance is credited to Bishop Burt, of the Methodist Episcopal Church: "Too much has Methodism taken song out of the mouths of the people and put into the mouth of hired singers. The Lower House of the Convocation of the Church of England, recently in session at York, adopted a resolution declaring that it "would look with anxiety upon the total prohibition of the sale of intoxicating drinks;" and a short time since when Mr. Lloyd-George made an appeal to the English clergymen to set an example of total abstinence a prompt refusal came from gentlemen high in the councils of the Church. From this, it would seem that, after all, the British type of religion, so far as it is represented by the Established Church, is little, if any, better than that of Germany.

While attending the meeting of the Board of Missions in Nashville last week, the College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, had wired to President Wilson the following message: "The College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, thanks God that our President, on whom rests at this time such great and unusual burdens, is a man of prayer, discretion, courage, patriotism and ability. As chief pastors of some millions of our American people that College assures the President of its sympathy and prayers in his efforts to preserve the peace of our beloved country and to protect the rights and honor of our citizens. The litigation over the Epworth University property has terminated favorably to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. This property, which consists of 50 acres of land and some buildings, is situated in Oklahoma City and is stated to be worth under favorable conditions about $300,000. It was originally donated to the Methodist Church, South, and the Methodist Church, North, with the expectation that the two denominations would co-operate in the enterprise, but the latter Church subsequently abandoned the project, and the donor tried to recover the property. We have no college in operation in Oklahoma, though our Church is numerically strong there, and it is thought that the secure possession of this desirable plant may stimulate our people to take up again aggressively the work of Christian education in that State.

THE BISHOPS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, SOUTH.

(This utterance appeared as an editorial in the St. Louis Republic while our College of Bishops was recently in session in that city.—Editor's note.)

On this day of rest and worship St. Louis is host to the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. They form a distinguished body of American citizens, welcomed alike by religious workers and by patriotic men generally.

The debt which this nation owes to the fiery and self-forgetful missionary zeal of the Methodist clergy during the days of American pioneering cannot be too often acknowledged. Little hamlets, separated from the outside world by leagues of heavy forest, threaded by so-called roads in which the wagons sank hub-deep in the black soil, were stirred from their lethargy and set to thinking on the higher issues of life by men who burst in upon them with hot denunciations of the frontier vices of gambling, drunkenness, and lawlessness, and vivid reminders of the personal accountability to God of every human being. Already these times seem far away and the Methodist Church has fallen upon easier days, but the heroic temper is there still.

The Methodist Bishop is a living example of the possible union of various kinds of strength in a single individual. That fellowship demands that its leaders do many things well. Every Methodist Bishop is at once an orator and an administrator. They are men both of vision and of hard practical sense and experience of affairs. With but four exceptions, every man has been either an educator or an editor; more than one has been both. They are at home among the simplest company of believers; they are at home among scholars; they are at home among travelers and men of the world. They are in sympathy both with the fervor of the camp-meeting and the critical temper of the lecture room. There could be no more convincing proof of their outstanding personal ability and entire devotion to the needs of the churches under their power than the robust survival of the Bishop's autocratic power over the assignment of men to churches in this day of almost universal majority rule. St. Louis delights to bid them welcome.

THE WISHING GIRL.

She wished to see strange countries
Or, better still, a queen;
She wished she were a princess—
That she had never seen.

She saw the wealthy ladies
And wished to take their place;
She wished for their fine jewels,
Their satins and their lace.

She wished that all her duties
Were changed to play and fun,
Or, that, by merely wishing,
Her duties could be done.

But strange, with all her wishing
She never wished to be
The helpful and unselfish child
That others wished to see,

AN UNDESIRABLE NEIGHBORHOOD.

By Mabel Dodge Holmes.

"No, I don't want Jessie Booth." Alice had the air of closing the discussion. "Of course not. It'll spoil everything, if we have to have her."

The Sunday school teacher interposed gently, but with decision. "Girls, Jessie is a member of the class and an exceedingly nice girl. You will have to stop planning the picnic altogether, if you do not include Jessie."

"But, Miss Gould, I don't see how a nice girl can live where she does. The whole neighborhood is full of Jews and Italians, and all around there are real slummy-looking alleys. I couldn't stand it to live there."

"Suppose you had to?" said the teacher.

"Well, all there is about it, I'd be perfectly miserable."

"But Jessie doesn't even care." This time it was Edna who voiced the general disapproval and scorn.

"Perhaps she cares more than you think. Do you happen to know how Jessie passes the time in the undesirable neighborhood?" Miss Gould spoke quietly, but she saw that it was necessary to attack the snobbish spirit that was growing up among her girls.

"No, and we don't care. All I know is, she isn't our sort, and I don't want to have to associate with such a person."

"Gently, Alice. I am a little surprised at you, for I've often heard you say you intended to do settlement work when you grew up. Let me tell you about Jessie. She told me one day how lonely and uncongenial she found her life, down there among the foreign population. 'But, Miss Gould,' she said, 'as long as I have to be there, I might as well make it an opportunity, instead of an unhappiness.' So she hasn't waited to grow up and work in a settlement. She is making a settlement of her undesirable neighborhood. She has made friends with several of the factory girls, and in the evenings is teaching them some of the things which she is learning now in the high school and which they never learned because they had to stop going to school. In the afternoons, after school, a group of little girls come to her house frequently, and she teaches them simple things about sewing. She has given each one a doll, and together they make wonderful costumes.

"On other afternoons, some little boys come in the spring and summer, and she has divided her back yard into garden plots and obtained seeds for the children to plant and care for them. They learn a little of the love of outdoors. On any summer evening you can see a flock of these children, no longer playing in the dirty street, but gathered around Jessie on her doorstep, while she tells them stories. Girls, if Jessie didn't live in such an undesirable neighborhood, who would be doing these things to help? Jessie's only fourteen, but she has found the secret of getting happiness out of being useful."

The girls had listened silently. "Well," said Alice, at last, with a long breath, "I think none of us mean as much to our desirable neighborhoods as she does to her undesirable neighborhood. Here's one more lesson in learning not to judge by outward appearance."—The Comrade.

RAINING UPSIDE DOWN.

The little tin basin of water was empty, just as sure as the world! And Peggy had left water in it the last time she made mud pies in the back yard, so to be sure and have it ready to mix with next time. Peggy always made arrangements beforehand for things—even mud pies. And, of course, she hadn't thought of going out to grandpa's and staying so long when she made this arrangement.

"Now, where's that water gone?" she mused. "If it had been at grandpa's the chickens would have drunk it up, but here"—

"Poh! I know where it's gone to," Dickey cried, loftily. Dickey went to a big school, not kindergarten, and so he knew a great deal.

"It rained up—that's where it went," he explained.

"It what, Dickey Plummer?"

"Rained up into the sky—it always does, and then by'mby it'll rain down again. Where'd you s'pose all the rain comes from?"

"Well, I didn't s'pose it come out o' my mixin'-pan—so there!" cried Peggy's clear, indignant little voice, scornfully. Then she ran to mamma to see what it all meant, for mamma always knew.

"Dickey says it rains upside down, mamma!" she cried. "I guess he'd laugh to see it!" Mamma laughed to see Peggy's face.

"He can't see it, dear—nobody can, unless the air is so cold that it runs together in tiny drops and makes a mist or fog. Dickey was right—the water in your little tin pan was taken up into the air again, to rain down some day with the other water the air has drawn up from the surface of ponds and rivers. If it should be very cold when it gets ready to come to us, it will be—what, Dickey?"

"A snow storm," said Dickey, promptly.

"Yes, dear. And so it goes back and forth between the sky and earth. It's one of the wonderful things the wonderful world is full of, little Peg."—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

AN EFFICIENT FINANCIAL METHOD.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have been requested to give you an account of our plan of monthly collections for the support of the ministry in our charge, the Durant Station. This plan was adopted by our Board of Stewards early in January of this year, and although it is still in the experimental stage with us, our success with it thus far surpasses any plan yet attempted.

I take it that our charge is somewhat similar in a general way to many others in the Conference. We have endeavored for several years to arrange a system whereby we could pay our pastor monthly and have used other methods with varying degrees of failure, with the usual result that about November 1 we have had to face the unpleasant task of raising from one-fourth to one-third of the pastor's salary before Conference.

We had tried the envelope system requesting our membership to pay weekly, bringing their contributions each Sunday; but we found that only a few co-operated with us in this plan. We decided to employ a collector who could see the membership regularly, systematically, and often, and who could make second and third calls when necessary. Our Board of Stewards are busy men and none of them could undertake the work in this way; so we employed Mrs. J. L. Frizell, who is an experienced and capable collector, agreeing to give her a commission. We sent a circular letter to every paying member of the church, explaining in detail the proposed plan and asking the hearty co-operation of each member. While a few pay quarterly in advance and a few still pay weekly in envelopes, the majority have expressed themselves as favoring this new method and we are getting results. As an evidence of this, we have paid our pastor regularly $100 a month, have paid our presiding elder for the second quarter, and have paid our collector's commissions, whereas in former years the assessment for our pastor has been only $1000.

We believe that we have hit upon the right plan, but it would be a manifest injustice to give all the credit to the plan, and leave out of consideration the revival and steady growth of Methodism and the spiritual advancement of our people under the able pastorate of our leader, Rev. E. Nash Broyles, and the wise counsel of our Presiding Elder, Rev. W. S. Shipman. We feel that this consideration is due them, as the pastor's salary was fixed at $1000 last year as usual, and we paid him $1125. This year, a salary of $1200 seems assured, and this despite the stringency of the times, and of the further fact that since January we have raised $8500 for our new church building and have made in addition to this some repairs on the parsonage.

Yours faithfully,

R. C. ELMORE.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

HISTORY OF THE VANDERBILT CONTEST PROMISED.

Under the caption, "A Note to the Public," Bishop E. E. Hoss made the following statement in the Nashville Christian Advocate of May 14:

"It bas been my ardent hope that I might never again be called upon to say a word in the public prints concerning Vanderbilt University. Profoundly as I have resented the injustice of the proceedings by which that institution was snatched from the ownership and control of the Methodist Church, I have preferred since the issue was closed to keep quiet about it. But recent occurrences have made it necessary for somebody to speak out. The misrepresentations of the Church that are still in circulation in the secular newspapers and through other channels are too bold and too serious to be allowed to go unchallenged. That the Church should be stripped and dispossessed of what by every consideration of good morals was her very own, was surely bad enough; but that, in addition to this, she should also be slandered and maligned by men who know better, or at least ought to know better, is altogether too bad. If God gives me life and my right hand does not lose its cunning, I mean to set the history of these transactions so straight that no honest and intelligent person can fail to know tbe exact truth about them. Within the coming year I shall issue a book In which the Church's good name will be amply defended, not by sheer assertion, but by an array of documents fully covering the whole ground. Incidentally I shall also furnish occasion to a number of very free-talking gentlemen to take up the task of explaining the numerous tergiversations and self-contradictions of which they have been guilty on this subject in recent years. Without malice, but with fixed purpose that the truth shall prevail, I shall keep back nothing that is necessary to complete the whole story. Very modestly also, but very directly, I shall analyze and review the opinion of Special Judge W. R. Turner and give it a somewhat wider publicity than it would otherwise be likely to have. This note is written in answer to many inquiries that have reached me within the past twelve months."

We are very glad indeed to learn that Bishop Hoss has it in mind to perform this service for the Church. A full and accurate history of the long-drawn-out Vanderbilt imbroglio is, in our opinion, very much needed. Comparatively few of our preachers and laymen are well informed concerning it. and it is due those who stood up for the rights of the Church in the great contest that the facts should be set forth in such a manner as botb to give them impressively to the public now and to preserve them for future generations. Those wbo championed the cause of the Church have nothing to fear at the bar of intelligent public opinion if the whole story is correctly told, and no living man is so well qualified to tell It in all of its ramifications as Bishop Hoss. We sincerely trust that he will adhere inflexibly to his announced purpose to uncover everything, and shelter no one who had any part whatever in ejecting the Church from Vanderbilt University, no matter how high the position that he occupies. The documents bearing upon the extended controversy are so voluminous that less than a good-sized volume could not begin to do the subject justice.

It is to be hoped that Bishop Hoss will give this task tbe precedence over all other literary work that he has on hand and that this promised history will be forthcoming at an early date. We feel sure that there are many who would be glad to assist in procuring any clerical aid tbat may be needed to lighten his labors in preparing his copy for the press. And we do not believe tbere is any doubt that there will be a great demand for the publicatlon.

We are not yet by any means rid of Vanderbilt University. To be sure, it is well settled that the Southern Methodist Church now has no legal rights in the institution, and there is no good reason to hope that she ever will have. But there is a considerable contingent in the Church which, while professing loyalty to our two new Universities, are nevertheless apparently trying to bolster up Vanderbilt and give it as good a standing with our people and as large a share of their patronage as they can. Men high in the councils of the Church, we regret to say, seem to be in sympathy with this purpose and lending their influence to its execution. They are lecturing at Vanderbilt regardless of the fact that such action upon their part belittles the claim of the Church that she has been outraged and thus tends to make the public mind more tolerant of the course that has been pursued by the Board of Trust, thereby encouraging our people to patronize the institution under the present management. Some of our Church papers also seem to be proceeding upon the principle that it is yet their duty to serve as publicity mediums for tbe Carnegieized school on the Cumberland. Other obvious devices are also at work, which we will not at present take the time to mention. We may possibly do so in the future, though we are not sure that we shall.

Tbe truth is, we have been so much disappointed in the weakness that some of our Bishops and leaders have shown in handling matters arising out of the Vanderbilt controversy that we have been very much tempted to taboo the whole question and keep it out of our columns. They have been generally sound in their preachments, but some of them have temporized the issue in their administrations. By their failure to sever the remaining connecting cords between the Church and University, they have paved the way for the present unfortunate and menacing situation. And there is yet a good deal of firing into the empty air going on in the Church. It is well enough to speak out against the School of Liberal Theology that Vanderbilt is establishing to "DISCOVER" religious truth; but a far more vital and pertinent question is, Are we not placing in our new theological schools some men who at heart sympathize with the course of the Vanderbilt Trustees, and are we not in danger of transplanting into them the same liberal theology that is now unmasking itself at Vanderbilt? The ownership of our institutions will amount to little if it is not so exercised as to bring about a sounder and more Methodistic system of instruction and to produce a more wholesome condition of things generally. These are the issues that are most calculated to affect the welfare of tbe Church, and which we most need faithfully to grapple with, in the fear of God.

But we have wandered considerably afield. However, most of the matters upon which we have touched accentuate the need of Bishop Hoss's promised book. Perhaps its publication will do much toward clarifying the atmosphere and creating a sentiment in the Church that will tend to counteract some of the hurtful influences now at work among us. We recommed to the Bishop that he make free use of parallel columns. We do not, however, look for many explanations to be called forth by his recital of facts. When men of even ordinary intelligence have made an indefensible record, however much they may talk in secret cabals and in private circles, they usually prefer the shelter of a cowardly silence to a discussion in the public prints. It is not always a patient, pacific disposition that disinclines a person to debate openly an issue with which he has been identified. There is quite a good deal of hypocrisy practiced in this respect.

STRIKINGLY INEQUITABLE.

According to the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, our Book Committee during its recent session in Richmond, Va., took the following action:

"Whereas, the General Conference of 1914 in adopting Report No. 1 of tbe Committee on Publishing Interests charged the Book Committee with the duty of dividing the whole Church territory into several districts, and of seeking to combine papers where there are now more than are needed in any given area,' and,

"Whereas, we appreciate the fact that we have no power to enforce any decision at which we may arrive, but can only indicate lines and advise the papers and Conferences in this matter; therefore be it Resolved:

"1. That in the judgment of this Committee it is in every way desirable that the number of our Church organs should be decreased, so as to give to each organ published a territory sufficient for its adequate support, and in pursuance of this idea we would earnestly commend to the consideration of the Conferences consolidation so as to provide for one organ in each district. We recommend the division of territory into eight districts composed as follows: First district, states of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico; second district, states of Missouri and Arkansas; third district, states of Louisiana and Mississippi; fourth district, states of Tennessee and Kentucky; fifth district, states of Alabama, Georgia and Florida; sixth district, states of Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia; eighth district, all territory west of New Mexico, Missouri and Arkansas to the Pacific coast.

"2. We believe that if the Conferences and publishers concerned can reach an agreement upon approximately the lines indicated it will be found very greatly to the advantage of the Church and of the papers themselves."

It will be noted that the "Seventh District" is omitted from the resolution as given in the Wesleyan Advocate, but presumably it includes the states of North and South Carolina.

Within reasonable limitations, we believe that this movement to effect a consolidation of some of our weekly Church papers is wise; but the scheme of districting here suggested is ridiculously inequitable. For instance, it is proposed to leave the New Orleans Advocate with only its present inadequate support—that of the states of Louisiana and Mississippi, in which there are not more than 150,000 Methodists; while Georgia, Alabama, and Florida are grouped together with a Methodist population of more than 420,000.

How the members of the Book Committee could think that such an arrangement as this would promote the best interests of the press of the Church is quite beyond us. It would be far more equitable to place Alabama in the group with Louisiana and Mississippi and have a paper issued at New Orleans, or Birmingham, or Jackson, or Meridian, Miss., than to tie her up with Georgia and Florida, and leave the New Orleans Advocate as it now stands to continue to struggle for existence. We are inclined to think that it would even be better to wipe out entirely this district by absorbing it also into Georgia, or possibly into the Texas group, than to adhere to the plan brought forward by the Book Committee.

The fact is, this action of that body seems to be very much like that of the Commissioners appointed to establish the Regional banks, in that the territory in which its members resided was taken especial care of. Louisiana and Mississippi had no representation on the Committee.

"It is the belief of the unseen things that makes possible the right use and enjoyment of the seen."

A CORRECTION AND AN OBSERVATION.

In the paragraph marked "4" of Mrs. A. C. McKinney's bright and timely article, "Some Queries Answered," appearing in last week's Advocate, a typographical error occurred, as follows: "But unless this is a case of 'mistaken identity,' I heard 'T' preach a sermon on the whole 'Ten Commandments,' in which he said they were never meant to be kept; and in that case why should he want a country preacher to give a whole year to preaching to them." The last clause, of course, should have been, "to preaching ON them."

There has been a great deal of silly twaddle about "the problem of the country church" and its failings. Many of our congregations in the rural sections need better houses of worship and more preaching than they get; but, on the whole, they are meeting their responsibilities about as well, if not better, than our urban people are meeting theirs. If the noisy faddists could recast our country churches and make them precisely like those in the cities, we wonder where the men to fill our pulpits would come from. A very large percentage of the orthodox and pure Christianity in the United States is in the rural communities. Indeed, we fear that if the exact portion existing in them could be figured out the result would be somewhat startling to the dwellers in our municipalities. Nevertheless there are many faithful disciples of Jesus in our great centers of population.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. F. H. McGee, of Cockrum, Miss., has lately favored us with some subscriptions from his charge. He is serving a kind people and is having a good year.

Rev. W. D. Wendel, of Como, Miss., preached the Commencement sermon for the Kosciusko (Miss.) High School last Sunday. His message was a suggestive and helpful one.

Under date of May 12, Dr. Theo. Copeland wrote us as follows from De Kalb, Texas: "I am here in a great union revival. The attendance upon the services is very large and the prospect is fine for a far-reaching work of grace."

In the recent episcopal assignments, Bishop Murrah was given the same district that he had last year, which is one of the choicest in the Connection. His Conferences are the Tennessee, the Memphis, and the East and West Oklahoma.

Rev. J. W. Ramsey, of Heidelberg, Miss., in a personal note to the Editor refers to the situation in his field as follows: "The interest in the work of the Church in my pleasant charge is increasing, and my congregations are large and growing."

Do not forget that Rev. H. P. Lewis, of Jackson, Miss., yet has a few copies of his "Autobiography" left that he would like to sell. Send him 25 cents for a copy. His address is 826 North West Street. This excellent little volume is both instructive and entertaining.

We are indebted to Rev. N. G. Augustus, of Houston, Miss., for the editorial of the St. Louis Republic on our Bishops which we are reproducing in this issue of the Advocate. Referring to his predecessor, Brother Augustus says: "Brother Neblett did a fine work here."

In our "Church News" column it is stated that there are 200,000 Methodists in Georgia. Those figures were taken from another paper; but since that was done we have had occasion to look up the exact number, which, according to the latest General Minutes, is 212,992.

In the absence last Sunday of Dr. S. H. Werlein, who was in Franklinton, La., to preach the Commencement Sermon for the High School at that place, it was announced that his pulpit would be filled at 11 a.m. by Rev. W. E. Thomas, and at the evening hour by Rev. H. H. Ahrens.

Rev. T. L. Oaks, of McCool, Miss., gives us an appreciated club of 7 subscriptions, and in his business letter to our office appends the following note: "Everything is going well with us in this part of the field. Marked improvement is taking place along all lines. I am hopeful and happy in my work."

Rev. R. V. Fulton, of Greensburg, La., in a letter bringing us some subscriptions, says: "Our work is progressing favorably and things seem to be in good shape for our revival campaign, which is to start here on May 16. We expect to have with us Rev. H. W. Bowman, our presiding elder, and Rev. J. B. Williams of Ponchatoula.

Mr. S. J. High, a prominent member of our Church at Tupelo, Miss., was elected president of the Mississippi State Bankers' Association at the recent annual meeting of that organization. Mr. High is one of the leading young financiers of Northeast Mississippi, and justly merited the honor that has been conferred upon him.

The Sardis (Miss.) District Conference began last Sunday and closed Wednesday evening of this week. In the absence of Bishop Waterhouse, who had been expected to preside, Rev. J. W. Dorman, the presiding elder, directed the proceedings, and did it well. He had arranged in advance an excellent program for the occasion.

Rev. R. S. Walton, of Bunkie, La., says: "Rev. H. W. May, our presiding elder, is seeking to help his preachers to be more accurate in their reports to the Annual Conference." Brother May can usually be counted upon to address himself to any work that needs to be done, and this certainly is an important matter.

Rev. J. M. Carpenter, the gifted young pastor of our Central Church at Columbus, Miss., has our thanks for a club of 9 subscriptions to the Advocate, forwarded on May 7. Brother Carpenter has lately had a gracious season of spiritual refreshing in his church, an account of which may be seen in our "From the Field Department" this week.

The Church is fortunate in having had its mission work in Mexico placed under the supervision of Bishop Candler. Doubtless the Bishop's knowledge of Spanish will be quite as serviceable to him in that field as it has been in Cuba. The Mexican work will not be new to him, however, as he has had it in charge before, though not recently.

In sending in his field notes, Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, the Field Secretary of the Sunday School Board of the North Mississippi Conference, makes the following statement: "The work is prospering. There is a better day ahead for us. I am stressing Bible study, prayer, personal work and missions. We are having some great meetings."

We acknowledge the reception of an invitation to the Commencement of Martha Washington College, May 30 to June 1. The Baccalaureate Sermon will be preached by Dr. S. H. Werlein, of New Orleans, and the Annual Address will be given by Senator James K. Vardaman, of Jackson, Miss. The President of this flourishing Institution, Dr. S. D. Long, is an ex-Mississippian.

At the late session of the Mississippi State Medical Association at Hattiesburg, Dr. I. W. Cooper, of Newton, Miss., was named as President for the ensuing year. This capable young physician is a son and the namesake of Dr. Cooper, of Whitworth College. His friends entertain no doubt that he will fill with credit to himself and his profession the distinguished position to which he has been chosen.

Rev. J. M. Alford, of Columbia, La., passed through New Orleans last week and paid the Advocate office an appreciated call. He had been assisting his brother, Rev. L. F. Alford, in a series of revival services at Howison, Miss., and was en route home. He spoke hopefully of his work at Columbia, where he was recently assisted in a very profitable meeting by Rev. J. J. Smylie, of Louisville, Miss.

Bishop Hoss will start on his trip to the Orient in July. Referring to it in a letter to the Editor, he says: "If the sea voyage serves me as kindly as it has always done heretofore, I shall get great profit from it." In sending Bishop Hoss as fraternal messenger to Australian Methodism and to supervise our work in Japan, China, and Korea, our Church is giving to the Wesleyans of those far distant lands her very best.

Through the courtesy of President J. R. Countiss, we have received an attractive invitation to the Commencement exercises of Grenada Female College, which will be held May 22-25. The Commencement Sermon will be preached next Sunday by Bishop W. B. Murrah, and the Annual Address will be delivered on Tuesday morning, May 25, by Dr. A. W. Milden, of the University of Mississippi. This excellent school, all things considered, has had a splendid session.

Writing from Shelby, Miss., on May 14, Rev. T. M. Bradley, our pastor at that place, says: "Last night we closed one of the best revival meetings that has been held here in years. There were 14 additions to the Church on profession of faith and 4 by certificate. Nearly the entire membership of the church came to the mourner's bench, seeking a brighter Christian experience. Rev. W. L. Duren assisted in the meeting. He is a man of God and a great preacher. We have had here this year, in all, 25 additions on profession of faith."

We have in hand a copy of the Commencement program of Whitworth College, which has been issued in the usual neat and tasteful form. As has already been announced in the Advocate, the speakers of the occasion will be Dr. Stonewall Anderson, Dr. E. H. Mounger and Rev. H. B. Watkins. The graduating class this year numbers 14 in the Literary Department, 2 in the Music Department, and 1 in the School of Expression. Four young ladies will also be awarded certificates in English.

In our brief editorial last week touching on the sinking of the Lusitania, we stated that she had on board nothing that was contraband of war, being led to do so by what at that time seemed to be the most dependable press dispatches; but in The Independent of May 17, Mr. Park Benjamin, a competent authority, states that the vessel had on board "copper and brass worth $108,826, and military goods and ammunition worth $266,248. This fact, however, did not at all justify, under the rules of civilized warfare, the sinking of the ship.

Rev. C. F. Emery, the capable presiding elder of the Newton (Miss.) District, has arranged an excellent program for his district conference, which will convene at Philadelphia, Miss., on June 6, opening at 4 o'clock p.m. Bishop James Atkins has been invited to be present. The following committees have been appointed: License to Preach, C. M. Crossly, J. G. Galloway and J. L. Neill. Admission on Trial, W. W. Graves, W. A. Hays and O. G. Halliburton. Orders, J. T. Abney, C. C. Griffin and W. F. Baggett. Local Preachers, W. A. Hays, J. C. Ellis and M. R. Jones. Quarterly Conference Records, W. W. Murray, H. R. McKee and G. P. Fikes.

We have noted with interest that Miss Helen Clark of Cleveland, Miss., has been appointed by Major General Calvin B. Vance Sponsor for the Mississippi Division of the United Confederate Veterans at the Twenty-fifth Annual Reunion of that organization, which is to be held in Richmond, Va., June 1-3, 1915. Miss Helen is the accomplished daughter of the late Hon. Fred Clark and Mrs. E. T. Clark, of Cleveland, and is a granddaughter of Gov. Charles Clark, who was Mississippi's Chief Executive during the stormy years of the Civil War. General Vance could not possibly have made a more fitting choice in naming a Sponsor for the Veterans of the Magnolia State.

Referring to the late session of the Brookhaven District Conference and the Seashore Divinity School, Rev. H. M. Ellis, of Memphis, says: "The conference was a delightful and profitable one. Brother Selby, the diligent presiding elder, presided with alertness, fairness and dignity, and the brotherly spirit of all was very pronounced. There was a fine attendance of laymen and nearly all of them remained to the close. Every pastor was present. The district is doing well, and its leader is in great favor with both the pastors and people. The Seashore Divinity School Yearbook will be out in a few days. There are more than the usual number of inquiries about it, and the prospect is fine."

We desire to state again that, as much as we should like to oblige our friends who ask us to do so, it is impracticable for us to print programs of public meetings of any kind. What we do for one we have to do for all who make similar requests, and there are now so many boards, conventions, conferences, and public occasions of various sorts that to meet the demands made upon us in this respect would take vastly more space than is at our disposal. We feel sure that upon reflection our patrons will recognize the necessity of the rule that we have adopted not to publish such copy for any one. It should be remembered that we serve a constituency covering two States and that our columns are very much taxed to carry the matter for which we have to find a place.

The Commencement exercises of Centenary College will begin on Sunday, June 6, when Dr. Stonewall Anderson, of Nashville, Tenn., will preach the Commencement sermon at 11 a.m., and also deliver the sermon before the Y.M.C.A. at 8 p. m. On Monday at 10 a. m. there will be a Declamation Contest, and on Monday evening will be held the Anniversary of the Alumni Association, at which an address will be delivered by Robert H. McGimsey, of Alexandria, and a poem will be read by Rev. S. J. Davies, of Jackson, La. On Tuesday, June 8, the closing exercises of the Union Literary Society will take place at 10 a.m., the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees will be held, and at night the graduating exercises will take place, the Baccalaureate Address being delivered by Hon. E. H. Randolph, of Shreveport, following which the degrees will be conferred.

NO LONGER TREASURER.

Dear Dr. Meek: Please allow me to state that I am no longer the Treasurer of the Louisiana Conference Sunday School Board. That position is now held by Mr. W. A. McKennon, of Shreveport, La., to whom all moneys, including Children's Day offerings, should be sent.

Mrs. LILLIAN FURR (nee Porter) was born in Union County, Miss., on Dec. 28, 1887, and died at the Lucy Brinkly Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., where she had gone to be treated for appendicitis. She was too weak to stand the treatment, and sweetly passed away on April 24, 1915. Sister Furr joined the M. E. Church, South, at the age of thirteen. She loved her Church and Sunday school. She had been a faithful teacher of the Intermediate Class for over a year, and had taken much interest in her pupils. This dear wife and mother leaves a broken-hearted husband and two little boys. But, dear husband and children, why grieve? We feel sure that she is resting sweetly, for she did not fear death, and told her physician that angels were hovering around her. I was in her home Sunday evening, a few days before her death. She called her precious boys to her bedside and told them to pray, as she was wont to do every night. Her heart's desire was to raise her dear boys up to be useful Christian men. May the dear Lord bless this kind husband and help him to raise his boys for Christ!

ONE WHO LOVED HER.

Mrs. LETHA ANN STEPHENS was born near New Albany, Miss., in the year 1853, and united with the Old Oak Grove Church when 11 or 12 years old. She was happily married to Mr. Z. M. Stephens, now Judge Stephens of this place, and moved to New Albany, where her long and useful life was spent in caring for her household, and faithfully serving her church. Sister Stephens died on April 4, 1915, and in her going away our church here lost not only one of its charter members, but one of its most saintly and loyal members. She was a great sufferer at the last, but she did not complain. She called her pastor and his wife to her bedside for prayer, but before the prayer, she expressed her desire that the will of God should be done in her. Sister Stephens leaves a husband and three children, one daughter and two sons—one son being our eminent Congressman Hon H. D. Stephens. Her home had been the preachers' home for more than 30 years. One of the great desires of her life was to live to see the gathering of the Annual Conference in her home church, which she had aided so heroically in establishing; and she almost saw it, for the Conference is to meet here this winter; but somehow God had better things for his child, and called her to himself. S. L. POPE.

MARTHA E. ROGERS, daughter of Timothy and Betsy Rogers, was born on August 3, 1852. She was converted and joined the Baptist Church in August, 1874. She married J. S. Thompson on October 14, 1874. In July, 1906, she joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. She died on August 3, 1914. Sister Thompson's parents were stanch members of the Baptist Church and when she joined the Church of which her parents were members, she made a faithful and attentive member. She gladly submitted to the rules of the Church and enjoyed her religion. She always enjoyed a religious conversation and loved her Bible and religious literature. Two children, both girls, were given Brother and Sister Thompson and they both survive their mother. After Sister Thompson had been a member of the Baptist Church for 32 years, as she and her husband were getting old she saw fit to unite with the Methodist Church, of which Mr. Thompson was a member. The writer received her into the Church at Bethel, which was at that time on the Seminary Circuit. Sister Thompson was a faithful wife and a loving and tender mother. All who knew her looked upon her as a saintly woman. Ministers were always welcomed at her home and were entertained with the greatest consideration. Sister Thompson suffered a great deal in her last illness, but bore her suffering with great patience and looked upon death as going home. While hers is a great gain, Brother Thompson and the two devoted daughters have sustained a great loss in her death and the community and Church have lost much. We pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort the bereaved ones and that they may meet the wife and mother in heaven.

APPRECIATORY RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God in his infinite wisdom to remove from our midst the soul of our beloved Brother Durrett, and

Whereas, he was a faithful and enthusiastic member of the Carrollton Ministers' Association, be it resolved:

1. That we humbly submit to the all-wise Providence of our Heavenly Father in taking our beloved brother to his reward.

2. That we sincerely deplore the falling of a noble soldier of the Cross and co-laborer for our Master's cause; that we shall miss him from the ranks of those who are arrayed against evil in every form in our community.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be made in our minutes, a copy published in the Conservative, a copy sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and also one sent to the bereaved family.

4. That the profound sympathy of our band be extended to those loved ones who mourn with us Brother Durrett's departure.

Signed by J. H. Smith, A. C. Mason, P. S. Crane, members of Carrollton Ministers' Association.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

(Adopted by the Woman's Missionary Society of Oak Ridge, La.)

The members of the Woman's Missionary Society wish to express their deep sense of loss in the death of their beloved senior member, Mrs. M. E. Carr. We, as friends, neighbors, and co-workers in the Master's vineyard, desire to bear testimony to her earnest, sincere life, and of the help and encouragement she was so ready and willing at all times to give. Having been in failing health for some time, she was compelled to absent herself from the Missionary Society and from the Sunday school, both of which were very dear to her. She will be greatly missed and her place cannot be filled. We feel that our loss is her eternal gain. We are thankful for her splendid example of a Christian life. Therefore, be it resolved:

1. That as a Society we know that we have lost an efficient member, and that we shall miss her words of encouragement, her wise counsel and her ready sympathy.

2. That we extend our deepest sympathy to her loved ones, praying that the Holy Comforter may abide with and sustain them.

3. That these resolutions be placed on our record, that a copy be sent to her family, and a copy to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. W. O. Filer, Mrs. C. L. Hope, Miss Sadie Piper.

Central Church, Columbus, Miss.

The present outlook in this charge is much brighter than it has been for some time. We have just closed our revival meeting, which I consider a successful one. Brother L. P. Wasson, of Shaw, Miss., was with us and his strong, manly character and vital Christian faith spoke to us in every sermon. The fact that the people enjoyed these sermons and approved of them, often stern but true messages, was attested to hy the large congregations that continued to hear them. It is estimated that more than a hundred people were turned away for lack of room last Sunday night. While there were only five accessions to the Church the people, nearly all of whom were already members, are awake and alive with new determination and zeal. We expect this to be the beginning of a year-round revival.—J. M. Carpenter, P. C.

Kosciusko, Miss.

Dear Doctor: We have recently held our meeting here in which we were assisted for one week by Brother W. N. Duncan of Holly Springs. Brother Duncan is a clear, forceful, earnest preacher, and our people were delighted with his messages. After preaching one week, he was called home on account of illness in his family. Then Brother E. N. Broyles of Durant came to our assistance and preached a week. He also is a good preacher and made a good impression on all who heard him. The weather was as near ideal as I ever saw it for the entire two weeks of the meeting, and the attendance was fine. The Church was strengthened and edified spiritually, and as visible results we had 13 accessions, 9 on profession of faith and 4 hy certificate. We have received in all since Conference 34 persons into the Church.—J. B. Randolph.

Dossville, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: Will you give space in our dear Advocate for me to say I thank God for his goodness to me. We are enjoying a tolerahly good degree of health and have raiment to put on and food to eat. We are now in our new parsonage, though it is not yet completed. We don't know what may be in the future, but up to date this preacher and family have been better fed on the Leake charge than anywhere else we have ever served. Cash is scarce, however, and for that reason I am not able to buy the books needed for the third year's course. If any brother feels disposed to give or loan me any of the volumes needed, I would thank him very much and pay the postage both ways, take the hest care of the hooks, and return them as soon as through with them. The hooks that I speciaiiy desire are: Elements of Psychology (Davis), Skilled Labor For the Master (Hendrix), The Pastors and Modern Missions (Mott).—A. H. Steele. P. C.

Suqualena, Miss.

On last Sunday evening there was rendered to a very large audience by the children of Suqualena a most interesting and profitable program. Each one present seemed to enjoy the exercises very much. Our efficient superintendent and other members of the program committee are to be congratulated upon having so thoroughly trained the children. Each one performed his part weil. This was one of the best Chiidren's Day services that I have ever attended. As I sat and looked into their bright faces and heard them sing those beautiful songs and tell the wonderful story of Jesus and his iove, my heart was filied with gratitude to God. We have many bright boys and giris in our Sunday schools here, and we hope and pray that many will go out from among these choice young peopie to bless the world. The collection was very good. I am happy serving the good people of this charge. Pray that I may aiways sustain such an attitude toward God, that he can use me for his giory and the advancement of his kingdom.—A. A. Simms, P. C.

Winnfield, La.

We are just ahout to close out our second quarter for the conference year 1915. In many respects this has been a time of growth and reaping. We had with us for nine days early in April, Rev. A. C. Holder and Prof. I. N. Price. I have never seen more earnest and faithfui work done for the. Lord and the Church than these brethren did. The sermonic feature of the meeting was sound, Scriptural, and appealing to the hearts and consciences of the hearers, and the singing was of a very high order. The meeting was of great henefit to our church and much good was done. Twenty-five united with our Church on profession of faith and nineteen of these were baptized. Three others came in by letter, and there are a number of others whom we expect to join soon. There were many conversions and reclamations. Our Church at Winnfield is composed of a faithful hand of men and women who love God and the Church, who believe in doing things, and who heartily cooperate with their pastor in all the work of the Church. Methodism in our little city continues to grow, and the outiook for our church is encouraging. We confidently belleve that we will have a great church in Winnfieid some of these days. Durlng the thirteen months of my pastorate here there has been 60 souis added to the Church. Thirty-two of these have been gained this quarter. Our Sunday school is alive and progressive, with prospects of becoming a greater school. The mid-week prayer services are a feast to our souls. Our official force is faithful and efficient. Our good women are untiring in their efforts to promote the work of the Church, and the Lord has very greatly blessed and prospered them in their work. These men and women are faithful and worthy of ail praise as servants of the Master. May the Lord's biessings rest upon the Church in great grace.—S. S. Bogan.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney,
Sardis, Miss.

So far, Holly Springs leads in the amount collected for Children's Day.

Remember that Children's Day money can not be used to pay the assessment made for the Sunday School Board.

The Sunday school at Wesley Chapel, on the Sardis circuit, is only 3 years old, but it is not staying on the Cradle Roll. The work done there would do credit to many of the large town churches.

Lexington is easily in the front with our best schools. The Business Men's Bible Class ordered the two books in the reading course, "Building of the Kingdom—The Educational Ideal of the Church," and "Social Welfare and the Liquor Problem." This class means to be standard in every respect. Brother Curtis has wrought well.

The following report as having come up to the standard of efficiency: Eupora, Vaiden, Tupelo, Okolona, Pontotoc, Water Valley, Brooksville, Greenville, Clarksdale, Oxford, Kilmichael, Myrtle, Corinth, Como, Senatobia, Lexington, and New Albany. There may be others that deserve this honor, but if so they have not reported. The list is steadily growing. Some of these schools are doing standard work in each of the departments.

Here is a list of the charges that have paid the assessment for our Sunday school work: Lexington, Kilmichael, Abbeville, Como, and Grenada circuit. The following have reported Children's Day collections: Aberdeen, Brooksville, Iuka, Rienzi, Coffeeville, Water Valley, Holly Springs, Schlater, Rome, Carrollton, Sardis, Coldwater, Love's, Moorhead, Eupora, Kilmichael, Lexington, Grenada, and Eudora.

Pickens, Goodman, and Richland had representatives to meet at Goodman and hold an efficiency conference all day Wednesday, May 12. The presiding elder, pastor, three superintendents, and a dozen teachers did a fine day's work. These three schools expect to move up into the standard class as soon as possible. Such team work as was done there would revolutionize the Methodist Church in the North Mississippi Conference and the Kingdom of God would speedily come.

AN EXCELLENT EXAMPLE.

Brookhaven District Laymen Co-operating with Seashore Divinity School.

At the Brookhaven District Conference, which developed several notable features which are full of promise for the kingdom of God, the following resolutions were introduced and unanimously adopted by the large number of laymen present:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the laymen present at this District Conference that it would be to the best interest of the Church for every preacher in the district to attend the Seashore Divinity School held at the Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., during the summer.

"Resolved further, That we, the lay members of this Conference, recommend that the preachers attend the school where possible, and we recommend further that the laymen of the different charges aid in this cause both by urging their pastors to attend the Divinity School and by providing them the necessary money for their expenses.

"Signed: W. D. Davis, W. E. Driver, P. H. Enochs, H. H. Goza, L. S. Felder, J. A. Decell, W. H. Morse, J. E. Bridges, D. P. Butler, M.D., Thos. W. Sullivan."

If other districts would only show similar appreciation and take similar action, and then put the latter part of the second resolution into practice, as the good laymen of Brookhaven District have done for the past several years, a great blessing would come to our pastors and, through them, to our Church.

Let the laymen of every charge in the three Conferences see that their pastors attend the Divinity School this year, June 22 to July 1.

INSURANCE WITHOUT AGENTS.

It is well known that several States are attempting to furnish their citizens insurance without the employment of agents. Many people are not aware that Methodist preachers have had for over thirty-seven years such an Association—the Methodist Ministers' Relief Insurance and Trust Association of Boston. It employs no agents. Its insurance is issued on application received by mail from the ends of the earth. The Association numbers over eleven hundred policy holders, representing eight branches of Methodism and one hundred Conferences. For the last five years it has averaged the payment of $1000 in claims weekly. Over one million two hundred thousand dollars has already been paid to beneficiaries. The most popular policy is one payable at death or on reaching age 65. This policy provides for a life income beginning at age 65. Another policy combines insurance with old Age pension beginning at 65. It writes all the standard Life and Endowment policies at premiums much lower than those charged by the agency companies. It is distinctly a ministers' company. Having the best class of risks and no commissions to pay it is able to furnish insurance at exeremely low cost. As regards premium payments, nonforfeiture options and loans, the policies are the most liberal written by any company. Loans on policies become available at the end of two years. It is an Old Line (legal reserve) company, chartered under the laws of Massachusetts. Leaflets giving full details with premium rates will be sent to any minister sending date of birth. Address Methodist Ministers' Relief Insurance and Trust Association, Wesleyan Bldg., Boston, Mass.—Adv.

LAYMAN'S DAY

At Meridian District Conference.

The Meridian District Conference was held May 5-7 at Waynesboro, Miss. Thursday afternoon was set apart for the laymen's program. President J. W. Beeson, district lay leader, arranged the program with the approval of the presiding elder. The program included the following subjects:

"When Shall We Begin Our Financial Method?" "What Can We Do To Educate the People in Systematic Giving?" "How Can Laymen Help the Spiritual State of the Church?" "What Can Laymen Do Towards Providing Religious Services in Outlying Territory?" "How Can Laymen Relieve Their Pastor of Some of His Many Duties?" "How Can We Supply Innocent Recreation to Our Young People without Compromising with Worldliness?" "What Can We Laymen Do to Increase the Attendance upon Church Services?" "How Can We help Bring about a Revival in our Church?"

Dr. C. F. Reid, secretary of the laymen's movement, said it was a great program." He was sick and could not be present, but sent his regrets to the brethren.

There was something this writer never heard of at a district conference before. There were forty-six lay delegates present who voted at the election of the delegates to the Annual Conference, but twenty-five of them left after the election which still left a good crowd of laymen, with those attending who were not delegates. Surely laymen are taking more interest in district conferences, if not in the Church at large.

The program was well rendered. The speakers were live and full of their subjects and told many experiences about improved methods of finances and other work of the Church. It was a great laymen's meeting for a district conference and showed that the laymen of the district are waking up.

This "latent force of the Church" will not long be latent if as much progress is made each year as has been made since the last district conference.

J. W. BEESON,
District Lay Leader.

MUST GIVE IT TO OTHERS.

A Chinese asked John W. Foster, the statesman, who once represented the United States in China: "What right have you Christians to come over here to China and talk with these people about your religion?" The diplomat replied: "The right to give others something that is too good to keep." If the qualities of our life's foundation are of the best material, we may give and give and give them to others, and the more we take from them for others the stronger our own become. Such is the strange and beautiful paradox of the religion of Jesus Christ.

NEW ORLEAN DISTRICT NOTES.

The service was most impressive, and largely attended, on Mothers' Day in Felicity Church. Children's Day was observed last Sunday.

Sunday, May 9, the Children's Day service in McDonoghville Church drew a record attendance, one that taxed the capacity of the building. Mothers' Day was observed last Sunday.

Rev. D. L. Griffin has recently closed a very successful meeting of one week at Slidell. Rev. A. J. Gearheard did the preaching. Fourteen were received into the church. Our pastor at Slidell is reported to be doing a fine work.

Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, the Union Epworth League held its regular meeting in Parker Memorial Church. The attendance was fair, and some important topics were discussed. Mary Werlein retained the banner for the largest representation.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, Rev. A. J. Gearheard, and Rev. G. V. Romano lately held a good religious service in Harvey. Brother Romano spoke to the audience in Italian. This meeting will probably be the beginning of regular services at that point.

Sunday, May 9, was observed as Young People's Day in the Carrollton Church. In the morning Children's Day was observed. At night the Epworth League Anniversary Day was observed. At the latter meeting the Pastor made a splendid address on the work of the Epworth League.

It is expected that each of the Methodist Sunday schools in the city will have its picnic at City Park, May 22. Athletic events will probably be arranged in which representatives from the different schools will take part. The trees on the ground have already been assigned to the various schools and everything is in readiness for a great day.

Wednesday evening, May 12, an interesting church conference was held in Parker Memorial Church. The attendance was good, and much interest was manifested in the conference. The revision of the register was the chief work of the conference, but other matters were discussed. Several subscriptions to the Christian Advocate were taken, and a few copies of the Discipline, 1914, were ordered through the pastor.

LOUISIANA STATE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The annual meeting of the Louisiana State Epworth League will be held in New Orleans June 17-20. We earnestly desire every pastor to cooperate with us by sending delegates from the Leagues of his church or churches. There are many churches where there could be strong organizations if there were only some one to take the lead. Therefore, we urge the pastors to see that some of their young people come. There are many who have been informed and inspired by attending these conferences who are now making good officers in the home chapters.

"By-law 2. Each Senior League shall be entitled to one delegate for every ten members, and one additional delegate for a fraction thereof. No chapter shall be deprived of one delegate. Each Junior chapter shall be entitled to two delegates who shall be entitled to all privileges, with the exception of voting. All Junior League superintendents, pastors and presiding elders shall be considered delegates with full privileges."

"Each delegate shall pay a registration fee of 50 cents at the time of registration."

Send names of delegates to Miss Minnow Moore, in care of the First Methodist Church, New Orleans, La.

CHEERFUL WOMEN.

Despondency is a thing of evil origin and evil results. Worry produces nothing but wrinkles and wretchedness. Let the reader put up a little note on her bureau, on her desk, and at the head of her bed, just two words, DON'T WORRY. Worry is the greatest foe to the happiness of any household. An anxious, despondent face, a fretful, complaining voice, will make every one uncomfortable.

A woman's nerves are more truly the cause of worry than outside troubles. The nerves are to a woman's body the telegraph system, which surely warns her of any trouble in the feminine make-up.

Dr. Pierce, during a long period of practice, found that a prescription made with glycerine, entirely of roots and herbs, without the use of alcohol, cured over 90 per cent of such cases. After using this remedy for many years in his private practice he put it up in a form that would make it easily procurable.

Women are earnestly advised to take it for irregular or painful periods, backache, headache, displacement, catarrhal condition, hot flashes, sallow complexion and nervousness.

For girls about to enter womanhood, women about to become mothers and for the changing days of middle age Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription should always be on hand. In liquid or tablets.

Write Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for free 136 page book on woman's diseases. Every woman should have one.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, cloth-bound, sent free to you on receipt of 3 dimes (or stamps) to pay expense of mailing only. Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you are troubled with Indigestion, Constipation, Biliousness, Bilious Headaches, and a hundred and one ills which depend upon an inactive liver—use Dr. Pierce's Pellets.—Adv.

OBSERVING THE LORD'S DAY.

The due observance of the Sabbath day is bound up in every interest of man. Nature demands it. The very land must have intervals of rest. The physical machine lasts longer for a regular recurring pause. Culture demands it. The mind must not be endlessly fixed upon one thought. It can not thus do its best and make its greatest advancement. Morals demand it. The setting apart of a stated time for the study of higher things lifts up the moral nature of man and makes its powers greater and its discriminations clearer. Religion demands it. A time set apart for worship and regularly used for that purpose, is indispensable to the maintenance and cultivation of the spiritual life. The soul must have its times for communion with God or it will shrivel.—Presbyterian of the South.

Religious Papers Look Into Pellagra Remedy.

J. B. Keough, a special investigator appointed by the Religious Press Advertising Syndicate to look into the merits of Baughn's Pellagra Treatment of Jasper, Ala., reports that there is no doubt this new treatment cures pellagra. He says he has satisfied himself that the company has cured hundreds of cases of pellagra and that in the few cases where the medicine has been taken too late to effect a cure, the money has been refunded.

This company has issued an important book on the treatment of pellagra in which they show that they can cure pellagra and also agree to refund every cent in case they do not cure the disease. If you have pellagra, why suffer longer when this real cure is at hand. Write for the booklet today. Address American Compounding Co., Box 587 X, Jasper, Ala.—Advertisement.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE HELPFUL.

One simple and ever-ready means of helping the church service is to attend it. Any kind of meeting that is poorly attended is likely to be a poor meeting. If a committee or a board consists of ten members and only three are present, not much is likely to be done. But pack the meeting full, and it will have power. This principle applies with special force to religious services where sympathetic contagion is so vital a factor. A full attendance at a service shows interest on the part of the people, and then this interest intensifies itself, as embers heaped together begin to glow. Pentecost derived much of its power from the fact that all the members were there with one accord in one place. But let there be a light attendance, thinly scattered over the seats, and everyone feels a chill. Every seat filled adds so much, and every seat left vacant subtracts so much, from the service. This old, familiar truth should not be forgotten, not even when we are tired or when many engagements press upon us, but should keep its grip upon our consciences and lead us to say, Let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us fill the Lord's house by our attendance, and then the Lord's house will fill us with his blessing.—Banner.

Finds Cure for Epilepsy After Years of Suffering

"My daughter was afflicted with epileptic fits for three years, the attacks coming every few weeks. We employed several doctors but they did her no good. About a year ago we heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine, and it certainly has proved a blessing to our little girl. She is now apparently cured and is enjoying the best of health. It is over a year since she has had a fit. We cannot speak too highly of Dr. Miles' Nervine."

REPORT OF EDUCATIONAL SECRETARY.

Mrs. H. R. Steele.

In presenting her first annual report your Educational Secretary has endeavored to give an accurate report of the work of her department as outlined in our new by-laws and to give in brief an account of her stewardship.

The educational work of the Board of Missions is the dynamic in the organization which gives the women of the Church a vision of the world's need of Jesus Christ, of their responsibility for a spirit of brotherhood in the world, and their obligation as stewards of God to meet the need by the consecration of time, energy, talent, and money. The two objectives in our organization, as far as the home base is concerned, are members and money.

The purpose of the Educational Department is to create a missionary spirit by a missionary propaganda which will give to the women of our churches information as to the world's needs, and by enlisting their sympathies and interests and leading them out along the line of their highest natures, develop a new scale of giving which will reach down into conscience and awaken a new sense of obligation and study, unloosing purse strings and stimulating greater self-denial and far larger gifts—gifts that are the expression of self denial and love before an all-loving Father.

When we shall be informed about the history and progress, the plans and methods of God's missionary campaign, intelligent information will lead us to sympathetic praying and self-denying giving.

Literature.

This is a day of attractive missionary literature, and an effort has been made to make the literature issued by the Council pleasing in form as well as helpful in subject matter. A large output was authorized by the Council in Fort Worth, and so far as has been practicable the program has been carried out.

The ad interim meeting of the Committee on Literature was held in Nashville on July 8-11, 1914, and the Yearbooks for adult, young people's and children's auxiliaries were planned. The leaflets necessary for the preparation of the programs were discussed and, so far as was practicable, assigned.

Plans were made which brought the pages of The Voice edited by the women Secretaries in line with the programs outlined in the Yearbooks. The Home Base Department in The Voice is being devoted to plans and methods to promote the different departments of our work. The practical use of this department and of the woman's page in the Conference journals rendered unnecessary the publication in separate sheet of the Methods Quarterly and has been a means of increasing interest in The Voice, and has saved the expense of issuing the Quarterly.

Leaflets and Booklets.

The "Helps for Missionary Societies" were brought up to date and fifteen thousand copies printed. The Week of Prayer literature was ready for distribution by September, according to the ruling of the Council. The leaflet, "A Call for Volunteers," has been prepared by the Secretary and sent to students in our colleges. One million two hundred ninety-four thousand one hundred and sixty leaflets and booklets have been printed and distributed in the Conference. The total cost of the leaflet literature, with the three Yearbooks and the "Helps for Missionary Societies," has been $3,006.77 to January 1, 1915.

An earnest effort has been made to give practical expression to the new constitution and by-laws, the new plans and methods incident to organic union. Suggestions for officers in leaflet form and the Yearbooks and "Helps for Missionary Societies" have been distributed in large numbers in the Conferences.

We have endeavored to put in printed form everything necessary for the promotion of the work, and we now feel that plans and methods have gone about as far as they can go. The success of our missionary enterprise now depends upon the proper use of the literature in the auxiliaries and upon the constructive work that shall be done by the women in our churches.

Study and Publicity.

The combination of mission study, Bible study and publicity has been promoted by circular letters and by personal appeals. Careful study has been given to preserve the essential features of the two departments, and a mission study class in every auxiliary—adult's, young people's, and children's—has been urged and an obligation laid upon the superintendents to use the columns of the secular and church papers for the publication of interesting missionary news. New blanks have been prepared by which we hope to secure an accurate enrollment of mission study classes.

Mission Study.

Emphasis was laid upon the campaign for mission study in October and leaflets and a prospectus giving the new books were prepared and distributed. The Home Base Department of the September Voice was devoted to mission study and short reviews of all the new books were published. Special leaflets on mission study and on Bible study were prepared by the Secretary and distributed in large numbers.

Of the number of mission study classes reported—2784 by superintendents and 1020 by card—we are convinced that one number is as much too large as the other is too small. Many classes organized in one quarter and carrying on the study through the next quarter have been reported twice, and many classes have been reported by the Auxiliary Superintendents to the Conference Superintendent that have not filled out the enrollment card and mailed it to the Secretary. At the end of the third quarter the attention of the Conference Superintendents was called to the great discrepancy, and cards were distributed and an effort made to have reports agree. A cordial response upon the part of several Conference officers reduced the discrepancy and brought the number reported by card almost to the number reported by the Superintendents. The following Conferences report the largest number of mission study classes: By card—Little Rock, 75; Texas, 69. By Superintendents—North Georgia, 247; Tennessee, 106.

Bible Study.

We have been gratified to note the increasing interest in Bible study during the year 1914. Four hundred and fifty Bible study classes have been reported by the Superintendents, an increase of 220 over last year. The Conferences leading in Bible study are: North Georgia, 46; Central Texas, 33.

Publicity.

Two leaflets on publicity were ordered by the Council: The leaflet on the duties of the Superintendent of Publicity was brought up to date and sent out with the first circular letter to the Superintendents. "The Printed Page," showing the opportunity in publicity work, has been printed and distributed in the Conferences. In one number of The Voice the Home Base Department will be devoted to the publicity work. The year's report shows 415 secular papers printing missionary news and 545 auxiliaries sending news items regularly to the missionary page in the church papers and to the secular press.

CALOMEL IS MERCURY! IT SICKENS! ACTS ON LIVER LIKE DYNAMITE

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and Doesn't Salivate or Make You Sick.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work!

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful tonight and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

SPRING SICKNESS COMES TO EVERYONE

Spring sickness comes in some degree to every man, woman and child in our climate. It is that run-down condition of the system that results from impure, impoverished, devitalized blood. It is marked by loss of appetite and that tired feeling, and in many cases by some form of eruption.

The best way to treat spring sickness is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Ask your druggist for this all-the-year-round medicine. It purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood.

THE ABERDEEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Aberdeen District Conference, which convened April 29-May 1, was delightfully entertained by the people of Houkla, Miss., which little city has grown exceedingly during recent years and become to be a community of importance and of enterprise above common.

About sixty Conference delegates were present and numerous representative visitors came and went during the occasion. The Pastor, Rev. A. W. Langley, and committee were the impersonation of politeness and provided promptly for every comer.

Great regret was expressed at the enforced absence of Bishop R. G. Waterhouse, who was to have presided. Resolutions were passed indicating the mind of the Conference and the Secretary was instructed to make proper mention to the Bishop in a message by wire.

A resolution also was passed expressing gratification at the presence and presidency of the District Presiding Elder, Rev. J. W. Bell. Rev. I. D. Borders of Aberdeen was elected Secretary and acquitted himself "with honors" in this relation, as he did also, eminently, in his pulpit ministrations at the first morning service.

An optimistic spirit appeared to prevail at the Conference and the reports were good, in excess of ordinary. Special mention was made of the great gains in the work of the Sunday schools, and of the Woman's Missionary Society in several of the pastoral charges.

The church property interests, too, had gone forward perceptibly, and greatly so at a few points. About one hundred people had been added to the churches of the district, all of which, as suggested by the presiding elder, indicated a good degree of Christian enthusiasm and pronounced devotion to the work of God. Plans also were very generally out for special efforts in the work of revivals during the early coming months.

The Methodist Orphans' Home at Jackson, Miss., was several times mentioned, and appropriately represented by Miss Golding of the teaching department, who is soon to enter upon the preparation for duty as a missionary.

Dr. Sullivan, of Millsaps College, was present and delivered a splendid and closely heard address, setting forth the gaining conditions of that prominent and well known school—long classing in the A grade and counted among the great schools of the Church, for young men.

Dr. H. M. Ellis of Memphis, Tenn., appeared on Friday afternoon and spoke concerning the Methodist Hospital at that city. His Herculean efforts and the work of the Methodist multitudes are bearing fruit. A plant of magnificence will evidently result with finest preparations for healing the sick.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, the Sunday school Field Secretary, is awake on equipments for his work and alive to the needs of the Sunday school movement. Visions of Bible Classes and teaching methods appear as he speaks, and naturally he is helpful in visiting the churches.

Fifteen local ministers were reported by the Conference Chairman and the pastors, some of whom were Deacons and Elders, and present. The licenses of the un-ordained were renewed and the character of each was passed. T. B. Clark and W. S. Adams were given special mention for reporting in keeping with the Discipline.

Henry A. Camp, Jessie H. Smith, A. D. Bell, and J. L. Cochrum were licensed to preach. T. D. Clark was recommended for Ordination as Deacon.

A. D. Bell, V. L. Nabors, R. B. Goar, and L. H. Floyd were recommended for admission to the Conference.

D. H. Shell, A. B. Nabors, W. J. Beasley, and J. H. Ramsey were elected lay delegates to the Annual Conference.

The congregations were good at all of the twice per day services. The beginning sermon, Wednesday evening, was delivered by Rev. W. R. Williams. After this the preaching was by Rev. I. D. Borders, Rev. N. G. Augustus, Rev. A. H. Williams, and Rev. R. M. Evans.

The next District Conference was voted to the new town of Vardaman, with Amory and Pontotoc as close contestants, these last mentioned places having recently invested the sums of $16,000 to $24,000, respectively, in elegant houses of worship.

Rev. J. C. Park of Tupelo was too ill to be present and Rev. W. M. Young of Amory was providentially absent. They were sorry to be delayed, so also were the members of the Conference.

The New Orleans Conference Organ circulates in this territory and is counted "first among equals" in the Advocate family.

The long-time honored and useful book manager, Rev. G. W. Bachman, spoke impressively of the "diamond anniversary" of the Christian Advocate of Nashville, Tenn., and mention was also made of the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

A. H. WILLIAMS.

SEASHORE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The pastors and official members of this conference are requested to reach Bond in time Tuesday for organization at an afternoon session. Rev. N. B. Harmon will preach at night. Wednesday's sessions will include especial attention to the Sunday school, missionary interests, and the woman's work.

The President and District Secretary of the Woman's Society are invited to be present and present their work. Lay leaders will be called on for expressions of experience upon this department of missions.

The committees are as follows:

For License to Preach and Admission—Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, Rev. W. B. Jones, Rev. H. P. Lewis.

For Orders—Rev. N. B. Harmon, Rev. E. C. Gunn, Rev. H. W. Van Hook.

Other committees will be announced at the opening session.

I wish to ask each pastor to have a full report of all work accomplished to date. With this in hand, fuller opportunity will be found for particular discussion of vitally interesting matters—and we have them, of serious and critical moment, at this time.

To complete the official roll before the Conference meets, please send me by return mail your delegates' names.

Our local preachers will be present, I trust, and in every case of necessary absence, kindly and surely mail a report of your work and your request for a renewal of your credentials.

FACTS THAT COUNT.

The six Japanese pastors of San Francisco contribute all their wedding fees to the cause of Japanese evangelization in California. During 1914 these fees amounted to $1074. This was paid to the Dendo Dan, the Japanese Evangelical society. The pastors all receive small salaries.

Since January 1, three adult Koreans have been baptized at our San Francisco Korean mission, eight men and an infant at the Sacramento Korean mission, and two adult Japanese, man and wife, at the Walnut Grove mission—thirteen adults and one child—during the first six weeks of the year. We hope these are but drops preceding a plenteous shower.—William Acton, San Francisco, Cal.

At 12 o'clock each day the clerks at the office of the World's Sunday School Association, 216 Metropolitan Tower, New York, assemble in the secretary's office for prayer for the Sunday school work of America and throughout the world. In recent weeks, representatives of the Sunday school work from many parts of the earth have taken part in these precious seasons of prayer—men and women from South America, Africa, Turkey and Japan. Sometimes this prayer, the Lord's prayer, which follows it, is in another language, but "this common language of the skies" is understood in heaven.—The Sunday School Times.

"If the disbelief in the integrity or truth of a book of the Bible, especially one authenticated in its historicity and facts by Christ himself, is simply an error of the head and very pardonable, what sure guide has any soul in avoiding errors of both head and heart?"

REPORT OF HOSPITAL COMMITTEE.

To the Members of the Brookhaven District Conference, 1915.

Dear Brethren: We are now able to report to you that our Hospital Commissioners have taken possession of the site recently purchased in Memphis, and are ready to begin the work of fitting up the present magnificent building for the reception of patients as soon as the necessary money for doing so is at hand.

We now have an investment of $110,000 which is utterly inoperative for want of $30,000 more. This amount expended upon the present building would equip it with elevator, operating room and sufficient additions and furnishings to enable us to open a first-class Methodist Hospital for the accommodation of 75 patients. Our urgent need of the hospital and the condition of our work demand that we do this as early as possible.

Had the simple plan adopted by our last Annual Conference been carried out, the needed funds would have been secured before this. We regret the failure of our Sunday schools and churches to raise the Hospital offering asked of each, and we believe this District Conference should insist upon this obligation being met as early as possible.

In the absence of large contributions many small ones must be secured. The large gifts cannot be expected now. But this is really no disadvantage. Our Church should not expect a few rich men to build its Hospital. Every member should covet the privilege of sharing the cost of this institution, which is to be the expression of our Church's sympathy for suffering humanity, and another agency of winning the lost to Christ. And we believe our pastors and all their members will take this honest and self-respecting position. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we urge and shall expect of each of our pastors and Sunday school superintendents that he raise from each church and Sunday school at least the minimum amount asked for the Methodist Hospital by the resolution of our last Annual Conference, and remit the same to Rev. H. M. Ellis, Field Secretary, 2086 Union Avenue, Memphis, Tenn., before the first of September.

Resolved further, That we ask our faithful presiding elder in his rounds to inquire as to the observance of this resolution and to urge its prompt observance with all possible emphasis.

Signed: P. H. Enochs, C. S. Butterfield, B. F. Lewis.

The above is the action of the Brookhaven District Conference with reference to the Methodist Hospital, Memphis, Tenn. Rev. B. F. Lewis kindly consented to act as District Secretary of this district for this fund, to correspond with pastors and Sunday school superintendents, and urge their raising a Hospital offering to help speed the day of opening for service. And Brother Lewis always does his work thoroughly. H. M. ELLIS.

Jesus said: "Come ye after me and I will make you to become fishers of men." The business of a fisherman is to fish. Are you keeping at it, brother? And another important question is, What are you catching?

Man's highest duty is to know God and make him known in his saving and perfecting power. And the first part of this double duty must precede the latter. Until a person himself knows the Heavenly Father, it is futile for him to try to acquaint others with him.

In spiritual matters God deals with men individually, not en masse. Whatever fate may overtake a Church that becomes apostate, nothing can rob a single faithful disciple of all that is due to come to him as a son of God and a joint heir with Christ. In this reflection, the Christian may have an unfailing source of optimism, no matter how far astray the multitudes about him may seem to go.

Ever and anon some one writes an article on "The Kind of Revival Now Needed." Such dissertations are usually a useless waste of words. There has never been but one sort of religious revival needed, and that is the kind that regenerates the soul, awakens it to a sense of its obligations, and sets it to trying to perform its duties to God and man. Any other type of revival work is religious quackery—nothing more nor less.

A contemporary in discussing the recent visit of Dr. Shailer Mathews and Dr. Gulick to Japan suggests that it is time to do away with the "dollar diplomacy" which for some time has been in vogue in our dealing with the Oriental nations. Does our confrere want to substitute therefor a FIVE DOLLAR diplomacy? That was the cost of a plate at the banquet given these gentlemen in a fashionable New York hotel upon their return.

Culture is a very desirable thing, but Christianity has something better to do than to make its promotion its chief aim, namely, to spread Scriptural holiness throughout the earth. It is regrettably often the case that so-called culture is selfish in spirit, or is too fastidious to perform the hard and self-denying service that the world most needs. And after all, about the best way to promote true culture is to seek to enthrone Christ in the hearts of men. It is not merely an accident that the most highly civilized peoples on the globe are adherents of the Christian faith. When the heart is regenerated and the affections are "set on things above" the whole man is lifted upward, and when men are elevated, so are their institutions and environment.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The Publisher is sending out bills to all subscribers whose subscriptions have expired. Many of our subscribers have already received notices and others will receive them within the next three or four weeks. Subscribers are urgently requested to renew their subscriptions at once, and give us their support in this time of need.

Should our subscribers neglect to renew their subscriptions three months after expiration, we will be compelled to cancel them. We are unable to carry them indefinitely for want of means. Economy demands that we reduce the expense of publishing the Advocate unless we receive adequate support from our constituency. Brethren, please renew your subscriptions at once.

TO OUR PREACHERS.

Dear Brethren: During the last eight months our income has shrunk to the extent of about $1200. We now have 3000 subscriptions on our lists which have expired and which are being carried at a great expense. Unless these subscriptions are renewed within the next three months we will be compelled to cut them off. Our only hope of securing the renewals is through our preachers in the usual way. Are we going to let these subscriptions drop, and reduce the usefulness of the Advocate? This is an important matter, brethren. We cannot run the Advocate on a credit basis. Labor and material have to be paid for, and we shall have to have your support, or go in debt. Please come to our assistance at once by securing the renewals of the subscriptions in your charge.

SOME POINTS WORTH NOTING.

Through the courtesy of The Outlook, we gave our readers last week an opportunity to see the best discussion of Billy Sunday and his methods that has come under our observation. By way of emphasis, we desire to call special attention to two or three things that Mr. Ellis said in his informing article.

1. Let the following statement as to the Evangelist's orthodoxy and faith be carefully noted: "Of course, Sunday's theology is old-fashioned. But it is the same body of teaching which the Christian Church has preached for well-nigh two thousand years. He adds nothing to it and subtracts nothing from it. Most to the point, he believes it utterly and unequivocally. If he were to have any doubts, Billy would be done for. Evidently the multitude of men—university graduates as well as mechanics—prefer Sunday's convictions to other men's speculations. Clearly, the world wants a religion of authority."

These affirmations imply much. Liberalism has given to the world no great evangelists. It was stated a few years ago that Rev. B. Fay Mills, who for a time was so successful as a revivalist, lost his effectiveness when he became loose in his theology. In The Bible Magazine (New York) of the present month, Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, in an illuminating paper, shows that evangelists of distinction have almost uniformly adhered loyally to the apostolic faith, and that for this the Church owes them a great debt. It remains yet to be shown that the nebulous creeds of the modernists can be so preached as to grip the consciences and revolutionize the lives of men.

2. Billy Sunday, according to Mr. Ellis, is aflame with a consuming earnestness. His comment on this point was as follows: "If Billy Sunday should get through a sermon without wilting his collar, probably 'Ma' Sunday would be solicitous. The spectacle of that tireless, tense, dripping figure, with gray, drawn features, at the close of a sermon is itself a moving exhortation. No wonder Billy does not wear (or own) a frock coat, and no wonder that he has to be rubbed down by a trainer after every sermon."

This characterization is most suggestive. Earnestness counts for much in the pulpit. Too many ministers deliver their messages as if there were little or nothing at stake. If the politicians were to speak with no more intensity of feeling than some preachers do, it is not likely that they would win many votes.

3. The following point made by Mr. Ellis is also quite significant: "Berating the churches and ministers as he does, Billy yet holds to the most old-fashioned belief as to the place of the Church. 'All my work is for the Church,' he says. Without the organization, the tireless and devoted labor, and the militant loyalty of the churches, he could accomplish nothing."

This truth could scarcely be too strongly stressed. With all its short-comings (and they are many), the Church is the mightiest force for righteousness known among men and the hope of the world; and the great evangelist shows his good sense in recognizing and conceding this fact.

A VISION THAT IS NEEDED.

"Playing to the galleries," in the worldly sense of that expression, is reprehensible; but there is a gallery upon which it is well for the immortal soul ever to keep its eye amid life's fierce struggles. It is the one to which St. Paul had reference when he wrote: "Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith." The man who does not keep eternity and those who look down upon him from its heights constantly in view is not likely to move upon a high plane in this life and use to the best advantage the few fleeting years of time. What a powerful incentive it is to right living when faith sees God upon his judgment throne and still farther beyond an immortality with the redeemed amid the joys and glories of heaven, or with the lost amid the sorrows and sufferings of hell! It is because it has no such vision that unbelief cannot produce great men.

HE CARES FOR ME.

He watches o'er, protects and shields,
With loving, tender care.
Their need in mercy, he doth see,
And so
I know
He cares for me.

His eye is on the sparrow's wing,
He sees them when they fall.
His ear, inclined, is listening
To hear the needy call.
He listens, oh! so tenderly,
And so
I know
He cares for me.

As a father loves and pities, so
He careth for his own;
With love that will not let them go,
He watches from his throne.
Their never-failing guide is he.
And so
I know
He cares for me.

How calm! How peaceful! Oh, what rest!
With him my cares I leave.
He loves, he cares, and he knows best;
His promise I believe.
From anxious thought my soul is free,
And so
I know
He cares for me.

WHAT IS CONSECRATION?

Amos R. Wells gives this answer: "Bible reading, private prayer, earnest committee service, singing, helpfulness of others—these are not consecration, but the inevitable fruits of consecration. To learn whether you are consecrated, do not look at your acts, but at your thoughts. Consider whether your religious deeds are done from the love of God, whether they have become joyful and instinctive." If we are not watchful, before we know it we get into the habit of doing religious work and the various tasks of life, even service to others, chiefly because we recognize them as the things we ought to do, largely from a stern, hard sense of duty. Such an attitude toward activity of any sort makes life a grind. A transformation takes place when the leading motive becomes love to God and man.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

"THE RECOVERY OF ORTHODOXY AND THE REVIVAL."

(From the New York Christian Advocate.)

Editor The Christian Advocate: Both are inseparable. Every great revival has brought back to the Church some neglected doctrine. Luther brought back justification by faith; Wesley, the witness of the Spirit and Christian perfection; Finney, the sovereignty of God and man's free agency and responsibility; Moody, free grace.

The revivals going through the land are coming through orthodox preaching. We have yet to hear of any breaking out where modern thought was preached instead of the "old, old story."

"Billy" Sunday heads the list of modern revivalists. He deals only in the old-time fundamentals and preaches the severer, harsher truths of the gospel. The neglected doctrines of sin and hell and judgment are live issues with him.

In the Central West, where tabernacle revivals are turning thousands Godward, the old-fashioned gospel is being preached. In the New Jersey Conference, where over 8000 conversions were reported, revivals were among preachers who hold to the "old paths."

The atmosphere of the revival must be charged with faith, not doubt; assurance, not skepticism; the positive, not the critical.

As the pulpit and Church get back to the Bible and to the fundamentals, revivals of religion will be more frequent and more far-reaching.

METHODIST SINGING.

Dr. H. G. Henderson in his sermon on "The Mission of the Epworth League," delivered at the Methodist Church Sunday morning, May 9, paid the following tribute to Methodist singing:

Methodism was cradled in song. Those princes of sacred music, John and Charles Wesley, chanted the lullabys of this child of Providence. Dr. McLaren said before the Wesleyan Conference, "We have to thank you for the great burst of song which surrounded the cradle of Methodism as it did the cradle of the Master." Methodism was born in an atmosphere of music, and to-day, the world over, Methodists are proverbial for their hearty singing. No sacred lyrist, from the time Israel's immortal bard chanted his rapturous psalmody, has ever swept with defter fingers the strings of the harp of Zion than did the minstrel of Methodism, Charles Wesley.

If the philosophy of Sir Philip Sidney is true, in his well known statement, "If a man were permitted to make the ballads of his country, he need not care who should frame the laws," then the hymnology of Methodism has played an important part in her progress. Every Wesleyan doctrine, from 'prevenient grace to perfect love,' as Bishop Tigert happily alliterated the order, has been set to music, and every phase of Christian experience has been given melodious expression by the laureate of Methodism.

The penitent can refrain his grief in the musical miserere:

"Show pity, Lord; O Lord, forgive;
Let a repenting rebel live:
Are not Thy mercies large and free?
May not a sinner trust in Thee."

The new-born convert can chant the matin of his rapture in the exultant pean:

"How happy are they
Who their Savior obey,
And have laid up their treasures above!
Tongue cannot express
The sweet comfort and peace
Of a soul in its earliest love!"

The devout soul can breathe his prayer of consecration in the lines:

"A heart in every thought renewed,
And full of love divine;
Perfect and right and pure and good,
A copy, Lord, of Thine."

The backslider can repeat in tearful meter his humble plea:

"Return, O holy Dove, return,
Sweet messenger of rest!
I hate the sins that made thee mourn,
And drove thee from my breast."

The dying saint, as like the storm-tossed mariner he catches a glimpse of shore, can sing life's vesper hymn in the words of the bard of Epworth's masterpiece:

"Jesus, Lover of my soul,
Let me to Thy bosom fly,
While the nearer waters roll,
While the tempest still is high!
Hide me, O my Savior, hide,
Till the storm of life is past;
Safe into the haven guide,
O receive my soul at last!"

"Methodism," says Bishop Granbery, "owes much, under God, to the songs she has sung around the world, and especially to those of Charles Wesley."—Southern Reporter (Sardis, Miss.)

WONDERFUL, BUT TRUE.

"It is wonderful that a little brown seed carried over through the winter, from last year, when planted will spring up into a plant, covered with beautiful blossoms that later grow into fifty or a hundred little brown seeds as perfect as the one from which they sprang.

"And deeds are quite as wonderful! Many a little brown deed, common and uninteresting and hard to do, if planted by love, springs up in the hearts of people and yields scores of deeds as good and useful as the one planted."

ABOUT THE DEVIL AND ELSE.

By Dr. John T. Sawyer.

Does the Devil really exist in this world, or has God shut him up in hell and turned the key upon him? If he does exist, is he at large among the children of men? Notwithstanding the plentiful evidences of his existence all around us, there are those who do not believe in the existence of a personal Head-Devil, declaring that the inspired writers in speaking of such a being only mean to personify the evil principle.

Could men generally believe in the non-existence of the Devil, it would do more than he has already done to promote his cause in the world. However, from the Scriptures we learn that the Devil is the arch-enemy of God and man; that he is the chief of the fallen angels, and that he and his legions once walked the plains of light and lived in heaven, but that God cast him and his down from thence as punishment for their pride. We learn also that, beholding man created and placed on earth, pure and holy in beautiful Eden, and moved thereto by envy and malice, the Devil sought to seduce him from his God, and in this succeeded, causing sin, death and all other evils to come into this world. We learn that the Devil is a liar and the father of lies, and the lying spirit in the month of false prophets and seducers; that he and his agents seek to torment or possess men, inspiring them with evil desires and designs; that he, possessing the rage of a roaring lion, is abroad seeking whom he may devour, and with the sublety of a serpent, tempting, betraying and destroying mankind; yet, we find that his power and malice are, to a certain extent, limited and controlled by the will of God.

Undoubtedly, the Bible teaches that the Devil is a real and mighty personality, and is the relentless enemy of God and man, going to the utmost of his capacity and power to rob God of his glory and men of their souls. The Bible has it thus: "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." God made man for his own glory; but the Devil, to rob God of his glory, seduced him from his Maker and made him his slave, causing to issue from his loins, a world of sinners, born to affliction and evil, and doomed to death, temporal and eternal. Some one has said: "It is as if God, making man in his own likeness and image, had put upon immortal canvas, a picture or representation of himself and, pronouncing it good, had excited the envy of the Devil who came along and, dragging his slimey loathesome self all over the beautiful creation, had marred and ruined the picture to such an extent that its pristine glory was gone and the touch and impress of the Divine Artist obliterated beneath the Arch-Fiend's hoof."

Yes, the Devil broke the image of righteousness and true holiness in which man was created and left him prostrate on mother-earth, helpless in the horrible pit and miry clay, without God and without hope, unholy, unhappy, full of sin, guilt and tormenting fears. If this be not so, why is it that all who have not been made free by the truth as it is in Jesus, are found sinning in heart, thought, word and deed the wide world over? Why is it that millions of dollars are spent annually in preventing or discovering and bringing to justice multitudes of men and women who break the laws of God and man? Why must men be shut up in prison and penitentiaries for years or for life, or be sent from the gallows into eternity, or from the electric chair? Why is it that there are fightings and wars almost always being waged? Why should the most enlightened and powerful nations of Europe be murdering each other at this time? If the Devil has no hand in the affairs of men, why should there exist vast rings for stealage and every manner of wrong-doing and iniquity? Locks have to be put on the doors and watchmen employed to guard private rights. Widows and orphans are despoiled, the poor trampled down, men crushed and society disorganized and poisoned with sin to the very core. Why all this? The Bible states: "All the world hath gone astray and lieth in the lap of the wicked one." The Devil, who is called the god of this world, has blinded men and caused them to do his will.

There's not an evil under the sun but the Devil has had a hand in it. Men often fail to recognize the Devil because he is careful to hide his cloven feet and forked tail. Depend upon it, he lives, and he and his agents are ever seeking the destruction of souls; and, what of it? Just this—if we have to resist him in our own strength, we shall, in spite of all that we can do, be as surely destroyed as that we now live. Blessed be God! though the Devil is after us all, we have in Christ the power to resist him and gloriously to triumph over him. First John III:8 reads thus: "For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the Devil." The Son of God, a mightier One than our enemy, hath conquered death, hell and the grave, and hath vanquished the Arch-Fiend and placed the foot of his omnipotence upon the neck of the dragon; and, therefore, the hapless, sinful, mourning, dying children of men may, in the faith and strength of their Savior God, have complete victory over the world, the flesh, and the Devil. The mightiest of men in himself is weak as water to resist the Devil, but the weakest of true believers is mighty, not only to resist, but even to the pulling down of the strongholds of sin and Satan. God was in Christ, manifest in the flesh, to destroy the works of the Devil.

He does so by the clearness of his teaching. So plain and simple is it that a wayfaring man though a fool need not err therein. It is not necessary that a man fighting to overcome the Devil should make any acquirements of learning, or philosophy, or wealth, or power. The plan is so simple that it is included in one sentence—"Repentance towards God and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ." A physician, anxious about his soul, asked a believing patient of his how he should find peace. The answer was: "Doctor, I have felt that I could do nothing, and I have put my case in your hands—I am trusting in you." How simple and yet it conquers the Devil: to do nothing, realizing that we cannot save ourselves. Believing that Christ came to seek and to save lost sinners, we are to feel lost and undone, and then to be willing to be found and saved of Christ.

Christ destroys the works of the Devil by the merit of his sacrifice. We cannot merit anything, but the merit of Jesus' blood avails for every believer in him. That was a grand scene when Martin Luther lay seriously ill and the Devil came to him and unfurled a long roll on which to his consternation Luther saw enumerated the fearful record of his sins. Though his heart was so stout, yet it quailed before the awful record, until suddenly his heart became as a lion's as he said to the Devil: "One thing you have forgotten, the rest is all true; but one thing you have forgotten—"The blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth us from all sin."

Christ destroys the works of the Devil by the power of his grace. Steadily looking unto Christ as the "Author and Finisher of our faith," we cannot fall away; but if we rely upon ourselves rather than Christ we shall surely fail. That was a good answer of the general to a subaltern who said to him—"General, we have taken a standard!" "Well, then take another," was the reply. Heaven is won by a series of victories over the enemy and not by a single fight or campaign. It has been well said: "Scars, wounds, bruises, burdens, weariness, fire, hail, and deep waves—all go towards the winning of the final conflict." Living in the grace of our divine Master, not all hell and countless myriads of Devils can destroy our souls.

The Master's words are: "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any pluck them out of my hand. My Father which gave them me, is greater than all; and none is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand. I and my Father are one."

Alone, no man can conquer the world, the flesh and the Devil, but any man can do so by the power and sufficiency of Christ. With the omnipotent God-man, Jehovah's Fellow, fighting for, with and in us, there are more on our side than can be against us. The Bozrah Conqueror who never did, and who never can, meet a single defeat, has won the victory for all who will fully trust him as their Leader, and will love and serve him to the end.

COLLEGE-KILLING.

By H. Walter Featherstun, D. D.

"The fifth Commission created by the General Conference to fix (protect) educational standards" met last August. Their Report is before me. The work assigned by the law of the Church to this Commission is thus specified: "They shall prescribe the minimum requirements to be demanded of the several classes in institutions belonging to or controlled by the Church." Discipline, Par. 469. In the Report, on pp. 8-20, we find that they have carefully done the work assigned them by the law of the Church. This work is commendably done. But on pp. 21-24 we find other requirements for classification in the various grades. These other bases for classification are the number of "professors giving entire time to the instruction of college students;" volumes in library; "laboratory equipment;" "endowment and income." These additional requirements are not merely advisory; but the Commission distinctly declares that colleges "must meet" these. Where does the Commission get its authority to impose these additional requirements? The law of the Church in the Discipline, Par. 469, makes "the minimum requirements to be demanded of the several classes in institutions belonging to or controlled by the Church" the sole basis of classification to be prescribed by this Commission. Why has the Commission gone beyond this and laid down additional requirements? How can they compel the Boards of Education or the Annual Conferences to heed these additional requirements? I do not know.

I am quite sure, however, that these additional requirements, if they are indeed requirements, and not mere recommendations, are both unwise and unjust, as well as unlawful.

1. They are unwise. The Commission's Report says: "The public schools are not going to meet all the demands of our people, and private academies will have a constantly enlarging field for usefulness." This is certainly not at all true in Mississippi. The people here who demand schools preparatory to college other than our well arranged, well-taught public schools, especially in our towns and in many rural high-school districts, are a negligible number. Consolidated schools and agricultural high schools are rapidly increasing. It is about true that no academy or junior college belonging to the Church can live; for the people will not pay for that which they can get without paying for it. There is not an endowed academy or junior college that can offer free tuition belonging to our Church; nor can there be one. There is in the Mississippi Conference a standard college doing full college work and conferring the regular baccalaureate degrees, and there is a so-called training school approximately doing the same work with an upward trend in its courses of study. These institutions live because they do college work faithfully and give college degrees. Neither of these can meet the additional requirements laid down by the Commission. They have not books enough in their libraries, nor laboratories large enough, nor endowments. They could not possibly claim to receive "an assured annual income of $5000 for current expenses exclusive of tuition and other fees," as additionally required by the Commission; hence they could not be classified "as B Class colleges," and would be forbidden to confer any bachelor's degrees. People, as a rule, in Mississippi will no longer send their children to a college that does not confer degrees. To be classed as a C grade or Junior College would mean the death of any college in this State. This policy of the Commission indicated by their additional requirements is a college-killing policy for small colleges.

Shall we kill them and depend upon our large A grade Colleges for the education of all of our boys and girls? Would this be wise? Nothing could be more unwise. It is conceded, I think, by both the educators and the educated generally, that with the average pupil the small college does better work than the large college, notwithstanding the better equipment and teachers of larger reputation offered by the large college. The average pupil needs the personal touch of his teacher. In the small college he gets this—in the large college to a less degree, and in the largest scarcely at all. Beyond all question the average pupil in a class of ten has a far better chance to be well taught than in a class of one hundred. The Church must provide for the average boys and girls, because there are so many more of them than there are of the extraordinary ones. If the Church does not provide for them, other colleges, with deleterious or doubtful tendencies, will gather them in, and the Church will be discounted and will lose much of its influence thereby.

2. It would be unjust to kill off our small colleges—unjust to the average boy and girl in the Church. Many of these might be able to pay the fees in the large college; but there are other expenses there, imposed by the fads and fashions of "the college spirit." He must either pay these, or refuse and meet ostracism and sneer and suffer humiliation the average pupil is not prepared for, and the result is that he leaves or fails to return the next term, seeking the more congenial atmosphere of some small college, not of the Church, or, worse than all, abandons the purpose of getting a college education. It was the Christ who said: "See that ye despise not one of these little ones." The average boy and girl have claims upon the Church for teaching and training that are very sacred; and for the Church to ignore these would be the most unrighteous injustice.

That the policy of the Commission indicated by the additional requirements means the death of the small colleges is naively confessed by the Commission itself: "This Commission calls the attention of the Church to the educational statistics for the last quadrennium which, with surprising uniformity, show a steady growth of the stronger colleges and decay or death of the weak ones." Report p. 7. On this fact, ominous as it is, the Commission utters no word of comment. It would be a sad day for Methodism if her small colleges should all be killed off.

Brethren of the Mississippi Conference, we must "think on these things." What shall we do? At another time I shall discuss this very question. Let us answer it bravely, honestly, and in the fear of God!

The best sign that a man believes anything is not his repetition of its formulas but his impregnation with its spirit.—Phillips Brooks.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

REV. THOMAS J. DURRETT.

Rev. Tbomas Jefferson Durrett, son of Rev. John Douglas and Catherine Holiandsworth Durrett, was born on May 31, 1861, in Monroe County, Miss., where he lived most of his life. He professed faith in Christ while quite young and joined the M. E. Church, South. He was married on Feb. 1, 1883, to Miss Fidelia M. Wise, and of this union were born five children—two sons and three daugbters. The wife and all the children survive him, all the children being married except the youngest daughter.

Brother Durrett died near midnight on April 8 from a stroke of apoplexy, his death being sudden and quite unexpected, though he had been in failing health for several years. For the past three years he had suffered greatly at times from rheumatism, but for a few days prior to his death he felt very sure that he was improving and would be able to begin afresh and with renewed vigor the work of the pastorate he loved so much. Brother Durrett was licensed to preach in 1896 and was given supply work on the Quincy circuit, in the Aberdeen District of tbe North Mississippi Conference. He served this charge four years, and did some other supply work. He was received on trial into the North Mississippi Conference with the Class of 1903 at the Conference in Holly Springs, under the presidency of Bishop A. Coke Smitb. Brother Durrett had reason to be proud of his class and they of him. He was appointed to the Aberdeen circuit, and served this charge one year. He was then appointed to the Smithville circuit, where he did splendid work for three years. After this he served the Nettleton circuit for one year, the Houlka circuit for two years, and Buena Vista for three years—all these charges being within the bounds of the Aberdeen District. At the Conference at Tupelo in 1913, Brother Durrett was appointed by Bishop James Atkins to the North Carrollton circuit in the Winona District. He found this charge heavy on account of falling healtb, and his former presiding elder, Rev. J. W. Bell, feeling a personal interest in him proposed to give him a lighter work, and Brother B. P. Jaco, his presiding elder at that time, also said, "I will give you a lighter work." But at the winding up of last year's work, the people of the North Carrollton charge were so insistent upon his return that he could not easiiy deny them. Thus it was that he was sent back to serve them for another year. I mention the above facts to show how he drew the people to him. His work was always helpful spiritually, and he sought to build up Methodism and all the vital interests of the Church.

He was modest and unassuming, but heroic in opposition to sin. He gave Monroe County vaiuable service as a citizen, a Christian, and a minister of tbe Gospel, exerting a great influence against the liquor traffic. He was far above tbe average as a revivalist. His preaching was Biblical, logical, and was attended with a mental power that never failed to grip his audience. His work abides. He is loved and honored all over the territory where he wrought so well. May the peace of God be with his family!

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., President

Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Sec'y

Rev. C. A. Battle, Treas., Baton Rouge, La.

(This Department is conducted by Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education, and Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Publicity Commissioner.)

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUBSCRIPTION LIST.

The only definite addition to our list of subscriptions from the preachers received this week comes from Rev. J. D. Williams, of Greenwood, who subscribes two and a half per cent of his salary for five years. Brother Williams is a newcomer in our Conference, having transferred from Texas at the last session, but he thus enters heartily into the work of our Conference at once. In sending in his subscription, he adds: "If your College produces one real man in fifty years, it will repay the Church for every contribution. John Wesley founded Kingswood College, and Kingswood College produced Adam Clarke—the world's greatest Bible-ologist. Did Kingswood pay?"

In addition to this subscription, others have responded with promises to report definitely later. Evidently the preachers are interested in Centenary.

"DO IT NOW."

This familiar motto is an excellent rule of conduct for many reasons, and under most conditions. Its timeliness in the application to the campaign now on for a greater Centenary is especially evident when we consider the possible results of following it upon the future of our College. If, for instance, it could be announced during the Commencement exercises of the College, June 6-8, that some far seeing and liberal friend had offered a gift of $25,000, or that a dozen persons here and there over the State had enlisted in the Thousand Dollar Club by subscribing that amount to the endowment fund, it would put new courage and inspiration into the plans of work for next session, as well as inspire others to follow the good example. One thousand dollars now may be worth several thousand a little later. If everybody waits for somebody else to start the good work, the delay may result disastrously. DO IT NOW.

A WORD ABOUT ASSESSMENTS.

If a business man deliberately takes advantage of the bankruptcy laws and settles his obligations at fifty-four cents on the dollar, we do not regard him as a model of business integrity. Is it excusable on any ground for the Methodists of Louisiana to settle their ordinary obligation, as represented in the assessment for education at that figure? In spite of all our continuous pleas of hard times, nobody can pretend that the small assessment of twenty cents a member for Conference Education is excessive, or that it is beyond the ability of the Methodists of this great and prosperous State. Taking into consideration all our assessments, the total of all obligations laid on our Conference last year for Education, Missions, Church Extension, Orphanage—everything except the support of the ministry—amounted to about one dollar and sixty cents per member. Will anybody venture the assertion that the amount is excessive? But with this moderate assessment to represent our total interest in all the enterprises of the Church beyond our own home Church, our Conference as a whole settled at the rate of about sixty-two cents on the dollar, or a total contribution of a trifle over one dollar per member for all these interests.

Among these claims none is more urgently needed than is the assessment for Education. The Conference has recognized the pressing importance of our educational work. The assessment of $7000 is needed in full to meet the necessities of our work. Of this amount, we are pledged to pay to the support of Centenary $1600. The Mansfield bonded indebtedness, for which the Conference is pledged, requires payments of over $2200 each year, and as we have not received that amount, we have accrued indebtedness now to provide for, in addition. If last year we had raised our assessment in full, all these claims would have been provided for, and there would have been enough left to give Centenary the additional help necessary and thus the Centenary Special would not have been needed. One of the most urgent things to do this year in our educational work is to bring up the assessment dollar for dollar. It can be done.

One pastor on a poor country circuit last year demonstrated what can be done by the adoption of a definite system and energetic pursuit of it. On a circuit in the boll weevil section that for ten years had paid about $80 annually for all Conference collections, he adopted the duplex envelope system, calling for weekly contributions to the benevolences and by following it up secured about $250, or three times as much as the previous record of the circuit. The adoption of a wise system, and an energetic purpose to succeed, will make it possible to raise our assessments in full. Let us be content with nothing less.

It is to be hoped that the day has now passed when any pastor, in raising or distributing his collections, will discriminate against the Educational interest. It is vitally connected with the Missionary and every other interest of the Church and is entitled to at least equal consideration. Where the collections are lumped together and taken as a whole, the pastor has no right to discriminate between them, and in the light of the present crisis in our Educational interests, it is inconceivable that this collection should be undervalued or neglected by any pastor who is interested in the welfare of the Church.

Of course, we must find a permanent endowment for Centenary, and it is not believable that the Methodists of Louisiana will allow the opportunity presented by our Shreveport property to pass for want of a permanent endowment; but nothing will help more to restore confidence in our sincerity of purpose or to meet the present pressing needs of the College than would the payment in full of our educational assessment.

One word more may be added to encourage the early collection of this assessment. Already we have had to borrow money to meet the Mansfield bonded indebtedness and other obligations in reference to it will fall due on July 1. If we raise enough on the assessment to meet this obligation the situation will be relieved; but if not, money must be found to pay it, and we will have to pay double interest. After several urgent appeals for the early payment of this assessment the only responses have been partial payments from three officers of the Board and from one other, Dr. F. R. Hill, who will pardon the calling of his name as a welcome exception to the unresponsiveness of the brethren generally. Surely at least a few of our stronger charges can, by giving a little attention to the matter, send in part or all of their Educational assessment, and thus relieve the Board of serious embarrassment, and at the same time save to the Church the money that must otherwise be paid in interest on account of our neglect.

THE HYMNS OF CHARLES WESLEY.

(These beautiful lines are from the pen of Judge Walter Malone, the South's great poet, who passed away in Memphis, Tenn., a few days ago.)

What simple strains are these, to live so long,
To move so many in so many lands,
When self-appointed arbiters of song
Are all effaced like scribblings in the sands!

In dens of London, choked with sin and shame,
The beggar and the burglar stop to hear,
And in the night, beneath the street lamp's flame,
The ruined woman feels a burning tear.

In mines of Cornwall, underneath the sea,
The grimy laborer hears their martial tread,
Their fervent call from coming wrath to flee;
Above the ocean thunders overhead.

Amid Missouri's forests, dark and lone,
And by the Mississippi's turbid waves,
In nameless churchyards, bramble-overgrown,
Their converts fill a thousand thousand graves.

Among the rude huts of the pioneers
These hymns awoke the wilderness at dark,
Above the cries of wild beast, fraught with fears,
The panther's growling and the gray wolf's bark.

So I remember, when a barefoot boy,
I thrilled to hear thy wondrous trumpet-call
To Zion and its days of deathless joy,
Its crystal river and its jasper wall.

And, led by thee, I saw its clustered palms,
Its shining summits with their diamond skies,
A Beulah-land, with everlasting calms
And lilies wet with dews of Paradise.

These hymns have raised the peasant from the sod,
Have made the rude, half-savage nature sweet,
Have reared a score of kingdoms unto God,
And laid a million hearts at Jesus' feet.

THE REFORM MOVEMENT IN FRANCE.

(From the May Issue of the American Review of Reviews.)

In France there is on foot a temperance movement led by the strongest newspapers, with the approval and adherence of many public men. Early in the war one of the worst of alcoholic beverages, absinthe, was suppressed by the French Government, but other kinds of strong drink are easily obtained and their use is prevalent. The French movement aims chiefly at bringing the sale and use of liquors under regulation by a more effective kind of licensing, a prohibition of the stronger kinds of liquor that are being substituted for absinthe, and a sharp limiting of the hours during which drinks are sold. There is no movement in France against the making, vending, and ordinary use of domestic wines, in which the percentage of alcohol is not great. But there is likely to be a strong effort made to diminish the use of distilled liquors, and to regulate much more strictly the whole drink traffic, including the wine shops. Never before has France shown such seriousness of moral purpose; and it is believed that permanent social changes for the better are taking root.

Dr. S. J. Herben, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Orange, N. J., has been chosen to edit the Daily Advocate that will be issued during the General Conference of his denomination at Saratoga, N. Y., in May, 1916. Dr. Herben has had much experience on the tripod, having been Assistant Editor of the New York Christian Advocate and Editor of the Epworth Herald. Our Sister Church is wise to designate a year in advance the man who is to fill this responsibie position. The Daiiy Advocate issued by the Northern Methodists at their last Generai Conference was the best paper of the kind that it has ever been our pleasure to read.

WHERE ARE WE "AT."

By Rev. John W. Ramsey.

It will be recalled by those interested that at various times during the last year there appeared in tbe columns of the Advocate several articles written by myself and others concerning the interdenominationai Sunday school work in its relation to the Sunday school work of the Church.

Those articles brought to light several interesting facts, among which was the surprising one that many Methodist peopie were contributing to the interdenominational work and pledging Methodist Sunday schools to its support under the impression that it was a part of the Sunday school work of the Methodist Church. Moreover, there are those who, neither taking nor reading the Advocate, are still laboring under this same impression. So, let it be understood, once for all, that the Methodist Church has no connection whatever with the interdenominationai Sunday school work except the regrettable fact that Methodist people are its chief supporters, to the detriment of the Sunday school work of their own Church.

Another astonishing fact brought to light by the articies referred to above is the enormous cost of the maintenance of the interdenomiuational work, it requiring not less than $9000 annually or $750 a month in Mississippi alone. The monthiy cost is enough to maintain a single missionary on the foreign field for one year, and the annual expenditure sufficient to maintain tweive missionaries for the same length of time. It is also generally known tbat not less than from 60 to 75 per cent of this enormous sum comes out of the pockets of Methodist people. Why our people contribute so largely, when it is known that during all these years not one Sunday school has been organized or maintained in a destitute place, is a mystery to me uniess it may be explained on the ground of the bombastic enthusiasm generated in the State, county, district, and beat conventions.

Stiii another fact which has come to light is that, since the three leading denominations, Methodist, Baptist, and Presbyterian, are abundantly able to take care of all the Sunday school work through their respective representatives whom they have appointed and sent out for this purpose, the interdenominational work is not needed in Mississippi, and hence is a parasite on the body ecclesiastic.

Now, in view of these facts, what are we going to do about it? Are we, as pastors and people, going to continue to pour our money into the treasury of the interdenominational work whiie our own Church needs our loyal support? In the words of the schooi boy, "Where are we 'at'?" If we mean to continue to divert our money in that direction, the thing to do is to adopt that work as our own and dissolve our Conference Sunday School Board. Personally, if we are to continue the policy of the past, the Conference Sunday School Board shali no longer have my support or that of my peopie, nor shali 1 either want or need our very efficient Sunday Schooi Fieid Secretary. 1 shall go over, body and soul, to the interdenominational work. That's where I am "at."

However, I do not think that I shali have occasion to take this step; for the sentiment for the loyal support of our Conference Sunday School Board as represented in the work of our Sunday Schooi Field Secretary is rapidly growing among our people, pastors, presiding elders, and other church officials. At the last session of our Annuai Conference, it was with profound satisfaction that I heard Dr. Chappeii, our Sunday School Editor, say: "The interdenominational work can not do the Sunday school work of our Church." Soon thereafter the presiding elders held a meeting and issued an address to the pastors and people to stand by the Sunday school work of our own Church.

Now, to crystaliize this growing sentiment and to secure unanimity of thought and action by the pastors, let ali the District Conferences introduce and pass resolutions looking to this end, and appealing to our people everywhere to cease the diversion of their money into other channels, and ioyaily support the institutions of their own Church.

Such a resolution was introduced last year at the Jackson District Conference and no doubt would have passed had it not been for the confusion incident to a hasty ciosing of the Conference. A similar resoiution will be offered at the coming session of the Hattiesburg District Conference, and if all the District Conferences will pursue the same course it will enable us to discover where we are "at"—whether we shall continue our support of the interdenominational work or stand by the Sunday school work of our own Church.

THE HOLMES STORE

OF NEW ORLEANS

is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

A MORNING PRAYER.

I am awake, dear Jesus,
  Oh, hear my little prayer!
I want to kneel and thank Thee
  For all Thy tender care—
To thank Thee for the daylight.
  The sunny skies above,
The kindly friends around me.
  And, most of all, Thy love.

I want to tell Thee, Jesus,
  My little heart is Thine;
Oh, make it glad and willing
  To do Thy will, not mine—
That when the day is over
  I then may truly say,
I have been serving Jesus,
  And not myself to-day.

MILDRED'S BLUE DAY.

"O, dear!" sighed Mildred; "everything has begun wrong to-day. I tipped over a pitcher of milk, I broke one of my dolls and now I've torn my new dress. It's going to be a blue day."

Her father looked at her woe-begone face.

"You have had a bad start," he agreed; "but if it's going to be a blue day, why not make it a pleasant blue one?"

"How can it be pleasant and blue? Blue means disagreeable, father."

"Find the interesting and beautiful blue things. There are a great many of them. Look for those to-day instead of thinking of the unpleasant things."

Mildred thought this would be worth trying. After her father had gone she ran to the window. There was the blue sky. That was the first beautiful thing that was blue.

It was a lovely morning. As Mildred started for school she heard the twittering of bluebirds, and, looking up, saw several of them flying among the trees. By the roadside she found quantities of violets.

In the mineral cabinet at school she noticed a light blue stone and a deep blue one.

"The light one is a turquoise, the other a sapphire," her teacher told her.

When Mildred went home at noon she remembered the bed of forget-me-nots. Here was something else that was blue. As she stood beside them her older brother called softly to her. She ran toward him.

"Look!" he whispered.

Some distance away a little bird was hopping about in the short grass. It was of the brightest blue she had ever seen, with wings and tail touched with black.

"What is it?" Mildred asked. "Isn't it lovely? It's a real peacock blue."

"It's an indigo bunting, one of the prettiest of birds."

After school Mildred went to walk with a few of her companions. From the top of a high hill they saw the mountain peaks, blue-shadowed in the distance. Far below lay a little blue lake.

That night at bedtime Mildred sought her father. It was a warm evening, and he was standing on the porch. It was growing dark, and the stars were coming forth one by one. Mildred related the story of her blue day.

"I've seen the blue sky, a bluebird, blue violets, a blue turquoise, a blue sapphire, blue forget-me-nots, a blue indigo bird, blue mountains and a blue lake," she enumerated.

"I'll show you another." Her father pointed to the eastern sky. "Do you see that bright star? That is Vega, a star which the astronomers say is blue."

"Are there blue stars, too?" Mildred asked. "Why, there's blue everywhere."

"That's what I told you," answered her father. "Hasn't this been a good blue day?"

"It's been lovely."

"You see, blue days don't need to be unpleasant. The right kind can be exceedingly pleasant ones."

One more surprise in blue awaited the little girl. As she looked up from her pillow at mother bending over her to say good-night, she found herself gazing into the sweetest blue of all, mother's eyes.

"Blue days are the best days," she murmured sleepily.—New York Christian Advocate.

WHY WE LOVE HIM.

A little girl was playing with her doll in a room where her mother was busy, engaged in writing. When she had finished her writing, she said:

"You can come now, Alice! I have done all I want to do this morning."

The child ran to her mother, saying: "I am so glad, for I wanted to love you so much."

"But I thought you were very happy with dolly."

"Yes, mother, I was! but I soon got tired of loving her, for she cannot love me back."

"And is that why you love me—because I can love you back?"

"That is one why, but not the first and best why."

"What is the first and best why?"

"Because you loved me when I was too little to love you back."

The mother's eyes filled with tears as she said: "We love Jesus because he first loved us and died for us."—Unidentified.

THE WAY TO DO IT.

A Christian worker who was much interested in helping discharged prisoners went down to the jail to meet a man who was to come out on a certain morning, but found nine of his old companions who were there to lead him off into drink again.

The sister went down Thursday, and found the nine men there, so she went to the governor of the prison. The governor said:

"What do you want?"

She said, "I have come to meet so and so."

The governor said, "You know there are nine men outside there waiting for him."

The sister said to the governor, "Those that are with me are more than those that are with him."

The governor said, "Look here, go away for an hour and come back, and I will try to tire those men out."

The sister did this, and presently came back, and the men accosted her and said, "Here, sister, we have given up our work to meet this man."

She said, "You declare he shall go home drunk, but I declare he shall go home sober."

The thought then came to her, "Why not try to save those nine men waiting?" So she said, "Men, if I try to get him out, will you all come and have breakfast with me?"

They looked at one another, and breakfast to nine men who had been sleeping as if they had a glue brush between their teeth was wonderful. They said:

"Yes, we will come."

She got the prisoner out. When they had breakfast she said:

"Men, now can I read to you?"

She opened up her Bible and read that wonderful story of the Prodigal Son, and they listened with bowed heads. Then she said:

"Men, could you sing?"

They said, "We can not sing."

She sang to them, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." Then they had prayer, and in three weeks every man was brought to Jesus Christ by the act of that one frail little woman. That is the way to fish. Do you believe it? Go and do it.—Michigan Christian Advocate.

THE FAR LOOK FOR TIRED EYES.

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help." Psa. 121:1.

The remedy for tired eyes—and who has not had them? or, what is the same thing, wearied hearts—is the "far look."

A literary woman once consulted an oculist concerning an ailment of her eyes. Upon examination he said: "Madam, your eyes are tired; you need to rest them."

"But," said she, in reply, "that is impossible; my engagements are such that I must use them."

After reflecting for a moment, he asked, "Have you any wide views from your home?"

"Oh, yes," she answered with enthusiasm; "from the front porch I can see the noble peaks of the Blue Ridge and from the rear windows I can look out upon the glorious Allegheny foothills."

"Very well," replied the oculist, "that is just what you need. When your eyes feel tired, go look steadily at your mountains for ten minutes—twenty would be better—the far look will rest your eyes."

Tired, weary, troubled one, the far, or the far away—and the upward look is what you need. The "upward look," if concentrated and continuous upon some lofty ideal or prospect, will restore your flagging energies and transform your character. "Our eyes are unto the hills."—P. W. Editorial

WHEN TRUE HISTORY WILL BE KNOWN.

An American periodical several months ago offered a prize to the contributor who would write the best 'biography of his heart.' Would it not be interesting if some one could write a full and true biography of his soul? To be sure, the feelings and actions of the soul are to some extent set forth when one narrates upon the printed page what is called the story of one's life; but much—perhaps the larger part—of the real history of the spirit is kept in the background. Its mighty struggles, its temptations, its passions, its dark imaginings, its defeats in battles with the forces of evil, and its repulsings of the appealing Spirit of God are but imperfectly described, if indeed they are mentioned at all. What revelations there will be in the judgment when the inner histories of the souls of men are made known! The disclosures of character in private journals and diaries, opened after the writers have passed away, are nothing compared to the concealed secrets that will flash forth in that dreadful day.

"Then the writing shall be read,
Which shall judge the quick and dead;
Then the Lord of all our race
Shall appoint to each his place;
Every wrong shall be set right,
Every secret brought to light!"

HIS IMPERISHABLE MONUMENT.

The Southern Christian Advocate (Anderson, S. C.) of May 13 says: "To provide a memorial to the Hon. Robert Y. Hayne, of South Carolina, in honor of his railroad services, President Fairfax, of the Southern Railway Company, has given instruction that the name of the junction and terminal where the line from Asheville intersects the Washington-Atlanta line be changed from 'Spartanburg Junction' to 'Hayne.' Mr. Hayne was, if not the first, the most effective promoter of a railroad across the mountains from South Carolina to the Middle West."

This is a chapter in the history of Mr. Hayne with which we were not familiar, and we are glad to see him thus honored; but his real monument—one that will endure as long as the English language is spoken—is the great speech that he provoked Daniel Webster into making in the United States Senate, perhaps the most masterful address ever delivered in a parliamentary body. Wellington will be remembered to the end of time because of his contact with Napoleon; the fame of Scipio Africanus will never grow dim because his career is inseparably linked with that of Hannibal, and Mr. Hayne's name can never disappear from a conspicuous place in the pages of American history because he was immortalized by being a notable opponent of the "great Olympian thunderer."

But, unlike Wellington and Scipio, Senator Hayne was not in any sense a conqueror. If ever a man was completely overwhelmed and demolished in a debate, he was. But it was a distinction even to have furnished the occasion for such an outburst of logic and eloquence—to have been the target for the tremendous oratorical cannonading that then reverberated from the Lakes to the Gulf, and from ocean to ocean, and the echoes of which will never die.

South Carolina need not begrudge this claim of complete triumph for Mr. Webster, for she had another son who in argument, at least, was his equal, and in whose hands her cause never suffered—the scholarly, patriotic, and profound John C. Calhoun.

A BRILLIANT POET CLAIMED BY DEATH.

The death of Judge Walter Malone, of Memphis, Tenn., which occurred suddenly as a result of an apoplectic stroke in his room at the Peabody Hotel on Tuesday morning, May 18, was a great shock to the people of that city and his many friends and admirers elsewhere. His health had not been good for some time and he was under the care of a physician when the fatal attack came, but, though there are indications that he himself had had premonitions of his approaching departure, it was not at all dreamed by others that the end of his career was so near at hand. He was alone when the grim Messenger claimed him, and it was some hours before it was known that his gentle spirit had passed into eternity.

Walter Malone was born in De Soto County, Miss., near the Tennessee line on February 10, 1866. His father, Dr. Franklin Jefferson Malone, who was an Alabamian, was a physician of note and a surgeon in the Mexican War. He died in 1873, leaving his family in very moderate circumstances, his children in consequence being deprived of many early advantages. Walter attended the poorly equipped neighborhood school, such as existed in the rural sections of the South at that period, and much of the time worked on the family farm. He was a born poet and before he reached his teens was writing strikingly good verses for leading secular papers. In 1882, when he was only sixteen years of age, his first volume, "Claribel and Other Poems," was issued from the press.

About this time he entered the University of Mississippi, being a beneficiary of the Labauve Fund for the education of deserving students from De Soto County at that institution. It was there, when we matriculated as a student in 1884, that we first learned to know Walter Malone. Though he was in a class in advance of us, we soon became fast friends, roomed together for a time, later became associate editors of "The University Magazine," and in many other ways were drawn close together. Our friend at that time was a slender youth, slightly under medium size, with rather light hair, dreamy blue eyes, a pleasing presence, a genial disposition, and affable manners. He did not specially excel in the mastery of text-books, but was the best read student in the University, had no rival as a writer, and was easily the most fluent and forceful debater in either of the literary societies. He looked like one who communed with the Muses, and had the poet's proverbial distaste for Mathematics. But he was not impracticable, or lacking in tact or a due regard for expediency. His passion for composing verses could not be repressed and the products of his pen were constantly coming forth. As a result, in 1885, he gave to the public his second volume, which was entitled "The Outcast and Other Poems." This publication won generous commendation from Whittier and Oliver Wendell Holmes. We remember distinctly to have seen a letter from the former to the gifted boy author in which he stated that young Malone could write much better than he could at his age; and he also strongly advised him to secure a profession and not to rely wholly upon his literary work for a support. This communication perhaps had much to do with our friend's subsequent conclusion to study law.

In 1887 Walter Malone was graduated from the University of Mississippi, and having read law while pursuing his literary course, was admitted to the bar in the town of Oxford. He went, however, immediately to Memphis, becoming associated in the practice of law with his brother, Judge J. H. Malone, a distinguished attorney of that city. He showed a remarkable aptitude for the work of his chosen profession and soon acquired a good standing at the bar. He kept his pen busy, however, and in 1892 published his third volume, "Narcissus and Other Poems," which was followed two years later by "Songs of the Dusk and Dawn," and in 1896 by "Songs of December and June," and in 1897 by "The Coming of the King," a collection of short stories.

At about this date Judge Malone abandoned the practice of law and moved to New York City, resolved to devote his entire time to literature, but the outbreak of the Spanish-American War interfered with his plans; so he returned to Memphis and again took up the practice of his profession. In 1905 he was appointed Circuit Judge of Shelby County by Gov. Cox and was holding that office at the time of his death, having subsequently been twice elected by the people. His work on the bench is said to have been of a superior order and seems to have won well-nigh universal praise.

In 1900 this prolific writer issued another volume, "Sons of the North and South," and in 1902 a complete edition of all his poems came from the press. His most ambitious effort was his last work, "Hernando De Soto," a lengthy epic poem, to which he is said to have devoted nearly seven years of work, and which is reported to have brought him letters of commendation from eminent literary men in all parts of the English-speaking world. Perhaps, his best known and most popular piece of writing is his poem on "Opportunity," which has been printed in both secular and religious papers throughout the Nation and in other lands.

We would not presume to undertake to determine Judge Malone's rank as a poet—time alone can fix that. But we do not think that we hazard anything in claiming that he has made a lasting contribution to Southern literature and that he has left a name that will be long remembered. We regret that he did not have length of years in which to work, and that when his genius seeming shining most brilliantly, he was stricken down. With the shadow of the other world upon him, a few days before the final summons came, he is said to have written and handed to a friend, to be used as his epitapth, the following lines, which wonderfully breathe forth the kindly spirit that he ever manifested toward his fellow-men in life:

"Stranger, who passeth by my low house of clay,
Pause for a moment in a tender mood;
Think not your sigh of pity thrown away,
Because I'd say, 'God bless you,' if I could."

HARD PRESSED.

The Midland Methodist in a recent issue contained the following statement:

"In his report to the Board (of Education) Dr. Anderson asked for instructions as to whether or not Vanderbilt University was to be published in the Bulletin in the list of Church schools. No action was taken by the Board in regard to this request. He was not instructed."

It is a pity to take away from the distressed Midland Methodist this poor crumb of comfort, but it is due to the Board of Education and the Church to give out the facts concerning this matter. One who is in a position to know and whose name inspires confidence wherever it is heard in Methodist circles, in referring to this statement of our contemporary, says: "The Board of Education did not intend to fail in telling Dr. Anderson that Vanderbilt was no longer a Church school, but in the haste of adjournment the matter escaped attention." A distinguished member of the Board of Education also writes us as follows: "When Dr. Anderson asked for instruction as to the listing of Vanderbilt, I presume that all the members of the Board felt pretty much as I did—'you might as well ask whether Yale should be set down among our schools.' The Board of Education regards the Vanderbilt question as forever settled."

The Midland is certainly hard pressed when in its desire to maintain some connecting link with Vanderbilt University it has to seize upon and magnify such an incident as this, attempting to invest it with a significance that was not dreamed of by those connected with it.

ITALY IN THE WAR.

After wavering for months, Italy has at last reached a decision to join the Allies in the great European struggle and has declared war against Austria, which of course will also quickly develop a state of hostility between her and Germany. This considerably widens the area of the terrible conflict and brings to the support of the side already the strongest another nation with a population of approximately 35,000,000 and an available army of nearly 2,000,000 men and a considerable navy. Ordinarily such an extension of the theater of strife and bloodshed would be a cause for regret; but in this instance any such feeling is largely counteracted by the hope that it will tend to hasten the end of the present deplorable situation in Europe. It would not now be at all surprising to see the neutral Balkan States draw the sword and get into the fray. As we view things, there is no hope for Germany and the powers standing with her. But how long it will take to crush them sufficiently to make them sue for peace is a question quite beyond the human ken. To us, because of the manner in which Belgium has been outraged and France has been made to suffer, it looks as if it would be impossible for the Allies to grant any but drastic terms to their foes. We can only pray that peace may soon come, and that the awful wrongs and ravages of this most colossal war of the ages may be as fully and as speedily repaired as is possible.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Annual sermon of the Central High School of Baton Rouge, La., was preached last Sunday by Rev. A. J. Gearheard, of New Orleans.

Rev. C. T. Floyd reports hopefully of his work at Abbeville, Miss. He gave us a club of 7 subscriptions on May 18, for which he has our hearty thanks.

We are indebted to Rev. J. C. Price, of Grand Cane, La., for a club of 11 subscribers from his charge. He says: "Things are moving along nicely in this part of the field."

Dr. A. F. Watkins, President of Millsaps College, preached the Commencement Sermon for the Winona (Miss) High School last Sunday. His discourse was an able and appropriate one.

Rev. B. E. Meigs, who was serving the Rankin Street Church at Jackson, Miss., has been appointed pastor at Biloxi, in place of Rev. G. A. Guice, deceased. We are not informed who will succeed Brother Meigs at Rankin Street.

In a note to our office on May 19, Rev. A. S. Lutz, our capable pastor at New Iberia, La., says: "We are now in the midst of a gracious meeting here. Rev. A. F. Vaughan, of Franklin, is doing some earnest and faithful preaching."

"Everything seems to be moving on very nicely in the Hickory Flat (Miss.) charge." So writes Rev. W. B. Baker, our pastor on that work, in a communication bringing us 9 appreciated subscriptions. We trust that our brother will find the Advocate a valuable assistant in his field of labor.

A Shreveport correspondent writes us as follows: "Rev. R. W. Tucker, pastor of the Noel Memorial Church (Shreveport), is building up his congregation right along. He preached the Commencement sermon for the Leesville (La.) High School on May 16. Dr. R. H. Wynn filled his pulpit in his absence."

Writing under date of May 17, Rev. W. M. Young, of Amory, Miss., says: "Rev. S. A. Brown, of Okolona, is with us in a meeting which promises well." With two such workers as Brothers Brown and Young co-operating in a series of revival services, it would be surprising if they were not productive of much good.

A note from Rev. V. C. Curtis, of Lexington, Miss., written on May 20th, brought the good news that he was able to sit up most of the time and was steadily gaining strength, though somewhat slowly. He was cherishing the hope of being able to attend his district conference (the Durant), which met at Eupora Tuesday of this week.

Brother H. Sinclair, of Longstreet, La., who is in his 91st year, has been a constant reader of the New Orleans Advocate for forty-eight years, and he has no notion of doing without his Conference organ. His letter brought us a renewal of his subscription. Blessings on this long-time friend of the Advocate, and may his path "shine more and more unto the perfect day!"

Under date of May 24, Rev. J. E. Gray, of Logtown, Miss., writes: "We buried our brother, Dr. A. S. Gray of Mt. Olive, Miss., last Saturday. He died on Friday afternoon, May 21, aged 43 years. He was a Christian and a loyal member of our Church." We regret to learn of the death of this good man and we extend sympathy to the bereaved.

In a note bearing date of May 22, Rev. W. H. Coleman, presiding elder of the Shreveport District, says: "The work throughout the district is making progress and we expect to see still greater things accomplished." The Shreveport District Conference will convene at Grand Cane, La., on June 9, and the occasion promises to be one of much interest. Bishop Atkins has been invited to be present.

Rev. J. B. Connor, pastor of the Sardis (Miss.) Circuit, has our thanks for a club of 11 subscriptions, forwarded a few days since. In his letter to our office, Brother Connor appended the following note: "Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, our Sunday School Field Secretary, has been with me in all my Sunday schools and he did us fine service. This department of our work is now flourishing at every appointment."

Just as we are closing our forms we are in receipt of a telegram from Rev. C. A. Battle, of Baton Rouge, La., which reads as follows: "Brother J. E. Denson died suddenly this morning from acute indigestion, after severe physical suffering." It pains us to publish this sad news, and our heart goes out in tender sympathy to the stricken family of the deceased. May the Heavenly Father comfort and sustain them.

We acknowledge with appreciation the reception of an invitation to the Commencement exercises of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., June 6-9. The Commencement sermon will be preached by Dr. J. W. Lee, of St. Louis, and Dr. Owen Wister of Philadelphia, Penn., will deliver the Annual Address. President W. P. Few, who easily ranks as one of the South's foremost educators, will give his baccalaureate message to the graduating class on Sunday evening, June 6.

We are indebted to Dr. W. H. Huntley, the accomplished presiding elder of the Seashore District, for a very attractive invitation to the exercises of the third Commencement of the Seashore Campground School, which will be held in the Campground Auditorium on Tuesday evening, June 1. There are nine in the graduating class this year. Under the leadership of its resourceful president, Rev. H. W. Van Hook, this young institution is making an excellent record.

Rev. B. F. Bullard, of Sturgis, Miss., sends us two new subscribers, and in his note makes the following reference to his work: "This is my fourth year on this charge and I hope to make it the best one of the quadrennium. The outlook is fine. We have just held our second quarterly conference, and the work is in better shape in every way than it was at this time last year. I hope to be able to report $100 on the benevolent assessments at our district conference, which will meet early in June."

Writing on May 17, Rev. H. T. Carley, of Centenary College, says: "We have had a good session this year—the best, I believe, since I have been here. Our final examinations begin next week. We shall have several creditable graduates." Brother Carley further adds: "I had the pleasure of preaching for Rev. P. M. Brown at Natchitoches yesterday. He had gone to Bienville to preach the Commencement sermon for the High School there. He is doing a magnificent work at Natchitoches."

At the request of representatives of the Mississippi State Sunday School Association, Governor Brewer has designated Sunday, June 13, as "Sunday School Day" in Mississippi. The goal in view is to have a half-million people in the Sunday schools of the State on that day. The announcement of this occasion sent out by Rev. W. Fred Long concludes with the following exhortation: "There is a Sunday school near you. It is the best place in the world to spend an hour. But don't take my word for it. Try it for yourself."

We are pleased to be informed that Sister Lewis, the wife of our pastor at Greenville, Miss., Rev. J. T. Lewis, who some weeks ago was operated on at a Greenville sanitarium for appendicitis, has sufficiently recovered to return to the parsonage. In a note to the Editor informing him of this fact, Brother Lewis further says: "Our many friends, both in Greenville and throughout the State, have brought us under lasting obligations to them for their kind thoughtfulness and sympathetic words during Mrs. Lewis' illness."

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. W. B. Waldrop, Mendenhall, Miss., 7; Rev. A. J. Coburn, Farmerville, La., 4; Brother James Hand, Purvis, Miss., 5; Rev. M. L. Ward, Ripley Ct. (North Miss.), 3; Rev. J. H. Foreman, Silver City, Miss., 5; Rev. W. J. Porter, Blenville, La., 4; Rev. W. W. Murray, Shiloh Ct. (Miss. Conf.), 5.

Rev. W. L. Blackwell, of Vancleave, Miss., writes: "Our second quarterly conference convened at Shiloh Church on May 19, with Dr. W. H. Huntley, our presiding elder, on hand to discharge the duties pertaining to his office; and it is not putting it too strongly to say that he fully met the expectation of all, both in the pulpit and in the chair. The finances, especially the Conference collections, were not as well up as we should like to have seen them, but, all things considered, the showing was about as good as could reasonably be expected. On the whole, it may be said that the work in this charge is moving along encouragingly."

The Commencement exercises of Millsaps College will begin with the Freshman Declamation Contest at 10:30 a.m. on Friday, June 4; and the Sophomore Oratorical Contest will take place on Saturday, June 5, at the same hour. On Sunday, June 6, Bishop E. D. Mouzon will preach the Commencement sermon and will also preach before the Y. M. C. A. at 8 p.m. on the same day. On Monday at 9 a.m. the Board of Trustees will meet in their annual session, and the Senior Prize Oratorical Contest will take place at 10:30 a.m.; at 8 p.m. the Alumni will hold their Annual Meeting, the oration being delivered by Mr. J. W. Crisler, of Jackson, Miss., and a banquet will follow. Tuesday, June 8, will be Commencement Day; Hon. J. S. Sexton, of Hazlehurst, Miss., will deliver the Baccalaureate Address at 10:30 a.m., after which the diplomas will be delivered.

In reporting in the Wesleyan Advocate an excellent meeting lately held at Dexter, Ga., Rev. E. Brady, among other things, says: "We were ably assisted by Brother M. I. Lipsey as song leader. He is a good organizer, who wins the hearts of all and gets good singing out of them. Any minister desiring the assistance of a true Christian, soul-loving, hard-working man would do well to get into touch with him at Barnesville, Ga. God honors him." It will perhaps be remembered that Brother Lipsey worked some with Rev. A. W. Turner and other brethren in the Louisiana Conference two or three years ago. We are informed that he is available, to some extent, for service in this part of the field now, if any of the brethren feel that they can use him.

We acknowledge the reception, from Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brown, of Grenada, Miss., of an invitation to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ione, to Mr. Edward Cage Brewer, which will take place in the First Baptist Church at Grenada on Wednesday evening, June 2, at 8:30 o'clock. Miss Brown is a young lady of many graces and accomplishments and has a wide circle of friends and admirers. Mr. Brewer is a brilliant young attorney at the Grenada bar and has the promise of a bright future. He is an A.B. graduate of Millsaps College, an A.M. of Vanderbilt University, and an LL.B. of the University of Mississippi. We extend in advance our congratulations and best wishes.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Myrtle, Miss., writes: "Our second quarterly conference was held on Friday, May 14, with splendid results. Though held on a week day, the house was comfortably filled. Every church was represented and made a good report. All enjoyed the sermon which Brother Mitchell preached. One young man applied for recommendation to the District Conference for license to preach. He expects to knock at the door of the Annual Conference for admission this fall. We are observing Children's Day at every church and are taking good collections for the Sunday School Board. I regret to report the death of Dr. Ed Spencer, one of our oldest members, who was buried yesterday, May 16."

We extract the following from a personal letter to the Editor from Bishop R. G. Waterhouse, written on May 19: "My colleagues thought it best to give me light work, and so assigned to me three, instead of five, Conferences. I trust that North Mississippi Methodism will close the year with a great Conference under Bishop Atkins. The doctors have advised me to take a complete rest until my work begins in the fall. Several of the North Mississippi brethren have written me and I appreciate very much their letters, but I trust that they will not expect responses by mail until a much later date. Give them all my love." We trust that Bishop Waterhouse will adhere strictly to the advice of his physicians and take no chances by attempting to work too soon. His life is too valuable to the Church to be thus imperiled. Let the brethren remember him and his anxious loved ones daily at the throne of grace.

FRECKLES
Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With The Othine Prescription
This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.
Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.
Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

Mrs. ALICE E. MITCHELL (nee Faris) was born on June 4, 1876, and died at Hornbeck, La., on April 8, 1915. At the tender age of 13 years, this good woman was converted and joined the Baptist Church, but eleven years later she united with the M. E. Church, South, of which she remained a faithful and active member until the summons came to her to "come up higher." Fifteen months ago, Sister Mitchell was seized with that dread disease, pellagra, and suffered much mental anguish and physical torture, but endured her afflictions with great patience and Christian heroism. She frequently spoke of her approaching death with perfect composure, declaring that she had no fear of death or the judgment, but desired to live for the sake of her little children, to whom she was tenderly devoted. Her end was peace. She is survived by a devoted husband, Brother Thomas Mitcheli, and five children—three girls and two boys—who expect to meet her in the resurrection of the blest. Her pastor,

H. B. THOMASON.

Dr. ISAAC T. RAND was born at Perry's Bridge, La., on Oct. 30, 1866. His medical education was obtained at Tulane University. He was married on April 21, 1890. He leaves his wife, two boys, a daughter and a host of relatives and friends. He joined the Methodist Church under the pastorate of Dr. F. S. Parker on August 31, 1892. For a number of years he had been a member of the Board of Trustees. He filled many prominent positions in his lifetime and he was always ready to serve his community in any way that he could. As a man, he was true to the core, courageous to do right and conscientious in the perfomance of his duty. A more amiable, sweet-minded, and unselfish man one hardly ever met. As a physician, he was an honor to his profession. In him the poor lost not simply a healer but a helper. He went at all hours of the day and night to render gratuitous service and make all kinds of sacrifices to benefit humanity. As a Christian, he had a profound prayer life and he never neglected the prayer meeting. He was not merely a formal member of the Church, but a disciple whose heart was devoted to the Master. He did not die to himself, but unto the Lord, and the time, place and manner of his departure were all so ordered as to give his entire life its very best impression upon the world.

ALBERT S. LUTZ.

STEPHEN ASBURY RAYBURN was born in Lafayette County, Miss., on March 16, 1845, and died in a sanitarium in Beaumont, Texas, on March 16, 1915. In very early boyhood, Brother Rayburn was soundly converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, and on Dec. 23, 1869, he was married to Miss Mary Ann German. Of this union, there were born seven children—six boys and one girl. The daughter died some years ago, but the six sons survive. In 1909, Brother Rayburn buried his devoted wife in New Mexico, to which State he had immigrated from Louisiana. After a year or two spent in the West, he returned to his farm, near Hornbeck, La., where he continued to live until his summons came. The life of this good man was singularly upright and true. He lived far above the sordid tricks of so-called business and was never known to take an unfair advantage of his fellow-man. He loved justice, mercy, and truth, and left to his sons the glorious heritage of a spotless character and an untarnished name. He was true and loyal to the end to all his solemn vows as a church member, and to every great principle for which the Church stands. He suffered untold agonies, but was cheerful in the midst of extreme pain. No fears had he of death, but he met it triumphantly. His pastor,

H. B. THOMASON.

Mrs. SUSIE LANIUS WALDRON was born in Arkansas on July 14, 1884, and died at her home in Ludington, La., on May 14, 1915. At an early age she united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and continued to be a faithful member of that Church until the day of her death. On March 18, 1908, she was happily married to James Franklin Waldron. Of this union was born one child—a little girl of three—who, with the husband and father, survives her mother. Soon after her marriage, she moved with her husband to Longville, La., where she resided until about nine months ago, when they moved to Ludington, La. While in Longville she affiliated with the Methodist Church at that place and held her membership there when she died. Sister Waldron was one of those choice characters whom nature had richly endowed with gifts and graces which, added to her religious training, made her a very useful woman. She was a faithful church worker until disease forced her into retirement and then she bore her sufferings with the utmost fortitude. True to all the relations she sustained in life, she was triumphant in death, as was evidenced by the fact of her unwavering faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Her remains were carried to the Church in Ludington where the funeral service was conducted by this writer, who was still her pastor, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. Interment was made in the cemetery at DeRidder, where she will await the coming of her Lord and loved ones.

Main Street Church, Water Valley, Miss.

I will send you a short report of my meeting at Main Street Church. It began on the first Sunday in May at 11 o'clock a. m. I preached at that hour and on Sunday night, and Brother T. H. Dorsey preached for me on Monday at 10 a. m. On Monday night Brother J. A. Goad began with me and for two weeks he continued with me, preaching day and night. He did very fine work. He preached the plain gospel. Brother Goad is a very earnest man and I have never had a more faithful worker with me in a meeting. As a result of the meeting we had 18 conversions and 10 accessions to the church. The church as a whole was greatly revived and strengthened. Since the Annual Conference I have received 31 into the church, and everything has taken on new life. We have one of the best Sunday schools in the Holly Springs District in proportion to membership. With a present total membership of about 120, our average attendance for the year has been 100.—C. Wesley Baley.

Fernwood, Miss..

Our work here at Fernwood is progressing and is improving. We are trying and making some headway in the work of personal evangelism, on the idea or along the line of the "one-to-win-one" method. Our men are taking to the idea, and under the very efficient leadership of our leaders, we will see results. The key note of the kingdom at the very start was the personal touch. Andrew brought Simon to the Master. Our new church at Knoxo is compiete and the seats and other furniture will be in this week or early next week, and on the fifth Sunday we hope to preach the first sermon in this beautiful new building. We now have on this charge three of the most modern, best equipped church buildings in the Mississippi Conference, and as good as you will find anywhere in the Church. This is due not so much to the preacher as such achievements usually are in many places, but to the foresight and intelligence of the laymen of the charge and their liberality growing out of their appreciation of the church. This is a delightful work to serve.—W. H. Saunders, P. C.

Clarksdale, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: I am sure you, with all the pastors who have served at Clarksdale, will be delighted to hear of the great meeting we closed here last night. Rev. J. O. Hanes, one of the North Alabama Conference evangeiists, with his singer, W. G. Waltermier, came to us on May 2, and for seventeen days labored faithfully, with gracious results. I have never had with me two more consecrated and faithful workers. They have no claptrap methods. Brother Hanes is sensible, practical, and tremendously in earnest and makes people feel that God has sent him. Brother Waltermier is not only a good leader in song, but he was also the best personal worker that we had in the meeting. We did not accompiish all that we had hoped for in the meeting, but a great work was done. All the churches took part in the meeting and all were blessed in the results. Up to the close of the meeting last night about 70 had given their names for membership in the different churches. About 45 came to the Methodist Church, more than 30 of these on profession of faith. Besides this great work of bringing in the lost, hundreds in the Church were reclaimed, and hundreds pledged themseives to a consecrated life for God and the saving of souls.—W. S. Lagrone.

Pelican, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: Will you allow me a little space in the Advocate to let our readers know that Pelican charge is still on the map? At the last session of our Conference a former pastor of the Pelican charge came to me, after the appointments were read, and said to me, "Power, you have the best people to serve in the Louisiana Conference," and I do find them to be a fine people. Some weeks back the ladies of Pelican gave us a linen shower, which was much appreciated. And they now have $100 in the bank, as a building and repair fund for the church and parsonage.....We are having large congregations to preach to. Last night at Pelican the house was crowded and some stood on the outside for lack of room. We have had 7 accessions to the Church since Conference—four by certificate, and 3 by profession of faith.....Our second quarterly conference was held at Mitchell on April 24, and we were grieved that our presiding elder, Brother Coleman, was not with us on account of his wife's illness and his little boy getting one of his lower limbs broken the day before our meeting. But notwithstanding our disappointment we had a good time. There was a full representation of officials present. The stewards fixed the salary of the preacher in charge at $800, and that of the presiding elder was made in proportion; hence the assessment is over $200 more for the support of the ministry than it has ever been in this charge. We expect to begin our revival meeting at Pelican on the third Sunday in June. Rev. J. C. Rousseaux of Zwolle is to do the preaching. We are praying for a great awakening, and ask that you and the readers of the Advocate also pray for the success of our meeting.—Francis R. Power, P. C.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

R. H. B. Gladney, Field Sec'y,
Sardis, Miss.

We need no blanks in the report on Children's Day; no dashes on the assessment for Sunday school work.

Sallis has the repntation for doing high class work, but they have learned that the good is the enemy to the best, and that the best is not too good for their people.

The Durant Sunday school recently observed Decision Day and four young people were added to the Church. Should five hundred superintendents observe this day for all that it is worth, thousands could be led to Christ. The field is white already unto the harvest.

Brother Burton is the last of three great, good men that have stood heart to heart in church work at Pickens in years past. The two who have gone hence still influence the one left behind to do greater things in the upbuilding of God's kingdom through prayer and Bible study. Pickens will come up to the standard.

There is no reason why the North Mississippi Conference should not lead Southern Methodism in the great work of the Snnday school. Two things are needed—the right kind of information and enough religion. We can get the information by study, and the religion for the asking.

The Sunday school at the Pleasant Hill Church on the Sallis Circuit is manned by a woman, Mrs. F. M. Sultan. This consecrated woman influenced a goodly company of people to meet on a dark night during the week to learn of better methods of Bible study. This school is doing excellent work, but the superintendent means to do everything required by the Church.

SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE.

We have just held at Goodman, Miss., a very interesting Sunday School Institnte for the Pickens charge. We had with us three superintendents and several teachers. All seemed to take great interest in the work. The superintendents present were E. W. Burton, W. E. Meek, and E. J. Doty. Each one promised to work to put his school in the "standard" class. We also had with us Brother Shipman, our presidlng elder, who added much to the interest of the meeting by his wise oversight and his splendid talks. Then came our Field Secretary, Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, to strengthen and help us. Brother Gladney certainly has the Sunday school work at heart, and with the hearty support of the Sunday School Board and the support of the pastors and membership of the Conference he should, and doubtiess will, do great good. And, best of all, we had present with us the Spirit of God. We all felt his presence. We did not have a dull moment.....At the same time and place we held our second Quarterly Conference, which surpassed in every way any second quarter since our pastorate began here. The stewards reported paid one-fourth of the year's salary and the pastor was able to report the missionary assessments all paid in full. We praise God for his blessings. J. D. SIMPSON.

Pickens, Miss.

FROM BROTHER NORSWORTHY

Dear Doctor Meek: Here we are again, away down in "The Land of Flowers and Sunshine," in a great meeting in Titusvilie, Florida. We have been here now a week and things are beginning to loosen up and the prospects for a great victory are good.

Titusville is a prominent pleasure resort on the famous East Coast of Florida, 150 miles south of Jacksonville, on the Florida East Coast Railroad, the great Flagler system.

As is nsually the case in such places, the Church has a struggle here. The people entertain visitors all the winter and themselves all summer. Somebody said that here the permanent poulation "live on Yankees in the winter and fish in the summer." So it is. Little thought is given by the masses to the cause of religion.

Notwithstanding all this, Southern Methodism is making good progress in this section, and fine progress throughout the State generally.

On April 29, we closed for Brother L. W. Cain at Hollandale, Miss., a most gracious revival. Unfortunately Brother Cain was called away during the early days of the meeting by the serious illness of a daughter and did not get back to us at all. Brother Smoot was with us a few days, but was also called back to his charge at Cleveland. But the good Lord was with us, even to the end, and the end was glorious. I wish I could tell you about it.

In a few weeks I will be back in Mississippi to take up my work there for the summer. My address is still Yazoo City, Miss. Yours sincerely,

THOS. J. NORSWORTHY,

May 15, 1915.

TO READERS OF THE ADVOCATE.

Dear Brethren: I am, on account of bad health, a superannuated member of the North Arkansas Conference, and at present I am living at Arkabutla, Miss. I have, as my family, a wife and five children and am without any means of support, and I can not find anything to do in this part of the country by which I can get the necessities of life. I would like to correspond with any reader of the New Orleans Advocate, be he presiding elder or layman, who can furnish me with some kind of empioyment. (Rev.) R. S. LAWSON.

Arkabutla, Miss.

HOW ESTABLISHED.

"If ye will not believe, surely ye shall not be established." (Isaiah 7:9). The Master met each of the devil's thrusts with a "Thus saith the Lord." Yea, he was established in the Word and answered every appeal of Satan with a "Thus saith the Lord." And as people commit themseives unto the Lord and rely absolutely upon his word, they will also be established in life's pathway. The one who is high over all has most emphaticaily said that "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." If we will really entrust everything to the keeping of Jesus, our Savior, we will be free from corroding care and hurtful fear. Hence, if it is your will and mine to be established, we must iay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and walk circumspectly, ever keeping under our bodies and bringing them into subjection to the will of God, so that our faith in him may be unfeigned daily.

Baptist Pastor's Wife is Cured of Pellagra

Battlefield, Miss.

A most remarkable case of recovery has been reported here by the Rev. T. E. Pinegar who says: "For two years my wife suffered with what is known as pellagra. Different doctors attended her, with absolutely no improvement in her condition. At last our family physician told friends of ours my wife must die."

"I was away from home most of the time, engaged in evangellstic work of the Baptist Missionary cause. At last we sent for Baughn's Pellagra Treatment. When she began to use it, her arms, face and hands were a sight to behold. After one month's treatment, to all appearances, she was well. I would advise all sufferers from that disease to give this remedy a triai. Use this testimoniai as you see fit."

Here's a case where the family physician gave the patient up to die, and where Baughn's treatment saved her life. Don't hesitate longer. If you have pellagra, it is your duty to cure it.

The symptoms: Hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with much mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea; either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on Peliagra, and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., Box 587-X Jasper, Aia., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.

Note—This cure and other cures are personally known to the Advertlsing Manager of this paper; who did not accept this company's advertising until after an investigation that satisfied him that we had cured hundreds of cases of pellagra.—Adv.

A CALHOUN COUNTY LETTER.

Dear Dr. Meek: I just want to let you know about a few happenings out here in the free State of Calhoun. We have received some very severe jars, but by the help of the dear Lord, we are moving onward and upward to the best of our ability. We are recovering some from the shock received at the faiiure of our bank and the defaulting of the sheriff of the county and the going into the hands of a receiver of a big mercantile company. Any one of these things withiu itself would have been enough to discourage any set of people, but the three right along together were extremely hurtful and depressing. These are a very resourceful people; hence they are heroically overcoming the terrible setback they received financially. It is remarkable to see them stand up so well under such a strain as they have had to endure.....It was very necessary to add some things to the parsonage on our arrival here and they all rallied and contributed liberally in the purchasing of the necessities for the comfort of its inmates. Since our arrival on the charge we have organized two live Epworth Leagues. We also have three new Sunday schools, making six now working every Sunday, and, by the way, four or five of these schools are now arranging to have Children's Day services; and I am pretty sure we can get the others to do likewise. In addition to these Sunday schools we have three union schools in the neighborhoods of some of the churches which hold afternoon services. We give, just in a missionary way, afternoon preaching services also at these places. In sections about here there are very thickly settled neighborhoods away from the churches and they ask for these services; hence we avail ourselves of the golden opportunity thus offered and take the Gospel to them, and in many cases this year we have had very much larger congregations at these places than at the regular appointments..... Methodism has been greatly honored in these parts this year. The Rev. N. G. Augustus, of Houston, was invited to preach the Commencement sermon here at Calhoun City and he gave us a great sermon on the characteristics of Jesus. Our Lord was admirably held up as a criterion to follow in every particular by this great expounder of the Word. The Rev. S. A. Brown of Okolona delivered the Annual Address of the school here. His theme was "The Quitter." Brother Brown, as usual, acquitted himself with much credit. It was a great occasion. The people were greatly helped by this splendid address. At the close of the speech, a resident Baptist preacher arose and complimented the speaker very highly. He deserved the compliment, for it was very fine. .....At Pittsboro, the County site, the Rev. J. R. Countiss, now president of Grenada College, but Calhoun's own native son, delivered the Annual Address for the High School, and while it was not my privilege to be present, I have heard many capable judges say that "Dick Countiss," as they in these parts call him, delivered one of the finest addresses they ever listened to. The Commencement sermon at this place (Pittsboro) was preached by the writer. So, with all this, you can see that Methodism has been greatly honored by the Calhoun County people and school teachers.....To our great pleasure, we have just had with us our live-wire and hustiing Sunday School Field Secretary, Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, of Sardis, Miss. Brother Gladney was with us three days, and while here he did most effective work in the interest of our Sunday schools. He took our picture, and when the negative was developed, we ail saw a most regrettable state of affairs. One Sunday school showed to be a 30 per cent one; another a 25 per cent one, and the last one just a 10 per cent one. They all with one accord said: "This state of affairs must change." So now we have three (the three schools that Brother Gladney visited) 100 per cent schools. Standard, if you please. They all say they are going to hold up to that standard. Every preacher in North Mississippi ought to have Brother Gladney to visit his schools, whether "standard" or not, for he has a message from God that the people ought to hear, and which, after hearing, they ought to heed. Pray for us out here, for we need your prayers. We are arranging for our revival campaigns. We are anxious to route the devil.—W. V. Shearer.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT NOTES.

There was a very large attendance from the majority of the New Orleans Methodist Sunday schools at City Park last Saturday, and a splendid time was had by our Methodist young people, while a number of the older people were also present and enjoyed the occasion very much.

Rev. George White at Plaquemine has recently led in a large material improvement there. The parsonage has been repaired, fences built, etc. The presiding elder of the district states that Brother White is also, in reality, a presiding elder, as his circuit is comparable in size to a district.

Rev. W. W. Holmes and Rev. A. J. Gearheard last week made a trip to Grand Isle to see what opportunity might be there for Christian work. They found an island about ten miles long, and one mile wide. It has a population of four or five hundred people, and they are engaged chiefly in the trucking business. Very fine cucumbers are raised there. Brother Holmes and Brother Gearheard met with a very warm welcome, the people seemingly being glad to have Christian service. The service was held in the open air, and a large number were present, while announcement was made that Brother Gearheard would visit them again in the near future. At present there are no churches on the island, and the people said they could not remember that a Protestant minister had ever visited that section previous to the visit of these two brethren.

THE BABY'S WELFARE A MOTHER'S DREAD.

A fear clutches at the heart of the mother that her own little one may not live long. She dreads its second summer, or that it may never wake from its sound sleep. All mankind loves a mother—loves to see a mother love her child. A baby and its mother are insured against ill-health if the mother takes Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a tonic for women that Dr. R. V. Pierce invented nearly a half century ago for women's ills. This is a vegetable tonic, made only of the chicinal roots with glycerine, which puts the female system into perfect, healthy action. Before baby's coming it is just the tonic that puts the womanly system into a proper condition to make the birth painless and to insure a healthy child.

Many mothers of families in the United States have reason to be grateful to the person who recommended Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is put up for the single purpose of curing disease peculiar to women. It has sold more largely on this continent than any other medicine for women. Another point in its favor: it is a temperance remedy and does not contain a single drop of alcohol nor of any narcotic.

Young mothers who preserve the charms of face and figure in spite of an increasing family and the care of growing children are always to be envied. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives the strength and health upon which happy motherhood depends. It practically does away with the pains of maternity. It enables the mother to nourish the infant life depending on her, and enjoy the hourly happiness of watching the development of a perfectly healthy child.

Free.—The Common Sense Medical Adviser, bound in cloth, is sent on receipt of 3 dimes (or stamps) to pay expense of wrapping and mailing. Address: Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

MISS GRACE LANE'S RECITAL.

Miss Grace Lane, pianiste, and graduate pupil of Miss Lois Cooper, gave the recital last evening that closed her career as a music student at the Whitworth Conservatory.

Miss Lane's charming personal appearance and stage presence scored in her favor the moment she made her initial entrance upon the rostrum in front of the instrument she has mastered and among the decorative floral offerings that bore tributes of praise and admiration, in advance of the Senior recital.

In the Beethoven Sonata, Op. 31, No. 2, Miss Lane's interpretation was good and her technique equal to the demands, her tone qualities being unusual in so young an amateur-artist. She showed no lack of poise and precision in any of the movements; but was especially good in the slow movement and yet dainty and fine in the Allegretto.

Two numbers that won completely the audience were those for two pianos, Concerto No. 1, Mendelssohn, and the Polacca Brilliante, by von Weber, in which Miss Cooper, who has been Miss Lane's instructor the past three years at Whitworth, accompanied her and demonstrated with effect the accomplishment that inspires her pupils. The spirit of these numbers lent its exhilaration to every listener. Technically they are very difficult. But the heaviest number on the program, perhaps, was the Holberg-Suite, by Grieg. This is not often played, its demands requiring sureness of touch, accuracy of mind, versatility of spirit, and brilliancy not always found in the most aspiring artists.

Miss Lane's work as an accompanist has won her considerable local reputation.

The evening was an honor to the institution as well as to the cultured young graduate and her excellent teacher, Miss Cooper.—The Brookhaven (Miss.) Leader, of Wednesday, May 19, 1915.

SHREVEPORT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Please note that the Shreveport District Conference will be held in Grand Cane, instead of South Mansfield.

The opening sermon will be preached by Henry T. Young, at 8 p. m., Wednesday, June 9. The business sessions will be held on Thursday and Friday, June 10 and 11.

Thursday will be devoted to hearing reports from pastors, Sunday school superintendents, and other leaders, regarding the work in the various pastoral charges.

Friday forenoon will be devoted to a special program on the Laymen's Movement.

Friday afternoon there will be a special program in the interest of our young people's work.

Representatives of special interests will be cordially welcomed and given an opportunity to present their respective causes. Particular attention will be given to the preaching services.

Pastors are requested to report definitely on the important items suggested by the Discipline, and any other interests they may have in hand.

All the lay delegates are urged to attend the special session Friday, even if they cannot be present for the entire Conference, and all other laymen interested in a fuller understanding of the great Laymen's Movement are invited to attend this session Friday morning.

All who are interested in the real salvation and character-building of our young people are invited to attend the Friday afternoon session.

Let us pray much for the presence, power, and inspiration of the Holy Spirit in all the work of this conference session. Bishop Atkins has been invited to preside.

With brotherly love,

WM. H. COLEMAN, P. E.

WHERE DRUGS FAIL.

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from Shivar Mineral Water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other conditions due to impure blood, do not hesitate to accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer as printed below. His records show that only two in a hundred on the average, have reported "no beneficial results." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful spring. Simply sign the following letter:

CONCERNING THE AFRICA SPECIAL.

Dear Fourth Vice Presidents of the Mississippi Conference Epworth Leagues:

Since the Conference year is nearing its close and the $500, which the Leagues of the Mississippi Conference pledged to the Africa Special, is about due, I wish to urge upon you the importance of bringing to the attention of your individual Leagues the necessity of paying their pledges to this fund now. If you cannot pay the whole amount now, pay just as much as you can and send the amount to the address below at the earliest moment, stating when you can pay the remainder.

As you know, the Leagues of Southern Methodism voluntarily assumed the responsibility of supporting our Mission in Africa, and the Mississippi Conference League invites and urges the co-operation of the individual Leagues in meeting our share of this responsibility. We shall not be satisfied with a cent less than $500, and we can raise the $500 if each League will do its part. If you have not already made a pledge, make one and send in the amount at your earliest opportunity. Do not delay.

Yours for the Africa Special IN FULL,

HARRIET LEECH,
4th Vice President Miss Conf.
Hattiesburg, Miss., Station A.

LEAGUE BOARD TO MEET.

The President of the Epworth League Board of the Mississippi Conference, in accordance with the suggestion of the members of the Board who were present at the time of its organization at the last Annual Conference, requests the Secretary to call a meeting of the Board at the time and place of the meeting of the Mississippi Conference Epworth League Conference. The Conference will meet in Jackson at the Capitol Street Church on June 10. The Epworth League Board is requested to meet at the Capitol Street Church immediately after the night session on June 10. The members of the Board are Rev. J. L. Neill, Rev. L. F. Alford, Rev. R. F. Harrell, Rev. W. N. Thomas, Rev A. M. Broadfoot, Rev. H. J. Moore, and Rev. W. A. Terry, and the following laymen: Messrs. Walker Greer, Clifford Field, J. C. Ballard, J. P. Bennett, Matthews Ard, W. D. Hawkins, and H. T. McGehee.

We trust that the League conference will be largely attended and that there will be a full attendance of the League Board.

W. A. TERRY, Secretary.

FROM FRANKLINTON (LA.) AUXILIARY.

We are condncting a successful mission study class, using "The King's Business." This should have been used last year, bnt we did not find it possible to do so. We have about a dozen regular attendants and meet on the second and fonrth Wednesdays. On the first and third Wednesdays we have business and social meetings, respectively. Our membership numbers 30.

We have just closed a belated Week of Prayer, with an offering of $2.50. Our meetings were quite good and were made more interesting by readings from the Conncil Daily.

We believe our Young People's and Children's Auxiliaries are going to do a good work during the summer months, for they are well organized. We had the Young People to meet with us one afternoon during the Week of Prayer.

We meet conjointly with the Baptist auxiliary on fifth Wednesdays and have literary and social features preceded by the devotional service.

We want you to know how well we have done financially this year. For local work we have expended $59.60 and for Council work we have sent in $9.20. We pay our pledges later in the year and, so far, have pledged nearly $40 for the work.

We hope to see more and more news from Louisiana in our department.

Mrs. M. W. OTT.

We should like to say "Amen" to that last remark of Mrs. Ott's, only we would include the two Mississippi Conferences also. We sometimes wonder for what purpose our women think this department was given to us. We know there are interesting things happening in the auxiliaries all the time, but news of them never reaches our desk. You promise so faithfully when you attend your annual meetings that you will remember your Editor, bnt, somehow, you forget all about it before you reach home.

We cannot make a success of this department without yonr co-operation. It offers you such a splendid avenue for keeping your work before the public, for, remember, our circulation is not confined to the three patronizing Conferences, but extends over a wide territory. May we ask you once more to please avail yourselves of this opportunity?

A VISIT TO THE BILOXI WESLEY HOUSE.

While attending the annual convention of the Mississippi Branch of the King's Daughters and Sons which was recently held in the historical and picturesque old town of Biloxi, we visited our Wesley House located at that point. The location of the House is ideal—a large, old-fashioned building, in the midst of a venerable grove of moss-festooned oaks, and beyond are the beautiful waters of the Mississippi Sound.

We went in tbe evening when most of the activities for the day were over, but a visit there could never be dull or uninteresting. Miss Hasler was getting ready for chapel service, and perhaps it was an inopportune time to visit; bnt we did not realize it, for onr reception was most cordial and gracious. First of all, we passed from the chapel into the Mary Ellis Day Nursery, and we felt the spirit of that sweet, consecrated woman breathing peace and quiet over it. Little beds of all styles were placed around the room, and on a chair, occupying, as it were, the seat of honor, was an old clothes basket, which we remembered as the first bed for the first little baby brought to the nursery. Not a little child was there, but we seemed to see bright, happy faces peeping at us from those little beds, and we could realize in a feeble way what that nursery is meaning both to babies and to mothers.

Next we stepped into the playroom, just back of the nursery. Think of such a luxury for little ones who play either in foul, unclean houses (we cannot call them homes), or out in the beds of oyster shells and old tin cans! Not many of the latter were in evidence, for Biloxi had had a "clean-up" campaign and things were looking unusually "spick and span." The need for training and supervised play was plainly evident as we rode, earlier in the day, through the oyster camps.

While looking around in this playroom our eyes involuntarily rested upon several large holes in the walls. Miss Hasler must have seen these glances, for she hastened to explain their presence, telling us that the little children picked the plastering off of the walls and ate it. Plans are on foot to have all of the plastering removed and the room ceiled, as are the ones on the upper floor.

That upper floor is splendid. The front rooms are the bedrooms and are very comfortably fitted up. Dining-room and kitchen are on this floor, too, and each was immaculate. The deaconesses have given a very homelike air to their dwelling-place. A bowl of flowers graced the dining-room table and some very attractive pictures adorned the walls. The spacious hall furnishes the workers with a most delightful living room, and throughout the building are electric lights, the gift of some friend or friends—a gift which, we are sure, is deeply appreciated and which adds much to the comfort and convenience of our workers.

Can we estimate the influence of this sweet, refined home upon the lives of the poor, ignorant people for whom these women are working and praying?

We felt proud of our Wesley House and the splendid work it is accomplishing, but, more than that, we felt so thankful that the Father had put it into the hearts of these daughters of his to place their lives upon the altar to be used for work among these, the poorest of men; and as they pass to and fro upon their errands of love and mercy, many hearts will echo the words of the following little poem:

"Day by day upon their mission holy,
They pass, and make of life a lovely thing,
Feeding the starving, comforting the lowly,
These daughters of the King.

"They have followed in His footsteps ever
And made their mission the divinest thing,
So shall He crown them with His love forever,
These daughters of the King."

"The universal desire for happiness finds abundant warrant in the Bible, which might justly be called a guide-book to joy."

"The cry everywhere is for consecrated men, but how can we expect a consecrated manhood developed from a neglected boyhood?"

CALOMEL WHEN BILIOUS? NO! STOP! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Is Harmless To Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

THAT TIRED FEELING IN THE SPRING

That tired feeling that comes to you in the spring, year after year, is a sign that your blood lacks vitality, just as pimples, boils and other eruptions are signs that it is impure; and it is also a sign that your system is in a low or run-down condition in which it will be easy for you to contract disease if exposed to it.

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla. This old standard tried and true blood medicine relieves that tired feeling. Get Hood's today.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Brookhaven District Conference was held in the Methodist Church, Monticello, Miss., May 11-13, 1915.

The presiding elder and all the pastors of the district, together with other ministers having membership in the Conference and a very creditable number of lay delegates, were in attendance.

There was not a dull moment throughout the session. The various interests of the Church were diligently inquired into, the condition of the several pastoral charges was reported, sermons were preached, addresses delivered, and several topics were discussed.

Every one from presiding elder to lay delegate seemed anxious to contribute to the success of the Conference.

Rev. Robert Selby, presiding elder, in great favor with the pastors and deservedly popular with the laity, presided in a manner eminently satisfactory to all. His heart and his hands are filled with plans and labors for the welfare of the Church.

The preaching, done by Rev. I. L. Peebles, Dr. W. H. LaPrade, and Rev. G. H. Galloway, was good to the use of edifying, of evangelistic note, and thoroughly enjoyed.

Rev. H. M. Ellis, Field Sec'y of the Methodist Hospital, gave a good account of the work in which he is engaged, and made a strong appeal for the funds necessary to make possible the early opening of the Hospital.

Rev. W. M. Williams of our Orphans' Home addressed the Conference, his address manifesting the same diligence and enthusiasm that have characterized his administration throughout.

The reports of pastors indicated that they had been abundant in labors, and that those labors had not been in vain in the Lord. The pastors refuse to allow discouraging conditions to discourage them, and sound a uniform note of hopefulness.

The Conference gave prominence to the lay activities of the Church, an hour having been devoted to the discussion of topics of peculiar interest to this field of service. The program for this feature of the Conference was carried out under the direction of Mr. V. D. Youngblood, District Lay Leader. On this program was an address by Prof. Geo. L. Harrell of the faculty of Millsaps College, Conference Lay Leader, and several papers and discussions by prominent laymen.

Mrs. W. H. LaPrade, District Secretary of the Woman's Missionary Society, attended the sessions of the Conference and gave an afternoon hour to the ladies of the town, addressing them at the Presbyterian Church.

The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: Dr. D. P. Butler, P. H. Enochs, W. D. Davis and W. E. Driver; Dr. W. H Morse and J. S. Deceil, alternates.

Rev. J. V. Bennett proved to be a courteous and kind conference host, and, supported by a competent committee on entertainment, left nothing undone that would contribute to the comfort or convenience of the brethren. The hospitality of Monticello was all that could be desired.

Summit was chosen as the place for the next meeting of the Conference.

SHALL WE GO BACK TO THE BLUE BACK SPELLER?

Recently the argument has been made that our schools should adopt the Blue Back speller as the text book on this subject. This argument is based upon the contention that boys and girls trained in the old field school, where this renowned book was the text, were more efficient in spelling than those now being trained in the schools. It would be just as reasonable to argue that the farmer should discontinue the use of modern machines on the ground that the field does not yield as much grain as the same field did when simpler tools were used in its cultivation.

The lack of efficiency in the modern school is due to other causes. The old field school was in charge of a man who was usually the master of the situation, and required his pupils to master a few subjects thoroughly. its modern successor is frequently in charge of a young girl who does her best to get her pupils to do something in two or three times as many subjects, and the result is that none are mastered. The pupils in this way acquire the habit of doing poor and careless work, and they are fortunate if they ever get such habits cured.

Our boys should be trained to master themselves first, and then to master thoroughly whatever subjects they study, and the school should not undertake to do more than it can do well. We need intensive cultivation in the school room as well as in the fields.

Parents wishing to place their boys where they can get such training should write to Jas. A. Peoples, Principal of the Peoples-Tucker School, Springfield, Tenn., for information.

A NOTE FROM BROTHER ADAMS.

To the pastors, officials and members of the Port Gibson District:

Dear Brethren: I desire to call your special attention to the reports lately published in the Advocate from the Board of Missions and the Joint Board of Finance. A careful study of these reports will do us much good. They will bring shame to some of us and gratification to others.

The report of the Board of Missions shows that the Port Gibson District is third in the amount of remittances for the Foreign Mission and Home and Conference Mission causes. It should have been first. Only eight of the twenty-one charges have any credit in that report. Thirteen pastors and charges let three months pass without any remittance at all to support these worthy and needy causes. This should not have occurred. Brethren, we should do better than that. I shall confidently expect that the thirteen who fell down on these matters in the first quarter will make large remittances and thereby redeem themselves in the report that will come out on July 1. "So mote it be."

By referring to the report of the Joint Board of Finance you will see that the Port Gibson District stood clearly in the lead. We paid a little more than 19 per cent of our annual assessment. The Jackson District, next to ours, paid a little more than 13 per cent. I congratulate you on doing so well comparatively. I thank every pastor and worker in the District who was an active factor in this good work. But what shall I say about the ten pastors and works who paid nothing? Nothing more than I am praying that you may do better this quarter. I shall feel mighty bad if anybody "lies down in the traces" this quarter. I beg you not to do such a hurtful thing, my dear brethren. Let us all shake ourselves and go to work in dead earnest. If we lose the early months of the year we will find it hard indeed to recover from the loss in the later months.

Our District paid 33⅓ per cent on the Bishops' Claim. The Brookhaven District, next to us, paid 23½ per cent. Some of our works have done well in support of this cause. Some have done very poorly, and some nothing at all. I am sure the presiding elder hasn't done his full duty in the matter. He should have been more persistently and actively at work for this interest. Please pardon him and he will try to do better.

Brethren, I am looking to every one of you for increased activity and larger success. Infinitely above the presiding elder is our Lord who looks for success from every one of us.

I congratulate the entire district on the ready and liberal response to the appeals of our District Manager, Brother Hugh Junkin, in behalf of our Orphans' Home. Let this good work continue more and more.

Yours in his service,

T. W. ADAMS, P. E.

Business Man Praises Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy

Successful Merchant After Investigation Found a Remedy That Restored His Health.

"This is Thanksgiving day in the state of Pennsylvania, and I want to devote a part of it in writing a letter to you. On the 16th day of November, '10, I was stricken with heart trouble. My family physician called it Angina Pectoris. I had from one to five attacks in 24 hours. In the latter part of December, 1910, I wrote to the Miles Medical Co., for information concerning my case, and in reply I received a very kind and instructive letter, which I handed to my family doctor, and he told me to use your Remedies in connection with the medicine he gave me, so I did. I used five bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and seven bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine. I was confined to the house for about four months. The action of my heart is now, and has been normal for the last six months. I can truly recommend Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Remedy to do what they are intended for. If used according to directions. I thank you kindly for your advice in answer to my monthly reports. I am now sixty-seven years of age, have been in the mercantile business for thirty-five years and lived retired for the last thirteen years." A. B. HOLLINGER, Lincoln, Penna.

CHIEFLY PERSONAL.

The Art Exhibit of Sophie Newcomb College, New Orleans, has been awarded the first prize at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco.

In our editorial bearing upon Vanderbilt matters last week, we were made to use the expression, "have temporized the issue." Of course, the preposition "with" was omitted. Usually we do not correct such errors, assuming that our readers understand that they are typographical.

As will be seen by reading his note elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate, Rev. J. D. Simpson, of Pickens, Miss., has raised already the whole of his missionary assessments. We congratulate him and his worthy flock on having met these obligations so early in the year. Their example in this respect ought to be generally imitated.

In a brief note, bearing date of May 14, Rev. J. G. Johnson, of Black Hawk, Miss., says: "I have been called to the bedside of my father in Aztec, New Mexico, and will probably be gone for a month." We greatly regret to be apprised of the illness of Brother Johnson, and we trust that his condition will soon improve.

Referring to Dr. W. H. La Prade's sermon at the recent session of the Brookhaven District Conference at Monticello, Miss., Rev. W. H. Saunders says: "His theme was the Prodigal Son, and he gave us a very strong presentation of that familiar parable—in fact, it was the best handling of it that I have ever heard." There are few better expository preachers than Dr. La Prade.

Master William Boon Wendel, of Como, Miss., in a recent contest at Oxford, Miss., in which 43 picked speakers from various parts of the State participated, stood third among the best six selected. He is only 14 years of age, and many of his competitors were several years older. This gifted young speaker is a son of Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Wendel, who are widely known in Mississippi and Tennessee, and is a grandson of Bishop Robert Paine.

Rev. G. D. Purcell, of Oak Grove, La., writes as follows: "I am hopeful of a good year regardless of the hard times. We are having splendid crowds at the preaching services. I have nine regular preaching places. The roads are good and I have a splendid combination horse; so I have no tronble in reaching my appointments on time. There is a better spirit among the people than there has been since I have been in charge. We had a very good financial report at our second quarterly conference on May 17." From the foregoing it will be seen that as usual Brother Purcell is abundant in labors, and that he is having his customary success in the work. His has been a remarkably fruitful ministry.

"THE FINEST FIELD OF SERVICE."

(From the Michigan Christian Advocate.)

In modestly announcing his retirement from the editorship of The Christian Advocate, New York, Dr. George P. Eckman has made a distinct and needful contribution to a wholesome ministerial sentiment. He said in substance:

"We regard the pastorate as the finest field of service in the Church."

Had Dr. Eckman uttered those words three years ago they would have been just as true as they are now, but as coming from him they could not have been half so significant.

Experience in a difficult situation previously untried gives a new perspective to old opportunities and delights.

Pastors know nothing practically of journalistic hard knocks, though many of them sigh to know. After adequate trial most of them probably, like the eloquent Eckman, might sigh to get back again into "the finest field of service in the Church."

Dr. Eckman as editor has introduced original features, especially along the line of the artistic and academic. Masterpieces in art, representative discussions in science, popular expressions in church life and a frank and open attitude have distinguished his management.

But the type has no clarion ring, the tripod no sounding board, the press no throne. An orator feels the need of these, else he chafes.

A pastor does not meet one criticism where an editor meets ten.

A pastor can use his voice publicly and privately, while an editor, as such, cannot use it at all.

A pastor has ten times the freedom of an editor. Calls for sermons come twice or thrice in a week, while calls for "copy" are a ceaseless din.

An editor who responds to many outside calls is very apt to neglect his inside obligations.

A pastor can delay some tasks from one week day to another; an editor, like a cook, can delay nothing. The demands upon his attention are inexorable. He is a plodder and must plod, or quit.

Dr. Eckman vacates the most distinguished and in some respects the most advantageous position in the Church for what he wisely deems "the finest."

Success to him and to all pastors in their thrones of power. God help all of us poor editors who must keep pegging away in fields of service not the "finest," but fairly opportune.

THE TOBACCO HABIT.

A pastor whose charge is in the area of the Advocate, and in a region where the people would not take kindly to the intimation that they are backward in intelligence or refinement, writes to say, that the tobacco habit in all its forms is becoming more common both among men and women. He says that many school teachers indulge in the practice, and he asks whether we think school teachers should use tobacco and thus encourage its use among the boys, if not the girls also. That is very much like asking us if school teachers should set the example of a filthy, harmful, expensive habit before the children under their care simply that they may indulge themselves in that way. As thus stated we can not so much as imagine how thoughtful persons who have any interest in the welfare of others could render any other answer than that which has already occurred to every one reading these words, even though he may be a sinner in this matter himself.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 62—No. 22 Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3093

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JUNE 3, 1915. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

Editorial

SHALL WE LET IT GO DOWN?

As has been stated in these columns a number of times, the New Orleans Advocate is face to face with a serious crisis. For several years prior to the outbreak of the great European War it had been steadily gaining in its circulation and resources and the outlook for its future was quite encouraging; but since last summer there has been a continuous decline in the number of its subscribers and in its income. Necessarily, there is a limit to the extent to which this declension can go on without entailing disaster upon our paper, and that limit is now near at hand. A newspaper cannot be issued on credit; it must have funds to purchase material, to pay for labor, and to meet weekly its many other unavoidable expenses. Not only has there been a decrease in our circulation, but because of the existing financial stringency there has been a large shrinkage in our advertising patronage. The Baptist Chronicle, of Alexandria, La., the official organ of the Baptists of this State, is now issuing only eight pages. Will the 150,000 Methodists of Louisiana and Mississippi allow conditions to become such that the Advocate also will have to reduce its size? It is certainly to be hoped that they will not; but unless our preachers and people will at once give us their active help we may be forced to adopt such a course.

It took many years of hard work and self-denial to build the Advocate up to the encouraging condition it was in a year ago: shall we now, without doing our utmost to prevent it, allow it to drop back to where it was before the improvement referred to took place? The newspaper business is like most other kinds of business in that it takes time to establish it and get it upon a sound and self-sustaining basis; and when once it sustains serious blows, it is exceedingly difficult to recover the ground lost. This is a fact well worth considering by the friends and supporters of our Conference organ in this time of extreme exigency. Assistance given now would be vastly more effective than it would later on, when the affairs of the Advocate are in a state of collapse and our advertising patronage has gone elsewhere.

The business of our office is conducted about as economically as is possible. Nobody is making any money out of the Advocate. There has not been a year since his connection with it that the Editor's expenses have not amounted to considerably more than his salary. The Publisher is not supported by the earnings of the paper, but almost wholly by his outside work. Our working force is at a minimum and is heavily taxed with labor. There is no journal in the Connection with resources so meager that carries more matter than the New Orleans Advocate, or which is issued in better form. We challenge comparison with other publications in this respect. This is a stronger testimonial to the faithfulness of our small office force than any that could be expressed in mere words.

There was never a greater need to maintain the Advocate upon an efficient basis than there is now. All the interests of the Church and Kingdom demand that this should be done. There are sacred causes of vast importance that need its support, and there are menacing evils on every side that ought to be vigorously combated. We appeal to you, brethren, to stand by the paper that it may worthily do its part in meeting these great issues. It is for this reason that we plead for your assistance, and not because we have any selfish interest in the matter.

May we not ask you, brother pastor, to take up at once the work of securing the renewal of the expired subscriptions in your charge? It would help immensely if you would do this. If all our preachers would do as well in securing such renewals as some have done, the situation would soon wear a different aspect. But some of our pastors, we regret to say, seem to be utterly indifferent to the claims of the paper, and in some instances this is true of the men serving our largest churches, where we ought to have the most patronage. In conclusion, we appeal to every one who feels any interest in the Conference organ, whether preacher, layman, or lay woman, to lend us forthwith a helping hand in this crucial hour. As we have already said, NOW is the time to render assistance that will count for most.

UNCONSCIOUS INFLUENCE.

The following is a brief extract from the very able Annual Sermon delivered by Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburgh, Pa., the retiring Moderator of the General Assembly of the Northern Presbyterian Church, during the recent session of that body at Rochester, N. Y.:

"It has been told of a minister of Christ that, as he lay dying, some one said to him: 'It must be a great joy to you to think of those whom you have led to the Master.' 'Ah,' said he, 'it is the grief of my life that of none I can say I was the means of leading him to Christ. I have preached and taught and spoken, but I cannot point to one and say, I brought him.' After his death, as they laid his body to rest, some men stood by his grave deeply moved, so much so that the minister said to them, 'Did you know our friend?' 'No,' they replied. 'We did not know him, but through him and through his presentation of the cross and the Savior's precious blood we have made our salvation sure.' For such the joy will be full as their sight falls on 'ten thousand times ten thousand,' among whom are the unknown trophies of their ministry."

A man who lives in touch with the Master and faithfuly does his duty can never be certain as to what he is accomplishing. The working of the Holy Spirit in human hearts and lives cannot always be traced and measured, and one often exerts an influence of which one knows nothing. Elijah at the time of his despondency thought that there were no Christians left in Israel; but there were seven thousand who had not bowed the knee to Baal, and, though he was unaware of it, perhaps every one of them had been strengthened and braced by his splendid faith and heroism upon the heights of Carmel. There is a vast amount of "good done of which we can never predicate the when or where." The bringing to light of these unknown results will doubtless furnish some of the greatest surprises that we shall have in eternity. And this will likely be true not only as to the influence of ministers, but also as to that of the humblest disciples of Jesus who are devoted to their Lord and who "keep their lamps trimmed and brightly burning."

AN ISSUE THAT WILL NOT DOWN.

At the eighty-eighth Annual Council of the Mississippi Diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church, recently held in Yazoo City, a resolution approving of the proposal now pending in that denomination to constitute certain districts in the South, with Negro Bishops, was passed. Commenting upon this action in the Southwestern Christian Advocate, a Northern Methodist journal, a colored minister, after expressing the view that it will probably exercise some influence upon the settlement of this same issue in the Methodist Episcopal Church, says: "It is not what the Church has done or is doing for us that counts for most these times, but what she will allow us to do for ourselves." Dr. R. E. Jones, the editor, who is one of the ablest and most influential Negro preachers in the South, endorses this utterance in the following language: "Brother Lee is right in his observation. It is a reflection on their manhood for men to permit others to do for them what they can do for themselves; and it is an imposition for men to insist on doing for others what they may do for themselves." Evidently this question is one which is not going to down in our Sister Church.

NOT THE APOSTOLIC IDEAL.

According to the Scriptures, God sought to separate his messengers from the entanglements of the world and to make them men of one work. Paul said to the Corinthians, "For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ and him crucified." To-day, however, the doctrine is being scattered abroad that the Christian minister ought to be a dabbler in pretty nearly everything—a sort of jack of all trades. This latter teaching is perhaps one of the ascertainments of gentlemen who feel that they are called upon to discover new religious truth. However, in all probability it will in the end turn out to be one of the old devices of his adroit Satanic Majesty revamped and made to do service again.

When a great congregation thinks that running a little local school is the biggest thing that it can do it needs a new vision of the meaning of the "Great Commission."

THE TIDE IS SURE TO WIN.

On the far reef the breakers
Recoil in shattered foam,
But still the sea behind them
Urges its forces home.
Its chant of triumph surges
Through all the thund'rous din,
The wave may break in failure,
But the tide is sure to win.

The reef is strong and cruel,
Upon its jagged wall,
One wave, a score, a hundred,
Broken and beaten fall;
But in defeat they conquer,
The sea comes flooding in,
Wave upon wave is routed,
But the tide is sure to win.

O mighty sea, thy message,
In clanging spray is cast:
Within God's plan of progress,
It matters not at last
How wide the shores of evil,
How strong the reefs of sin;
The wave may be defeated,
But the tide is sure to win.

—Christian Observer.

HEAVEN WITHIN.

The immortal life may be said to surround us perpetually. Some beams of its glory shine upon us in whatever is lovely, heroic and virtuously happy in ourselves or in others. * * * Heaven is in truth revealed to us in every pure affection of the human heart, and in every wise and beneficent action that uplifts the soul in adoration and gratitude. * * * The pure mind carries heaven within itself, and manifests that heaven to all around.—William Ellery Channing.

BETTER TO-MORROW.

There is hardly an individual whose life is so prescribed that there is not the possibility of doing better to-morrow. The battle may have gone most wretchedly to-day—we may have been driven ingloriously from the field, and our colors may even now be torn and trailing in the dust; but what of that? There is to be a to-morrow—we may do better to-morrow.

A to-morrow is fraught with marvelous possibilities. To-day's record has been written; to-morrow's portion is a clean page whereon each one of us may write nothing but courageous deeds and noble efforts. To-morrow may be the best day we have ever lived!—Zion's Herald.

TRUE HUMILITY.

Humility never sees itself. And we cannot cultivate humility by striving for it. One who writes that "humility is at once the most necessary and the most difficult of all the Christian graces for flesh and blood to practice," quotes the lines:

"'Tis so rare, so delicate a thing,
That if it dare to look upon itself 'tis gone—
And they who venture to esteem it theirs
Prove by the very thought they have it not."

To turn forever away from self is to enter upon the pathway of humility. But it takes a power beyond our own to abandon self; and Christ is that power. Receiving him as our life, and fixing our whole gaze upon him, we may so forget self that others, unknown to us, will see in us the selfless humility of God.—Sunday School Times.

READ THE BIBLE.

C. H. Spurgeon.

Read the Bible and it brings you into the association of the best people that ever lived. You stand beside Moses, and learn his meekness; beside Job, and learn his patience; beside Abraham, and learn his faith; beside Daniel, and learn his courage to do right; beside Isaiah, and learn his fiery indignation toward the evil-doer; beside Paul, and catch something of his enthusiasm; beside Christ, and you feel his love.

UNION SEMINARY.

(We take the statement appearing below from a recent number of the Presbyterian of Philadelphia. We wonder if these words are not somewhat prophetic of the future relation of the Southern Methodist Church to a certain institution that has figured prominently in its past history? From present indications, we rather fear so. The italics in the quoted utterance are ours. —Editor's note.)

Ever since Union Seminary renounced the jurisdiction of the Presbyterian Church, that Seminary has been a thorn in the side of the Presbyterian Church. This has arisen because of the activity and controlling influence of men connected with this Seminary in New York Presbytery, and because of the unsound doctrine taught in this institution. By means of the influence of these men, a number of their students of unsound faith have been admitted through this Presbytery into the ministry of the Presbyterian Church. New York Presbytery and the Seminary have ignored every criticism. Finally, at Atlanta, the Assembly appointed a committee to investigate the whole question of the relation of Union Seminary to the Prebyterian Church, U. S. A., legally, doctrinally, and ecclesiastically. For two years this committee, composed of able clergymen, and laymen most of whom are eminent attorneys, have labored diligently upon these questions, and are prepared to present to the Assembly a unanimous report. We presume that the Blue Book will contain it, and a copy of this book will be sent to each commissioner. We bespeak diligence and faithfulness at this point that this may be issued in a way that will forever settle the whole question, relieving both the Seminary and the Presbyterian Church from further annoyance and irritation. This can never be done until the Church has done her full duty. Dodging and compromise and concession will only prolong the anguish, and increase the irritation. The one legal question is this, Are any of the funds of the Union Seminary, trust funds of the Presbyterian Church? If there are such funds, then the Church cannot escape her duty in the discharge of the trust which she once accepted. If she does, she destroys that confidence for the future upon which such trusts are made. She should institute such legal actions as will enable her to fulfill her trust. If the report of this committee plainly shows that there are no such trust funds, then the Presbyterian Church should disclaim all such obligation, and send the Seminary away in peace. If the report shows that, doctrinally, this Seminary is in opposition to the doctrines and faith of the Presbyterian Church, then action should be taken, notifying Presbyteries of such unsoundness, and forbidding them to send their students to this seminary, and to license or ordain men from this seminary, until they have spent a given time under the care of the Presbytery, and have completed a course under another connection. The legal and doctrinal relations will logically solve the ecclesiastical. The great danger to be avoided is the permitting this report to pass on a simple statement of the case. Should the report embody recommendations, they should have particular attention; should there be no recommendations, the report should be referred to the Committee on Bills and Overtures, or some specially appointed committee, to prepare recommendations for action. By all means, let this Assebmly issue the case definitely.

HYPOCRISY.

By Hon. W. A. Belk.

Only last week a little girl friend of mine reminded me that she had not seen an article from me in the Advocate for some time. I asked her on what subject I should write, and to my surprise she readily replied that she wished I would write on the subject of "Hypocrisy." I proceeded to discuss the subject with her briefly and learned that, though young, she already considers this one of the greatest sins, if not crimes, incident to the human race. I endeavored to direct her mind to that side of human nature where faith abides and to impress her with the thought that there is always much good in every one. But somehow she seemed to know intuitively that "hypocrisy" lurks like a hidden serpent just beneath a smiling face.

I believe it was Shakespeare who said:

"To beguile the time,
Look like the time; bear welcome in your eyes,
Your hand, your tongue; look like the innocent flower,
But be the serpent under it."

And it was this same writer who again said this: "If the devil ever laughs, it must be at hypocrites," and he further declared that the devil can cite Scripture for his purpose. And Fuller has said, "Trust not him who seems a saint."

In particular, do I ask for a little space in your paper to place emphasis, especially at this time, upon Fuller's laconic expression. In our State, Mississippi, this is what we call a "political year." Candidates for every office from Governor down are to be nominated on August 3. The woods are full of candidates. Many young men are seeking office, perhaps for the first time. They must necessarily meet and mix with the people. It is a time when all candidates are expected to put up a good handshake, look pleasant and have no opinions about anything, and yet know all about everything. They are out after votes, and there seems to be a common idea that "to get votes" is the only thing to be looked to. I wish this idea did not obtain so generally. I wish also to warn the young politicians (it will hardly avail to warn the old ones) not to practice deception in this campaign. I would urge upon them to get out into the middle of the road in the open sunshine and make a clean, fair and manly race. Do not practice "hypocrisy." It were better to go down in temporary defeat than to win by questionable methods. A man may succeed in deceiving his constituency for a while, but it will not last. Let us never forget what Abraham Lincoln once said: "You may fool all the people some of the time; and some of the people all the time, but you can not fool ALL the people for ALL the time." They are watching you in your every move and they do not ever forget what Fuller said, "Trust not him who seems a saint."

I once heard a hardened sinner say that if a man who had been trying to be a Christian should come to him and ask him to become a Christian, and at the same time should admit his own shortcomings, he would have faith in him. But, if on the other hand, he were to approach him and tell him that he was "holy" and had reached that place in life where he "could not sin," he would spurn him because he would regard him just as Fuller did in the sentence quoted above.

I am not unmindful, however, of what David Harum said: "There is as much human nature in some folks as there is in others, if not more." Therefore in one's race for office and dealings with mankind it behooves one to be on the alert. There is never anything lasting to be gained by "hypocrisy." A temporary victory gained by tricks and trafficking will turn upon us and smite us at a time when it will hurt the worst. Let us meet our duties "four square" and stand up like men and fight our battles in the open.

"God give us men—a time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands.
Men whom the lust of office does not kill,
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy,
Men who possess opinions and a will,
Men who have honor, who will not lie.
Men who can stand before a demagogue and
Scorn his treacherous flatteries without winking:
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog,
In public duty and in private thinking."

WHAT MISTAH TROUBLE DID.

Ol' Mistah Trouble, he come aroun' one day
An' say, "I gwinter git you, so you better run away!
I likes to see you hustle. Dat's de way I has my fun.
I knows I kin ketch up to you, no matter how you run!"

I says, "Mistah Trouble, you has been a-chasing me
Ever since I kin remember, an' I'se tired as I kin be.
So I's gwinter stop right yere, an' turn aroun', a-facin' you,
An' lick you if I kin, an' fin' out jest what you kin do."

Ol' Mistah Trouble, he looked mightily ashamed,
He acted like a buckin'-hoss dat's suddenly been tamed;
An' den he turned an' traveled off, a-hollerin', "Good day;
I ain't got time to fool around, wif folks dat acts dat way."

A LOUISIANA RURAL CHURCH.

Dear Dr. Meek: Apropos of some discussion in recent issues of the Advocate concerning the country church, I am appending hereto an article clipped from the Tensas Gazette, written by one who had attended one of the meetings at Wesley's Chapel, one of the country appointments on the Waterproof (La.) charge.

Wesley's Chapel has stood for nearly three quarters of a century, and there has been connected with it some of the most illustrious names in Louisiana Methodism. It is a land-mark—a point from which directions and distances are reckoned for a large scope of country. Indeed, it is a "meeting-house" for almost the entire parish. On the one Sunday in the month that we hold services there, the people gather from miles around, many coming from the nearby towns. They bring well-filled baskets, the contents of which, after the morning service, are spread upon long tables, when the pastor and people, high and low, rich and poor, gather around and partake of a feast. And such a feast! Doctor, I wish you could come out here some time and worship and associate, and eat, with these people. You have in the city your fine churches, pipe organs, trained choirs, cultured and dignified preachers. You have your "Get Aquainted" meetings, with course luncheons in the parlor of the church; all of which are characterized by a stiff formality that makes one glad when the ceremonies are over and one can go home.

After the dinner, we have our "Get Aquainted meeting"—if there happens to be any one there who is not already acquainted with everybody else—not in the parlor of the church, but out under the trees. There is a season of mingling in Christian fellowship, and late in the afternoon all go home, feeling that it was good to have been there, and looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to the next preaching day at Wesley.

GEO. FOX.

The article referred to by Brother Fox follows:

Sunday at the "Little Church at Wesley."

In this beautiful world of ours, full of life and color, every thought, every influence that impresses the sense of beauty as it sinks into man's consciousness, is just so much added to his uplift.

Far out in the country, hidden away from the world in one of Nature's most beautiful spots, stands the Church of Wesley. Amid forest trees, in golden silence, through changing scenes of winter storms and summer calm it stands, a modest house of prayer, a meeting ground, where kindly lifting words are said and "toilers drop for an hour their load of care."

No stately towers rise above to catch the first promise of the morning sun; its mission of simple dignity is more of an appeal than that of churches more pretentious, and each year it brings the blessings of a peaceful age, happy memories of the past, and brighter gleams of confidence to glint the future.

Nearby in the leaf shadows are the graves of those who, even in their triumph hour, look backward to beckon others to the shining goal, faces long hid under the clinging vines, which put forth their tendrils like an infant's fingers seeking its mother's touch.

Along the road all golden with dust the warm air is filled with the fragrant sweetness of new blown buds and leaves, giving out their perfume like incense from a censer. Against the dim blue in the bright sunlight flutter clouds of yellow butterflies fresh from the chrysalis; full of the freedom of life, spirit wings, that go winging into the future, away from the old discouragements, into fresh faith in the Creator, giving that promise of man's transition to immortality.

Shall we speak of this perfect spot and days without a fitting tribute to the good shepherd under whose guidance these meetings are held? Living his life in the sunlight he feels no fear of the shadows, for without their somber tints no life would be complete. Strong of heart and brain, steadfast in purpose, loyal to friends, pursuing the right as he sees it, he needs no herald to proclaim his virtues. And if pride is ever justifiable it is when it springs, not from grandeur or glory, but from benevolence and a realization of a life well spent—an ideal that makes life worth while—a life of content and faith—the best the world can give to man!

May these meetings grow in favor until we become better men, better women and better Christians!

"And when this life is ended, with its sorrows and its sighs;
May the little Church at Wesley jine the big Church in the skies."

SHUBUTA, AND SOME REFLECTIONS.

Yes, we are in Shubuta, Miss., have been here more than three weeks with our youngest son, O. S. Lewis. This is a beautiful town of some 1200 inhabitants. Good people live here. A little more of the "one thing needful" among our Methodist people would not be out of place.

For more than 55 years the M. & O. R. R. has been running through this country. There were Methodist preachers here long before the railroad was thought of in this section. They left their footprints behind them. The time was when the officers of the law, District Judge and District Attorney, and others interested in the enforcement of the law, in going from county to county, did not ride in Pullman cars but went on horseback or in a buggy. The following was told me by my father when I was a boy. Two men, Judge Watts and Judge Mounger, were going from one county where they had just closed court to where the next court was to be held. Night found them in the home of a stanch Methodist woman. After supper the good woman told her guests that it was her custom to have family worship in her home every night. She then presented her Bible to Judge Watts and asked him if he would read. He declined, saying he would rather join her, etc. Judge Mounger did the same. The good woman read a Scripture lesson, sang that grand old song, "A Charge to Keep I Have," after which she led in an earnest, fervent prayer. Among other things, she asked the Lord to impress upon each of her distinguished guests the fact that the time was coming when they would be brought face to face with the great Judge of all, to be tried, etc. The lesson, song and prayer were listened to attentively and proved to be seed sown in good ground. It led to the conversion of both men; both were licensed to preach, and lived useful lives afterwards. Judge Mounger was the father of our Dr. E. H. Mounger who has been doing good work as an itinerant Methodist preacher for more than fifty years. How we do need more such consecrated women in our land!

The early Methodists of this country, with some exceptions, were fearless men and women of God who maintained family worship in their homes. The following was told me when I was young: A preacher was sent to a church that, at one time in the past, was noted for its deep, solid piety. While waiting for his congregation, the preacher got in conversation with a carriage driver about the church. He asked the colored brother the cause of the great decline in spirituality. The negro remarked: "Dat is easily accounted for. De time was when dese peepuls kept de fire burning on dere home alters. When dey come to church ebry one brought a chunk of fire from home, put am togeder, and when de preacher began to blow (preach) de fire blazed up and warmed up de whole house." "But," said he, "do fire is all gone out on de home alters, so now, dey bring, instead of fire, a few wet matches; so de preacher has to scrape a week before he can raise even a smoke."

How we do need to keep the fire burning on our home altars! It helps the people; it is an inspiration to the preacher. Where are we drifting?

CANDLER ON GUARD.

In a recent letter to the New Orleans Christian Advocate I expressed solicitude about the absorption by Emory University of the Atlanta Medical College, on the ground that by taking in a whole faculty in this way there is danger of introducing teachers who are out of harmony with the ideals of the institution. I wrote to Bishop Candler about it, and I think it is simple justice to the cause to quote for the readers of the Advocate a few words from his letter in reply to mine. The letter was private, but I am sure the writer will not object to my public use of its contents. Bishop Candler says: "I shall guard against the manifest dangers which naturally inhere in such a department. A large part of the present faculty are members of the Methodist Church, and an overwhelming majority are Methodists, Baptists, and Presbyterians. I think we can maintain it on a wholesome religious plane, as well as lift it to a higher professional standard." This being the case, let us throw all our influence to have our Methodist young men, and all others who desire to study medicine, go to this University instead of to Vanderbilt, which has openly repudiated the Church.

I see, by the way, they are going to run an "independent" theological school at Vanderbilt. Whatever may be true of the rest of Vanderbilt University, that department was stolen from the Methodist Church. I gave a hundred dollars myself to help start it, and that hundred dollars was more to me than Vanderbilt's $500,000 was to him. He did not eat a steak less for what he gave, while I had to eat round steak instead of porterhouse. I did it gladly to help build up Vanderbilt. For one, I want no "independent" theology that has no respect for the commandment, "Thou shalt not steal."

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

RUSTON DISTRICT NOTES.

The year opened hopefully on the district. Every place was pleased with its preacher, and I have heard no word of complaint from the preachers. For the first three months all the preachers were greatly interfered with by the unprecedented weather, some churches being cut out of services for the entire time. In spite of this handicap, most of the works have responded to the call of duty and, notwithstanding the bad business situation, financially the first quarter of this year was not very far behind the first of last year.

There were not a great many changes in the district. We have a fine body of men, faithfully doing the work committed to them. We have had a great loss at Alberta. The mill there has cut out the timber and almost all of our people there have gone. By the end of the year all will have gone. The moving of that body of good people from our State is a distinct loss. Take Davenport, Mitchell, Shamberger, Cooper, Uncle John Allen and his sons and sons-in-law out of a community, and they will be missed. This loss will require a readjustment on the east side of the district. You see that Roberts is preaching to a moving congregation.

We have in our district the oldest active man in the Conference, Brother J. M. Brown. He reads the latest books that are worth while and keeps in touch with current thought. His talks at our Missionary Institute were a help and inspiration to all. I expect he has served one church longer than any other preacher. He is preaching to one of his congregations for the tenth year, and the folks there don't think he has preached out yet.

Porter has done a good work on Bienville circuit. He has done better for his people than they have done for him. I believe Porter can build a church anywhere. I would risk him to build a Christian Church in Constantinople, starting with nothing. He has built at Bryceland one of the nicest little town churches I ever saw, and when it was finished, minus painting alone, he faced a debt of about $60.

Frazier, at Bernice, has the best church building in Union Parish. This house was made possible by the kindness and unremitting work of Geo. W. James, who, though not of our people, loves our folks and has by his help and zeal caused our people there to realize what was for a long time only a hope. Frazier is doing better there than he thinks. He is a fine young fellow, well equipped, and will get somewhere. He is working single and is rather coltish; but he gets on the way. He has a parsonage on his hands!

Snelling, at Homer, reported 29 accessions up to the last of April. His people are delighted. I have had the largest attendance at conferences at Homer that I ever saw there, and so far the largest in the district. Interest is growing.

Bogan, at Winnfield, is doing a good work. His meeting recently held resulted in 30 additions.

Bennett, at Jonesboro, is moving things up in those parts. He has built an addition to his church at Jonesboro to accommodate his Sunday school. Jonesboro is coming to the front, having taken two Sundays in the month since Conference.

Akin, at Elmore, has a fine hold on his people and is expecting good results from his meetings this year. Last year he struck the rainy season and all of his meetings were rained out.

McCain, at Dubach, is in fine favor with his people and is the only preacher in the district who has paid his Foreign and Home missionary assessments and the Centenary Special—all three. His people at Dubach are talking a new church.

Sloane, at Gibbsland, thinks he's traveling through the "land of corn and wine." Brother Bennett did two years of good work there and Brother Sloane is going to find a great harvest to be garnered in. Both he and his people are alive to this. I am looking for great things at Gibbsland this year.

Faulk, at Sibley, is growing on his people. Last year he had the greatest number of accessions in the district. The promise for another good year is very bright.

Our two four-year men, Lay and Embree, have each done splendid work for the quadrennium—one at Simsboro and the other at Plain Dealing.

Minden is going ahead under the leadership of Shankle, and has attained an importance it has not hitherto had. It is an appointment which if any man desires, you may say with Paul, "He is ambitious for a noble task."

Perry, at Haynesville, has done a work that will abide. He is a constructive preacher, devoted to his task and sympathetic with his people.

Kleinschmidt is doing a fine work on his circuit. His people requested him to hold his own meetings this year. A good sign! Wish this would become more general. More lasting results would be the outcome.

Ringgold was struck pretty hard last year, by the failure of crops to a large extent, as well as by the general financial depression; but the work is doing very well this year. Brother Vandenburg has been handicapped some by the condition of his health. He is improving now, however, and the outlook for the year is more hopeful than for last year.

Means, at Arcadia, is in fine favor. The Sunday school and congregations are growing. His people say they have the best preacher. I guess that helps him to be so.

Cody, at Cotton Valley, together with a local preacher, is trying to supply the Gospel to the towns and country adjacent. This may mean quite an enlargement of the work in that region.

Henry, at Ruston, is preaching fine sermons to fine congregations and is in favor with them. He is giving his people a fine course in missionary intelligence and obligation, which is a thing greatly needed in this part of the State where there are so many people of the "contrary part."

On the whole, things are doing fairly well.

Mr. Editor, you are hereby cordially invited to attend the District Conference at Plain Dealing.

BRISCOE CARTER.

MRS F. A. WHITSON DEAD.

Dear Brother Meek: My sister, Mrs. Nannie Whitson, widow of Rev. F. A. Whitson, formerly a member of the North Mississippi Conference, passed away at Jackson, Miss., last Saturday afternoon. For about seven weeks she had been in the Baptist Hospital there, but all that the doctors could do was unavailing. She was buried in Cedar Hill Cemetery after appropriate services at the First Methodist Church, led by Dr. W. G. Henry.

My sister was a truly good woman. She had struggled heroically to educate her children, setting them a conspicuous example of fidelity and economy. She lived well the years God gave her, never forgetting the Church and the services of the sanctuary. Her end was peace. She died well because she had lived well. E. S. LEWIS.

Oxford, Miss., May 27, 1915.

Sister Whitson, whose death is announced above, was a daughter of Brother J. A. Lewis, one of the most highly esteemed citizens of Chickasaw County, and a sister of Rev. T. W. Lewis, of Memphis, and Rev. E. S. Lewis, of the North Mississippi Conference, to whom we are indebted for this brief notice. She was reared in a Christian home and throughout her life was faithful to the Master. Her deceased husband, Rev. F. A. Whitson, was a consecrated and useful minister, and during the time that he was in the itinerancy Sister Whitson showed much interest in his work and sought in every way to re-enforce his efforts. She moved to Jackson, Miss., some years ago for the purpose of educating her children. She kept the faith, wrought well in life, and doubtless was given an abundant entrance into our Lord's everlasting kingdom in the skies. We extend sympathy to the bereaved, and pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort and sustain them.

(This Department is conducted by Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education, and Rev. A. J. Gearheard, P uhlicity Commissioner.)

ARE THE PREACHERS INTERESTED?

It is natural for the question to be asked, in reference to the move for a greater Centenary, Are the preachers interested? We are waiting for a full answer to this question, and much of the success of the whole movement will depend on what that answer is. In part, that answer has been indicated by the work for the Centenary Special. About half of the pastors have reported so far as indicated by the report of the treasurer, and about one-third of the total assessment has been raised. This indicates that a considerable number of the pastors have made no definite effort to carry out the order of the Conference.

Another indication is to be found in response to the appeal made to the preachers for personal contributions. In addition to the nineteen members of the Conference who had made subscriptions at Shreveport, and who did not receive a letter in reference to the matter, letters were written to about one hundred and thirty, soliciting a personal subscription to the College, on the assumption that though these subscriptions might not be large, the united offerings of the preachers would inspire others to make larger gifts. In response to this letter, about a dozen replies have been received. Most of these have been favorable, bringing a total subscription of about five or six hundred dollars. A few have expressed regret at their inability, or intention to subscribe later. The majority have not acknowledged receipt. We are wondering how much the preachers are interested. We would be glad to hear from each one if it is only a kick. But let it be remembered that in the final outcome of our campaign the future of Centenary, whether it will be a success or failure, will depend on the answer to this question, Are the preachers interested?

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES.

We are all more or less interested in Commencements right now. High schools are turning out the finished product of our public school system in the form of graduated boys and girls. Many of these graduates are ambitious to reach the top in some line of work or in some profession. They expect to enter college. These college-trained men and women will be the leaders in all walks of life within a few years. If they are trained for the first eleven years of their school life in the public schools where the Bible is crowded out, and then are finished in a college or university where oftentimes the Bible is not only left out, but where Christianity is ignored and in places even scorned, what brand of leadership may you expect from men and women thus trained?

It appears to the thinking mind that the higher training of the youth of this age should be under distinctly Christian influences. It stands to reason that a Methodist father and mother would be anxious about their son or daughter. If so, parents should insist that these children be sent to the church college. There is no better place in the State to send a young lady than to Mansfield College. There is no better place in the State to send a young man than to Centenary College. The reader of this article may not have a son or daughter finishing high school this year, but you may know those who are being graduated from your high school. As an individual, whose responsibility for all you do is to God, with the interest of the Church at heart, and with loving anxiety for the ultimate good of all young men and women, will you not sit down right now and send to Dr. R. H. Wynn, Shreveport, La., the names of all the Methodist boys who are finishing the high school in your town or community? And then will you not send to Prof. R. E. Bobbitt, Mansfield, La., the names of all the Methodist girls finishing high schools this year? Do this, and you will have done a worthy thing.

BIGNESS NOT ALWAYS BEST.

The following excerpt from an editorial which appeared in The Times-Picayune some weeks ago is pertinent to the campaign now on in behalf of Centenary College, although it was written in opposition to the suggestion made by Ex-President Taft that Federal aid should be invoked to establish a great National University:

"Many persons are carried away by the very idea of having the biggest university in the world, for mere bigness is always very strong in America. * * * * * But these temptations should none the less be resisted. A big university is not necessarily the best. On the contrary, we have secured the best returns from the smaller ones, scattered as they are through the country, giving the youth everywhere a chance of securing higher education."

CENTENARY BOARD MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of Centenary College will be held in the Scales Bible Class Room, First Methodist Church, Shreveport, La., on Tuesday, June 8, 1915, at 10 a. m. (Signed) S. C. FULLILOVE,

May 20, 1915. Secretary.

THE SPECIAL.

About a third of the Centenary special assessment has so far been reported. Information is received that other charges are working on it successfully, and will shortly be heard from. It is very important for many reasons that full returns be sent to the treasurer at the earliest date possible. Let every charge push the matter at once, unless it has already been reported in full.

Prosperity is a painted window, which shuts out much of the clear light of God, and only when the blue, and the crimson, and the golden tinge are removed, is the glass restored to its full transparency. Adversity thus takes away tinge, and color, and dimness, and we see our God far better than before, if our eyes are prepared for the light. —Spurgeon.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE EVANGELISTIC COMMITTEE.

The Evangelistic Committee appointed by the Louisiana Conference at its recent session was unable to find time during the session to meet and work out plans of constructive work, and being obliged to plan their work by correspondence, have been unable hitherto to lay any suggestions before the members of the Conference. It is the purpose of this communication to bring the matter to the attention of the preachers and the suggestions herein are commended to your consideration and adoption.

It is not necessary for us to urge the need of a general and spiritually effective revival throughout our Conference, nor to insist that such a revival can only come as the result of a Divine Movement. Our purpose is rather to suggest plans through which the Holy Spirit may effectually work.

In the first place, may not every presiding elder and pastor, and many of our lay members, unite in a definite covenant of prayer, notifying the Secretary of the Evangelistic Committee, Rev. J. G. Snelling, Homer, La., of their pledge to pray daily for a revival throughout our Conference?

We urge upon all our pastors the necessity of encouraging and developing personal evangelism among their members, recognizing the fact that the normal method of bringing men to Jesus is the method of personal effort exemplified by the first disciples. In line with this suggestion we call attention to the campaigns of personal evangelism carried on recently in St. Louis and other cities, and particularly recommended to every pastor the careful study of "Evangelism Exemplified," by Rev. L. E. Todd.

In order further to promote a general revival, your committee, in the absence of a Conference evangelist, are working out plans looking to the supplying of evangelistic help by pastors, in which we request the co-operation of all concerned. We are asking a number of successful pastors to give assistance in revival meetings where it may be needed, and hope in this way to arrange a comprehensive plan of revival effort throughout the Conference.

Let us have a widespread revival this year throughout our borders.

W. WINANS DRAKE,
For Louisiana Conference Evangelistic Committee.

PARENTS SADLY BEREAVED.

Dear Doctor Meek: Brother and Sister W. A. Terry of Madison, Miss., are greatly bereaved in the death of their infant daughter, Fannie Lou, which sad event occurred at their parsonage home, on Tuesday afternoon, May 25. For eighteen months and twenty-three days this little jewel was spared to bless the home of her parents, but now she has gone to live with Him who said, "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

The funeral was held in the Methodist Church at Madison at 10 a. m., on May 26, being conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. W. H. Lewis. In the village cemetery the little form was laid away to await the glorious resurrection morn. PAUL D. HARDEN.

Jackson, Miss.

TO THE PASTORS OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: Did you read the report from the Treasurer of the Joint Board of Finance recently published in the Advocate? We need, in order to pay the worthy claimants of our Conference what we owe them, $6000, and up to the time the Treasurer made his report we had received about $1500. How can we pay them? The letters we receive from some of them are pathetic—some of them distressing. I note the leading churches, with but very few exceptions, have done nothing. Brethren, please—six times please—take this collection and let Brother Tomlinson have it. The old veterans will rejoice. Can we expect it at once?

W. M. SULLIVAN.
Secretary Joint Board of Finance.

Church News

It has been announced that the Hon. and Mrs. W. J. Bryan will erect in Nebraska, where it is urgently needed, a Methodist Church in honor of Mrs. Bryan's mother, who was a devout Methodist.

Bishop J. S. Key attended the recent meeting of the College of Bishops of the M. E. Church, South, in St. Louis. His health is reported to be comparatively good, but his eyesight is very much impaired.

Though he was placed on the retired list at the last General Conference, held in Oklahoma City, Bishop A. W. Wilson continues to fill many engagements. It is stated that he yet preaches with masterful ability.

Dr. T. N. Ivey, editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, preached the Commencement sermon at Henderson-Brown College, at Arkadelphia, Ark., on Sunday, May 30. The sermon before the Y. M. C. A. of the College was preached at the evening hour of the same day by Dr. Theo. Copeland, of Hot Springs, Ark.

In the five weeks' revival campaign conducted in Charlotte, N. C., by Dr. Chapman and Mr. Alexander there were 846 conversions, 758 reclamation of backsliders, and 162 persons residing in the city of Charlotte who applied for church membership. A Pocket Testament League was organized with more than 2000 members.

The New Zealand Methodist Conference has abolished the time limit. We regret to note this. When the time limit goes, the itinerancy is greatly weakened. In the Northern Methodist Church, for instance, churches are calling pastors on every side apparently without the least thought that such a course of procedure is unmethodistic.

At the late session of our College of Bishops in St. Louis, Dr. E. B. Chappell, our Sunday School Editor, was appointed fraternal messenger to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which will be held at Saratoga Springs, New York, in May, 1916. Dr. Chappell will worthily represent Southern Methodists before that great assembly.

We regret to note that Dr. James Cannon, of Virginia, has recently been quite ill, but are pleased to learn that he is convalescing. Dr. Cannon states that this is the first time in eight years that he has been confined to his bed by sickness. He expects to move his family from Richmond to Blackstone, where he will hereafter reside, early in June.

Dr. W. F. Melton, Professor of English in Emory College, in writing to the Atlanta Constitution, states that that institution has had a class in journalism for the past three years, though not on a very extensive scale. He suggests that this antecedent work opens the way for the establishment of a comprehensive School of Journalism in connection with our new University in Atlanta.

The Raleigh Christian Advocate says: "We see it announced that Dr. F. N. Parker is to leave Trinity College after this scholastic year and has accepted the Chair of Systematic Theology in Emory University, Atlanta, Ga. Dr. Parker is easily one of the ablest men in Southern Methodism, scholarly, spiritual, evangelical. He is admirably fitted for the work to which he is going, and he will render the whole Church there a valuable service; but we regret exceedingly to see him leave Trinity College."

The Western Methodist says: "The General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church last year sent a request to the Presbyteries to elect at least half of their representatives to the Assembly from among former members, so that there might be no scarcity of experienced men in the body; but the Presbyteries seemed to resent the suggestion, as it was declined by 53 and acquiesced in by only 2." It strikes us that this action did smack rather too much of an effort to dictate in the matter.

According to report, Bishop Hamilton, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has been exempted from the duty of holding any fall Conferences in order that he may have ample time to prepare the Episcopal Address to the General Conference of that denomination next May. Bishop W. A. Candler, amid well-nigh innumerable engagements, wrote for our General Conference last year the ablest Episcopal Address ever delivered in the United States; but not every Bishop measures up to the intellectual stature of our great Georgia Chief Pastor. But this is none of our affair. The only objection that we have to this arrangement is that we are always afraid of the contagion of a bad example.

A delegation of 500 men from New York City called on Billy Sunday at Patterson, N. J., on May 25 and extended to him an invitation to conduct a revival campaign in that great metropolis. The well known Methodist minister, Dr. Charles L. Goodell was their spokesman. Speaking in the tabernacle erected for the famous evangelist, he said: "We have with us here the Vice-President of the Board of Aldermen, judges, lawyers and ministers. We all want Billy Sunday to come to us. We want him on the Bowery, and we want him on Fifth Avenue. Episcopalians, Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists, and members of the Dutch Reformed Church have sent us down here to get him to come to New York as quickly as possible." It is said that Mr. Sunday gave the gentlemen no definite promise.

ECHOES FROM THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

(Sent out from the General Office at Louisville, Ky.)

The assessment for Church Extension for the fiscal year 1915-1916 remains the same as last year—$300,000.

* * *

Every member of the Board was present at the opening session, Thursday morning, May 6, in St. John's Church, St. Louis, Missouri.

* * *

The Board by formal action requested a full meeting of the Conference Board representatives in connection with the Annual Meeting of 1916.

* * *

There have been distributed during the year from the office of the Board, and without charge, 132,395 copies, or 5,375,905 pages, of printed matter.

* * *

There were applications for about five times as much money as the Board could grant, and the sifting process, though painful and tedious, was conscientiously performed.

* * *

A Committee of One was appointed to meet a like Committee from the other connectional Boards and Committees meeting in the spring, and from the College of Bishops, to fix a schedule of dates for the spring meetings. The next Annual Meeting of the Board of Church Extension will be held May 6, 1916.

* * *

The Board expressed a desire that the other connectional Boards and Committees, meeting in the spring, hold their annual meetings in 1916 in Louisville, Kentucky, and participate in the ceremonies of the dedication of the new Church Extension Building. The preparation of the program was placed in the hands of the Executive and Finance Committees.

* * *

The importance of District and City Boards of Church Extension was recognized by the adoption of the following: "As to District and City Boards of Church Extension, we find this important interest is covered by General Conference action. We would urge upon the presiding elders and Bishops to give this department of our work their earnest attention so that these Boards may be organized wherever practicable."

* * *

When the Board concluded its work it had created a docket of donation grants amounting to $125,642.27 and of loan grants amounting to $141,950, or a total in grants to churches and parsonages of $267,592.27. To take care of this docket it will be necessary for every church to pay its assessment on Church Extension in full, and for those churches that have been favored with loans which fall due during the present year to pay same.

* * *

The plans and specifications for the new building now under construction at 1115 South Fourth Street, Louisville, Kentucky, were before the Board and carefully examined by a committee. The Board in adopting the report of the committee said: "We are very much pleased with the plans for our new building. The Executive Committee, and the Architect, Capt. B. B. Davis, have shown good taste and skill in arranging this excellent plan for our future home."

* * *

The receipts on assessment for the fiscal year showed a slight decrease. Concerning this the Board spoke as follows: "We are sorry to notice that $13,217.02 less was received on assesments than last year. We are sure the financial stringency accounts for this. Your Committee most respectfully requests all who deal with the collections to see that there is no discrimination made in favor of any of our collections. If taken in budget, let them share pro rata."

THE HOLMES STORE
OF NEW ORLEANS
is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

SCRATCHING FOR A LIVING.

The speckled hen called her brood of half-grown chicks around her. She wanted to give them some good parting advice.

"My dear children," she said, "the time has come when you are no longer my baby chicks. You are all now large enough to make your own living. I have taught you where to go to look for the nicest worms and how to get them. Now I will have to leave each of you to scratch for a living."

When she said this, her handsome son, who had always been called lazy, threw his head up in the air and said: "Scratch for a living, indeed! Well, I guess not!" And he strutted about the yard, lifting his feet daintily from the ground, as if he were afraid they would become soiled.

"My son," cried the mother, "how do you, then, expect to make your living if you do not scratch?"

By this time all of the barnyard fowls had gathered around.

"How do I expect to make my living?" echoed the son, as he preened and smoothed the glossy feathers in one of his wings. "Mother, you talk as if we were the commonest fowls in the world," and he looked about him in hearty disdain at the plain white chickens and those that wore dark, dull coats.

"Oh, you are all handsome children, as far as that goes," said the mother, "but your beauty will not bring you your breakfast. What are you going to do for something to eat?"

All of the chickens, geese, ducks, and turkeys were anxiously awaiting the young son's reply. They wanted to know what he was planning to do. With a great flirt of his crimson head, he said: "Well, mother, dear, and my good sisters and brothers," turning to them also, "I'm going to sing for my living."

"Sing!" cried his mother.

"Sing!" cried his sisters and brothers, while some of the other fowls boldly smiled.

"Yes, I mean to sing for my living," and he strutted about boastfully.

At this moment a little bird began to sing joyously in the apple tree. He sang as if his little throat would burst. "Sweet, sweet!" he cried.

"There," said the mother hen, "can you sing like that?"

"I am sure I can," replied her son.

"Let's hear you," she said.

"Yes, do, do!" cried the old gray goose.

"Do, do!" cried the other fowls.

"Very well," replied the vain young rooster. "Give me room."

The fowls gave him a clear space under the apple tree. He proudly took his place upon the top of the coop.

"Sweet, sweet!" cried the little bird again.

"There," called the old gray goose, "sing like that."

The young rooster saw that they were all ready to laugh at him if he made a failure, so he threw his head back, flapped his wings and began.

"Sweet!" called the little bird.

"Cock-a-doodle-do!" squeaked the young rooster in a hoarse voice. "Cock-a"—but he could get no further. All of the fowls were laughing at him. The funny old green-headed duck over in the corner quacked and laughed until his sides ached. Even the bossy calf in the next lot mooed with joy. The young rooster's poor mother and sisters were sorry for him, but the other fowls were glad. They thought he had learned a lesson.

The next evening the old gray goose went up to the mother hen. "Where is your handsome son?" she asked.

"Out in the back lot scratching some supper for his sisters," she replied.

Let us learn from this to do those things that we can do and not, like the silly young rooster, try to do those things for which we were never intended.—The Child's Gem.

A GRANDMOTHER'S RULES.

Somebody's grandmother has given to her descendants these admirable rules of conduct:

"Always look at the person to whom you speak. When you are addressed, look straight at the person who speaks to you. Do not forget this.

"Speak your words plainly; do not mutter or mumble. If your words are worth saying, they are worth pronouncing distinctly and clearly.

"Do not say disagreeable things. If you have nothing pleasant to say, keep silent.

"Think three times before you speak once.

"Have you something to do that you find hard and would prefer not to do? Do the hard things first and get over with it. If you have done wrong, go and confess it. If your lesson is tough, master it. If the garden is to be weeded, weed it first and play afterward. Do first the thing you don't like to do, and then with a clear conscience try the rest."—Presbyterian Record.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE.

Professor Mason had a charming wife and family of whom he was very fond, but professorlike, his thoughts were always on his books.

One afternoon, Mrs. Mason went motoring with a party of friends and did not return home until evening. The house seemed remarkably quiet to her. She had left the children playing about, but now they were nowhere to be seen.

"Where are the children, James?" she inquired.

"Why, my dear," responded the husband, "they were making a good deal of noise, so I just put them to bed without waiting for you or calling the maid."

"I hope they gave you no trouble," said Mrs. Mason.

"No," said the professor, "except the one in the back room. He objected a good deal to my undressing him and putting him to bed."

Mrs. Mason went in to inspect the children.

"Why, James!" she cried. "This boy in the back room is little Tommy Moore, who lives next door!"—New York Times.

POLLY AND DOROTHY.

"Squawk! squawk! squawk!" cried Polly, beating his wings against the bars of his cage, and making such a racket that Dorothy put her hands over her ears and ran out of the room.

"I don't think he's a bit nice bird," she told Aunt Hannah. "I'm glad my dear little Dickie isn't a parrot. Canaries are ever so much nicer, don't you think so?"

"Oh, no; I don't," Aunt Hannah said. "When you come to know Polly, you'll find he's a very interesting little fellow. Have you heard him talk yet?"

"Talk! Why, no Aunt Hannah; I didn't know he could talk!"

Aunt Hannah took Dorothy's hand in hers and went into the living room. Polly rustled his green wings eagerly and called softly, "Hello! hello, Auntie!" Then he ruffled his bright red feathers on his head while she stroked them with a gentle finger and talked to him.

"Polly knows me you see," Aunt Hannah told Dorothy. "And while he doesn't understand words he knows by the tones of one's voice whether he is being petted or scolded."

"How cunning he is, and how plain he talks!" Dorothy cried. "I'm afraid, Auntie—I'm afraid I did almost scold. You see, he bit at my finger, and it made me jump."

Polly and Dorothy grew to be great friends; but even then, Polly was sometimes naughty. He liked to be talked to and petted so much that the dollies were sadly neglected; and when Dorothy tried to play with them, Polly squawked so loudly she could not hear herself talk.

"Give him something to do." Aunt Hannah told her. "Let him have a bit of paper or bright cloth to pull to pieces."

So Dorothy hunted up a bit of bright cardboard for him to play with.

"He doesn't get cross when he's got something to do," Dorothy said, standing to watch Polly at his play.

"Being busy keeps one happy." Aunt Hannah said, smiling.—Christian Intelligencer.

Editorial

ARE NOT SUCH SCHOOLS NEEDED?

We take the following from the report of the recent meeting of the Board of Missions, held in Nashville, Tenn., which was written by Rev. R. B. Eleazer, managing editor of The Missionary Voice:

"On recommendation of the Executive Committee, the Methodist Training School, in Nashville, was ordered discontinued at the close of the present session. This action was based on the following considerations:

"1. The fact that our Methodist schools are hereafter to give special training in Christian service.

"2. That Scarritt Bible and Training School is entirely capable of meeting the need.

"3. The expensiveness of maintaining the school.

"4. The chief unsupplied need is for special higher missionary training, which, it is believed, can be best secured by making the proceeds from the Training School property an endowment for this purpose, and at an annual saving of at least five thousand dollars.

"The school has been quite successful in its field, and its discontinuance is due solely to the reasons mentioned above."

We would not presume to criticise the Board of Missions for this action, since the matter of expense, concerning which we are not informed, was involved; but we sincerely regret that the Board adjudged it to be necessary to abolish this very useful institution. We fear that our other Methodist schools and the Scarritt Bible and Training School will fail to command the class of patronage that came to the Methodist Training School at Nashville, and that in consequence the Church may be appreciably weakened in her agencies for the training of her workers. The obstacles in the way of our regular Biblical Schools taking the place of a school of this type are that they are usually disposed to insist upon high entrance qualifications and long courses of study, and that to complete the work which they require is, as a rule, much more expensive. Do we not need a few institutions in the Church to give abridged courses of training for Christian work at the lowest possible cost? We are very much inclined to think so.

We are profoundly interested in our new theological schools in Atlanta and Dallas, and we think that perhaps under the circumstances our most imperative duty at present is to see that that they are properly established and adequately equipped and endowed; but the Church's problem of securing an efficient ministry is vastly larger than this important work. While it is wise to give all of our young ministers that we can a full theological course, it is certain that the percentage of them enjoying this privilege will continue to be in the future, as it has been in the past, comparatively small. What are we going to do to qualify better for their work the great body of our preachers? It may be said that we have established the Correspondence School to look after their training, and the bringing of that agency into existence was, we think, undoubtedly a movement in the right direction; but is it alone sufficient? We do not think so. Correspondence courses of study, while helpful to many, are at best but a poor substitute for direct instruction with the teacher and student face to face. But how about the various summer Biblical Institutes that are springing up throughout the Connection? When wisely conducted, they unquestionably exercise a beneficial educational influence: but their sessions are too brief to afford an opportunity for doing any systematic and thorough work.

We are very much of the opinion that the Church needs to devise some plan to give preachers and others who may desire such instruction brief courses in the study of the Bible and methods of church work, such as are furnished by the Moody Bible and Training School and like institutions. This work might possibly be so arranged that a part of it could be done under tutorage given by correspondence and a part of it while in actual attendance upon the school. Several such institutions, wisely located in the Church, would, in our judgment, likely meet a widespread need and exert a vast influence for good. It might be possible to do this work in connection with our Church colleges by so arranging their teaching forces as to give such courses; but what scheme of operation would be most effective is one of the problems to be worked out.

However, the fact cannot be too strongly emphasized that an efficient ministerial service can never be procured by making scholars and theologians of a few of our pastors. It is only by raising the rank and file of our itinerancy to a higher level of equipment that this can be done. This, therefore, is one of the tasks to which the Church must energetically address herself if the tremendous issues of the future are to be successfully met and the largest results achieved for the Master in the coming years. And it is because we fear that the abolishment of the Nashville Training School, the only institution of the kind that we had, indicates the adoption of a policy that will not be conducive to this end, that we are disposed to regret its discontinuance.

We are firmly convinced that it is a matter of the most vital importance to democratize our educational work so as to make it more generally reach and help the masses of our people. And, as we see it, our religious teaching needs to be given this tendency quite as much as our agencies for literary instruction, if indeed not more so. The State apparently clearly recognizes her educational obligations to her entire citizenship and knows full well that her hope of obtaining a more intelligent population, which means so much to her welfare, depends vastly more upon her common schools than upon her colleges; hence she spends most of her money upon the former. May we not learn a valuable lesson from her in this respect? We surely ought to do so. The Church exists to minister to the many, not to the few; and the extent to which the many stand still, or go forward, in morals, in spirituality, and in sound culture must ever be the true measure of her progress.

BEECHER ON DENOMINATIONALISM.

There is at this time a vast amount of talk about Church union. Though it is well known to students of ecclesiastical history that the great forward religious movements of the world have been secession, rather than merging, movements, as, for instance, the Protestant Reformation and the rise of Wesleyanism, the gathering of the various Christian denominations into one vast body is now being held up as the one splendid goal of achievement for the future, which is to open the way for the real redemption of mankind and the ushering in of a better day than our planet has yet known. And if one ventures to dissent from this view one is pretty apt to be quickly disparaged as a sectarian, and possibly as a bigot. But the man who adheres to the position that the existence of Christian denominations may be a blessing rather than a curse, and that they have been brought into being by the Providence of God which is far wiser than any human intelligence, need not be terrorized by this charge of narrowness and bigotry, for many of the greatest men that have blessed Christianity with their ministries have firmly held this conviction. Henry Ward Beecher is regarded by a great many people, scholars included, as perhaps the most intellectual and forward-looking preacher that has ever occupied an American pulpit, and certainly no one who cares anything for maintaining his reputation for sanity of judgment would dare to characterize him as lacking in breadth and catholicity; yet in reading one of Mr. Beecher's sermons a few days since, we came across the following emphatic utterance, which we take pleasure in commending to the consideration of the noisy union faddists of this day:

"If God were to give me the power to destroy all the Churches that exist, saying, 'You have only to speak them from the face of the earth,' I don't know of one that I would annihilate. I say, further than that, I am so firmly convinced of the divine economy of divisions, of various organizations in the Church, that if power were put into my hands, and I were told by the Almighty, 'If you but speak the word, all Churches shall be identified, and there shall not be a single sect on the globe,' I would not speak it. I would say, 'Let all the Churches stand as they are, so far as mere organization is concerned.' They came together by elective affinity; and each has hidden in its bosom some great element that perhaps none of the others have. So vast is the Truth, that it is not given to any man or set of men to tell the whole of it. It takes one part to tell one side; another part to tell another side; and still another part to tell another side. And then the whole is unfolded. Ages to come must correct past ages, and add to this anthem that discloses all manner of divine love and divine grace. All I would do, if God gave me the power, would be to hold my hand out over the scattered sects of Christendom, that make the one Church, and say, Love one another, and so fulfill the law."

LEPERS' CHAPEL TO BE DEDICATED.

The Protestant Chapel at the Lepers' Home near this city will be dedicated on Tuesday, June 14. Speakers from the different denominations will take part in the exercises of the occasion. Mr. W. M. Danner, of Cambridge, Mass., Secretary of the Work Among the Lepers in the United States, will be present. About $300 more is needed to finish paying for this urgently needed chapel. Let every one who reads this notice immediately send a contribution to Rev. W. E. Thomas, 815 St. Charles Avenue, New Orleans, La., to help make up this deficit. This is a matter which should concern the Protestant Christians of this entire section, and it will be a positive reproach to them if they fail to furnish all the funds needed for this too-long-delayed enterprise. Even small amounts would be gratefully received. Our Lord did not overlook the lepers in his blessed ministry when he was on earth, nor can we as his representatives in the world afford to do so now. The Roman Catholics have long been disposed to charge Protestants with indifference to this class of sufferers. Is it not high time that we were making it impossible for them to do this any longer by doing such a work among these unfortunate ones as cannot be belittled? Do not postpone the matter, but sit down and send Brother Thomas a check AT ONCE.

BISHOP McCOY BEREAVED.

We take the following from the Alabama Christian Advocate of May 27:

"Our press is being held long enough to convey to the readers of the Advocate the sad news of the death of Sister McCoy, wife of Bishop J. H. McCoy. Her death was from heart failure, being without a moment's warning, and occurred at the family residence in this city on Wednesday night

May 26, about 10 o'clock. Fortunately Bishop McCoy was at home at the time, but was due to leave for North Carolina in a day or two. His mother is at present in a hospital in this city, and he and his four motherless children have the very deepest sympathy of all. The burial services are to be conducted Friday morning, at 10 o'clock, from the residence, corner 13th Street and 12th Avenue, North. May God comfort the bereaved family in this hour of their deep sorrow."

It is with profound regret that we reproduce this announcement. Death is always sad, but it is especially so when a mother of young children is taken from them. No member of our Episcopal College is more universally loved than Bishop McCoy, and he will have the sympathy of the entire Church in his sore bereavement. We pray that the Heavenly Father may have him and all the members of his stricken household in his gracious keeping, and that the health of his mother may be speedily restored.

A SUPERB EDITION.

The "Diamond Anniversary Number" of the Christian Advocate (Nashville), which was issued last week, was brimful of interesting matter and presented a most attractive appearance. It fully met the public expectation and was in every respect highly creditable to Dr. Ivey and his coworkers. This celebration was a happy conception, and we trust that it has served to give our people generally a larger appreciation of our excellent general organ. The many testimonials to its high standing as a religious journal that came from eminent sources certainly ought to be a cause for gratification among Southern Methodists everywhere.

Long live the Christian Advocate; and may its influence widen with every passing day!

WILL YOU NOT HELP HIM?

A superannuated member of the North Mississippi Conference who for several years has been unfitted for work by an incurable disease is in urgent need of about $60 to meet some debts that are pressing him very sorely. No truer, worthier man than this brother has ever wrought in the ranks of the itinerancy and his life has been unselfishly given to the Church. Shall we not help him in this trying hour? Any one desiring fuller information concerning this matter may secure it by writing the Editor a personal note of inquiry. We shall be glad to receive and forward any funds that may be sent us to aid this stricken and deserving minister.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. J. S. Duke is serving the Rankin Street Methodist Church, which was left vacant by the transfer of Rev. B. E. Meigs to Bay St. Louis, Miss.

Rev. J. H. Ingram, of Ruleville, Miss., sends us two subscriptions and reports favorably concerning the progress of his work. Things generally go forward where Brother Ingram has supervision.

Highland College, Kansas, a Presbyterian institution which he formerly attended, has recently conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Rev. H. F. Toile, A.B., our accomplished pastor at Biloxi, Miss.

The presiding elders of the Louisiana Conference held a meeting in Baton Rouge last Saturday. Our district superintendents in this State are a body of hard workers and are wide awake to all the interests of the Church.

Rev. H. T. Carley, of Centenary College, was scheduled to preach the Commencement sermon for the Longstreet (La.) High School on Sunday, May 23, and to deliver the Baccalaureate Address for the Pollock High School on May 27.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions forwarded within the past few days: Rev. E. S. Lewis, Oxford, Miss., 2; Rev. W. W. Perry, Haynesville, La., 2.

Rev. H. B. Gilmore, of Hattiesburg, Miss., who is connected with the Broad Street Methodist Church of that city, of which Rev. H. Mellard is pastor, is without work, and would be pleased to help the brethren in their meetings, especially in country charges.

Among the graduates of the St. Francis (La.) High School this year was Miss Hortense Fulton, a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. R. V. Fulton of Greensburg, La. Brother and Sister Fulton were present to see Miss Hortense awarded her diploma.

Dr. A. F. Watkins, President of Millsaps College, preached the Baccalaureate Sermon for the Seashore Campground School, near Biloxi, Miss., last Sunday. The Annual Address was delivered on Tuesday, June 1, by Rev. J. M. Sullivan, also of Millsaps College.

Dr. J. T. Sawyer filled the pulpit of the St. Charles Avenue Baptist Church of this city at 11 o'clock a.m. last Sunday. He reports that there was a full congregation and that close attention was given to the sermon. He enjoyed being with our Baptist brethren.

During the absence of Rev. J. G. Johnson, our pastor on the Black Hawk (Miss.) charge, who, as was announced in the Advocate last week, has been called to New Mexico by the illness of his father, his work is being served by Brother B. S. Elliott, the lay leader of the Grenada Circuit.

Rev. J. O. Bennett, of Jonesboro, La., was recently assisted in a series of evangelistic services by Rev. A. I. Townsley, of Rayville. A more extended account of this profitable meeting, from the pen of Brother Townsley, will appear in our "From the Field Department" next week.

Through the courtesy of Miss Sadie Lucile Cooper, a member of the graduating class, we have received an invitation to the closing exercises of the Florida State College for Women, at Tallahasse, Fla., June 9-15. Miss Cooper is a daughter of Dr. I. W. Cooper, President of Whitworth College.

Bishop W. B. Murrah preached a profoundly impressive sermon in connection with the closing exercises of Grenada College, at Grenada, Miss., last Sunday at 11 a.m., his theme being "The Finality of Christ." His discourse at the evening hour is also reported to have reached an unusually high level.

Among the graduates of the Baton Rouge High School this year was Master Marlin Drake, a son of Rev. W. W. Drake, of this city. When Brother Drake was transferred to New Orleans last winter Marlin remained at Baton Rouge to avoid breaking his course of study, which he has now successfully completed.

The St. Helena Echo states that Rev. J. B. Williams, of Ponchatoula, La., recently conducted a series of revival services at Greensburg, La., during which he captivated the people of that community with his preaching. The meeting encountered many hindrances, but notwithstanding this, much good was accomplished.

Rev. I. B. Robertson, an esteemed superannuate of the Louisiana Conference, visited relatives in New Orleans last week, and while here favored our office with a call. Brother Robertson gets about with some difficulty, but he is still mentally vigorous and alert. Louisiana Methodism has in it no truer or more worthy minister.

Rev. A. I. Townsley, of Rayville, La., writes: "Rev. S. W. V. Colvin desires to state to the brethren that he has some time at his disposal and can probably help any pastor in revival work who will write him at Rayville, La., R. F. D. Brother Colvin is too well known to Louisiana pastors to need any recommendation from me."

In a business note to our office, bringing us two subscriptions, Rev. O. P. Armour, pastor of the Booneville (Miss.) Circuit, makes the following reference to his charge: "Our work here is prospering along all lines. We have observed Children's Day at two points, and are planning for our revival campaign with indications of success."

Rev. A. H. Steele, of Dossville, Miss., who it will be remembered asked through the Advocate for the loan of some of the books in his course of study, writes as follows: "Permit me to thank the brethren for kindly offering to send me the books that I desired. Two or three of our preachers have done this. Thank you, brethren."

The Annual Address at the closing exercises of the Franklin Academy at Columbus, Miss., was delivered a few days since by Hon. W. W. Magruder, of Starkville, who for many years has been a prominent official in our Church, and who is one of the leading lawyers of Northeast Mississippi. He is a nephew of the lamented Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan.

Rev. Olin Ray writes as follows from Walnut, Miss: "I have been spending a few days at home since my return from the Candler School of Theology, in Atlanta. My stay there was most pleasant and helpful. The prospects are bright for an even greater session next year. Both the faculty and student body were elated over the success of the first session."

In the absence from the city of Dr. S. H. Werlein, the pastor, who last Sunday preached the Commencement sermon of Martha Washington College, at Abingdon, Va., the pulpit of the First Methodist Church of New Orleans was filled at 11 a.m. by the Editor of the Advocate and at the evening hour by Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District.

We have on our table a most attractive publication of some 32 pages, entitled "Home Life at Whitworth." It is pictorial and shows to fine advantage all the buildings of that historic institution. It contains an interesting account of the happenings at the college during the past year, and gives a group photograph of the Seniors and Senior Specials. What Dr. Cooper undertakes to do is always well done.

Rev. W. E. Thomas, pastor of the Second Methodist Church of this city, sends us the following announcement: "The Seashore Assembly for Christian Workers will hold its regular annual session at the Seashore Campground, July 23 to August 2. Both the Sunday school and woman's work will this year be embraced in the exercises conducted during this period. We have secured some splendid speakers for this occasion."

Writing from Shubuta, Miss., on May 25, Rev. O. S. Lewis says: "My father and mother, Rev. and Mrs. H. P. Lewis of Jackson, have been with us for the past three weeks. Father's health is pretty good, considering the fact that he is in his 80th year. He has preached for me the last three Sundays to the delight and edification of the people. Dr. D. C. Hull, of Meridian, is to preach the Commencement sermon for the Shubuta High School next Sunday, May 30."

A note from Miss Myra Hazard, of Corinth, Miss., brings us the sad news of the death of Mrs. Kilpatrick, the mother of Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick, which occurred in that city on Thursday morning, May 27, at 10 o'clock. The burial took place on the following Saturday morning. Miss Kilpatrick will have the sympathy and prayers of a host of friends in her great sorrow. May the Holy Spirit comfort her and all others upon whom the shadow of this bereavement has fallen!

We are indebted to Dr. James Cannon, Jr., for an invitation to the Commencement exercises of the Blackstone Female Institute, at Blackstone, Va., which will begin on Friday of this week and continue through next Sunday. The Annual Address will be delivered by Dr. Richard Wilkinson, of Petersburg, Va., and the Annual Sermon will be preached on Sunday, June 6, by Dr. Graham H. Lambeth, of Farmville, Va. There are 71 candidates for graduation at this institution this year.

In forwarding his appointments for the third round, Rev. J. W. Dorman, presiding elder of the Sardis (Miss.) District, appends the following note: "We had a good district conference at Batesville. I was sorry that you could not come." It would indeed have been a great pleasure to the Editor to be present, but the expense of a 350-mile trip in such times as these was entirely beyond his purse. Having seen Brother Dorman preside on such occasions, we can easily believe that the proceedings of the conference were highly profitable.

Rev. W. M. Young of Amory, Miss., writes: "We have just closed a fine meeting at this place. The preaching was done by Rev. S. A. Brown, of Okoiona, Miss., and he did it well. He impressed the public with his earnestness and thinking people with his ability and consecration. His work will abide. We had 33 accessions on profession of faith and 4 by certificate, and the membership of the church was greatly quickened and strengthened. Our Sunday school has attained to the 300 mark and we hope to reach 400 before the year has passed."

From a recent issue of the Baptist Record (Jackson) Miss., we take the following: "The Galloway Memorial Methodist Church of Jackson will probably be completed this summer and will be one of the handsomest religious edifices in the South, including rooms for any form of church, Sunday school, women's and young people's work. It is of beautiful buff brick and has the finest Greek columns in the State. It bears the name of their Bishop, whom they delight to honor. Credit for the erection of so good a building is due largely to the generosity and ability of Major Millsaps."

NOTICE!

I have a complete set of the Cambridge Bible series costing over $40 and practically new, which I will sell for $20. I also have many other good books, titles of which will be furnished on application, written by Fitchett, Kirkpatrick, S. D. Gordon and many others, that I would like to sell. Address Mrs. J. E. JOEL C. HILLIARD was reared at Alligator Lake, Miss., but removed with his father, Capt. H. E. Hilliard, to Dublin, Miss., 25 years ago, where he had lived since. He was one of the most useful men I ever knew. He was generous and charitable to a fault. He was everybody's friend. God put much of sunshine into his disposition, and he was, therefore, always a welcome guest. Twenty years ago he was married and three little ones came to bless the home, but soon these tender little flowers had faded and there were three little graves under the trees not far away. The fourth child was born some fifteen months ago. The mother and child are left to mourn the going away of their loved one. The father, Capt. H. E. Hilliard, is pushing on toward four score years of age, but is hale and hearty save for a little rheumatism. One sister is left, Mrs. Medora Lawler. But his friends are legion and there comes the wish that the sod might lie soft and light upon his breast. His death is a personal loss to the writer, who received him into the Church and married him to his wife. Peace to his ashes!

E. S. LEWIS.

THE JACKSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

On the morning of May 19, the Jackson District Conference convened in the hospitable little town of Terry, Miss., and finished its work at 12 o'clock on Friday, May 21. The town threw open its doors to all the members and visitors of the conference and spared no means to make the occasion a delightful one. The untiring pastor of our church, Rev. W. W. Hopper, with attentive hands, did everything possible to make our short stay a real delight.

All the pastors of the district, except Rev. R. T. Nolen, who was unavoidably kept away, were in attendance; and there was a good representation of local preachers, lay leaders, and delegates, and a splendid company of visitors, who came and went during the occasion.

The alert and genial presiding elder, Rev. P. D. Hardin, gave eminent satisfaction in his felicitous way of turning off the business of the conference.

Rev. W. G. Forsyth preached the opening sermon of the occasion, and from the beginning the pulpit ministrations were of a high order, and it was said by many that the preaching throughout the conference was of a more superior type than usual. The congregations attending public worship were large and appreciative.

During the first session of the conference a Sunday School Institute was held and an interesting program was carried out. During the second session the interesting Missionary program that had been arranged was taken up, some stirring addresses were made, and from this time forward the deep spiritual life of the conference was distinctly noticable.

Rev. H. M. Ellis, Field Secretary of the Methodist Hospital at Memphis, was present at the opening session, and in an able way represented his work.

Rev. T. J. O'Neil, President of Port Gibson Female College, was before the conference representing the work of that institution.

The efficient presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, Rev. Robert Selby, spent a day at the conference and spoke briefly of his work as Conference Educational Secretary.

Rev. T. B. Cottrell, our pastor at Tylertown, Rev. B. F. Lewis, our pastor at Crystal Springs and his most worthy co-worker, Mrs. B. F. Lewis, graced the conference by their presence.

Our Mississippi Orphans' Home was represented by its able manager, Rev. W. M. Williams, and everything indicated that the district is doing more in a systematic way for that worthy institution than it has ever done before.

Dr. J. M. Sullivan, of Millsaps College, effectively represented that great institution.

Two young men, Emmett Jackson Rutledge and Elbert Alexander Burk, were licensed to preach, and Ovid Alien Clark was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

The reports of the pastors showed an increase in church membership and progress along almost all lines throughout the entire district, and in all their reports there was sounded an optimistic note. A more faithful set of men would be hard to find. Harmony and co-operation everywhere prevailed.

Our competent Sunday School Field Secretary, Mr. R. A. Maddox, was in attendance, representing his work. In many respects the Sunday School interest is improving in the various charges.

Dr. J. M. Sullivan, W. E. Harris, Maj. R. W. Millsaps, and A. B. Kling, were elected delegates to the Annual Conference.

Edwards and Raymond asked for the next district conference, but by a large majority it was voted to the celebrated, old historic town of Raymond, and the entire conference felt that no effort would be spared by its good people in extending to those who may attend the highest type of hospitality.

From the Field.

Adams, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: We had a great day yesterday, May 23. Dr. I. W. Cooper, of Brookhaven, Miss., was with us and preached at 11 a. m. an inspiring sermon on "The Immortality of the Soul." It was "Old Folks' Day" and they enjoyed it to the fullest extent. In the afternoon Dr. Cooper delivered a strong address to the young folks, which was enjoyed by all. I feel sure that good will be the outcome of these services. The congregation present was estimated at 500. Dr. Cooper is a great preacher and a noble Christian gentleman, and those who love him most are those who know him best. Our laymen are doing well, and as a result of their labors we are in advance of last year on our collections. Blessings upon you and the Advocate.—Robert H. Barr, P. C.

Mantachie, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: You will be glad to hear of our good Children's Day at Mantachie recently. It was our first Children's Day this season and was a great day in Mantachie, bringing untold blessings to our church. All honor is due to the good Christian women who composed our committee, and who carry the child life upon their hearts. God bless such women. Our district conference convened at Ripley, Miss., with a good representation, and we were royally entertained by the good people of that town, who gave us a hearty reception. It was a profitable meeting. My home was with Brother T. C. Hines and family, a family that is a blessing to the world; and my prayer is that God's blessings may ever rest on their Christian home. Our work in general is in a good condition, and we are looking forward to a great year. Pray that we may have a great revival this year.—C. C. Clark.

Clarksburg, Miss.

Dear Editor: Will you please grant me space that I may give you some idea of how things are going on in my charge, which is a mission? We came to Clarksburg on Feb. 26. Previous to our coming a small house had been built which we now occupy and for which we are paying at present $4 rent per month. In spite of some conditions that make the work difficult we have received into the Church 22 members to date. We have organized three Sunday schools with an aggregate membership of about 175; two Ladies' Aid Societies, and one prayer meeting with an attendance of from forty to fifty every Friday night. We have not yet finished building our house of worship as we are dependent on the citizens of the community to carry the work forward, and owing to the late winter they are late in getting in their crops. One of my churches is 14 miles distant from my home and the other five average about 8 miles. I have walked once to the first mentioned and to the others several times, as I have no horse and buggy. We have the promise of three of our best preachers to come and help us in revival meetings this summer, and we are looking forward to these meetings, praying constantly for the redemption of lost souls, that they may be saved from temptation and sin. We are fighting intemperance with all our powers, and pray that God will hasten the day when we shall have a saloonless nation.—J. W. Evans.

Pineville, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: Will you give me space in your paper to make a partial report of what has been done on the Pineville charge. I wish to say that God has given us a victory in everything that we have undertaken this year, and with these blessings we have made wonderful progress under the guidance of the Master. We have just closed one of the greatest meetings that was ever held in the Methodist Church in the little town of Pineville. Rev. G. E. Cameron, of the First Methodist Church of Alexandria, La., assisted me in this meeting, and he did a great work for our Lord and Master. There has never in all the history of the church in this city been a man of his talent that would come and break the bread of life to a people as freely as he has done in the past fifteen days. Every night during the meeting the power of God seemed to move upon the hearts of men and many souls were led into the light. There were 12 additions to the Church, 2 by letter and the others on profession of faith. All of the latter had been baptized in their infancy. (Train a child up in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it). I am convinced that we are right when we dedicate our children to God in baptism; it has proven so in this case, as in many others. My work, as a whole, is moving steadily upward. To the Master be all the praise. Brethren, pray for me and ask God to help me to do what he has commanded me to do. —J. F. Dring, P. C.

Glen Allan, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We have just closed a great revival at our Glen Allan Church. Brother J. L. Morrill from Hawkinsville, Ga., did the preaching. Brother Morrill is a very strong preacher and knows how to conduct a revival. The people of the Delta have the name of being big-hearted, clever, and loyal to the Church; but not very spiritual; but I don't think you can find a church anywhere in the State more spiritual than our church since our meeting. Brother Morrill believes in the old-fashioned Methodist way of running a revival—making people come to the altar for salvation. Our people didn't hardly know what you meant by an altar here, but before the meeting closed we had seen the altar crowded on several occasions with men, women, boys, and girls, repenting of their sins and seeking a closer fellowship with God. As most of our people belonged to some Church, we only had seven additions, but we had fully 20 genuine "mourners'-bench" conversions among our members who claimed they had never been converted before. At a special service for men on Sunday afternoon about 100 men were present and every one of them came forward on a proposition to lead a different life. Practically every family in the church promised to erect a family altar. This is a pretty good test of the work done. Brother Morrill preaches the "old time" gospel and makes no compromise with sin. Any of our pastors needing the services of a strong evangelist, who makes no charge for his work, but takes a free-will offering, would do well to secure his services.—A. T. McIlwain, P. C.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The preachers in the Durant District are taking hoid of the Sunday schooi work with vigor. Their success is great.

The school at Bellefontaine is the last one that comes up to the Standard of Efficiency. Brother Raper is doing big things in his large field. No dead man can put his school in town or country in the class with Bellefontaine.

Remember June 13. This is the day that we are all going to Sunday school. Let every one in the Sunday school take part in this work of bringing everybody to the study of God's Word. This can be made the greatest day of the year. The results of the effort we make can never be estimated. Let all get busy. Don't forget to praise God.

The condition of the church lot and the way the house of God is kept may be an index to the spiritual life of the community. Thus we are ever telling to the world what we think of God. Some of the Wesley Bible Classes are beautifying the church grounds. What about your church lot and your building dedicated to God?

Brother Nebiett has an excellent class of teachers and officers in his Sunday school at Ripley. The Business Men's ciass is so large that it has to get out under the shade of the trees to do its work. This teacher and these men have a vision. The class will order the two books in the reading course. Ripley is on the map with the schools that rank in the first class.

The first thing in the heart of Jesus for us to do is to "seek and save the lost." The last thing the devil would have us do is to win men for Christ. Have you been following the Spirit? "If any man have not the Spirit cf Christ, he is none of his." Only sin can keep a man from being used of God to win men. Let Decision Day be emphasized as never before. The most important committee in the Wesley Bible Class is the Committee on Personal Evangelism. Angels hover over the place where souls are being led to Christ.

TEACHER TRAINING.

By Rev. B. F. Lewis.

Is there a Teacher-training Class in your Sunday school, my brother? Why is there not one? Is there a really good reason why any Sunday school in the Mississippi Conference should not have such a class? Is there not a very, very good reason why each Sunday school should have one? Do you not think, brother superintendent, you would have a much better corps of teachers if each had taken or was taking this training course? Do you not think, brother pastor, you would have a more efficient superintendent if he were a graduate of such a course? And, to one and ail, Do you not think the pastor could render far more efficient aid to his superintendents and teachers, if he himself were a graduate of this course?

Too many of our Sunday schools are suffering just now from lack of skilled leadership, which skilled leadership may be had for the expenditure of twenty-five cents or more and a few moments' study a day for a few weeks. Do not the issues involved justify it? Many a superintendent is failing today because he is satisfied with the methods of "long ago," and knows nothing of the methods of to-day. Many a teacher has become discouraged and given up who otherwise might have made a success of the work in hand.

I know one class which changed teachers six times in one year. The problems confronting these teachers and the superintendents have all been carefully explained in our books on this subject, the price of which is within easy reach. But not a teacher who tried that class had ever taken a training course. The superindent of a Beginner's Department said some time ago, "I scarcely know what to do, the difficulties are so great." Yet the very problems discouraging this superintendent have been repeatedly elucidated. A Sunday school superintendent remarked not long since: "The course I am pursuing in my school is as follows, but I have gone as far as I know how. What may I do next?" When it was pointed out that the course being followed would work harm to the school, he remarked at once, "I see it now," and as soon as a method of continuing the very fine work being done was suggested, he repiled, "That's the very L. Cogdell, Rev. A. F. Watkins, D.D., very splendid schooi, with a most remarkable record, was on the eve of a retrograde movement which would have been very hurtful. A Teacher-training course would have averted the crisis.

But, yet again, Can a teacher do his or her best work without a clear appreciation of the work as a whole. Team work requires far more than sympathy. It requires practical, intelligent sympathy. When this is runing throughout the whole school, what a force it is. I know a school where the Cradie Roll superintendent knows absolutely nothing about the Graded Sunday schooi. Of course, she does not appreciate the imperative need of keeping up with her department and seeing the end from the beginning. When last I saw the superintendent of the Beginners' Department of this school, she remarked: "I have but two years more of work in my department uniess there is a change in the Cradle Roii." She was right from what she told me. Yet this Cradle Roll superintendent is a splendid woman, and in some respects has done faithful work in this department, but she has never realized that the continuance of the Graded Sunday school is dependent upon a successfully conducted Cradle Roll. Is there not a call for Teacher-training courses? I think ali who will stop and consider will answer, "Yes." Then why not have one?

THE CORINTH DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Dear Dr. Meek: In a few words may I say something about the District Conference held in Ripley last week?

I am reminded when speaking of brevity of the story of the young reporter who was sent to a neighboring city to report a small fire, with definite instruction to turn in oniy 500 words. On reaching the scene, the over-zealous young man decided that the story was worth more than 500 words, and wired for permission to send in 10,000 words. Quick as a flash came this answer from the managing editor: "The creation of the world was told in ten words—'IN THE BEGINNING GOD CREATED THE HEAVENS AND THE EARTH.'"

We should have in mind the value of space to the editor and the value of time to the readers when we write, and should give the facts in as brief a manner as possible.

All the interests of the Church received due and careful consideration. Dr. A. F. Watkins, Dr. H. M. Eliis, and Rev. W. R. Williams, represented their respective institutions, while Grenada College was represented by Revs. J. H. Felts and J. H. Mitchell. Brother Countiss was unable to attend on account of the date conflicting with the Commencement exercises of Grenada Coiiege.

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb attended and represented the Board of Education.

The preaching was done by Revs. W. D. McCuiiough, L. M. Lipscomb, D. L. Cogdell, Rev. A. F. Watkins, D.D., and Rev. H. M. Eliis.

Rev. Olin Ray was elected secretary and proved himself to be accurate and efficient. The Laymen's Movement was represented by Brother Frank Ray.

Two young men—W. D. Owen, and Carl Beasley—from the Myrtie and Hickory Flat charges respectively, were licensed and recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

The next district conference will be held at Iuka, that place being well represented by Rev. W. D. McCuilough and Brother Sam Shockley.

Suitable resolutions were passed by the conference commending the work and administration of Rev. J. H. Mitchell, now concluding his fourth year on the Corinth District. Brother Mitcheil presided over the District Conference and made a good presiding officer. He is too weil known to make any comment necessary.

I remember recently reading an article where one brother used seven adjectives to describe the quaiifications, etc., of a man who is truiy great, but who is too weli known to Mississippi readers to justify such a waste of time and space.

The attendance, the services, the business sessions, the entertainment and interest were aii up to a high mark, and the district conference was a great occasion. The hospitaiity and kindness of the Ripley foiks are not likely to be exceiled anywhere. The writer had the pieasure of being entertained in the happy home of that grand old Methodist, Dr. J. Y. Murry. It was a delight to be with this splendid family. Dr. Murry was able to be with us at the conference and take some part in the proceedings, a fact of which we were all glad.

Of course, it is understood that this report does not attempt to cover everything that was said or done nor to euiogize the brethren already known to us ali, but as far as the Corinth District is concerned, it covers succinctiy the facts.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT NOTES.

At Waldheim, St. Tammany Circuit, Children's Day was recently observed with success. On the same circuit, at Bush, where the pastor resides, the Sunday school and prayer meeting are well attended. The charge is prospering under the pastorate of Rev. J. S. Rutledge.

On the third Sunday in May Children's Day was observed at Epworth Church. The attendance was fine, and the children rendered the program well. A number of the Epworth folk attended the picnic at City Park and they enjoyed the union features among the several Methodist schools present.

Last Friday night Miss Susie Juden visited the Teachers' Meeting of the McDonoghville Church, and conducted a round table discussion of the graded literature in the Sunday School. The pastor is conducting an energetic campaign for the Advocate and expects to secure 25 subscriptions.

Thursday evening, May 27, a May Festival was given by workers of the Carrollton Church on the lawn of Mrs. Jamieson, on Zimple Street. The May Pole had a chief place in the entertainment of the children. Master Sam Stone Holmes was King, and Miss Emily Havers was Queen of the Festival. The attendance was good, and a good sum was realized toward the church's indebtedness.

Last Friday night a Lawn Fete was given by the Calendar Club at the home of Miss Wasson on Henry Clay Avenue. An excellent musical program was the feature of the occasion. The members of the Club are faithful and resourceful in their efforts to meet their obligations on the $1000 bond for which they became responsible when the indebtedness of First Church was provided for.

On the evening of May 24 a large number of people assembled in the Social Hall of First Church to hear a very interesting and instructive debate on the question, "Would Socialism, as distinct from other means of social progress, if put into practice, increase the welfare and happiness of mankind?" Messrs. J. Krumpleman and Covington Hall upheld the affirmative, and Dr. Geo. Kent and Mr. A. B. Booth spoke on the negative. Dr. Werlein presided, and the judges were Mrs. J. B. Parker and Messrs. S. A. Montgomery and E. W. Vacher. Both sides were ably upheld. The decision was given in favor of the negative.

Mothers' Day was not celebrated at Parker Memorial on the regular day. But one week later, the third Sunday in May, a Mothers' and Fathers' Day service was held. Last year several of the girls in the Sunday school asked the pastor why no Fathers' Day was ever observed. The question seemed timely, and this year the congregation were asked to do honor also to father. It does not seem well that, while we do such fitting honor to mother every year, father should be entirely neglected, for many of us also trace blessed influences of the past to father. The people responded readily to the suggestion that father be honored also. They wore a white flower, as usual, for mother, and a red flower for father. The music was very fine, and the sermon was appropriate to the occasion. Too much praise cannot be given the organist, Mr. Simpson Jones, and all the members of the choir, and especially to Mrs. MacLeod and Mrs. Pardee who kindly gave their splendid services as soloists. One hundred and eighty were present at the service, a banner attendance for Parker Memorial.

AN IDEA, AN ELDER, AND AN ISLAND.

By Rev. A. J. Gearheard.

At 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, May 17, Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, and the writer, by the providence of God and the liberality of Captain Bundy of the gasoline launch, Tulane, boarded that boat at Harvey, La., and set out for Grand Isle, 90 miles South of New Orleans. We started in pursuance of an idea, carefully thought out and prayed out by Brother Holmes. The idea is this: If the Church grows, it must ultimately take in new territory. The congregation that has a definite interest in a specified field will prosper more at home by reaching out and helping in another place. Therefore, if the churches of the New Orleans District are to do their best, each one should have under its immediate supervision a mission, and should stand responsible for the sending of the Gospel to the people in the vicinity of that mission.

With this idea in mind, Grand Isle was fixed upon as the objective for a trip of exploration, hoping that there might be there an opening for missionary work to be done by the Louisiana Avenue Church. All day long, and until 10 o'clock at night, we felt the throbbing of the engine beneath us. About 30 miles out, we were joined by a Roman Catholic priest and the subjects of prohibition, celibacy, the primacy of the Apostle Peter, and many other interesting subjects were carefuly discussed. We might add that, with the exception of the fact that the Bible was against him, our friend, the priest, gave some good points sustaining the position of his Church.

We reached the island and found its inhabitants asleep. Since they did not know us, had not invited us, did not know we were coming, and were not prepared to receive us or anyone else, it was not surprising to us to find ourselves received only by a large colony of mosquitoes and the roaring welcome of the mighty Gulf of Mexico. After some meandering around in search of a place to sleep, we let ourselves into an empty house with a pass key and slept comfortably. We apologized to the owner of the house next day and were graciously forgiven. The next morning we let ourselves out among strangers, hoping that some one would take us in. At 9 o'clock we found breakfast, and arranged to preach from the front gallery of a grocery and bar room. Although there are nearly 600 people on the Island, there is no church of any kind, and we were the first Protestant preachers ever on the island. All day long we visited from house to house and everywhere we were received with marked courtesy. We were not thought of as preachers, but were guessed off as cucumber buyers, prohibition speakers, and pleasure seekers. But night brought us another chance to eat and also more than 100 men and women to hear what we had to say. Brother Holmes opened the service and read at length from the Bible. (I'm glad he did. We preachers read a few verses from the Word that is really divine and spend a half hour speaking our own words, just as if we had something to say more important than the revealed truth of God). He read at length and then earnestly presented the simplicity of the Gospel. We had no singing. If we had had song books we would have had to sing alone, and any one who ever heard the writer and Brother Holmes sing will agree that we were wise to omit "music" from the service. After Brother Holmes finished, the writer, with his Bible on a whiskey barrel as a pulpit, delivered a second message concerning what God has in store for those who love and serve him.

The audience seemed to appreciate the service. We were overwhelmed with invitations to come again. We were assured that sleeping and eating would be made convenient and that our next service would be even more largely attended than this one. At 3 o'clock next morning we started back to New Orleans. All day we traveled through a country that is destined to be a veritable fairyland of commercial worth. We reached home late in the afternoon, thoroughly sunburned, but confident that there is a work for our Church to do in that territory, including Harvey at one end and Grand Isle at the other, and the many settlements lying between.

New Cure for Pellagra Found.

Effingham, S. C.—Robert G. Hicks of this place writes: "Before my wife started taking your medicine she was a skeleton and only weighed 85 pounds. She had almost completely lost her mind and could not eat anything or do anything. Now she can eat anything and can walk three miles. I believe she would have been dead had it not been for your medicine. You have my prayers and best wishes."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn.

The symptoms: Hands red like sunburn; skin peeling off; sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with much mucous and choking, indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free Book on Pellagra, and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., Box 587-X, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.

Note: In case you have any doubt as to the merit of this treatment you are at liberty to write to the Advertising Manager of this paper who did not accept this advertisement until an investigation was made that satisfied him that we had cured hundreds of cases of pellagra.—Advertisement.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN'S LAST DRINK.

Eighteen years ago almost to a day, John L. Sullivan, unshaved and unkempt, emerged from the bar of the Grand Hotel, on Broadway and Third Street, New York City, stood for a moment looking back at the door, and then walked uncertainly uptown. It was eight o'clock in the evening, and the ex-pugilist brushed shoulders with well-groomed people hurrying to theaters. He was the derelict in the stream. On his face there was half a smile, but it wasn't a pleasant one. At the corner of Thirteenth Street he met "Moory" Cohen and a newspaper man, with both of whom he was acquainted. He growled something incoherent in response to their greeting, and was apparently about to pass on. But he paused, and turned into the barroom for a drink. He said, "I wanted one drink more and didn't have the price. They didn't give it to me. They put me out. They did not send the proprietor or manager to put me out. They sent the porter. I've spent $5,000 over that bar. And they put me out because I wanted a drink and couldn't pay for it. There's only one thing you can figure out of a proposition like that. Quit drinking. That night I quit."

That's the true story of John L. Sullivan's last drink. Eighteen years have passed, and though John L. Sullivan was then tottering on the edge of the gutter, he looks eight years younger than he did that night. And he has a hundred thousand dollars.—Cincinnati Times Star.

SARDIS DISTRICT MEETING.

The District meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Sardis District, North Mississippi Conference, convened at Senatobia May 7 and 8, 1915, the first session being on the evening of the 7th.

On this occasion the children's work was emphasized, the children themselves, trained by our young people, giving a very interesting program. Following this, Mrs. Woodward, our Conference Second Vice-President, addressed the children, using as her theme the watchword of the Juniors, "Grow."

The beautiful decorations, the special music, and the presence of our Conference officers, Mrs. Woodward and Miss Hartwell, were inspiring to a large audience.

On Saturday morning the business session of the conference began, Mrs. D. B. High of Hernando, our new district secretary, in the chair. After the devotional exercises Mrs. Woodward held an Institute on children's work for the second vice-president and others interested in this phase of missionary work.

There were forty-eight delegates and visitors present, the following auxiliaries being represented: Charleston, 2; Coldwater, 14 adult, 7 children; Como, 4 adult, 3 children; Courtland, 1; Hernando, 3 adult, 7 children; Love, 1; Senatobia, 9. All had encouraging reports, Como being the banner auxiliary.

Miss Lillie Hartwell, our Conference Recording Secretary, conducted the afternoon services. She presented, in her own enthusiastic manner, the great opportunities open to our young people to-day, and the great need of the world for consecrated young men and women.

May we under the leadership of our consecrated district secretary attempt great things for God.

Mrs. W. J. East.

EXECUTIVE MEETING OF WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

At the executive meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society that was held in Capitol Street Church, Jackson, on April 23, there were ten officers present, including five district secretaries. At this meeting we were glad to welcome several visitors, quite a number of the Jackson ladies and Mrs. Thames of the North Mississippi Conference.

Reports of the Council, including brief and forceful summaries of the addresses of Drs. Rawiing, Strong, and Cook, Bishop Atkins and other equally able speakers, were given by Mrs Johnson and Mrs. Lewis.

Directions for making several interesting posters were given by those who had seen the splendid display at the Council.

The corresponding secretary reported that she pledged $5500 for the Mississippi Conference; $5140 of this amount was piedged at the annual meeting.

At the evening session Mrs. Johnson prefaced her echoes from the Council by the announcement that the long-proposed work in Japan is at last begun, inasmuch as two missionaries have been assigned to the new field. The offering during the Week of Prayer this year is to go to this new work. The 40 per cent for the Home Department wiii go exclusively to the Korean and Japanese work on the Pacific Coast.

It was agreed to hold the next annual meeting eariy in February, as was done this year, and Miss Davies is to be present if she can be secured.

Below are some interesting points of the meeting for every member of the missionary societies in the Mississippi Conference. Recommendations: That an all-day meeting with each society by each district secretary be heid; that some pian be formed by which each unorganized community may be reached; that a Sunday be set aside, with the sanction and co-operation of the preachers in the charges, as Woman's Day, at which time the work of the Society is to be emphasized; that one day of the Week of Prayer be given exclusiveiy to Young Peopie's and Chiidren's work.

Mrs. HUME R. STEELE,
Educational Secretary.

Mrs. Steele writes that while she has faiied to get a report from every Conference, on tbe wboie, she is very much gratified at the results of this department of our work for the first quarter. We call attention to the number of auxiliaries using the Buiietin, 1195. It is almost double that of iast year. Another encouraging item is the number of auxiliaries reporting as reading the Woman's Page reguiarly.

Note the comparison of the Mission Study classes reported by card and by superintendents. There is a discrepancy of 259. Mrs. Steeie is so anxious to have these figures agree. Won't the women in our tbree Conferences do aii they can to assist her in this respect? Use the enroilment cards sent you and return same to Mrs. Steele every time you take up the study of a new book.

THE COLUMBUS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Columbus District Conference will meet at Crawford, Miss., June 10-13. Rev. W. L. Duren will preach the opening sermon Thursday evening at 8 o'ciock. The business sessions wiii begin Friday morning at 8:30. Aii pastors should see that the Quarterly Conference Journals are present for examination.

A full program for the work of the conference is prepared and wiil be maiied to the members. A cordiai invitation is extended to the representatives of our church schools, and to those of our various other interests. We should be pieased, Brother Meek, to have you with us.

Applicants for license to preach or for recommendation to the Annual Conference shouid meet the Committee—Dr. T. C. Wier, Rev. R. W. Evans, and Rev. J. M. Carpenter on Thursday, if possible.

EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

To the Epworth Leaguers of the Mississippi Conference.

Dear Fellow-Leaguers: I again call your attention to the next meeting of the Mississippi Conference Epworth League at the Capitol Street Church, Jackson, June 10-13. All Leagues are urged to send representatives to attend this Conference, and we kindly ask pastors that have no Leagues to come and bring two or more of their young people with them. Be sure to send names of your delegates to J. G. Byrd, care of S. J. Johnson and Company, and homes will be provided for them and free entertainment.

We will have with us Dr. E. H. Rawlings and J. M. Culbreth from the General office, and Dr. H. G. Henderson of Sardis, President of the North Mississippi Conference Epworth League Board, besides a number of our best workers. Let's make this a great Conference. The programs are just about ready and we will be glad to mail you one on application.

Do not forget your Conference assessment of 15 cents per member to defray expense of the Conference. If you have not already done so, please remit this amount to Mr. A. R. Campbell, Treasurer, Sumrall, Miss.

Be sure to heed the exhortation in the Advocate with reference to the payment of the subscription by your League on the African Special. Remit direct to Miss Harriet Leech, Hattiesburg, Miss., fourth vice president.

The Conference opens on the evening of June 10 with the addresses of welcome and response and a get-acquainted social, and will close on the evening of the 13th with a consecration service.

Yours faithfully in the cause,
W. D. HAWKINS,
President Miss. Conf. Epworth League.

THE IDEAL POLICY FOR MINISTERS.

Here is an insurance policy especially designed to meet the needs of the Minister of the Gospel. It is extremely low in cost, liberal in its provisions, and not only protects in the event of death, but provides a Retirement Fund for the minister himself in old age. This is the "Endowment at 65" issued by the Methodist Ministers' Relief Insurance and Trust Association of Boston. This policy may be fully paid up in twenty years, thus completing premium payments in the years of greatest earning capacity. If death occurs before age 65, the full amount of policy is paid to beneficiary. If insured lives to 65 the policy is payable in full, or it provides for a definite life income beginning at 65. It is the prettiest policy for ministers ever issued by any company. It is a legal reserve Association chartered under the laws of Massachusetts, and now in its 38th year. Besides this "Endowment at 65" it issues all the usual forms of Life and Endowment policies at much lower premium rates than are charged by the agency companies. It insures only ministers well known to be the best class of risks, and all its business is conducted by mail. Write for literature and rates giving date of birth. Address Methodist Ministers' Relief Insurance and Trust Association, Wesleyan Bldg., Boston, Mass.—Adv.

GREAT TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.

National Leaders Will Address Anti-Saloon League Convention at Atlantic City, July 6-9.

In view of the continent-wide interest which has been awakened, there is now almost no doubt but that the National Convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America, which is to be held in Atlantic City, New Jersey, July 6-9, will be the greatest gathering of its kind ever held. Leading temperance workers and speakers will be present in large numbers, and Churches, Sunday schools, young people's societies, temperance and other organizations will send delegates by the hundreds.

The proceedings will attract the attention of the civilized world, for the great issues involved are now world-wide problems, and many nations will be more or less influenced by what shall be said and done at this convention.

The temperance forces were never more triumphant and enthusiastic than now. The battle line is far-flung. California calls to Maine, and Florida to Washington for a united front in the endeavor to free our land from the curse of the liquor traffic; and from the Gulf to the Lakes, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific, there is an insistent and ever-increasing demand for a saloonless nation. It is no longer a "thin red line" that is so nobly fighting, as in the past, the battle to rescue mankind from the curse of strong drink, but a great host of determined and patriotic men and women who are resolved that the liquor traffic must cease, and that this blot must be removed from our land. National sobriety must come. The nation cannot afford to license a few men here and there to debauch the flower of our growing manhood and womanhood. The call for help is to every home lover, to every child lover and to every patriot of our land.

Among the speakers who will take an active part in the Atlantic City Convention will be Hon. R. P. Hobson, the well known ex-Congressman who led the fight for the submission of an amendment to the Federal Constitution in the lower house of Congress last year; ex-Governor Malcolm R. Patterson of Tennessee, a widely known figure in the field of national prohibition; Dr. Sam Small, the forceful Southern orator; Hon. John G. Woolley, one of the polished speakers of the day; Dr. Louis Albert Banks, whose name is a household word almost everywhere; ex-Governor George H. Hodges of Kansas, a convincing speaker; Governor George A. Carlson of Colorado, one of our most representative self-made men; Hon. Daniel A. Poling of Ohio, who is prominent in Christian Endeavor circles; Dr. P. A. Baker, the general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America; Dr. Howard H. Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon League; Mr. Ernest H. Cherrington, Major Dan Morgan Smith, Dr. George W. Young, Judge A. Z. Blair, Dr. M. P. Boynton, Rev. Clarence True Wilson, Dr. Homer W. Tope, Dr. Booker T. Washington, and many others.

TO OUR PREACHERS.

Dear Brethren: During the last eight months our income has shrunk to the extent of about $1200. We now have 3000 subscriptions on our lists which have expired and which are being carried at a great expense. Unless these subscriptions are renewed within the next three months we will be compelled to cut them off. Our only hope of securing the renewals is through our preachers in the usual way. Are we going to let these subscriptions drop, and reduce the usefulness of the Advocate? This is an important matter, brethren. We cannot run the Advocate on a credit basis. Labor and materiai have to be paid for, and we shall have to have your support, or go in debt. Please come to our assistance at once by securing the renewals of the subscriptions in your charge.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The Publisher is sending out bills to all subscribers whose subscriptions have expired. Many of our subscribers have already received notices and others will receive them within the next three or four weeks. Subscribers are urgently requested to renew their subscriptions at once, and give us their support in this time of need.

Should our subscribers neglect to renew their subscriptions three months after expiration, we will be compelled to cancel them. We are unable to carry them indefinitely for want of means. Economy demands that we reduce the expense of publishing the Advocate unless we receive adequate support from our constituency. Brethren, please renew your subscriptions at once.

CHIEFLY PERSONAL.

Rev. C. A. Battle, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Baton Rouge, La., writes: "Dr. H. M. DuBose, of Atlanta, Ga., who preached the Commencement sermon of the Louisiana State University yesterday (May 30), had a great congregation and delivered a discourse which greatly pleased the President of the University, the faculty, the graduating class, and the people generally. He occupied the pulpit of First Church at the evening hour and delighted his hearers with another fine sermon."

The Bulletin of the First Methodist Church of Baton Rouge, La., for May 30 contained the following statement: "We note in this week's New Orleans Advocate that the Publisher is sending out bills to those whose subscriptions are past due. Any one desiring to do so may turn this subscription money over to the pastor and he will look after the matter for him." Thank you, Brother Battle. If all our pastors would likewise call attention to this important matter from the pulpit and offer to perform this service, it would probably mean much to the Advocate in this time of great financial stringency.

It is with sorrow that we announce the death of Mrs. Clara Johanna Knaeble, widow of the late Antone Knaeble, which occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. O. Chalmers, in this city on Wednesday, May 26, 1915, at the advanced age of 84 years and 2 months. Mrs. Knaeble was born in Oldenburg, Germany, and came to the United States when nearly thirty years of age and had resided in New Orleans ever since. She was an earnest Christian and a member of the Evangelical Church. She reared a large family, and is survived by one son and three daughters, and a large number of grandchildren and great grandchildren. The obsequies were conducted on Friday morning, May 28, and the interment was made in Greenwood Cemetery, this city. We extend sympathy to the bereaved.

Just as we are about to close our forms we are in receipt of the following note from Rev. P. D. Hardin, presiding elder of the Jackson District: "Our parsonage at Canton, Miss., was almost entirely destroyed by fire at about 1 o'clock this morning (May 31). The flames had gained such headway before the alarm was given that practically nothing was saved. Through the heroic work of the fire company the church escaped with but slight injury. Brother Black's loss is heavy, consisting of his splendid library, piano, desks, clothing, and much else of value. The loss of the building was partially covered by insurance, but Brother Black had no policy of his personal effects. Any remembrance from the brethren in the way of books or otherwise would be greatly appreciated by him. The origin of the fire is hard to account for as there had been no fire kindled in the house since early the morning before. There was no one in the house at the time of this unfortunate occurrence except Brother Black and myself. Sister Black had been for several weeks at the bedside of her mother who is seriously ill at her home in Illinois."

OUR PUBLISHING HOUSE PROSPERS.

At the regular meeting of the Book Committee at Richmond, Va., the following gratifying condition of the business of our Publishing House was reported for the last fiscal year: The sales at Richmond were $101,474.83; at Dallas, $232,685.96; at Nashville, $658,975.32; total sales, $993,136.11, as against sales for the year ending February, 1914, of $996,588.10—making the sales for 1915 only $3,449.99 less than for 1914. The profits were: Richmond, $14,257.61; Dallas, $19,840.35; Nashville, $90,932.12; total profits, $125,030.08. There were losses on the Epworth Era, Review, Christian Advocate, and the Pacific Methodist Advocate. These losses amounted to something above $13,000. The total net gain in the business for the year was $111,532.11, while the total assets of the business are $1,464,009.84. Fifteen thousand dollars were set aside from the profits for the superannuated preachers and the widows and orphans of preachers, an increase on the amount appropriated for this purpose the year before.—Western Methodist.

WHERE THE OUTLOOK IS BRIGHTEST.

At the Southern Industrial and Educational Conference, in Chattanooga, Bishop Atkins declared that the Southern country community was the most hopeful on earth, due to its resources of soil, climate, scenery, and blood. Freedom from the infusion of foreign popuiation; splendor of scenery, which is not an inconsiderate element in the making of a great people; climate unsurpassed; and soil susceptible to all the development which industry and scientific knowledge can bring out. It looks like the Bishop made out his case. Let our circuit riders take fresh courage and rejoice that their lot is cast in so advantageous a field of world progress.—Midland Methodist.

Editorial

The trouble with many so-called religious movements is that they do not MOVE.

* * *

The trail of the dance is in this day over nearly everything, and, according to many observers whose opinions are entitled to weight, it does not lack much of being "the trail of the serpent."

* * *

The world cannot be made righteous by shutting our eyes to the evils prevalent in it and imagining that it is so. There are quite a few persons who are not Christian Scientists who seem disposed to try to usher in the Millennium by this method.

* * *

The more we let God do for us in spiritualizing our lives and perfecting our characters the larger becomes our faith in what he will do for others if they will permit him. A deepened and enriched personal experience usually opens the way for a more efficient and fruitful ministry.

* * *

A contemporary says: "One result of Billy Sunday's meeting in Philadelphia has been the payment of old debts. Merchants all over the city report that people have come and paid accounts which they had made many efforts to collect and had come to regard as worthless." It is not stated whether any delinquent subscriptions to church papers were included in the old debts paid. Alas! we fear not.

* * *

There was a time when "along that line" seemed as a stock expression to be without a rival: but "worth while" appears now to have far outstripped it. A distinguished dignitary in the Church in a pretentious article a few days since even ventured to speak of a "worth while man." If all men aren't "worth while," we need to revise our teaching as to the value of the human soul. Surely, this hackneyed phrase has seen enough service to be entitled an honorable superannuation.

* * *

Where did any Christian ever get the idea that no matter what a man does only good should be spoken of him? Such a standard would condemn both our Lord and his Apostles. In arraigning the Pharisees Jesus called them "vipers" and "whited sepulchers." It is sometimes necessary to uncover the character and wrong-doing of persons in order to save an important and sacred cause that involves truth and right and the welfare of thousands. And the people who preach this namby-pamby doctrine, usually do not practice it. As a rule, they do not themselves mind striking at Pastor Russell, the Mormons, et ld genus omne; it is only when it becomes necessary to turn the light on the evil conduct of some one closer by that they begin to have their charity spasms. But the true man of God cannot for the mere sake of peace afford to hush his lips concerning near-by outrages. On the contrary, their very proximity heightens his obligation to expose and combat them.

WHICH IS RIGHT?

The late John J. Ingalls of Kansas, when comparatively young, wrote the following poem:

"OPPORTUNITY.

"Master of human destinies am I!
Fame, love, and fortune on my footsteps wait.
Cities and fields I walk; I penetrate
Deserts and seas remote, and, passing by
Hovel and mart and palace, soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate!
If sleeping, wake; if feasting, rise before
I turn away. It is the hour of fate,
And they who follow me reach every state
Mortals desire, and conquer every foe
Save death; but those who doubt or hesitate
Condemned to failure, penury, and woe,
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore.
I answer not, and I return no more."

Many years later, Judge Walter Malone, of Memphis, Tenn., the sweet singer of our sunny South, who so recently passed away, wrote the following verses, to which he also gave the name, "Opportunity":

"They do me wrong who say I come no more
When once I knock and fail to find you in;
For every day I stand outside your door,
And bid you wake, and rise to fight and win.

"Wail not for precious chances passed away,
Weep not for golden ages on the wane!
Each night I burn the records of the day—
At sunrise every soul is born again!

"Laugh like a boy at splendors that have sped,
To vanished joys be blind and deaf and dumb;
My judments seal the dead past with its dead,
But never bind a moment yet to come.

"Though deep in mire, wring not your hands and weep;
I lend my arm to all who say, 'I can.'
No shame-faced outcast ever sank so deep,
But yet might rise and be again a man!

"Dost thou behold thy lost youth all aghast?
Dost reel from righteous Retribution's blow?
Then turn from blotted archives of the past,
And find the future's pages white as snow.

"Art thou a mourner? Rouse thee from thy spell;
Art thou a sinner? Sins may be forgiven.
Each morning gives thee wings to flee from hell,
Each night a star to guide thy feet to heaven."

That these beautiful stanzas form an impressively eloquent reply to Senator Ingalls' brilliant lines every one will readily admit; but the question is, Were they written for this purpose? The Memphis Commercial Appeal in an extended notice of Judge Malone's death and career, expressly affirms that they were; but from this view the Memphis News-Scimitar dissents in the following language: "'Opportunity', by no means his best lyric, introduced him to the world at large. A conjuncture of circumstances was responsible for this. It was supposed to be an answer to the verses on the same subject by the brilliant Ingalls of Kansas. This is an error. When "Opportunity" was written he (Judge Malone) had never seen or heard of the Ingalls lines, and when he did see them he recognized that they were a none too skillful paraphrastic translation of an apostrophe to opportunity in one of Machiavelli's plays, and the great Florentine was conventional and followed the trend of almost all writers from Pliny to Wordsworth. The old Latins pictured opportunity as wearing a forelock which must be grasped because there was only baldness behind, and this idea was carried down the stream of literature. In his 'Opportunity' Malone faced about and breasted the stream and turned it back. His was the song of hope. It was a new voice, and it was inspiring and heartening."

Which of these authorities is correct we do not know. The internal evidence furnished by the two poems seems to be markedly on the side of the Commercial Appeal; and it is difficult to understand how so omnivorous a reader as Judge Malone could have escaped seeing Mr. Ingalls' lines, which had been widely republished on the occasion of his death; but the News-Scimitar speaks as if it had what it considered dependable information on the subject. Nor is this the first time that the noted Kansas Senator and orator has been accused of being an adept at borrowing from high sources. It will doubtless be remembered that some of his scintillating eulogies upon his dead colleagues in the American Senate were represented to have been largely drawn from the printed utterances of Massillon, the great French preacher. It is quite possible that these two journals have raised an issue that will never be conclusively settled. Few things are more difficult than the ascertainment of the exact truth concerning disputed matters of this kind when the once voice that could have put to rest all contention has been forever hushed.

We have been pleased to note that the citizens of Memphis are talking of having erected in Court Square, the most central park of that city, as a memorial to Judge Malone, a bronze tablet with his poem, "Opportunity," inscribed upon it. This would indeed be a beautiful testimonial of appreciation, and as the Editor of the Commercial Appeal well says, "It would be a daily proclamation of hope to those who need the uplift of encouragement and optimism."

THE MOST NEEDED SERVICE.

There are far more famishing souls in the world than there are starving bodies. The former are all about you; and the noblest service known to earth is to feed them upon the bread of life. Are you, as a professed disciple of Jesus, faithfully endeavoring to do this? Or are you insistent upon spending your strength in the easier and more superficial ministries of a physical kind? The missionary who carries effective help to immortal human spirits in whom sin is enthroned and working its awful ruin is the missionary that mankind most needs. This is the work that the Apostles counted of such vast importance that they appointed others to "serve tables," that they might give themselves unremittingly to it. It is a sacred duty to do good to the bodies of men, and we dare not neglect it; but as Christ's representatives in the world, that is not our highest or chiefest obligation to our fellow-creatures, and woe be unto us if we make it so.

TWO TEMPLES.

Hattie Vose Hall.

A builder builded a temple;
He wrought it with grace and skill—
Pillars and groins and arches,
All fashioned to work his will.
And men said as they saw its beauty,
"It never shall know decay.
Great is thy skill, O builder!
Thy fame shall endure for aye!"

A mother builded a temple
With infinite loving care,
Planning each arch with patience,
Laying each stone with prayer.
None praised her unceasing effort,
None knew of her wondrous plan,
For the temple the mother builded
Was unseen by the eye of man.

Gone is the builder's temple—
Crumbled into the dust;
Low lies each stately pillar,
Food for consuming rust.
But the temple the mother builded
Will last while the ages roll,
For that beautiful, unseen temple
Was a child's immortal soul.

—Zion's Herald.

THE BULWARK OF CHURCH AND STATE.

No two words have a more vital importance than Christianity and home. Underneath the foundations of both Church and State lies the household; it is older than either of them. There is no such school of Bible religion in the land as a happy, God-fearing home. No Church is so effective for restraint from evil, and for growth in all Christian graces as "the church in the house." There stands the domestic altar. There is felt the influence that moulds character from the very start.—The Presbyterian.

AN ALL-THE-YEAR-ROUND REVIVAL.

Shickshinny, a little town of 2100 people in Pennsylvania, has had an all-the-year-round revival. Pastor Elmer Elsworth Harter has shown what can be done in a small charge when the pastor is his own evangelist. The revival began with four weeks of evangelistic services in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, resulting in one hundred conversions. Pastor Harter then organized his membership for personal work. This resulted in one or more conversions almost every Sunday, totaling fifty-eight up to the following January. Three more weeks of special meetings were then held, when nearly another hundred conversions were secured, making a total within a single year of 256. Of these, 154 were new additions to the church and 87 were renewals. The converts ranged in age from 12 to 73 years. That the whole church was quickened was also seen from the fact that The Christian Advocate subscriptions reached 200 per cent increase and the Epworth Herald more than 125 per cent. This was all accomplished in a small church which at the beginning of the evangelistic campaign had 243 members.—New York Christian Advocate.

OUR PRECIOUS HOPE.

Bishop F. M. Bristol, D. D.

Upon the tomb's dark walls bereavement reads: "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live;" "Marvel not at this, for the hour is coming in which all that are in the grave shall hear his voice, and come forth;" "Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first-fruits of them that slept." How beautiful do these words make graves appear! Mother, father, could all the floral charms of nature add such a glory to the little mound? Mourning children, could garlands of lilies and roses so beautify the resting-place of sainted mother as these heavenly words of hope and promise? To-day why should we seek the living among the dead? Our vanished loved ones are not in the dust of our cemeteries; they walk with God in white. As shone the angel faces and the angel robes, so shine their faces and their white-robed forms in light. We walk alone for a while. There are empty places in home and church; there are empty chairs and empty arms; but there is a light still burning where they were; a light in the mourning mother's arms, a strange, sweet light in the home; something like a glory in the very air, as though angels had swept past on gleaming wings, and left a trail of light from earth to heaven. Oh, seek ye the living among the living! Lift up your sad faces toward the light, toward the smiles which are falling from heaven, and let the days be full of faith and hope and praise! "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" "Jesus and his own are alive forevermore."

ROOSEVELT AS "CONFESSOR."

(From the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.)

A certain mother wrote to Roosevelt, confiding to him the fear that she was becoming commonplace to her husband, and her belief that because of the care of her large family she had "gotten behind the times," according to the Chicago News. Mr. Roosevelt wrote the following letter in reply to hers:

"My Dear Mrs.———: Most certainly your letter will not go into the waste-paper basket. I shall think it over and show it to Mrs. Roosevelt. Will you let me say, in the first place, that a woman who can write such a letter is certainly not 'hopelessly dull and uninteresting?' If the facts are as you state, then I do not wonder that you feel bitterly, and that you feel that the gravest kind of injustice has been done you. I have always tried to insist to men that they should do their duty to the women even more than the women to them. Now, I hardly like to write specifically about your husband, because you might not like it yourself. It seems to me almost incredible that any man who is the husband of a woman who has borne him nine children should not feel that they and he are lastingly her debtors.

"You say that you have had nine children, that you did your own work, including washing, ironing, house-cleaning, and the care of the little ones as they came along; that you sewed everything they wore, including trousers for the boys and caps and jackets for the girls while little; that you helped them all in their school-work and started them in music; but that as they grew older you got behind the times, that you never belonged to a club or society or lodge, nor went to any one's house, as you hardly had time to do so; and that in consequence your husband outgrew you, and that your children look up to him and not to you.

"If these facts are so, you have done a great and wonderful work, and the only explanation I can possibly give of the attitude you describe on the part of your husband and children is that they do not understand what it is that you have done. I emphatically believe in unselfishness, but I also believe that it is a mistake to let other people grow selfish, even when the other people are husband and children.

"Now, I suggest that you take your letter to me, of which I send you back a copy, and this letter, and then select out of your family the one with whom you feel most sympathy, whether it is your husband or one of your children. Show the two letters to him or her, and then have a frank talk about the matter. If any man, as you say, becomes ashamed of his wife because she has lost her figure in bearing his children, then that man is a hound and has every cause to be ashamed of himself. I am sending you a little book called 'Mother,' by Kathleen Norris, which will give you my views on the matter. Of course, there are base and selfish men, just as there are, although I believe in smaller number, base and selfish women. Man and woman alike should profit by the teachings in such a story as this of 'Mother.'"

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

COLLEGE-KILLING FURTHER ELUCIDATED.

By H. Walter Featherstun, D. D.

Let it be clearly understood that not one word I have written or shall write is to be understood as in any sense depreciatory of the large colleges. We need them. We indeed must have them. No one more than I rejoices in the wonderful coming to us of Emory University and the unsurpassed glory of the sister institution at Dallas. I am only pleading that it is unwise, unjust and unnecessary to kill off our small colleges.

Let it be remembered that the Discipline in Paragraph 469 and nowhere else indicates the purpose of the "Commission of ten practical educators," and the scope of their duties to be this only—"to protect the educational standards of the Church." The method of this protecting is specified: "They shall prescribe the minimum requirements to be demanded of the several classes in institutions belonging to or controlled by the Church." The Commission is required to report "at least once in every four years to the (General) Board of Education its works." Not one thing more than these is this Commission permitted under the law of the Church to do. Yet it has established A and B grades for standard colleges. By what authority? The General Conference which called the Commission into being has given it no authority to do anything of the sort. It goes further and forbids standard colleges whose library, laboratory and income do not reach certain princely proportions, notwithstanding the fact that the work done in the classes meets all the requirement, to confer the regular baccalaureate degrees. Who gave this Commission the authority to thus forbid?

"Upon what meat does this our Caesar feed
That he hath grown so great?"

Is this creature of the General Conference greater than its creator?

I am a trustee of a standard college more than seventy years old which maintains a college course and confers the regular baccalaureate degrees; but its library, its laboratory, its income and its want of endowment put it into the condemned class. This Commission says to my college: "You must confer no more degrees as you have been doing through your long and glorious career. You must become a Junior College or something of the sort." This means that my college must commit hari-kiri at the imperial behest of this Commission. Do the gentlemen of the Commission expect us to obey them? Why should we! After ten years as a college president in Mississippi and other years on boards of trustees of colleges here, and after a forty years study of educational problems in this State, I unhesitatingly affirm that no college that does not confer the regular baccalaureate degrees can live in Mississippi.

Even the General Board of Education has caught the Commission's imperialistic air, and tells us that the law requires that each of our schools must be placed in some one of the classes provided for by the General Conference Commission on Education.

Who authorized the Commission to provide for the classes herein alluded to? The General Conference fixed the classes. Here is the law: "It shall be the duty of the General Conference Board of Education, assisted by the several Conference Boards of Education, to inspect the financial condition and equipment, the amount and quality of the work done in all the educational institutions of the Church, to classify them, and to designate each as academy, junior college, college, theological seminary, or university, according to the relation of its equipment and the work done by it to the standards established by the Commission."

The Commission is to fix the standards of classification—"educational standards"—not financial standards, not laboratorial standards, not library standards, but EDUCATIONAL STAN-DARDS—so reads the law. By what authority does it proceed to fix and "provide" classes, and then, command the colleges to line up in its classes rather than in those fixed by the General Conference? What is the matter with the General Board? Shall we throw our Discipline to the bats and owls, and turn the whole business over to Boards and Commissions? Men bigger than the Church! Boards and Commissions bigger than General Conferences! It is time to call a halt and take our bearings.

There is another phase of this question peculiarly startling. A young man in a country church is called to preach, and seeks preparation first in a college and then at our University. He can raise the money each year, say about $100, to attend a small college four years and get his bachelor's degree. But suppose the small colleges have all been killed by the Commission and Board of Education; and it will require $300 per year—$1200 for the four years—$800 more than in the small college? That means, put baldly, that he must pay in addition to compassing the course of study $800 for his degree. The Church, his Church, will give him a degree for compassing the course of study and paying $800—but the $800 must come. This is not a pretty picture, but it is one out of real life if the small colleges are all killed off. The tragedy of this picture remains to he told. The boy cannot pay the $800—then what?

For the sake of the poor boys and girls of Mississippi Methodism, who are called of God to consecrate brain and brawn to the work of the future Church, I plead that we take care, good care, of the small colleges we now own.

Let it be very clearly understood that I am impugning nobody's motives. I have no doubt that every one of the learned Christian men on the Commission and also every one on the Board feels that he is doing the right thing. We are getting into the habit, in our Church, of assuming prerogatives not conferred by the law of the Church. We mean no harm; but harm to a woful degree is being wrought. We are sowing the seeds of lawlessness. Our boards and commissions become law unto themselves by this sort of usurpation; and individuals will be doing the same thing, and ecclesiastical anarchy will result. Much harm has been already wrought by this thoughtless lawlessness. Let us call a halt right here in this reckless, wasteful and unjust, as well as unlawful, college-killing business. More anon.

AMAZING TALK.

Dr. Edwin Mims, a Vanderbilt professor, and Mr. Whitefoord, a Vanderbilt trustee, delivered addresses before the Vanderbilt Alumni Association of Atlanta, Ga., a few days since. The following is an extract from the speech of the former on that occasion, as reported in the Atlanta Journal:

Declaring that "there should be no unhealthy competition between light-houses," Dr. Edwin Mims, head of the department of English at Vanderbilt University, summarized the attitude of the University toward the new institutions of learning that are being erected as a result of the final adjustment of the controversy over the control of Vanderbilt.

Dr. Mims was speaking to the Georgia alumni of Vanderbilt at their first celebration of Founders' day at the Piedmont Driving Club Thursday night.

"Vanderbilt alumni of Atlanta," said he, "are naturally loyal to the institutions of this city—you have the pride in them that patriotic citizens ought to have. Vanderbilt rejoices with you in their success. If I interpret the spirit of Vanderbilt, it is not an exclusive one; we recognize that it takes all sorts of institutions to wage battles for intelligence and righteousness. There ought to be a common purpose dominating us all in this long warfare for the emancipation of man.

"But while you richly cherish these institutions that flourish in your midst, I am sure that you have loyalty for your Alma Mater and that this tie is one of the sacred things of life.

No Break in Traditions.

"There has been no break in the traditions of the University—no revolution in our ideals. If some have misinterpreted and misunderstood us, we can say that the new Vanderbilt is the old Vanderbilt working in the spirit of a new day. The fact that not a member of the faculty has resigned, nor a member of the board of trust, that our constituency has remained unshaken in its loyalty, that our student body has manifested increasing devotion, goes to show that the policies that have dominated us in the past will continue to be ours."

In view of the changes that have taken place in the government of Vanderbilt University, and the alterations that have been made in the historical account of the establishment of that institution contained in the late Vanderbilt Bulletin, this claim that everything is going on there just as before is nothing short of astounding. And since this statement is being very generally made over the country by representatives of Vanderbilt University, we have decided in this and one or two succeeding issues of the Advocate to let our readers see what Dr. W. D. Bradfield, Editor of the Texas Christian Advocate, has lately been saying on this subject in that journal. The first of Dr. Bradfield's editorial utterances follows:

The South's New School of Theological Liberalism.

Upon recent visits to the homes of two of our pastors, one a former student at Vanderbilt University, the other having never attended that institution, I found upon the table of each the April Bulletin of Vanderbilt University. The title page reads: "Biblical Department of Vanderbilt University—A School of Religion." A third pastor told me that he had received from Vanderbilt University blanks for the names and addresses of prospective students with the request that the same be filled in and returned to the University. No such literature has reached me for the reason, I am sure, that the University has not made note of the change in my address from San Antonio to Dallas.

The facts stated above, indicating clearly that Vanderbilt University is still looking, in a large measure, for her patronage from a Church which she has repudiated, impose upon every editor and every pastor in the Church a solemn duty. And this duty, for my part, I now religiously and prayerfully seek to discharge.

I entered Vanderbilt University as a student in September, 1885. I was wholly unprepared for college, and after four years of study still lacked eleven hours required for my degree of arts. During the first two years in the Biblical Department I finished the work for my degree, and in 1891 was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. In connection with my senior year in Theology I continued work in the Academic Department, studying political economy and constitutional history under Dr. Bemis, and English literature under Dr. Baskerville. In June of 1892 I received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity. I left the University after seven years without an enemy among my fellow-students, and, so far as I know, with the cordial respect of all my instructors.

Sixteen years later I was invited to deliver the Commencement sermon at my Alma Mater, and if ever I have received an ovation for anything I have tried to do, it was then. The two Bishops seated on the platform, my old teachers, the student body and the Nashville public were most extravagant in their words of praise. The following Monday morning the Dean met me in the corridors of Wesley Hall and broke the news of my election to membership on the Board of Trust. I make these statements, not for the purpose of commending myself, but solely to show that no alumnus of Vanderbilt University had more reason to love his Alma Mater, and that no ground existed for anything other than the utmost mutual esteem and respect at the time of my election to membership on the Vanderbilt Board of Trust.

If further proof is needed of my cordial love for Vanderbilt University, to the period named, I have but to say that it was under the magnolias of the beautiful campus that I protested my love to the best woman in the world.

The proceedings in the Board of Trust in the very first year of my membership upon it put up to me sharply and unequivocally the choice between my Alma Mater and my Church. There was no way to avoid it—I had to choose. And I did, not without deep pain, however. The last year of my membership I was allowed to serve on no committees of the Board and at the earliest possible moment my successor was elected. I do not desire to conceal my resentment; the genesis of it only I wish to remain clear.

The Bulletin which I have started out to discuss in this and following editorials is a very strange document to one who has known Vanderbilt University as long and as intimately as the writer knew it. During one-fourth of Vanderbilt's entire history of forty years I was either a student in her halls or a member on her Board. I am familiar with her best traditions and acquainted with her real builders. I know the spirit of her founders. The face of Holland N. McTyeire was a familiar face. During my seven years at Vanderbilt University, associated intimately, I may say, with the faculties and students in both the Academic and Biblical Departments, I never heard the echo of a whisper that the University was not both owned and controlled by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. There was a demand just beginning to grow, however, that the alumni should share with the members of the Board from the eight patronizing Conferences the direction of the affairs of the University. There was a complaint just beginning to be whispered that the institution was managed too largely in the interest of the Church. But no man had arisen as yet bold enough to deny that the ownership and control of the University resided in the patronizing Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The Bulletin in question, therefore, appears as a very strange document in that it refrains from all mention of our Church. It purports to give the "history" of Vanderbilt University, but nowhere is there any mention of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, it is true, no longer has any official relation to the University, but does this in any way alter the facts of history? The Nashville Banner, after Judge Turner's decision, declared that whatever the courts may say, the undisputed fact of history will remain that the University ever will stand as a monument to the initiative and wisdom of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. And with this statement all right-thinking men will agree. But, does the Vanderbilt Board, under whose authority all University publications are sent out, still begrudge the Church even this bit of comfort? Does this Board still seek the patronage of our Church while expunging from her publications the honorable history of the Church? Can this Board have the effrontery to come with a mutilated statement of history and still ask Methodist preachers to send it names of prospective students? The Board, for example, publishes to the world Mr. Vanderbilt's first donation of $500,000. To whom was this donation made? Why does the Vanderbilt Board of Trust stop with the statement that such a donation was made? Why couldn't the Board say, with good conscience, that it was made "to the corporation of the Central University of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South?" Isn't that the real history? Is there anything in the past conduct of the Board that makes it hesitate to tell the plain facts of history? Would the telling of the whole truth in any way embarrass the Board in its present ambitions? The Board, for example, publishes in the Bulletin mentioned the fact that the citizens of Nashville gave $28,000 toward the purchase of grounds for the University. Why stop with this statement? Why couldn't the Board tell that these grounds were deeded to "H. N. McTyeire, Trustee?" Trustee for what? Trustee for whom? Would it have embarrassed the Board to make full its "general statement" of the "history" of their University? Is there any episode in the life of the Board which it would conceal by its expurgated statement? The Board, for example, publishes in the Bulletin named "donations to the Biblical Department." It speaks of the "Sustentation Loan Fund." What was the objection to saying that the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has made gifts ranging from $300,000 to $500,000 to the Biblical Department which now is "a school of religion?" Is any statement the whole truth which leaves out of the account the beneficence of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South?

And while the Board of Trust of the Vanderbilt University is engaged in the business of expunging the records why not erase "the articles of foundation" from their charter? This was logically the first thing to do. And it is no reflection on the acumen of the Board that this was the first thing it sought to do. Why not go to its own records and expunge the words "rejoicing in the ownership of the Church in Vanderbilt University," etc.? Why not erase the Chancellor's words that the Board was a "committee" of the General Conference? And why not go to the Annual Conferences and wipe every trace from their journals of the origin of the University?

The simple truth is that the Board of Trust of Vanderbilt University adds to its atrocious wrong in the past new insults to the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when with its multilated statements of history it comes and asks it to become its agents in securing a student body for the University. Its perfidy and treachery are not so easily forgotten.

MEETING OF WHITWORTH BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

The Board of Trustees of Whitworth College recently held their annual meeting in the new Cooper Hall on the college campus. The Board found the condition of the college in every respect most excellent, and in spite of the financial stringency that the present session had been one of unusual success. We found the faculty and student body enthusiastic over this year's session and over the future of the college. Certainly there is every reason to rejoice in the work of this splendid institution under the present administration.

Not the least enjoyable feature of the day was a luncheon served to the Board of Trustees by the Department of Domestic Science. These young ladies made ideal hostesses and the Board thoroughly enjoyed the occasion. The Board of Trustees decided for the present to discontinue the work being done by the Financial Agent, the Rev. L. E. Alford. They expressed their high appreciation of the enthusiastic interest and effort that Brother Alford has put into this work.

In that connection, the Board asked for the publication in the Advocate of the following statement and resolutions.

Yours fraternally,
H. B. WATKINS,
Secretary.

Statement.

At the recent annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of Whitworth College it was thought best to discontinue the Financial Agency on account of the general financial depression which prevails throughout this section.

Yours very truly,
Signed: THAD B. LAMPTON,
President of Board of Trustees.

Vice President.

Resolutions.

Whereas, It has come to the attention of this Board that there has been some agitation with reference to changing the plan of conducting this institution from the present lease system to a plan under which the Church will assume the responsibility of the management directly, instead of through a lessee; and

Whereas, This Board now has with Dr. I. W. Cooper, president of the college, a five-year contract, under which contract the grounds and buildings of the college are leased to him; and

Whereas, There is on record an offer from Dr. Cooper to release this Board from its contract with him at any time on one year's notice; therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Board that the present plan is the best for the Church until such a time as the Church shall have an income or endowment sufficient to justify it in making a change.

Be it further resolved, That we are very much gratified with the condition of the college and that this Board hereby expresses its appreciation of the valuable service that Dr. Cooper has in the past and is now rendering the Church as president of the college, and that we commend him to the Church as a man highly capable and worthy of all the confidence that the Church resposes in him.

Respectfully submitted,
Signed: W. M. WILLIAMS,
J. M. MORSE,
W. D. DAVIS,
Committee.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE
BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., President

Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Sec'y

Rev. C. A. Battle, Treas., Baton Rouge, La.

(This Department is conducted by Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education, and Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Publicity Commissioner.)

TO WHOM DO YOU LIVE?

Many a man thinks that he lives to himself and dies to himself, but the Bible says that no man lives or dies to himself. Whether we consider it or not, our life is being graded by the standards enacted by our maker. We may be pressing with our whole energy toward things of the world, and the world may judge us to be righteous, but our lives are being measured by the righteousness of God and not of man. When we die, we may try to die to ourselves, but we die to the Lord. Every one of us will stand before him who reigns on high, and to him will we give an account of our lives and not to another. If we believe these things, then why not look at our lives in relation to such truths?

Many a man gives sparingly to the Church and liberally to himself. He lives well, dresses himself and family well, spends freely for pleasure, and plunges deeply for the sake of business. He is a Christian, at least he is known as such, but to the Church he is small. His whole life is in order to advance his own interests and those of his family and loved ones. He expects to die, and plans for the future of his family and friends. He carries heavy life insurance for the material needs of his family. He makes a will, and in it he thinks only of his family and friends. He lives to himself and the material world and then dies to the material world. Such a life is poorly lived.

Here is a suggestion. In the making of your will, place a clause like this: "I give to the Trustees of Centenary College of Shreveport, La., the sum of so many thousand dollars." After having placed that clause in your will, make it effective right now by making a pledge of five per cent interest on the amount during your life. Thus, if you should will $5000 to Centenary, you would make a pledge of $250 a year to the maintenance of the College. Think this over, and write to Rev. W. W. Drake, 1125 Fern St., New Orleans, for further information.

YOUR PART TO DO.

In the Educational Number of the Advocate, there appeared an article urging that a "Thousand Dollar Club" be organized by fifty or more men and women in Louisiana agreeing to give $1000 each to the endowment of Centenary College. The entire $1000 does not need to be given in one payment, but may be paid within five years. When completed, it would mean $50,000 of productive endowment. This amount would net to the College from $2000 to $3000 per year. With that amount coming in regularly, the immediate needs of the College would be cared for. This year a special assessment was laid on the Conference in order to take care of the running expenses. With this amount active at once, such an assessment would be a thing of the past.

There are more than 35,000 Methodists in Louisiana. It stands to reason that there are more than fifty of these who could spare the $1000 and hardly miss it. Some one knows who these fifty are. The reader of this article may know who one of them is, and if he does, it is proper that he should send the name right now to Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education. If each district would produce seven $1000 men or women, we would have within a thousand of it, and that thousand would come at once. There are seven District Commissioners of Education. If you live in the Alexandria District, go to your District Commissioner, Rev. G. E. Cameron, and join with him in a challenge to every other district in the Conference to be the first to put up your $7000. If you live in the Baton Rouge District, see Rev. C. A. Battle; if in the Lafayette District, see Rev. A. S. Lutz; if in the Monroe District, see Rev. A. J. Townsley; if in the Ruston District, see Rev. J. M. Henry; if in the Shreveport District, see Rev. Geo. Sexton, and if here in New Orleans consult Rev. W. W. Drake.

These men, we believe, are ready to join in a movement to keep their district even or ahead if possible. What have you to say regarding this making of a $50,000 offering unanimous, by each district putting up seven men with $1000 each? The Conference Secretary of Education and the Publicity Commissioner of the Board of Education, with a limited knowledge of the whole State, were able to make a list of 100 names of Methodists who are able to give the $1000. Letters were sent to the 100 asking immediate consideration. The answers received from these letters have been courteous, but there is needed something besides good wishes and courtesy. These 100 men doubtless would respond if they were visited by the right person. You may be that person. Your Secretary and Publicity Commissioner have written reams of matter on this subject. If the readers of this article will write a short letter to the Secretary, and agree to give $1000, or help to secure a giver if we will put them on the right track, or will tell us of a possible $1000 donor, we will appreciate it very much.

A CORRECTION.

In an article entitled "Are the Preachers Interested," in this department of the Advocate last week, in referring to the fact that about half of the pastors have reported on the Centenary Special, and that only about one-third of the assessment had been raised, we intended to say, "This indicates that a considerable number of the pastors have made definite effort to carry out the order of the Conference." By some slip of the writer or printer, the word "no" slipped in, making us say that "A considerable number of the preachers have made no definite effort to carry out the order of the Conference." We were, of course, not in a position to say that any preacher had made no definite effort to carry out the order, and can not believe that such is true. We intended to state the other side of the case, showing from reports sent in, that a number of the preachers had taken definite and more or less successful means of rallying to our great need. We have no means of knowing the sentiment or interest of those who have made no report.

MRS. HARRIET LUCRETIA HARDY PERRITT.

On May 11, 1915, Sister Perritt, wife of Rev. J. W. Perritt, a minister of the M. E. Church, passed from earth's cares and woes to the reward of the faithful. Her physical sufferings lasted but a short time, as she was taken ill after noontide and in two hours, or in a shorter time, she was no longer an earthly inhabitant, as her spirit had flown to the God who gave it. By reason of strength she had passed three score years and ten, being 71 years 3 months and 17 days of age. She was born in Covington, La., on Feb. 24, 1844. At the tender age of twelve years she was born of the Holy Spirit and joined the Mount Hermon Methodist Church in Washington Parish, La., On Sept. 23, 1867, she was married to Rev. J. W. Perritt, which union was blessed with nine children, six boys and three girls, all of whom survive her except one boy, who died in infancy.

Brother Perritt was a farmer as well as a preacher. His farm was nine miles west of Wesson, Miss., and there the children were born and reared. The eldest son, Rev. H. B. Perritt, is now pastor at Selma, La., and Rev. W. B. Perritt, the youngest son but one, is pastor at Bossier City, La. Prof. Morris Perritt is superintendent of the public schools of Belzoni, Miss., and since his mother's death has been elected Principal of the Wesson High School for its next session. Franklin Sharbrough Perritt is farming near the old homestead; John M. Perritt is merchandising at Wesson, Miss.; Miss Laura Bell Perritt is a public school teacher; Miss Minnie L. has married Brother Bufkin, and Miss Mary B. has married Brother Perry Bagley, both farming near the old home. Brother Perritt, the husband of our deceased sister is a retired Methodist preacher and lives at Wesson, where he bade farewell to his dear wife.

Sister Perritt was a devout Christian, who loved her Lord and delighted in his service. Her very face would brighten when her Savior became the topic of conversation. She was a faithful wife, and not only contributed to her husband's success as a farmer but much more as a soul-winner. From what the writer has learned, she esteemed sacrifices and hard labor for her Savior as a privilege. As a mother, we learn much of her from the lives of her children who are filling important places in life, two of them filling the highest possible place — that of preaching the gospel of Christ. They are all Christians and are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and hence it may be said of her:

"Servant of God, well done!
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last;
Of all thy heart's desire
Triumphantly possessed;
Lodged by the ministerial choir
In thy Redeemer's breast."

May God greatly bless and comfort her bereaved husband and children and incite them to greater diligence and faithfulness in the work of God until they are safe with our blessed Lord Jesus Christ in heaven.

Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, President of the Princeton Theological Seminary, was elected Moderator of the General Assembly of the Northern Presbyterian Church at the recent session of that body in Rochester, N. Y.

Dr. H. M. DuBose, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Atlanta, Ga., has received 180 persons into the Church since the last Annual Conference. Dr. DuBose will be one of the speakers at the National Anti-Saloon League Convention in Atlantic City, July 6-9.

Bishop J. C. Kilgo spent Sunday, May 23, with the West End congregation of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and after a thrilling sermon, raised $25,000 to liquidate the debt on the handsome new church in which that flock worships. The pastor of this congregation is Rev. R. M. Courtney.

Bishop E. E. Hoss will sail for Australia and the Orient on July 6. He will be accompanied on the long trip by his son, Mr. Embree Hoss. May a kind Providence grant him journeying mercies and bring him back to the Church at home safe and sound after he shall have fulfilled his mission abroad!

At the late General Assembly of the Northern Presbyterian Church, held in Rochester, N. Y., it was announced that the gain in membership of that denomination during the past year was 112,927, against 93,000 during the year preceding. It is our impression that no Church in the United States had a larger percentage of increase than this during the past twelve months.

It is stated that Dr. F. M. Thomas, of Louisville, Ky., in accepting the Chair of Christian Doctrine in the Theological School of the Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas, did so with the understanding that he would be given a year's leave of absence and would not be expected to enter upon the duties of his professorship prior to the fall of 1916.

The American Tract Society (New York) recently celebrated its 90th anniversary. During the past year 915,000 tracts were published. The grand total of all publications in all languages issued by this Society from its home office during the ninety years of its history amounts to 791,142,050 copies. Who can measure the influence of such a scattering abroad of leaves for the healing of the nations?

We take the following from the Northwestern Christian Advocate (Chicago): "The Baptist Church at Oak Park, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, has voted to receive persons by letter from other denominations without immersion, while it will continue to administer baptism by immersion only to its own converts. This has for many years been the practice of English Baptists, but is not widely followed in America."

FURTHER ECHOES FROM THE MEETING OF THE GENERAL BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

(Sent out from the General Office.)

Gratification was expressed on every hand over the unusual increase of $110,853.56 in the Loan Fund Capital for the year, which is now $671,436.19. On account of the increasing demand for loans, and recognizing the fact that this claim has never been pressed upon the Church as a whole, the Board provided for a Loan Fund Campaign to be conducted by the Corresponding Secretary assisted by a special committee of seven, as follows: Bishop John C. Kilgo, D. D.; Bishop A. W. Wilson, D. D.; Bishop James Atkins, D. D.; Bishop W. R. Lambuth, D. D.; Rev. R. H. Cooper; Rev. S. H. C. Burgin, D. D.; Rev. James Thomas, D. D. It is the purpose of the Board to secure the presentation of this great interest in every congregation. This Committee will be heard from a little later on.

* * *

Looking to the establishment of a Department of Architecture, which was recommended by the Corresponding Secretary, the Board unanimously said: "We most heartily approve the recommendation of the Corresponding Secretary looking to the establishment of a Department of Architecture in connection with our work. We are sure there is a crying need for relief along this line. Our people are asking for something of this character which will be of material benefit. We therefore recommend that the Corresponding Secretary and Executive and Finance Committee secure such information from competent architects, and all other data needed, as will warrant the Board in establishing this department. In this work we request the co-operation of the Sunday School Board."

* * *

The biography of the late Rev. David Morton, D. D., the first Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, has been written by Bishop E. E. Hoss, D. D. Information reached the Board through Dr. Daniel Morton of St. Joseph, Mo., a son of the late Dr. Morton, that his mother, Mrs. Hannah Morton, desired to issue an edition of the biography, and, after reserving such copies as she might need for personal distribution, to turn the remainder over to the Board of Church Extension. The Board recognized by appropriate resolutions the thoughtful interest of Mrs. Morton in its work, and recommended to the Corresponding Secretary and the Loan Fund Campaign Committee that they consider the advisability of using the publication as an agency in the work of increasing the Loan Fund Capital.

The instruction of the last General Conference to the Board of Church Extension to make a study of the subject of Church Insurance and bring to the next General Conference a plan for the insurance of church, parsonage and school property was considered by the Board, and the following action recorded: "The action of the General Conference with reference to formulating some plan for insuring our church and parsonage property is mandatory upon this Board. We deem it best for this important matter to be handled by the Secretary and the Executive and Finance Committee. We suggest that a study of the question, in an average conference or small group of conferences, be made, and that such necessary data be gathered as in the judgment of the Committee will be needed to guide the Board in reaching a wise conclusion for recommendations to the General Conference."

* * *

The Corresponding Secretary called attention in his report to the embarrassments and disadvantages of making grants to churches and parsonages only once a year, and requested a careful study of the situation with the hope that the Board might agree upon some plan for doing this work at shorter intervals. This suggestion was placed in the hands of a strong Committee which gave it special attention, and the action of the Board is as follows: "As to the suggestion of the Secretary referring to the making of grants to needy churches oftener than once a year, your Committee does not feel disposed at this time to make any recommendations. This matter is of unquestionable importance, but is surrounded by so many difficulties which we have not the time to dispose of, that we suggest that the Executive and Finance Committee be instructed to bring to our attention at the next Annual Meeting a plan or plans for our consideration."

* * *

Notice was taken of the fact that not a few of the churches receiving aid in the form of loan grants are indifferent and careless in the performance of their part of the contract when it comes to the repayment of loans. The Board instructed the Executive and Finance Committee to prepare a contract making the rate of interest 6 per cent and collecting only 4 per cent when interest is paid promptly, except in the case of overdue principal. The official action is as follows: "Believing that the greater purpose of the Loan Fund is not simply to make safe investments, but to help the greatest number of churches possible, we therefore recommend that hereafter all loans shall bear 6 per cent interest and that the contract shall contain the provision that at the end of six months after interest is due and unpaid, this overdue interest shall be added to the principal, and shall bear 6 per cent interest from the time it is added to the principal. But should the interest be paid at any time prior to six months after maturity, then no interest shall be charged on interest, and the interest on the loan shall not exceed 4 per cent; except in cases where the principal of the loan is not paid when due—in all such cases interest shall be 6 per cent and compounded as outlined above."

THE HOLMES STORE

OF NEW ORLEANS

is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

THE WAY OF IT.

A little boy made him a wee snow-ball,
And rolled it about in the snow;
And it gathered the crystals and clung to them all,
And O how that snowball did grow!
O my!
You've made one, of course, so you know!

A little boy whispered a word one day
Unkind of some one he knew,
And each one who heard it repeated his way
The story till O how it grew!
O my!
And a heartache was caused by it, too!

Two little red mittens the small ball rolled
That grew in such magical way,
And a little red tongue was the one that told
The tale that grew big in a day.
O my!
Be careful, wee tongues, what you say!

BILLY TWOSHOES.

Ted and Nina Faber lived in the smallest house in town down by the river, and their one trouble was that they had no pets to play with.

"Not even a kitten," sighed Nina.

"Nor a chicken," added Ted. "What good company Billy Twoshoes would be if we had him now!"

Billy Twoshoes was a chicken they had found last summer out on the river bank. He had hurt himself on some broken glass, and his two little legs were bleeding. Ted had washed them and covered them with court plaster. The plaster was black, and made the chicken's yellow legs look as if he were wearing black boots. So they had named him Billy Twoshoes. Afterwards they had found that he belonged up at Rosebank Farm, on the hill, and they had carried him up there and given him to Harry Clinton, whose father owned the beautiful place.

"Billy Twoshoes was a darling—just like a little, round, yellow ball," said Nina.

"Look here!" Ted sat up straight in the grass at a sudden thought. "To-morrow is the day Harry is going off to the academy, and he asked us to come up before he went. Let's go right now. Mother said we might stay out all the morning."

The two children liked very much to go up to Rosebank Farm. It was like going to fairyland, Nina said. Harry, a boy of fifteen, was always ready to take them over the big place and show them all the calves and lambs and pigs. This morning he told them he had something unusual to show them.

"I've had him for a year," he said, "and I know you never saw anything like him."

He took them out to the hen-houses, and showed them a handsome white rooster in a little house by himself. "Looks just like any rooster, doesn't he?" asked Harry. "Well now, you watch."

He opened the door of the coop, and the rooster marched out. Harry took up a small harness of silk ribbons which was lying on a tiny cart, like a doll's cart, nearby. He put the harness on the rooster and hitched him into the little cart. Then he said, "Ger long, Billy," and the rooster marched off with his head up, drawing the cart behind him.

He would back and turn when Harry spoke to him, and when his driver threw the reins over his back he would stand like a well-trained horse. When Harry unharnessed him he marched into a little stall alongside his coop and ate the corn the boy put down for him.

"There!" laughed Harry, "you wouldn't have believed it, would you, if you hadn't seen it? People come 'way down from the city to look at my trained rooster. I haven't told you about him before for a reason I had. Don't you think he's an interesting pet? He always acts just as if he liked the fun when I'm playing with him. The cart is light, you see, and of course I never put anything in it. The harness is made of old ribbons mother gave me, so it would be easy-feeling."

Nina and Ted talked about the trained rooster all the way home. They could hardly eat their supper, they were so eager to tell their mother all about it.

"What will Harry do with him when he goes away?" asked Nina. "He can't take a rooster to the academy."

Next morning, when the children came out of the house after breakfast they found something blocking the way. It was the trained rooster's little house of slats, and he was inside looking out at them. On the front of the coop hung a large sheet of paper, on which Harry had written:

"This is Billy Twoshoes, and he belongs to you now. I always meant you should have him when I went off to school, but I kept quiet about it for a surprise. Didn't you guess that he is the same little yellow chicken that you found and took care of last summer?"

"Here's the cart and harness on top of the coop," whispered Nina. "Isn't it like having a present from fairyland?"

But Billy Twoshoes only put his head out between the slats and blinked at them as much as to say: "If you're so glad to see me, why don't you give me some corn?"—Mabel S. Merrill, in "Zion's Herald."

DAVE'S AWAKENING.

Some years ago, in a poor schoolhouse in a back district, a boy at the foot of the class unexpectedly spelled a word which had passed down the entire class.

"Go to the head of the class," said the master, "and see that you stay there. You can if you work hard."

The boy hung his head. But the next day he did not miss a word in spelling. The brighter scholars knew every word in the lesson, hoping there might be a chance to get ahead, but there was not a single one; Dave stayed at the head. He had been an indifferent speller before, but now he knew every word.

"Dave, how do you get your lessons so well now?" said the master.

"I learn every word in the lesson, and get my mother to hear me at night; then I go over them in the morning before I come to school. And I go over them at my seat before the class is called up."

"Good boy, Dave," said the master. "That's the way to have success; always work that way and you'll do."

Dave is to-day the manager of a large company, and he attributes his start to the words: "Go up to the head, and see that you stay there. You can, if you work hard."—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

A SCOTCH LAD.

John S. Kennedy was a Scotch lad who early in life began giving one-tenth of his income to the Lord's work. He came to this country and prospered. There is something remarkable about a Scotchman. If he once begins to prosper he never stops. He has that habit of thrift, so remarkable for its absence among Americans, which enables him to put away dollar upon dollar until he is ranked among wealthy men.

Kennedy continued giving one-tenth of his income to the Lord while prospering, and finally the time arrived when his wealth was so great that he found it almost impossible to place one-tenth of it in church and benevolent work. This was after Kennedy became associated with that genius of railroading, James J. Hill, in the Great Northern enterprise. Soon John S. Kennedy's wealth was estimated at $66,000,000. He used to say that the Lord gave him this fortune because he had been fair with the Lord from the start and had given back one-tenth regularly.

When Mr. Kennedy and his wife celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding, they did not fill the house with company and have a noisy affair. Instead they sat down to a little dinner where not even a third party was present to interfere with their memories. But Kennedy felt that it was incumbent upon him to spend a little money on somebody to celebrate his anniversary; so he wrote out a check for $1,000,000 for one of the worthy hospitals in New York.

Following his death two years ago, the world was astounded by Mr. Kennedy's bequests to the agencies of the Presbyterian Church. He gave approximately $16,000,000 to the Presbyterian Boards and benevolences, which was a handsome contribution from the little Scotch boy who began with nothing. Did he succeed because he gave one-tenth of his income to the Lord?—Philadelphia Ledger.

BATHING HABITS OF BIRDS AND BEASTS.

Pigeons, larks and cockatoos like their baths in the rain. Game birds and poultry take dust baths. The common sparrow likes a dry shampoo in the dust and a plunge bath in the water. Reptiles soak themselves; elephants daub their calves with mud, then wash it off. Rhinoceroses, buffaloes, dogs, bears, and tigers like to wallow; the equine tribe favor a roll in the sand; cats, mice and their respective relatives lick themselves clean; bats lick and scratch, and it is said that the continual scratching of monkeys is not so much in the search of parasites as a kind of self-currycombing.—Our Dumb Animals.

HOW ABOUT IT, BROTHER PASTOR?

We stated plainly last week that the New Orleans Christian Advocate is face to face with a crisis, and urgently appealed to our friends for immediate assistance. The first pastor to respond to this call was Rev. B. F. Lewis, of Crystal Springs, Miss., who had already doubled the number of our subscribers at that place. Among other things, he said: "I have had a representative in the congregation securing renewals and new subscriptions, but she has gone now. I will take the matter before the people myself and see what can be done." Thank you, Brother Lewis.

Who will be the next to do likewise? Let us hear from you, brethren. If you haven't a list of our subscribers in your charge, write to the office immediately and secure one. Then speak of the matter earnestly from the pulpit, and offer to accept and send in renewals. And follow this up with direct, personal effort, as may be necessary.

It will mean much not only to the Advocate, but also to Methodism in Louisiana and Mississippi if the 3000 expired subscriptions on our hooks can be renewed. In helping to accomplish this result, one assists and strengthens every good cause in both the Church and State — Missions, Education, Church Extension, the Conference Claimants' Fund, our Orphanage, Prohibition, Sabbath Observance, etc. This work is worthy of any man in the itinerancy, even a Bishop. John Wesley counted the placing of wholesome reading matter in the hands of the people as a matter of vast importance, and concerned himself much with the task of doing this.

The Church urgently needs the New Orleans Advocate. Let's build it up, brethren, and make it a flame of fire for orthodoxy, for evangelism, for all true reforms, and for a sound and aggressive Methodism that shall make its influence potently felt in every part of the Church. Despite the blow that the European War has dealt our chief industries—cotton and lumber—we can do this if we will. May we count on your help, dear friends? If we may, kindly let us know it. We want to be informed definitely as to who will assist us actively at once in this campaign.

(Since the above statement was written the following brethren have sent clubs of subscriptions—mostly renewals: Brother J. L. Bell, Newton, Miss., 5—sending for one of these $3 and for another $5, putting their subscriptions considerably in advance; Brother J. A. McClardy, Maben, Miss., 8; Rev. H. G. Roberts, Coldwater, Miss., 5. We are grateful for this assistance. Let the good work go on.)

CHARLES WESLEY'S MOST ARTISTIC HYMN.

If it were left to a popular vote as to which is the greatest hymn that Charles Wesley ever wrote, doubtless the overwhelming pronouncement of Christians in general would be in favor of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul"; but many competent critics have declared that his "Wrestling Jacob" is the most artistic and perfect piece of work that ever came from his gifted pen. As is well known, Isaac Watts in his enthusiastic admiration for this piece of composition is said to have declared that "it was worth all the verses that he himself had written"; and Henry Ward Beecher, who has been termed the Shakspeare of the American pulpit, had a very high appreciation of it. After a brilliant discourse on this interesting chapter of Jacob's life as recorded in the Book of Genesis, preached in Plymouth Church on Sunday evening, April 4, 1869, Mr. Beecher read to his congregation the whole of this graphic poem, prefacing the reading with the following remarks:

"Now I intend to close this sermon by reading the most beautiful spiritualization of this narrative, one of the most charming hymns of any historic narrative, I think, that was ever made in English; one by Charles Wesley, and founded, as you will perceive, wholly on this history—only he renders it as if it were a modern Christian struggle, with a confession of sin, followed with perfect peace in Christ Jesus."

This fine hymn, which so perfectly delineates the struggling of a soul under conviction for the divine forgiveness and blessing, is but little sung in this day. This may be due to the fact that it is rather lengthy and that the story cannot very well be interrupted before it reaches the end; but more likely the reason is that its scope is too extended and that it is wrought out in rather too much detail. Verses that set forth the most truth and possess the most literary merit cannot always be sung with the best popular effect. But it is safe to predict that these beautiful and vivid lines will be forever preserved and accorded a high rank in the hymnology of the Christian Church.

DRS. MIMS AND BRADFIELD.

We hope that none of our readers will overlook the utterances of Dr. Mims, of Vanderbilt University, and Dr. Bradfield, Editor of the Texas Christian Advocate, which we are reproducing in this number of our paper. It is to be regretted that the Church's controversy with the Vanderbilt partisans should have to be continued in any form; but, as Dr. Bradfield says, the course which they are pursuing imposes upon "every editor and pastor in the Church a solemn duty." It is, therefore, our purpose at an early date to expose to the Methodist public plainly and pointedly some of the reprehensible campaign methods that these gentlemen are now employing.

At present, however, we will only say that Dr. Mims' statement that no trustees have resigned from the Vanderbilt Board is rather indefinite. It is, we believe, true that none have resigned since the Tennessee Supreme Court rendered its decision a little over a year ago; but it should be kept in mind that the Church did not finally pass upon the question of her relation to the University until the meeting of the Educational Commission in Memphis last February, and that since then there has been no meeting of the Vanderbilt Board of Trust. A little further back, however, there were some very memorable resignations from that body. One of them was that of Bishop Wilson, who indignantly surrendered his membership after an address which, we dare say, is even yet ringing in the ears of the betrayers of the Church who heard it; and another was that of Bishop Hendrix. A few years ago all of the Bishops sat as members of the Board, and later five members of the Episcopal College had membership in it. To-day not a single one of them is connected with it. Its personnel is vastly different from what it was in other days, and its spirit is even more so.

But here another question arises: If the presence on the Vanderbilt Board of a few men who are known to be loyal to the Church is to be used to draw patronage away from our own institutions, is it not about time for these true and worthy men to withdraw from that body? Can they afford to allow their influence to be thus capitalized and perverted by the spoilators who dominate in the councils of Vanderbilt University?

BILLY SUNDAY'S FAREWELL MESSAGE.

The following stanza is said to have been recited by Billy Sunday as a farewell message to the people of Newark, N. J., after his seven weeks' campaign in that city:

"Farewell, fellow-sinners! I'm free from your blood.
My messages are delivered; I leave you with God.
I've pleaded and entreated; I could not compel.
But till Judgment Day breaketh I bid you farewell."

These lines may be lacking in poetic merit, but they are certainly vibrant with a sense of tremendous responsibility. This may account in some measure for the zeal and effectiveness of the renowned evangelist. A Christian minister needs nothing more than he does a profound realization of his obligation to God and man and an ever-present recognition of the truth that his work must stand the searching light of the judgment.

THE BETTER WAY.

Our preachers will soon be in the midst of their summer revival work and we trust that they will report the results of their meetings to the Advocate. We have, however, a suggestion to make them. It is that they send an account of each meeting separately, instead of waiting until all have been held and writing them up together. What occurred two or three months ago is no longer news—interest in it has waned, if indeed it has not entirely passed. Moreover, it is always more difficult for an editor to find room for lengthy communications than it is for those that are brief. Tell us succinctly about your work when the happenings that you desire to make known are fresh and flavored with the odor of newness. Such reports will be read and appreciated by the public and may hearten and help others.

DO NOT MISS IT.

Are you making your arrangements to attend the Seashore Divinity School, June 22 to July 1? By all means do so, if you possibly can. The refreshing breezes of the Gulf will invigorate you physically and the program to be rendered will sharpen your intellectual appetite. Laymen as well as preachers are invited to come. Though the North Mississippi Conference is not now making an appropriation for the maintenance of this school, those coming from its territory will be cordially welcomed. There is no finer place in the South to spend a few days when one needs a restful outing than the Seashore Campground.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

A message from Rev. T. J. Halfacre brings the news of a great revival at Lula, Miss. Rev. L. W. Cain, of Leland, is doing the preaching.

Our sanctum was brightened on Thursday of last week with the presence of Rev. P. A. Sowell, of Jeanerette, La. We are always glad to see this sunny-hearted veteran.

Rev. M. L. Burton, of Crystal Springs, Miss., preached the closing sermon for the High School at Magnolia, Miss., on Sunday, May 30. The annual address was delivered by Hon. J. S. Sexton, of Hazlehurst.

At its recent Commencement, Tulane University conferred the degree of Doctor of Letters upon Miss Grace King and Mrs. Ruth McEnery Stuart, of New Orleans. These honors were deserved and will be worthily worn.

Rev. J. T. Lewis, of Greenville, Miss., has brought us under obligations to him for several subscriptions to the Advocate, sent in within the past few days. No interest of the Church is overlooked by Brother Lewis.

Brother W. D. Brock, of Brock, Miss., an esteemed and useful citizen of Carroll County, has our thanks for three subscriptions. He has been reading the Advocate since 1872, and speaks appreciatively of it under its present management.

By some unaccountable inadvertence, Rev. Ira B. Robertson was set down in our "Personals" last week as a Louisiana Conference veteran. For 55 years he has been an honored member of the Mississippi Conference, and that body would not willingly surrender its claim upon him.

Rev. B. P. Jaco, the presiding elder, reports a very fine session of the Winona District Conference at Drew, Miss. He states that there was one gratifying feature that was rather unusual on such an occasion, namely, the reception of 17 members into the Church.

The Commencement Sermon of the De Ridder (La.) High School was preached on May 23 by Rev. J. F. Foster, of Amite City, La. His old parishioners gave Brother Foster a most cordial greeting, and he gave them an illuminating message that they will long remember.

In forwarding us several subscriptions, for which we extend him our thanks, Rev. T. E. Gregory, of Tyro, Miss., says: "The work is going forward favorably in this charge. I think that this year is going to he the best of my four years with this good people." Brother Gregory is one of the growing men of the North Mississippi Conference.

A note from Rev. T. W. Dye, of Coldwater, Miss., states that Sister Dye, his wife, and Mrs. T. D. Greenhaw, his daughter, are at Colorado Springs, Colo., and will remain there until fall. Brother Dye says that he does not like playing the role of a bachelor, and, knowing how Sister Dye keeps house, we are not surprised that he should utter such a sentiment.

During the recent Commencement of the State Normal College at Natchitoches, La., Mr. H. H. Ahrens, Religious Editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, delivered an address to the Alumni of that excellent Institution which elicited much favorable comment. Brother Ahrens not only wields a facile pen, but is also a pleasing and impressive speaker.

A note from Rev. F. D. Van Valkenburgh, written from the Seashore Campground on May 31, reads as follows: 'Please hereafter send my Advocate to Kent Hill, Maine. We expect to summer again in New England." Blessings on this worthy veteran; and may the salubrious breezes of the old Pine Tree State invigorate him and cause him to renew his youth like the eagle.

We have in hand a copy of the program of the Durant (Miss.) District Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society, which will be held in Durant, June 10-11. Among those who are to take part in the exercises, we note the names of Miss Elie Willingham, the District Secretary; Mrs. J. W. Conger, Mrs T. W. Woodward, Miss Louise Dunstan, Mrs. W. W. Wilburn, and Mrs. Vic T. Hoyle, the Conference President.

Rev. A. T. McIlwain, our energetic pastor at Glen Allan, Miss., is extending his work to the Chinese residing in his field. He recently ordered the Advocate to be sent into a Chinese home. Speaking of this new subscriber, he said: "She had a little Chinese granddaughter who was in the Children's Day exercises at one of our churches this year. The family seem to be taking quite an interest in our church."

We are printing this week a report of the Sardis District Conference, recently held in Batesville, Miss., from the pen of Mr. P. T. Callicott, of Coldwater, who was the secretary. Mississippi Methodism has in it no choicer layman than Brother Callicott, and we have noted for several years that his accounts of the proceedings of the sessions of his district conference were models of brevity and good taste. Nor has he fallen below his usual record in this instance.

Rev. W. C. Carlisle continues to have success in his work on the Guntown (Miss.) charge. He says: "Things are progressing favorably with us. We have just placed an order for nice pews for our house of worship at Saltillo. We hope to build one new church during the year." Brother Carlisle generously commends the Advocate in his letter, and orders it to be continued to some of his parishioners. Thanks for your kindness, brother!

Mr. R. A. Lampkin, of Starkville, Miss., one of the most prominent citizens of Oktibbeha County and a member of our Church, died on June 2. He was a man of sound character, of unusual business ability, and had amassed a considerable amount of wealth. He had a large circle of friends, who will mourn his departure. We extend sympathy to the stricken family of the deceased, and pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort and sustain them.

On Thursday, June 3, at Lumberton, Miss., Rev. M. F. Adams, pastor of the Methodist Church at Fayette, Miss., and Miss Era Jenkins, were married, Rev. T. W. Adams, Presiding Elder of the Port Gibson District and father of the groom, officiating. After the wedding Brother Adams left with his bride for Durham, N. C., to attend the Commencement of Trinity College, his Alma Mater, and to receive the degree of A.M. Blessings upon these servants of the Church!

Rev. D. H. Crowson, of Randolph, Miss., desires to state through the Advocate to the many friends who have inquired about his health that he is much improved physically, and that he is preaching as much as he has ever done at any time in his life and is enjoying his pulpit work more. He has engagements covering all the time at his disposal except the last week of June and the first week of July. If any of the brethren can use him during these two weeks, he would be glad to serve them.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, whose work now keeps him at Laredo, Texas, was in New Orleans last week and paid the Advocate office an appreciated call. Brother Joyner's family are at the Seashore Campground, near Biloxi, Miss., and will remain there until next fall. After tarrying with them there for a few days, Brother Joyner will return to Laredo. However, because of the necessity of securing school advantages for his children, he will probably not continue his work as a missionary longer than the coming autumn.

In a brief note to the Editor, bearing date of June 1, Mr. R. W. Millsaps stated that he had been confined to his room with illness for two weeks, but that he was improving. We greatly regret to know that the Major has been sick, but are happy to be informed that he is better, and we trust that he will soon fully recover his health and strength. He is facile princeps among the Methodists of Mississippi, and when he is not entirely at himself physically, uneasiness is felt in every part of that commonwealth.

We acknowledge the reception of a copy of the Bulletin of the Thirty-third Annual Session of the Monteagle (Tenn.) Assembly and Summer Schools, which will be conducted during the months of July and August. Many distinguished speakers are on the program and the exercises and courses of study are varied and attractive. The Bulletin contains as a frontispiece a picture of Mrs. W. W. Carre, of New Orleans, President of the Monteagle Woman's Association. Dr. George Summey of this city will conduct the twilight prayers during the month of August.

In renewing his subscription to the Advocate, Brother J. C. Cavett, the efficient superintendent of the Sunday school of the Galloway Memorial Church of Jackson, Miss., says: "I know that you will be glad to know that we got into our new Sunday school quarters last Sunday, May 30, and that we had an attendance of 575. We are pushing the work on the main auditorium of our church and hope to have it ready for use early in the fall." We are indeed glad to have this good news. There is a great future for the Galloway Memorial Church.

Rev. W. M. Young, of Amory, Miss., writes: "The Commencement Sermon of our High School here was preached a short time since by Rev. L. M. Lipscomb of Booneville. He gave us a great sermon. Brother Lipscomb, after looking our new church over, pronounced it the handsomest and best prepared house of worship for modern church work that he had seen in the North Mississippi Conference. Dr. C. B. Baker, its teacher, started our Wesley Bible Class on the 12th of last October with 9 men; it now has an enrollment of 91. We had on a late Sabbath 311 persons present in our Sunday school."

Writing from Camden, Miss., on May 30, Rev. J. W. Chisholm says: "The news of the sad and unexpected death of my father, near Meridian, Miss, has just reached me. The message was delayed in transmission and came to hand just a short time before the hour for the interment of his body. The cause of his death is not stated in the telegram. In our grief we await particulars and seek divine consolation." Our heart goes out in tender sympathy to our esteemed young friend in his great sorrow, and we pray that he and all others touched by this bereavement may feel underneath them "the Everlasting Arms."

Rev. M. M. Black, of Canton, Miss., in referring to the recent destruction of the parsonage at that place by fire, says: "The Canton people have come generously and nobly to our relief, and steps are being taken by the officials to rebuild the parsonage at once. It was insured for $1500." Brother Black, it will be remembered, lost all his personal effects, including clothing, and on his belongings he had no insurance. The only book that he had left after the fire was over was a pocket Testament. It is to be hoped that the brethren who can do so, will assist him in quickly getting together at least a working library. Such a disaster as has overtaken him can scarcely be fully repaired in a whole lifetime.

Mrs. L. E. Mitchell, of Tunica, Miss., writes as follows: "My Sunday school class and I have saved our Sunday School Magazines and Quarterlies for about three years. There is so much good reading matter in them that I could not hear the thought of destroying them. Kindly inform me whether you know of any individual or institution that would like to secure them. We would be willing to pay the cost of their transportation to any place within reasonable distance. My class is also making seven scraphooks to send to a children's ward in some hospital. Can you tell us where they would be acceptable?" If any of our readers can give Sister Mitchell the information which she desires, we should be pleased to have them do so.

Rev. G. P. Fikes, pastor of our Fourteenth Avenue Church at Laurel, Miss., writes: "Things have been going well with us this year. New members have been coming in frequently. Surely no preacher ever served a better or more faithful people than these. They have given us two fine 'poundings.' More money has been paid on our Conference collections than at a corresponding date in any preceding year in the history of this church. We are now in the midst of a great meeting. We have with us Dr. Isaac L. Peebles of Wesson, and as a result of his faithful preaching we have already had 42 accessions to the Church, and there is a prospect of more. Dr. Peebles has been giving us some very able doctrinal sermons, which were much needed."

Rev. W. J. Johnson, Pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, of Beaumont, Tex., who was reared in North Mississippi, is having great success in his work. His membership is one of the largest in the Connection, being between fourteen and fifteen hundred. The average attendance at Sunday school is 550. Within the past few months there have been 122 accessions to the Church, about 100 of them being on profession of faith. This is Brother Johnson's fourth year as the leader of this active and growing flock. On a recent Sunday he delivered the Commencement Sermon for the Beaumont High Schools, which was pronounced a masterpiece by the city papers.

A recent issue of the Jackson (Miss.) Daily News announced that Dr. M. W. Swartz, Professor of Ancient Languages at Millsaps College, had been elected to the presidency of the Woman's College at Montgomery, Ala., and had signified his acceptance of that position. Dr. Swartz has been connected with Millsaps College for eleven years and has made there an enviable record as an educator. He is an accomplished scholar, a hard worker, and a Christian gentleman, and it gives us pleasure to commend him heartily to the Methodists of Alabama, though we shall regret to see him leave Mississippi. The Woman's College of Alabama is supported by the two Annual Conferences of that State, and has buildings that cost $210,000 and a campus of 57 acres, valued at $50,000. During the past session 212 students were enrolled.

Accompanied by Dr. J. M. Skinner, President of Holding Institute, of Laredo, Texas., his family, and a party of teachers in that institution, Miss Mary S. Kuykendahl, of Richmond, Ky., came to New Orleans last week, and was met here by Mr. Albert Lee Smith, of Winston-Salem, N. C., who came to claim her as his bride. The wedding took place in a private parlor of the St. Charles Hotel at high noon, Rev. N. E. Joyner officiating. After the party had had a delightful dining at the St. Charles, the happy couple took a train for their home in North Carolina. Holding Institute is under the control of our Woman's Board of Missions and Miss Kuykendahl was an esteemed and much loved member of its faculty. Mr. Smith is a man of sterling character and a loyal and useful member of our Church in the Old North State. The Advocate extends congratulations and best wishes.

REV. W. A. CLARK DEAD.

Dear Dr. Meek: Rev. William Albert Clark, of the North Mississippi Conference, died at a State hospital in Jackson, Miss., on May 26, 1915. His remains were brought to Kosciusko and laid to rest in the city cemetery to await the resurrection of the just, after funeral services conducted by this writer, assisted by Dr. C. T. Thomson of the Presbyterian Church.

Brother Clark had been on the honor roll of the Conference for a short time. He never fully recovered from an injury he received by being thrown from a buggy while pastor at West, Miss. He was a true and faithful servant of the Master. His record is on high. He leaves a wife and eight children to mourn his departure, but they sorrow not as those who have no hope. A more extended notice will follow later.

J. B. RANDOLPH.

Kosciusko, Miss.

The things said about Brother Clark above were fully deserved. He was a man of sound Christian experience, of genial, kindly nature, and was consecrated to the Master's work. He joined the North Mississippi Conference in 1891, and his ministry was largely spent in difficult and unremunerative fields. He did not hold a conspicuous place in the Church, but we doubt not that his name was written indelibly in the Lamb's Book of Life. May the Heavenly Father bless and keep the loved ones left behind!

FRECKLE-FACE
Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily
Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.
Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.
Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

THE WORK IN THE SARDIS DISTRICT.

(An address delivered at the recent session of the Sardis District Conference by Rev. J. W. Dorman, the presiding elder, and published by request of that body.—Editor's note.)

Our work consists of our responsibility for that portion of the entire population of the district falling to us and which is still outside of the influence of the Church. There are probably 100,000 people within the bounds of the district. Of this number a little over 6000 are white Methodists. Of members of other Churches there are about 12,000. One half of the entire population are whites. Eighteen thousand Christians would leave 32,000 non-Christians, or at least that many out of the Churches. Of these one-third would fall to the charge of the Methodists.

We received, last year 500 people into the churches of the district. If there were no leaks this would enable us to soon gather our entire outside population into the Church. But we lost in various ways about 28 per cent of this ingathering. So when we take into consideration the fact that all of the natural increase of the population must be taken care of, it at once appears that if we proceed at the rate of last year, many years of labor await us, even if we always have as good years as last year.

In addition to this, the evangelization of the regions beyond must be provided for. As a Church we cannot live and ignore this truth. The missionary spirit must have exercise if we are to live as a Church. This fundamental fact carries with it many subsidiary truths. As Doctor Pinson would express the idea, "We must keep the home base in good working order." We must maintain the weak places in the home land, build churches, build and equip institutions of learning in connection with other workers. We must take care of the worn-out servants of the Church and their widows and orphans. In order to do all these things we must have organized congregations with adequate church buildings and competent pastors to lead them in this immense work. This we can readily see will require great effort on our part.

That we are not doing this work up to the full measure of the resources engaged and the grace available, is without doubt true. Why?

1. Because the ministry does not see or feel the situation in all its gravity. I think none of us will claim that we always act as if we believed that this life was only a probationary state to a permanent existence which can never be changed in its trend. If we were perpetually conscious that God is ever ready to aid us in helping people to prepare for heaven and escape torment, would we not be almost constantly praying, reading, and planning for the accomplishment of so great a matter? Our conversation would not be so trivial, foreign to our professed occupation, or as it so often is, critical of our brethren. Is it not true my brethren, that we are not conscious of God's solicitude for the happiness of every creature, that we do not study his great love for the lost, that we are not profound students of his Word? All this should put us to the blush, if true. Perhaps the greatest need of the Church of to-day is a revival of ministerial concern for the souls of men. How shall it come about?

By the study of Jesus' passion for the betterment of the world, manifested by his life among the hills where he communed with the Father, often during the shades of the night, and still further evidenced upon the cross. If such reflections do not enthuse us, then our condition is indeed sad.

Another aid to awakening our concern will be to learn to sincerely love men. To close our eyes to their short-comings and ever look gladly upon their merits instead. Fault-finders are never deeply philanthropic. Nothing really significant ever flows from self-seeking lives, or dilettante spirits. We often hear about the superiority of the preachers of the past. That they were profounder or more correct thinkers than the men of to-day, I do not believe. But their deliverances, enlivened by their love for their work, and their ardent desire to help save people from a hell as real to them as this present world, made them effective. Out of their fervid realizations, their thoughts, like sparks of white heat, leaped to do their work. The preaching of to-day is as true and profound as ever, but I am persuaded not as earnest as of old. There are ten thousand souls in the Sardis District, sad and hungry, waiting for the coming of Methodist ministers with sufficient zeal to bring them to the God who fills with satisfaction thirsting and hungering people. Let us cry aloud unto God in anguish for these people. Until that comes to the ministry, salvation will not come to the people in any great measure.

2. The laity are more concerned with money-making and pleasure-seeking than they are with church work. This is manifested by their treatment of the duties to which the Church has called them. To quarterly conference few come, and if the meeting is in the country they spend a part of one day, frequently urging the presiding elder to rush the business, that they may get away. The preparation for the Conference is irregular and often, if not generally, half-hearted. No system characterizes the work and no industry marks the straggling, irregular, effeminate effort. If the conference is to be held in town, it must be at some time that will not interfere with other interests, some Friday or Monday night.

The attendance upon the church service is more in the spirit of a spectator than that of a participant. What will the preacher say to-day and how long will he take to say it? Will he be interesting, entertaining? Will he look well and act gracefully? The performance of the choir is a matter for languid attention. Prayer does not signify to the congregation an address to God about the highest interests of humanity. Stolidly indifferent, many sit bolt upright, while others bow their heads on the seat in front of them, and unconcernedly wait for the preacher to say a few things, in a formal way, it may be, to God. Such conditions make it impossible for any really great work to be accomplished. No contention is made in this paper that good work is not being done. The contention is that the work in proportion to the interests involved, and the resources at hand, is not by any means what it should be.

A remedy is for us all to see that what the Church has to do is the thing that has concerned God most, since he first conceived the idea of creation, or at least since sin wrought havoc in the world.

From the Field.

Cotton Valley, La.

Dear Brother Meek: We are serving our second year on the Cotton Valley charge, which promises to be as pleasant as the first year. Our people are doing fine in their Sunday school work, and the membership of our church is increasing. We terminated a two weeks' meeting at Spring Hill on last Sunday night. Brother F. R. Power did the preaching, which was accompanied by the Spirit of God. It proved a blessing to many and four members were added to our church.—James L. Cady, P. C.

Raceland, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: Will you allow me a little space to say some things about the Lafourche Mission. I count it a great privilege to be down here on this bayou in the interest of the cause of the Master. Bayou Lafourche is 95 miles long and the adjacent lands are thickly settled the whole length of it. The people are generally Roman Catholics, but I have been working among them for some time and this is now a good field for the Methodists to work in. I have received 14 members this year and have a prospect of getting some others. The Baptists also have received 4. It costs self-denial and hardship, however, to work here. I have a wife and seven children to support and all my traveling expenses to pay, and my salary is only $500. Having lived under Catholic influences so long these people have not yet learned that it is their duty to support a pastor. May I not ask your readers to pray that God may touch the heart of some one who has means and move him to give substantially for the maintenance of this work among them for some time and Iana, who need so much to know more about God and his love. Being a Frenchman myself, this work is very much on my heart, especially so since I know from contact with it what the situation is—both the opportunities it furnishes and its appealing necessities. Help us with your prayers and contributions, brethren.—A. D. Martin, P. C.

Nettleton Ct., North Miss. Conf.

The work in the Nettleton Circuit is progressing fairly well since the spring days have come on. Our congregations are larger this third year with this beloved people than in the former ones. Our people are spiritual and love the work of the church. Of course, the charge is not Ideal, but wonderful advancement has been made in many respects. We have five good Sunday schools doing active work. They all survived the "wintry" obstacles and took on new life when the spring days arrived. We have a schoolhouse appointment which has no Sunday school as yet, but we hope to establish a school there so as to make a half-dozen schools in the charge. Our young people deserve special mention. One of our superintendents is quite a young man, having come into our church only a year and a half ago. Our presiding elder, Brother J. W. Bell, is still as active as a boy and is held in high esteem by all the people of the charge. He looks after every detail of church work in his district and in his visits brings us the pure and simple gospel. Our stewards are men of much worth to the Master's kingdom, and are ever found doing their duty with credit to the interests represented by his great Church. We are planning to have Brother R. H. B. Gladney with us soon to inspire us for greater work along his line. Children's Day programs have been distributed and the exercises will be heard from in due time with good reports, we hope. We are arranging to paint one of our church buildings. This will add much to old Carolina's appearance. Arrangements have been made for practically all our summer revivals, good helpers having been secured. Pray that a great ingathering of souls may be the result.—M. A. Burns, P. C.

Sunday School

TEACHER TRAINING.

By Rev. B. F. Lewis.

Our Church offers to our Sunday school teachers two courses in Teacher Training. Both are, in point of price and adaptibility, within the reach of every Sunday school teacher in Southern Methodism. To those who feel that they have either no inclination to take a more extensive course, or a purse too meager, or an education too limited to permit of that which is diffcult, there is offered:

1. "The Legion of Honor Course." This course consists of one small booklet of only 120 pages, four by seven inches, bound in manilla, and costing only twenty-five cents. It is divided into two parts of twenty-five lessons each. The first part deals with the English Bible, omitting every thing technical and philosophical, discussing only that which is of practical importance in Bible teaching. Part two deals with the Sunday school, giving eight lessons to the discussion of this subject. This is followed by nine lessons on the Sunday school teacher, and then comes eight lessons on the pupil. The book has been prepared with a view of taking one year for its completion, a lesson a week. When we note that each lesson embraces only two pages, each containing only one hundred seventy-five words, or only three hundred fifty words per lesson, and that a week is supposed to be given to its mastery, it hardly seems credible that we have a single Sunday school teacher who feels so little interest in the work she is trying to do, or a single Sunday school superintendent or pastor who is unwilling to take steps looking to the organization of such a class and maintaining it.

2. The second course offered, The Advanced Course, consists of five books with pages four and three quarters by seven inches. Each book costs forty cents, or the set, if ordered at one time, $1.70. One of the books is on the Bible. In this book is discussed the subject of inspiration, the growth of our English Bible, with a most satisfactory outline of the principal teachings of each book. An appendix contains a set of questions for the use of the student so comprehensive that any one using them can but have a clear idea of the book itself.

Another book deals with the doctrines, polity and achievements of the Methodist Church. A third, with the Sunday school, a fourth with the Sunday school scholar, and the fifth with the teacher. The only unsatisfactory book in this set, is the one on the Sunday school. It is not up to date. The reason it is not, is that the Sunday school has been for the last few years undergoing so many and rapid changes, no one has been willing as yet to rewrite the book. But to any teacher of a Training Class, this is not a serious matter, as all defects can readily be remedied during the recitation.

After having completed a book, one at a time, a post card to Mrs. H. M. Hamil, at Nashville, Tenn., 810 Broadway, will bring a set of examination questions. These questions are entirely free from all catch questions, and all things technical. They are simple, intended to see if the student has really read the boow with care. Upon a satisfactory examination, a diploma is issued by the Sunday School Board.

Who should be in this Training Class? Every officer and teacher in the Sunday school, together with any other person desiring, or willing to take the course and thus prepare himself for Sunday school work.

Who should teach it? The best prepared person in the Church or Sunday school, whether a teacher or not.

When should it meet? At that time which will suit the most of the teachers. What we are after is the largest number in the class, and the best work that can be done.

LAFAYETTE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Lafayette District Conference will meet in Lafayette, La., June 16-18, 1915. The opening sermon will be preached by Rev. Charles E. Fike at 8 p. m., Wednesday, June 16. The afternoon session of Friday, June 18, will be devoted to the Layman's Movement, and will be in charge of Brother H. G. Gilbert, our district lay leader, and Brother E. P. Holmes, charge lay leader at Lake Charles. We expect Brother W. S. Holmes, the Conference lay leader, to be with us on that day. All the other hours of the session will be devoted to hearing reports from pastoral charges, brothers representing special interests, and the woman's work. Special stress will be laid on the preaching services. Let us all go up to Lafayette, as Paul felt sure he was going up to Rome. (See Rom. 15.29.)

For a full attendance and a spiritual session, I am your brother,

J. I. HOFFPAUIR, P. E.

REVIVAL AT JONESBORO, LA.

When I arrived at Jonesboro I found the way well prepared by the dillgent pastor, Rev. J. O. Bennett. For 10 days large and enthusiastic congregatlons heard the Word gladly. The cordial fellowship among the various Churches was delightful. All seemed eager to learn more of the Master and to lead souls to Him. Among the speclal features of the meeting were: the singing of the large Junior choir; the McBride Bible Class Re-union, and the dally open-air services at the sawmill. The pastor has the work well in hand and is in hlgh favor with his people. No cause of the Church is neglected by him. This was my thlrd meeting at Jonesboro, and in many ways the most satisfactory one.

FOR THE PREACHERS.

I wish to remlnd my ministerial brethren of Louisiana and Mississippi that I am ready to help them in their meetings. I preach frequently in this city for the Methodist pastors or those of sister Churches. I would like, however, to hold a few revlval meetings during the summer and fall. I speak the truth when I state that I am as able to preach nowadays as ever I was.

Dear Brethren, let me hear from you. JOHN T. SAWYER.

MR. I. J. ROBERTS.

Dear Doctor Meek: Mr. I. J. Roberts, of Dallas, Texas, died very suddenly on May 3, 1915. He fell and died instantly in Stanford, Texas, supposedly from heart failure. He was wedded to our daughter, Lilly, nearly twelve years ago at Pickens, Miss. The now ascended Bishop C. B. Galloway performed the ceremony. Mr. Roberts was of the traveling fraternity and was successful in his selected business. He was a pronounced church man and Christian worker also, and often represented his Church at the Annual Conference and district conference. Their home had always been at Nacogdoches, Texas, but recently they had moved to Dallas. A. H. WILLIAMS.

Stamps made to commemorate the opening of the Panama Canal have been issued in the Canal zone. Like stamps in this country, the 1-cent ones are green and the 2s are red. The former has a map of the canal on it, and the latter a picture of Balboa, the first European to gaze upon the Pacific Ocean. Five and 10-cent stamps are also on sale. Stamp collectors can buy only a hundred stamps of any one denomination.

Cornless Feet

Are Very Common Now

A few years ago they were not. People pared corns and kept them. Or they used an ineffieient treatment.

Then the Blue-jay plaster was invented. That ended corn pain instantly for everyone who used it. But it also gently undermined the corn, so in two days it all came out. And this without one bit of pain or soreness.

One told another about it, until millions came to use it. Now those people never keep a corn. As soon as one nppears, they remove it.

We urge you to do thnt. Prove Blue-jay on one corn. If you hesitate, let us send you samples free. If the pain does stop—if the corn does go—think what it means to you. It means a lifetime without corns. Your own friends, by the dozens, probably, know that this is so.

A Nervous Woman Finds Relief From Suffering.

Women who suffer from extreme nervousness, often endure much suffering before finding any relief. Mrs. Joseph Snyder, of Tiffin, O., had such an experience, regarding which she says:

"Six months I was bedfast with nervous prostration. I had sinking spells, a cold, clammy feeling,—could not stand the slightest noise. At times I would almost fly to pieces; stomach very weak. My husband insisted on my taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I began to improve before I had finished the first bottle until I was entirely cured."

MRS. JOSEPH SNYDER,
262 Hudson St., Tiffin, Ohio.

Many remedies are recommended for diseases of the nervous system that fail to produce results because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. Dr. Miles' Nervine has proven its value in such cases so many times that it is unnecessary to make claims for it. You can prove its merits for yourself by getting a bottle of your druggist, who will return the price if you receive no benefit.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT NOTES.

A free clinic has been opened at Mary Werlein, and the number of those who avail themselves of it is encouraging. Dr. Gayle Aiken is in charge.

The second quarterly conference at Felicity Church, which was recently held, showed improvement along all lines. During the last month six persons were received into the Church upon profession of faith.

It is very probable that a better location for St. Paul's Church will be secured in the near future. The pastor, Rev. Hugh Jamieson, plans to conduct a meeting at the new location some time during the summer. Dr. J. W. Moore, formerly pastor of First Church, and now of Chattanooga, will do the preaching.

Epworth Sunday School is running a red and blue contest which is producing good results in increased attendance and in bringing in new members. This school is in a very hopeful condition. Most of the people of Epworth have become very largely interested in matters concerning the Church and the general condition of affairs is good.

On the night of June 3 a trolley ride was given by members of Parker Memorial Church. Messrs. A. M. Barnes and Dreux Van Horn arranged for it, and a very pleasant evening was spent by the fifty or more who went. The start was made at the Arabelia barn, and the objective points were Spanish Fort and the Barracks. At the former place a stop of 45 minutes was made. The ride was given as a means of realizing something toward the indebtedness of the church.

On the last Sunday evening in May the church in Algiers had a very interesting meeting. It was conducted entirely by the members of the men's Bible class of that church. In the absence of the President, Mr. F. E. Henning presided and made one of the talks. The music was given by the men. A member of the class played the pipe organ, and a young man sang a solo, while the congregational singing was led by the choir of men. The subject for the evening was "Man's Need of the Church," and talks were made by the teacher, Mr. H. H. Gibson, Mr. Tisdale, and others. The class is divided into two companies, and they are contesting with each other for the largest attendance at their regular meetings until the 17th of June, at which time the anniversary meeting of the class will be held. The losing side will treat the other. This is a very successful class. The total membership is 121.

Minister's Wife is Cured of Pellagra.

Lamar, Miss.—W. S. Selman, a Methodist minister of this place says: "I have advertised your remedy as far as I have been and have received several letters asking for your address. I wish you great success in your work. I believe it (Baughn's Pellagra Treatment) is THE treatment and I will advertise it wherever I go. Mrs. Selman is just fine. Will also state that her general health is better than it has been for years past."

This is the heartfelt word of a minister, grateful that his wife has been spared to him. There is no need to suffer from pellagra when a cure is at hand. Don't delay a minute.

The symptons—hands red like sunburn; skin peeling off; sore mouth; the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with much mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea; either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on pellagra, and learn about the remedy for Pellagra, that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., Box 587-X, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—Advertisement.

EXCHANGE YOUR OLD BODY FOR A NEW ONE.

You can do it in three weeks and thereby renew your health. This article is written by a physician who has seen it demonstrated in numerous cases and explains how it is done.

Listen: If your weight is one hundred and thirty-three pounds your body contains eight pounds of water, for, according to standard medical books, the human body contains sixty-seven and one-half per cent of water. Now disease is invariably caused by impurities which we call poison, and these are readily dissolved by the right kind of natural mineral water. Drink ten gallons (eighty pounds) of Shivar Mineral Water (use no other water for twenty-one days), and you will have exchanged your old body for a new one, so far as the soluble part of it is concerned. The impurities will be dissolved and pass away. If you suffer with dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rhematism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning, or other conditions due to impure blood, accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer which appears below. Read the following letter carefully; then sign and mail it:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17 G, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

A WORD TO PUBLICITY SUPERINTENDENTS IN THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Before you read these lines you will have received the Bulletin for June which is largely devoted to the promotion of the membership and organization campaign; this is our opportunity. We, through the press and other publicity channels, may accomplish much good if we try.

Some of the plans are, in addition to sermons and addresses by pastors and the elect ladies, all day meetings to be held by district secretaries and visits to unorganized territory by volunteer auxiliary leaders. The work of publicity may be to these meetings what the "bill-board" is to the circus.

The urgency of the movement is self-apparent when we think of the vast majority of the women of our Church that are not even members, and the large, if not even larger number of those who are members who are not at all interested or informed. We should undertake the campaign because they need us, we need them, and the Master is depending upon us for the outcome.

Study the plans of our Conference. I can hear some one ask, "Where can we find the plans?" Just get a copy of the much neglected "Annual Report," play that it is "war news" you are going to read, and don't stop until you have read every word in it. It will be a revelation to you to find how much that one little pamphlet contains. When you realize the need and get the plans you will begin to wonder "how shall we do it?" and "who shall do it?" I shall take the liberty of adding to a couplet that has become popular of late and reads like this: "I am but one"—and the President of my auxiliary is but one—"I cannot do everything." Neither can she, but "I can do something, and what I can do I ought to do" and by God's help I will do! If the progress is slow in your auxiliary or Conference, hold a self-examination and ask, What have I done to make things move along?

If I had to condense my message to you to the shortest possible, it would be these two words, ADVERTISE, REPORT! Take your cue from the children of this world in that particular, because they are "wiser" than we. Ever notice how "Society folk" do? They tell you in glowing terms what they are going to have, and when it is over they give it a "write up" that almost makes your mouth water; they even tell how everybody looked and what material the dresses were made of. When we go to report we say, "Mrs. Jones read a fine paper; I wish everybody could have heard it; I know they would have enjoyed it, because I did." How much better it would sound to say that Mrs. Jones' subject was "The Social Evil," and then add a few of the best points brought out in the paper and you give some idea of what the meeting was about. But, report, whether you know how or not; that is the way to learn. "Dead men are the only ones who never make mistakes." If dead auxiliaries are the ones that never report, then I fear we "are all dead corpses."

A. C. McKINNEY.

OUR CAMPAIGN.

The Woman's Missionary Council has inaugurated a Church-Wide Campaign.

The object of this campaign is an Auxiliary in every Church and every woman and child a member.

There are 19,000 churches in Southern Methodism. Twelve thousand have no missionary organization. Do you get that?

Here is another startling statement; there are 1,300,000 women and children in our Church and only 200,000 of these belong to the Missionary Society. Now you get some idea of the scope of the work that lies before us and the urgent need for this church-wide campaign.

We must go forward. Every mission station is needing enlargement and reenforcements and every field calls for more workers. With our present membership we cannot meet the demands made upon us, so we must plan to increase our membership funds by drawing new recruits from this vast army which is giving its interest to organizations of less importance or to no organization at all. An increase in membership will bring an increase of offerings and this will make possible an advance in our work already established and also enable us to enter many open doors to which we are now forced to turn our backs.

To launch this campaign the Central Committee have formulated plans and each Conference adapts them to its use. The special features of the plans are addresses and appeals on Sunday (perhaps one Sunday will be chosen for the entire Conference), all-day meetings for instruction, and study in places accessible to a number of churches, visits by volunteer auxiliary leaders to unorganized churches. These three features, well worked out, cannot fail to make an effective campaign if earnest prayer is made for the Holy Spirit's guidance.

We appeal to the women of our three Conferences for loyal, hearty co-operation in this plan and we offer you this space as the best medium for presenting your plans to your constituency. We urge you to keep the women posted as to the progress of the campaign in your Conference. It will not only prove helpful and stimulating but the methods used by different auxiliaries will be suggestive to others.

Let us pray mightily that Jesus Christ will be our leader in this movement, and with faith in him we shall win a glorious victory.

MISSISSIPPI'S PLAN.

The third Sunday in June has been set aside as Woman's Day, to be used for the presentation of our work. It is our desire that every pastor in the Conference will preach a missionary sermon on this day and that the members of the Missionary Society will use the day to instruct the uninterested in the woman's work, what we are doing for missions, etc. Then follow this up by each member trying to win one new member. Special literature will be sent out for this occasion.

Mrs. OTIS WILSON,
District Secty. of Port Gibson District.

SHALL WE GO BACK TO THE BLUE BACK SPELLER?

Recently the argument has been made that our schools should adopt the Blue Back speller as the text book on this subject. This argument is based upon the contention that boys and girls trained in the old field school, where this renowned book was the text, were more efficient in spelling than those now being trained in the schools. It would be just as reasonable to argue that the farmer should discontinue the use of modern machines on the ground that the field does not yield as much grain as the same field did when simpler tools were used in its cultivation.

The lack of efficiency in the modern school is due to other causes. The old field school was in charge of a man who was usually the master of the situation, and required his pupils to master a few subjects thoroughly. Its modern successor is frequently in charge of a young girl who does her best to get her pupils to do something in two or three times as many subjects, and the result is that none are mastered. The pupils in this way acquire the habit of doing poor and careless work, and they are fortunate if they ever get such habits cured.

Our boys should be trained to master themselves first, and then to master thoroughly whatever subjects they study, and the school should not undertake to do more than it can do well. We need intensive cultivation in the school room as well as in the fields.

Parents wishing to place their boys where they can get such training should write to Jas. A. Peoples, Principal of the Peoples-Tucker School, Springfield, Tenn., for information.—Advertisement.

MARRIED.

At Jackson, Miss., on May 20, 1915, by Rev. J. I. Duke, pastor at Rankin Street Methodist Church, Mr. JOE LUCAS and Miss MARY LOUISE ARNOLD, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Arnold of Bellefontaine, Miss.

CHARACTER VS. REPUTATION.

Someone has said that a man's reputation is what people believe him to be, but that his character is what he really is. Character endures through eternity; reputation may pass in an hour, for sooner or later the public discovers the true character of the man. It is the same with the merchandise we buy and sell. Every trade-marked article has a character as well as a reputation. By clever advertising you may establish sufficient reputation for an article to induce the public to try it, but as the years go by its real character will come to light and failure or success will depend upon its character, not upon its reputation.

Twenty-nine years ago a little company of business men in Atlanta, Ga., began to market a temperance drink under the trade name, Coca-Cola. They realized the need of a wholesome beverage that would quench the thirst and relieve fatigue of mind and body without stimulation and without intoxication. Taking coffee and tea as their prototypes, they set to work to improve upon these beverages, both in flavor and wholesomeness.

They found that the refreshing quality of tea and coffee was due to a substance called caffeln. This they retained as the refreshing principle for their new drink, using it in approximately one-half the quantity in which it appears in tea and coffee as ordinarily prepared. They found that the objectionable qualities of tea and coffee which caused these beverages to disagree with some people were largely the result of overboiling which dissolves the tannic acid, an acrid and astringent vegetable substance found in the leaves, green fruit and bark of many plants, including tan bark. This tannic acid tans the food just as it tans leather, rendering it hard and difficult of digestion. The Coca-Cola Company decided to extract the caffein from tea and leave the tannic acid behind, thus securing all the refreshing qualities without the objectionable astringent.

Next came the problem of a flavor. In order to make a commercial success of Coca-Cola, they realized that its flavor must appeal to everybody. As tea and coffee were cultivated tastes they would not meet this requirement. The flavor of the new drink must be delicious as well as wholesome and in order to hold the popular flavor it must not cloy, must not tire the palate. The problem was by no means a simple one, for flavors behave most peculiarly in combination. By patient experiment with various combinations of fruit extracts they finally secured a composite flavor of exquisite deliciousness that appealed to practically everyone who was called upon to try it. They realized that they had round the flavor, but would the people tire of it as they had tired of lemonade and the other soda fountain beverages of that day? Only time could answer that question.

Twenty-nine years have passed. Young men have grown old, but they enjoy their Coca-Cola to-day just as they did twenty-nine years ago when the beverage was in its infancy. The reputation of Coca-Cola, acquired through advertiseing, has stood the test of time. Its reputation was backed by character.

The success of The Coca-Cola Company points a moral that is worthy of consideration, "Be sure you are right, then go ahead; but be sure you are right." Success attracts criticism, opposition and even misrepresentation, but if you are right you have nothing to fear—time will establish your character.

The Coca-Cola Company wishes the public to know everything that is to be known about the National Drink. To this end it has prepared an exhaustive booklet describing its composition, its preparation and its effects in quenching the thirst, in relieving fatigue and in refreshing the mind and body. The booklet contains the scientific opinions of the world's leading authorities. Write for a copy. Read it carefully and understand why Coca-Cola is the nearest approach to a perfect solution of the problem of fatigue. Copies of this booklet may be had by addressing the Advertising Managers of this paper, Messrs. Jacobs & Company, Clinton, S. C.

A GREAT GATHERING.

The National Anti-Saloon Convention, which is to be held at Atlantic City, July 6-9, promises to surpass any gathering of a similar kind ever held in the history of the world. A strikingly impressive program is being arranged and much Interest is being shown in the approaching meeting In all parts of the country. The reformers, the Churches, the politicians, and the advocates of liquor selling are all keenly interested in it. It is expected to stir up a tremendous tide of enthusiasm and to exercise a far-reaching influence in the great fight for national prohibition.

Rev. G. W. Morrow, D.D.

Rev. Howard H. Russell, D.D.

Hon. R. P. Hobson.

It is to be hoped that Louisiana and Mississippi will be well represented in this epoch-making convention. We dare say that those who are privileged to attend will carry away memories of the occasion that will abide with them as long as life shall last. The list of speakers is a long one and embraces some of the most brilliant and forceful platform men in the United States. We are printing on this page pictures of four of them, as follows: Ex-Congressman R. P. Hobson, of Alabama, Ex-Gov. M. R. Patterson of Tennessee, Dr. Howard H. Russell, of Ohio, founder of the Anti-Saloon League, and Dr. G. W. Morrow of Detroit, Michigan.

SARDIS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The forty-fifth session of the Sardis District Conference was held at Batesville, Miss., May 17-18, with Rev. J. W. Dorman, the presiding elder, in the chair. The attendance was very good, all of the pastors being present except three, who were detained on account of sickness. All the interests of the Church were well looked after. While nothing unusual had been accomplished, the preachers were optimistic and hopeful of a good wind-up for the year. Rev. A. F. Watkins, D. D., president of Millsaps College; Rev. W. R. Williams, Manager of the Methodist Orphanage; Rev. H. M. Ellis, Agent of the Memphis Methodist Hospital, and Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Conference Sunday School Secretary, were present and made strong and interesting addresses in the interest of the institutions and causes which they represent. We were glad to have with us also our old friend, Rev. G. W. Bachman, until recently Conference Colporter. It would not have seemed like a district conference without his presence. I do not think he has missed a session in twenty-five years or more. The preaching was done by Dr. A. F. Watkins, Rev. H. G. Roberts, and Rev. Eugene Johnson, and was of a very high order. Brother J. R. Pepper, of Memphis, that prince of laymen and Sunday school superintendents, spent one day with us, and made very instructive and interesting addresses on Sunday school work and the lay activities of the Church, which were highly enjoyed and commended by the conference. The Rev. Dr. Hofstead, of Memphis, delivered on Tuesday night his lecture, "Life at Its Best," which was entertaining and instructive. The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: T. T. O'Bryant, J. S. Carlton, P. T. Callicott, and M. C. Dickson; alternates—R. P. Houston and J. S. Maples. The next district conference will be held at Cold Water. Batesville entertained the Conference royally.

Please send me at once names of the young ladies graduating from your Parish High Schools.

Mansfield College FACULTY for next year double that of four years ago, and will cost as much as whole income of institution at that time. It will consist of fourteen members: one for every thirteen students. Next year's Senior class has TWENTY-TWO members. Domestic Science work in charge of A.B. graduate of splendid Southern University; Music Department has already won an enviable reputation and the ART work this year has been a constant source of delight and admiration to all who have seen it. A special TRAINING and CRITIC Teacher will have charge of TEACHER-TRAINING work and a PHYSICAL DIRECTOR is to be employed.

In our judgment, this has been the best year of our history, in quality of work, in ability of faculty, in unity of purpose, in student honor, in College loyalty, in ease of discipline, in Bible Study and religious tone and spiritual insight and growth, in size of patronage, and in actual money.

Your College and mine. It asks no favors, not an object of charity, not a reformatory, sets a high standard, not stingy with its faculty, teaches the Bible, has discipline, wins its patronage on its merit, expects good pay for good service, and thus far has paid every dollar of its obligations.

"WM. McKENDREE."

By J. D. Barbee.

In this latest volume from the pen of Bishop Hoss he has made a distinct contribution to the biographical literature of American Methodism. It is altogether unnecessary to affirm that the work is well done, for nothing of an inferior quality ever comes from the hand of the distinguished author.

If Bishop Hoss has ever written anything since he first became editor of the Christian Advocate that I have failed to read, it was because I had no knowledge of it. I was struck with the power of his composition in the beginning and the passing years have increased my admiration for his literary gifts. It would be impossible for him to write a dull sentence. In charm of style, clarity of expression and courage of conviction this brilliant writer has few contemporaries. I had almost said, none at all, and I am by no means certain that the latter is not the exact fact.

I shall undertake no review of Bishop Hoss's biographical study of his remarkable predecessor. I wish simply to direct the attention of your readers to it and to tell them how much pleasure and information they are missing if they have not read it.

It is a source of infinite pleasure to his friends, and will become so to the public, that Bishop Hoss has laid out for himself so much literary work for the Immediate future. Thus far his program includes books chiefly interesting to Southern Methodists, of whom he is chief. But I hope he will consider the addition to his list of a History of the Christian Church in as many volumes as he may feel disposed to prepare. Such a work would appeal to the general public and would at once take its place among the classics.

I close with the earnest exhortation to your readers to send without delay to the Publishing House and procure a copy of Bishop Hoss's latest book on McKendree. So small an amount could scarcely he Invested to so great advantage.

COMMENDATORY OF REV. J. H. MITCHELL.

At the recent session of the Corinth District Conference at Ripley, Miss., the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Whereas Rev. J. H. Mitchell will this fall finish his fourth year as presiding elder of this (the Corinth) District, and according to the law of the Church must be sent to another field; therefore be it resolved:

"1. That we, the members of this District Conference, both laymen and preachers, do hereby express our sincere appreciation of the work that he has done in this district.

"2. That we commend him for his painstaking and wise administration in quarterly conference work and in general leadership.

"3. That we pray the blessings of Almighty God upon him and his family in all things.

CONCERNING GALLOWAY MEMORIAL DAY.

To the Pastors and Sunday School Superintendents in the Mississippi Annual Conference.

Dear Brethren: Programs for Galloway Memorial Day which was ordered by the last session of our Conference to be observed on the fourth Sunday in April, were sent to each Sunday school superintendent in the Conference. To date only the following have reported: New Augusta, Matherville, Lumberton, Collins, and Harrisville.

I am sorry that an oversight on the part of the custodians of the Galloway Memorial Fund, and of the Conference caused a conflict with Children's Day, and suspect that the conflict is one cause of so few reports. But, let the cause of the shortage be what it may, I now appeal to you, brethren, observe the day at the earliest date practicable, and make immediate remittance of all collections to the Treasurer. By making early remittance, you help twice, for we could loan the money now on good security, and it would be bearing interest, and at the same time be helping those who are in need.

We have a few more programs, and will be glad to supply those who are not supplied.

Cordlally yours,

T. J. O'NEIL,

Treas. Miss. Conf. Endowment Fund.

CHIEFLY PERSONAL.

In a personal note to the Editor, Mr. Robert Somerville, of Greenville, Miss., says: "I am glad to state that Mrs. J. T. Lewis, the wife of our pastor, has recovered from the operation that she underwent here some weeks ago." We are indeed glad to have this good news concerning Sister Lewis, about whose health we have had considerable solicitude.

The recent Commencement exercises of Meridian College, Meridian, Miss., were up to their usual high standard and were greatly enjoyed by the public of that city. Dr. John M. Moore, of Nashville, preached impressively both at the morning and evening hours on the Sabbath. The students acquitted themselves admirably in the features of the occasion with which they were connected. President Beeson spoke in high terms of the religious atmosphere of the institution and pronounced the session just closed a most prosperous one. The Board of Trustees conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity on Rev. J. W. Hughes, of Kingswood, Ky., and Rev. John Paul, of Columbia, S. C.

Notwithstanding the depressing influence of the European war, the past year was a remarkably good one with the American Bible Society. Its issuance of the Scriptures totaled 6,370,485 volumes, which surpassed the output of any preceding year in the 99 years of its history. This surpassed the number of volumes issued during the year 1913 by 1,119,289 volumes. The sales of the Society last year amounted to $184,400, against $142,800 in 1913; and its legacies were $64,800, against $26,000 during the year before. The trust funds of the Society, including the endowment, now amount to $2,387,778.93. This does not include annuities of $298,399. The Society will have a Bible Congress at the Panama-Pacific Exposition this summer, and will establish a Bible House in Panama in the near future.

We take the following from the official report of the recent meeting of our College of Bishops in St. Louis, written by Bishop Collins Denny, the Secretary of that body: "Bishop Hoss was requested to prepare a history of our Church; Bishop Lambuth a history of the missions of our Church; Prof. Frank Seay, an outline study of the Old Testament, and Dr. Andrew Sledd an outline study of the New Testament."

Billy Sunday is said to have received $25,000 for his work at Paterson, N. J. The cost of the tabernacle in which the services were held was $31,418. This was paid for by the collections taken up regularly at the services, and there was an excess of more than $6000, which was devoted to charitable purposes. The total attendance during the seven weeks was 775,000; the number of "trail hitters" was 17,000, and nearly 13,000 persons signed cards pledging themselves to attend Church. The famous evangelist will now take a three months' vacation. His definite future engagements are said to be as follows: Omaha, Neb., September-October, 1915; Syracuse, N. Y., November-December, 1915; Trenton, N. J., January-February, 1916; Baltimore, Md., March-April, 1916; Grand Rapids and Duluth, spring of 1916; Boston and Providence, fall of 1916; Chicago, January, 1917.

A STRINGENT LIQUOR LAW IN FLORIDA.

On another page will be found a copy of the law recently enacted in Florida placing severe restrictions upon the sale of liquor in that State. It will be noticed:

First: That intoxicating liquor can only be sold in sealed packages.

Second: That the dealer shall not himself drink, consume, or give away any intoxicating liquor, and that he shall not permit any employee or purchaser to drink, consume or give away any intoxicating liquor on the premises.

Third: That the liquor shall not be sold before 7 o'clock in the morning or after 6 o'clock in the evening.

Fourth: That no chairs shall be allowed in a place where liquor is sold; that no music or other attractions shall be permitted there, and that no blinds or curtains shall obscure the interior of the saloon, day or night; and Fifth: That no goods shall be sold on credit.

These are the principal features of the new law, although there are other provisions, such as the prohibition of the employment of minors or women; the sale of liquor to minors or to drunkards, etc.

The legislature has taken a step in the right direction. The new law is not only good in itself but it will make easier the next step which can not long be delayed, namely, the entire prohibition of the manufacture and sale of liquor in the State.—The Commoner.

Editorial

"Who goeth in the way that Christ hath gone,
Is much more sure to meet with him than one
Who traveleth by-ways."

* * *

It is important to work for the Master believing that there will be results. Expectancy is no small part of faith.

* * *

Preachers and Church gatherings in this day seem to be much given to expressing their views on political and governmental questions. There was a time when the doctrine that ministers and Churches were wise to keep out of politics held sway.

* * *

When Jesus mingled with sinners it was to help and save them—not to descend to their plane and connive at their wrong-doing. Much of the association with worldly people in this day that pleads the Master's example as a precedent is utterly unlike his cultivation of such persons both in spirit and purpose.

"TOO GOOD TO MISS."

A certain preacher said: "I can not afford to attend the Divinity School at the Seashore Campground this year." Another preacher with less salary said: "I can not afford to miss it—it is too good to miss," and he was right. No preacher in Alabama, Mississippi or Louisiana, who is trying to render an efficient service, ought to be denied the privilege of attending the Divinity School. In not attending the preacher loses, and the church of which he is pastor loses. How easy it would be for every church to furnish the money necessary to enable its pastor to go! One's expenses while on the Campground need not exceed $15.

Rev. George L. Robinson, D.D., professor in the American School of Archeology at Jerusalem, will have a large place on the program this year. Dr. Robinson was with us in 1912 and made a most profound impression. His series this year will be selected from the following subjects: "Companionship with the Risen Lord"; "The Epistle to the Hebrews"; "Intercessory Prayer" (as a method of work); "The Book of Isaiah"; "The Psalms"; "The Book of Jonah"; "The Message of Zechariah"; "The Prophet of Love" (Hosea); "Palestine and the War"; "The Trial of Jesus Christ" (from a lawyer's point of view); "Micah, the Prophet of the Poor"; "The Book of Ruth."

The Program Committee has been fortunate in securing Rev. Allan Hoben, Ph.D., as one of the lecturers. He is one of the foremost educators and preachers of to-day. His subjects are: For the morning sessions—"Biology and Boy Nature." "Why Boys and Girls Go Wrong;" "The Boy's Religious Life." For the evening sessions—"The Moral Value of Play;" "Choosing a Vocation;" "Training for Citizenship."

Rev. W. J. Young, D.D., Professor of Homiletics and Pastoral Theology in our Emory University at Atlanta, is one of the lecturers, and his topics below suggest what is in store for those who are so fortunate as to hear him: "The Sermon Factory and the Sermon Shop;" "Modern Scholarship and Old-Time Gospel Preaching;" "The Preacher and Other Human Beings;" "Has the World Outgrown Preaching?" "Types of Preachers" (Henry Ward Beecher); "Types of Preachers" (Phillips Brooks); "Types of Preachers" (Charles Haddon Spurgeon); "Types of Preachers" (Hugh Price Hughes).

Every preacher in the patronizing Conferences can well afford to make the sacrifice to hear these great men on these timely subjects. No church can make a better investment for its own interest than to send its pastor to the Divinity School. Remember the date—June 22 to July 1.

THE MILLSAPS COMMENCEMENT.

The recent Commencement of Millsaps College, June 4-8, was an occasion of much interest. The various contests among the students were up to a high standard and attracted the usual amount of attention. Sunday, June 6, was a beautiful day and a magnificent audience assembled in the College Chapel to hear the Annual Sermon by Bishop E. D. Mouzon, of Dallas, Texas. After the preceding parts of the service, which were participated in by Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, Dr. W. H. Huntley, Dr. I. W. Cooper, Rev. R. A. Meek, and Rev. H. S. Spragins, were concluded, Bishop Mouzon announced as his text Matthew V, 8: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God;" and for about an hour held the close attention of the large congregation before him. The discourse was a scholarly, spiritual, and forceful one, and created a profound impression. The music, which was simple and genuinely devotional, contributed largely to the success of the service. At night Bishop Mouzon preached impressively to another large congregation in the Capitol Street Methodist Church, the service being under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. of the College.

On Tuesday the Board of Trustees held two meetings: one in the College Library at 9 a. m. and one in the Sunday School Annex of the Galloway Memorial Church at 4 p. m. In the Chapel on that day at 11 a. m. the Seniors delivered their orations, and at 8 p. m. the Annual Alumni meeting was held, at which the principal address was delivered by Mr. J. W. Crisler, a gifted young lawyer of Jackson, Miss. The Baccalaureate Address was delivered on Tuesday morning by Hon. J. S. Sexton, of Hazlehurst, Miss., who chose as his theme "Efficiency," and whose remarks were pointed, practical, and wonderfully suggestive. His peroration was strikingly patriotic and eloquent and frequently evoked enthusiastic applause. Following this appropriate and stimulating utterance, President Watkins delivered the diplomas to the graduating class, which this year numbered 34, of whom 12 were in the Literary and 22 in the Law Department. Bishop Murrah, President of the Board of Trustees, then spoke briefly concerning the work and future of the institution, after which the benediction was pronounced and the session of 1914-15 passed into history.

All things considered, it may be said that Millsaps College has had a gratifyingly successful scholastic year. The total enrollment was 246, the number in the College department, if we mistake not, being larger than it was last year. In the Preparatory School, however, there was a large falling off in the attendance, the number of students being 52. This may have been due to the financial stringency of the times consequent upon the great European war, though it may in part have resulted from the multiplication of Agricultural High Schools in Mississippi. The law class was one of the finest that the College has ever turned out. The retirement of Judge R. R. Reed from the Supreme Bench of Mississippi and his removal from Jackson left a vacancy in the law faculty, which was filled by the election to that position of Judge Sidney Smith, the Chief Justice of the State. Prof. Stuart G. Noble, who has had a leave of absence that he might prosecute his studies at Columbia University, will return to Millsaps and resume his place as Head Master of the Preparatory School this fall. The election of a successor to Dr. Swartz was left to the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees. The salaries of all the professors were advanced $100 each and that of the President $200.

The new $60,000 Main Building is a modern and most attractive structure, with fine equipment and appointments, and elicited much favorable comment from the visitors on the Campus. The chapel in it is a vast improvement on the old one, being larger and much superior to it in every respect, except possibly in acoustics. The simple, yet beautiful mausoleum that has been erected on the grounds by the generous founder of the College, and in which his remains and those of his beloved wife will finally repose, called forth many tender expressions of approval by the friends of the College; and the Board of Trustees adopted concerning it fitting resolutions of appreciation. Nothing that Major Millsaps has done attests more eloquently his deep devotion to the institution that bears his name than this latest sacred act of his.

There is no better College in the South than Millsaps. Its past history scarcely has a parallel in the educational annals of Southern Methodism, and its future was never so bright with promise as it is to-day. Let the Methodists of Mississippi rally loyally and enthusiastically around it and give to it their love and earnest, ardent support. It is their greatest asset, and to it they must largely look for the lifting influences that will strengthen and exalt the Methodism of their State in the coming years.

We were born for higher destinies than that of earth. There is a realm where the rainbow never fades, where the stars will be spread out before us like islands that slumber on the ocean, and where the beings that pass before us like shadows will stay in our presence forever.—Bulwer.

WANTS OUR BEST.

"God wants our best. He in the far-off ages
Once claimed the firstling of the flock,
The finest of the wheat;
And still he asks his own, with gentlest pleading,
To lay their highest hopes and brightest talents at his feet.
He'll not forget the fullest service, humblest love;
He only asks that of our store, we give to him the best we have.

"And is our best too much? O, friends, let us remember
How once our Lord poured out his soul for us,
And in the prime of his mysterious manhood
Gave up his precious life upon the cross.
The Lord of lords by whom the worlds were made,
Through bitter grief and tears, gave us the best he had."

SUGGESTIVE.

Canon Yates, of England, told a mothers' meeting about a girl who once went to a clergyman, and wanted to "join the Church." "Do you want to be like Jesus?" she was asked. "I don't know, but I want to be like my mother," was the answer; "and I'll warrant that was a praying mother," adds Canon Yates. The way had been wonderfully prepared for telling that girl about Jesus because, even though unknown to her, he had so evidently been seen in the life of the one whom she loved best.—Southern Churchman.

A SIGN OF THE TIMES.

The Philadelphia Public Ledger says, "More banquets have been given in the United States this winter than in any other season in the country's history, and most of them have been dry. It seems to mark a stage of evolution. Man once drank and forgot. Now he eats and learns. And his head has a better feeling the morning after."

This is significant. Fashion has always been the great stronghold of the liquor traffic. As long as the leaders of Society all used liquor, and no one could give a dinner or supper in fashionable society without it, the saloon was kept in countenance by this "respectable" drinking. But in proportion as Society, with a big S, finds that it can get along without liquor, the last prop of the abominable business will be taken away.—Weekly Witness.

BACK TO THE PEOPLE.

This is the people's conference in the Methodist Church. By neglect of this conference we have given occasion for the charge of being an oligarchy. Our system, like all others, is capable of abuse, and nowhere more than in the facility with which we may substitute the official for the people's conference. In most cases the Church Conference fails for the reason that the majority of the members manifest no interest. For lack of interest on the part of the membership generally it is difficult to hold the conference and transact the business of the Church. Thus it is easy and natural to substitute a sort of one-man power and leave the congregation in utter ignorance of the Church and its work. The Church Conference affords the best opportunity for promoting intelligence among the members.—North Carolina Advocate.

THE LENTEN REVIVALS.

Rev. J. E. Harrison, D. D.

I am not rising to oppose the holding of revival meetings during Lent, but rather to ask a question based upon the fact that the Catholics and the Episcopalians abstain from dancing, theatre-going and card parties during the forty days of Lent.

The question is, Do Methodists have to select Lent as a time for revivals because at that time the Methodist people will stop dancing, theatre-going and card playing long enough to give consideration to a religious meeting?—Texas Christian Advocate.

THE SOUTH'S NEW SCHOOL OF THEOLOGICAL LIBERALISM.

(This is the second of a series of able editorials that Dr. W. D. Bradfield, the new editor of the Texas Advocate, has recently published in that journal. Dr. Bradfield is an alumbus of Vanderbilt University, was for a number of years on its Board of Trust, and few men are so well informed concerning the history of that institution and the methods by which it has been wrested from the Church as is he.—Editor's note).

The impudence of the Board of Trust of Vanderbilt University in asking Methodist preachers to forward it names and addresses of prospective students, notwithstanding its repudiation of the Church and its suppression of the history of the Church in the matter of the founding of Vanderbilt University, is only equalled by its insincerity and hypocrisy in the use of the name of Bishop Holland N. McTyeire.

In the April Bulletin, the title page of which reads, "Biblical Department of Vanderbilt University—A School of Religion," is found the following language concerning Bishop McTyeire:

"Among those whom the University must ever hold in honor and in grateful remembrance as one of its benefactors, because he gave that which is as necessary as money to the founding of an institution of learning, is Bishop Holland N. McTyeire, through whom Commodore Vanderbilt contributed the million dollars that made possible the establishment of the University. He was not only the first President of the Board of Trust, but he gave the University, in the early years of its existence, the benefit of his judicious and constructive leadership, and to the wisdom and foresight which he and those associated with him exercised in those early formative years, the University is largely indebted for the work that it has been enabled to do in the years that have followed."

The Board of Trust of Vanderbilt University profaned the name of our great Bishop throughout the entire course of the trial before the civil courts. They invoked this name so sacred to Methodism to prove their contention that the relation of the University to the Church was a mere by-law relation, which "was created by the Board, and was created by it of its own volition," and which could be revoked by the Board at its own will. And this same Board of Trust now is conjuring Methodist preachers in the name of our ascended Bishop with the hope that these preachers may convert themselves into its agents for the securing of its student body.

The crucial words in the Vanderbilt suit before the civil courts were the words, "Since the charter leaves the perpetuity of the Board in its own power." These words were used by the first Board of Trust, by Bishop McTyeire and by Chancellor Garland. But, it is the distinction of the present Board of Trust of Vanderbilt University to read into these words the assertion of independence upon the part of the Board of the Church. It is the great distinction of the gentlemen who compose the present Board of Vanderbilt University to find in these words a shadowy, sentimental relation between the University and the Church—a relation created by the Board of Trust and dissolvable at its own will. And for the strengthening of their interpretation they invoke the names of the first Board, Bishop McTyeire and Chancellor Garland.

Whereas the fact is that every act following the use of the words, "since the charter leaves the perpetuity of the Board in its power," whether by the first Board or by Bishop McTyeire or by Chancellor Garland, was exactly in the contrary direction. Upon its use of the now crucial words the first Board immediately asked that the Conferences elect representatives who should constitute the Church's Board, solemnly promising for the future that all vacancies in their number should be filled upon the nominations of the Conferences. Upon its use by Bishop McTyeire immediately followed these words: "We should keep up the Conference representation on the principle here suggested." That is to say, when Bishop McTyeire suggested, in 1874, that the initiative in the election of members of the Board should now be taken by the Board instead of by the Conferences, he had no thought of separating the University from the Conferences, or of declaring that it could be done, but the change seemed to him to be the best method of "keeping up the Conference representation." And the fact that during the seventeen years of his presidency of the Board no man ever was recognized as a member of the Board until first confirmed by his Conference—this fact ought to be proof of the Bishop's meaning even to the Board of Trust of Vanderbilt University. Moreover, it is a matter of record in the Board's own minutes that on a later occasion, when it was proposed to admit the representatives of a new Conference to membership on the Board, Bishop McTyeire himself asked whether such proceedings in time might not take the University from the control of the original Conferences which established it.

I can not hope to influence the present Board of Trust of Vanderbilt University by anything I may say, but the following quotation from Bishop McTyeire will show to the open-minded reader the hollowness and insincerity of the Board in its appeals to the name of McTyeire to justify its course in wresting the University from the Church. In his "last words" before leaving on a trip to England, written June 28, 1881, Bishop McTyeire wrote:

"1. I beseech the College of Bishops, as by charter they have a right, to lay their hands on this University for guidance and governance.

"2. I request the College of Bishops to keep in steady and constant connection with this University. The trust is worthy of their care."

In Bishop McTyeire's will, written July 6, 1887, when this great man was thinking of eternity, the time of all times when we can see a man's very heart, are these words: "And now concerning the University, which care and burden I have especially borne since March, 1873.

"I devoutly thank God, in whose hands are the hearts of all men, kings and millionaires, great and small as well, for turning this large bounty upon our Church and our land, etc.

"These are my requests, counsels, and suggestions, concerning Vanderbilt University:

"1. That all the Bishops exercise steadily and constantly their charter rights as members of the Board of Trust, directing and controlling. This they have not done heretofore.

"2. That the religious character of the University be emphasized always. Insist on this. The institution is in the care of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

"3. My wife was a silent but golden link in the chain that brought and bound this University to Nashville, and especially to Methodism."

Did space allow as complete a refutation could be made of the Board's contention that their course has the sanction of the name of L. C. Garland.

"The closest connection with the patronizing Conferences" he always sought to conserve.

The Board's breach of trust lies just here. Immediately upon the present Chancellor's inauguration his efforts were not to "keep up the Conference representation" as Bishop McTyeire had done for seventeen years, but to weaken and finally dissolve the Conferences' relation with the Board. And how well he has succeeded is now written large in history. Without attempting an accurate narrative of all the events it is easy to note the steps of the University away from the Church. In 1894 four members were elected by the Board without reference to Conference relations—Cupples, Keith, Baxter and Vanderbilt. Mr. Vanderbilt declined. In 1896, under the plea of relating the University closer to the whole Church, the Board persuaded the eight patronizing Conferences to reduce their representation on the Board from two to one and allow the Board to fill the eight vacancies without reference to Conference relations. In 1905 the entire thirteen Bishops were voted off the Board as ex-officio members, five were elected to membership, and the eight vacancies thereby made were filled with alumni. Four and eight and eight make twenty. Nineteen of these when the crisis came voted with the Board and against the Church. It was the violation of Bishop McTyeire's counsel concerning the Bishops and his practice for seventeen years in keeping up the Conference representation that lost Vanderbilt University to the Church. And this violation was suffered by the Church under the Board's plea that thereby the University would be more closely related to the whole Church!

What credentials does the Board of Trust of Vanderbilt University offer when it asks the Methodist Church to entrust to them its sons and daughters? As I see it, only impudence and insolence, insincerity and hypocrisy.

COMMENCEMENT MEDITATIONS.

By Rev. J. F. Foster.

Young men and ladies, you have reacired the goal, attained the end, and are ready for graduation. You have done well.

We call it Commencement and Commencement Day, when from one standpoint, and the point of view usually taken, it is the Closing Day, the leaving of school.

But leaving school is the exit from a period of training wherein you have been fitted for life and its responsibilities, and in thus going forth from your Alma Mater you are now facing the vast ocean of time, to begin your voyage. Thus to-day is the commencement day—the commencement of real life. You leave the nursery to strike out for yourselves. The bird is ready to leave the nest. The voyage of life is begun.

This is your commencement, life is before you, and the future is what you make it. You face marvelous opportunities, for with the magic wand of volition, the genius of hard work and application, you may achieve results which only eternity can measure.

Man or woman may accomplish almost anything they will. Environment has a large play and means much to us each, but one who will, may master environment, rise above it, and stronger for the trial, make his surroundings to yield to his will, thereby adding to his force and manhood, and thus further his ends and multiply his possibilities.

Every man owes it to himself, and every woman owes it to herself, to make out of themselves the greatest possible in the unfolding of their natures, the mastering of their temperament and the development of mind and soul. Those content with less are false to themselves, their obligation to their fellow-man and their duty to their God.

But that is not all, for life does not consist in self-culture alone, the planting of flowers, or rather principles in the soil of the life and its nurture. Were this life, selfishness would be the end, and the real end of living defeated. A life thus planned would miss the best that is, and find itself in an atmosphere, a clime, wherein the truly beautiful in life would be an exotic, a stranger, wherein the graces which redeem life and make it worth while would sicken and die, and the real, the ideal, the true crown of life would be missed.

Every man owes it to himself to make out of himself the greatest possible to himself, in the unfolding of the possible within himself, but life is reciprocal. There is that that scatters, but yet increases; and it is more blessed to give than to receive. We are social by nature. We can not live apart. Solitary confinement is death in its worst form. We grow by an exchange of thought, and life was not meant to be hermit life. It is give and take, and we take more than we give. Dividends accruing from a life unselfishly lived in the service of others are far in excess of the amount invested.

In making out of one's self all that one can, we must take thought of the other man and unselfishly live for him and his welfare, rather than take a narrower view; and we in blessing him, bless ourselves, and find our highest, purest joys, not when pursued as the end in view, but when thinking not of self we lift another and put him on his feet.

In being the savior of another we save ourselves, and there grow in the garden of the heart roses and flowers, not of earth but truant plants from another clime, for heaven is come to earth and we have grown into a character truly worth while, a blessing to the world, an inspiration to humanity, a blessing to mankind and a pleasure to earth and heaven. Thus being not worldly, but eternal as the principles of such living approximate the Christ-like—the Divine.

Thus, my dear young friends, we are led to an important question: On what foundation shall I build, and by the light of what philosophy shall I illumine and guide my life?

You will see and hear much ere you are far on the voyage of life, and the enticements of earth will offer and promise you much. Be careful of what you hear, and more careful of that which you permit yourselves to see.

But you must have a philosophy, a plan of life, an ideal. Be not afraid of this latter word. Many think it lacking force and the tangible. But the seer, the dreamer, the vision see-er, the idealist, is the man who marks the epochs, the advancements of earth.

What is your vision of life? Does life consist in meat and drink—the material things of an earthly, bodily existence, or does life consist of and is it righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost? Which? As is your answer and the answer of your life's living, so will your future be, worthless or worth while.

Think a moment! Your vision of life, is it meat and drink—the material things of an earthly, bodily life? Such, sad to relate, is the living of many. Ask yourselves this question: Am I body or soul? Am I earthly or spiritual? Am I temporal or eternal? Your answer to these questions, if you are thoughtful and honest, should answer the bigger question, What is true living, and what is there worth while in life for which one should strive? We are not bodily beings only, but spiritual beings, tabernacling for a short part of God's eternity in a body, and soon to go hence, leaving that division called Time for an Eternity with the Lord, in our native world—the spiritual. If this be fact, on what foundation should we build, and with what material?

Does real living consist of things material or things spiritual, of earthly gains, or intellectual, moral, spiritual victories—the development of character? Am I a thing or am I a character, and what is there about me which abides the test of time, lasts for eternity and meets me beyond the grave, fixing my place here on earth and there in eternity? Which is worth while? Is it things or character? May your answer be right, and if so you, the soul, will live in time and eternity both, for one is a thing apart—the material, and the other is yourself. Be wise and live.

We will then assume that meat and drink—the things of earth, are not the ultimate end or the means to that end, if we, immortal souls that we are, would really live while we abide on earth, and possess a life whose nature and character will live on, being in itself, abiding, eternal. Hence, we address ourselves to the true view, the real vision, the abiding ideal of the life that now is and ever will be.

The Apostle answers our query, and unfolds the acme of all living, the component parts of which conspire to the making up of life, viz.: Righteousness and Peace and Joy in the Holy Ghost. Such a definition to the thoughtless lacks force and tangibility. He wants something practical, forgetful that the things known to himself which make up the life that now is are abstract rather than concrete, or ethical rather than physical. That the real in the life that now is, is the ethical, such as, Faith, Trust, Truth, Honor, Honesty and Love. These rather than stocks, notes and bonds, which conspire to make the life that now is.

Should we then speak of "Righteousness and Peace and Joy in the Holy Ghost," we are not speaking of anything unreal, because not physical, but the more real, because ethical and spiritual, and suited to man and his nature, for is he not spiritual—that is, a mental, thinking, volitional and moral being, rather than a mere eating, sleeping animal?

Life consists and exists in comfort when lived in correspondence with its environment. But man is of divine origin, spiritual, with aptitudes and capabilities, appetites and powers of assimilation which demand an environment like unto himself. God is that life and environment, and righteousness in living is that correspondence.

Thus, upon this your Commencement Day, as you look for success in living, weigh well the possibilities of life, its philosophies, their plausibility, their truth and that in which they eventuate, and realizing that God is Life, the Source of Life, and that there is no life except where God is, make Him the center of your life, the motive spring of life; and your life's study, the realization of the Divine ideals, and life will be successful here in the attaining of those things which redeem life, making of it a redeeming agency, transforming character and earth, and perfecting a life wherein God's will rules and heaven abides, the heir of both earth and eternity, living eternally with God, because like Him.

JUNALUSKA MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

Plans are progressing for our annual Missionary Conference at beautiful Junaluska, July 9-20. It will be held on lines similar to those of last year: study classes for those who desire to prepare for such work in their home churches; institutes for all who desire to help and be helped in solving the practical difficulties and doing the real work of missionary cultivation and promotion in the home base; the devotional half-hour for all who need a deepening of the prayer life, and platform lectures for the information and inspiration of all sorts, ages and conditions.

The management promises more extended preparations for entertainment and we trust there will be more to entertain. Let it be remembered that this is our Annual Workers' Conference, and takes the place of the Mid-Winter Institute, and that it is meant for all our missionary leaders, secretaries, presiding elders, pastors, lay leaders, representatives of woman's missionary societies, and all others who work at the missionary task.

Bishop J. W. Bashford, of China, well and widely known as a great missionary leader, writer and speaker, will deliver three addresses. Dr. Wainright, of Japan, will speak on that field, Bishop James Atkins and Dr. Cook will bring fresh mesages from the Orient. We hope to hear of "What a Layman Saw in the Orient," from Rev. C. A. Rowland, recently returned from the East. We expect to hear also from Miss Belle H. Bennett, Mrs. J. D. Hammond, Miss Daisy Davies, Dr. W. J. Young, Dr. W. B. Beauchamp, and others.

One of the features of the evening hours will be moving pictures of Oriental and African life and mission work. These scenes are new and very impressive.

The two closing days, July 19-20, will be devoted to the Conference of Missionary Secretaries. This Conference is provided for in paragraph 416 of the Discipline and it is important that the secretaries be present. We shall hope to plan with them for a forward movement.

The conditions call loudly for a vigorous and united missionary policy. It is not a time for complacency, but for our best planning and most energetic execution.

Those who have so often heard and repeated the lines concerning Mary and her lamb will be interested to know that they were founded upon truth and not fiction. Mary Sawyer Tyler, about whom the verses were written, was followed by her lamb to school in Sterling, Mass., in the year 1914. A hundred years have passed, and now through a will recently carried into execution, the Historical Society of Somerville, Mass., has come into possession of a small piece of yarn clipped from a pair of stockings into which the wool of the famous lamb had been made. The gift was from a friend of Mary, who received it from her own hands in 1860.

HOLLY SPRINGS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Holly Springs District Conference met at the Methodist Church in ninth annual session at Duck Hill, Miss., at 8 o'clock, Tuesday morning, June 1, 1915, with the presiding elder, Rev. R. A. Tucker, in the chair.

After the devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. G. W. Bachman, Rev. J. A. Coleman was elected secretary.

There was one particular feature of the conference worthy of special notice. Two hours were set apart by the presiding elder for the preaching of the Word, and each service was well attended. The preaching was done by the following brethren: Rev. W. L. Storment, pastor of our Church at Coffeeville, Miss.; Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary; Rev. W. N. Duncan, pastor of the Methodist Church at Holly Springs, Miss.; Rev. T. H. Dorsey, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, at Water Valley, Miss.; Rev. E. S. Lewis, our pastor at Oxford, Miss.

Reports were heard from the various charges concerning the general condition of the churches. Notwithstanding the cry of hard times, short crops and the unsettled condition of the country, the district made a splendid showing. The revival spirit is beginning to be felt. Several of the brethren reported that good revivals had already been held in the district. Judging from some of the speeches made on the conference floor, however, we yet need more genuine, old-fashioned shouting times for the benefit not only of the congregations but of the preachers as well.

Almost every phase of church work was discussed, but one point especially emphasized was that of advising the preachers how they might become more efficient. The statement was made that if the preachers were doing their duty the world would be revolutionized in 1915. The wise old poet no doubt knew whereof he spoke when he said, "It is easier to advise twenty men than to be one of the twenty to take the advice."

One brother drew a concrete example from the bees. He said the working bees feed the drones on rough food for some time and finally let them die, and that many of the preachers were feeding the drones on rough food. This brother didn't take the time to say that a drone would just be a drone and nothing more regardless of what he had eaten, and if he had taken the time he might have figured out the reason he was being fed on rough food.

Miss Lizzie Golden representing the Orphans' Home made a very helpful and inspiring talk. She said the hard times, boll weevils, and the European war were not affecting the Home. All the children were well and happy.

Miss Horn of Grenada, read a very impressive paper on the Woman's Missionary Society in which she stated that only three thousand women in the State of Mississippi were taking a part in the great work. She appealed to the ladies of the district to support this worthy cause.

The following delegates were elected to the Annual Conference: Judge J. G. McGowen, of Water Valley; Dr. A. M. Mackenfuss, of Oxford, Miss.; B. S. Elliot, Holcomb, Miss., M. G. Dugard, Dew Springs, Miss.

Large crowds attended each service and every one seemed to thoroughly enjoy them. Resolutions of thanks were tendered to the good people of Duck Hill for the many kindnesses tendered the guests of the conference.

SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL

June 23-July 1.

It is my conviction that we have had no program that any man can put in advance of the one we are to have this year. The men we have secured are of the highest quality as to their work, and no pastor in Alabama, Louisiana or Mississippi can afford to miss this opportunity.

The Year Book has just come to me, and it is evident that Brother Ellis, the editor, has done some of the very best of the good work he has been doing during the several years he has held this important position. He deserves the thanks of all the brethren for his untiring labor in getting together the material for this program of the work.

Let all the brethren make the effort to be with us this summer. Let all of them THINK upon the subjects that are to be discussed in the Round Table exercise. It will also be a good thing to think upon the subjects that are to be discussed by the speakers at the regular hours of platform work. Do not let any man fail to be present if it is possible for him to go. I appeal to all the undergraduates of the patronizing Conferences to be present—even at a sacrifice.

It will be a good thing for the officials of pastoral charges to see to it that their pastors are provided with the necessary funds to meet their expenses. It need not be more than $25 or $30. It will pay the people to give their pastors this opportunity. ROBT. SELBY, President.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE
BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., President

Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Sec'y

Rev. C. A. Battle, Treas., Baton Rouge, La.

(This Department is conducted by Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education, and Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Publicity Commissioner.)

A GENEROUS OFFER TO CENTENARY.

Mr. C. W. Blair of Shreveport has made to the trustees of Centenary College a definite offer to give $2500 in cash to the College on Jan. 1, 1916, on condition that the Board secure by that date $12,500 from other sources. When the offer was brought before the Board at its recent meeting, the unanimous sentiment expressed in definite action was that the necessary amount be raised and the offer thus accepted. In addition to several volunteered subscriptions announced at the time, a committee of the Board was provided for who should co-operate with the Conference Board of Education in securing the amount needed. The entire $15,000, when secured, will be used by the Board for maintaining and improving the College in such ways as may be necessary, and will thus assure a more stable maintenance and provision for needed improvements, while the larger campaign for endowment progresses. The people of Shreveport will doubtless do their share toward this fund, but the proposition is a definite challenge to the Methodists of Louisiana. Can not one hundred and twenty-five people be found who will give $100 apiece by December 1 to meet this generous offer? The time is short in which to canvass the matter; so we must act at once. Let those who are willing to give $100, or less if that amount is more than they can afford, write at once to Rev. W. W. Drake, 1125 Fern St., New Orleans, La., stating their willingness to contribute a definite amount for this fund that will mean a new era in the life of the College. Of course, larger amounts would be acceptable. Let us hear from you without delay. Who will be the first to respond?

COMMENCEMENT AT CENTENARY COLLEGE.

Centenary College closed its seventy-fifth session on Tuesday evening, June 8th, with a general feeling of hopefulness and encouragement on the part of those most intimately acquainted with its work and prospects. In spite of all the discouragements growing out of lack of funds to meet its needs, the friends of the college who are best acquainted with its work feel sure that the work being done there is gaining friends for it and increasingly winning the confidence of its patrons. One encouraging feature of the situation is that the students in attendance almost unanimously express their purpose to return next session, and others are already planning to attend. Features of encouragement on the financial side will be referred to in another connection.

The closing exercises of the college began with the Commencement Sermon, preached on Sunday morning, June 6, at the First Methodist Church by Dr. Stonewall Anderson, General Secretary of Education, who has in many ways proved himself a valuable friend to Centenary. Taking as his text the great saying of St. Paul, "Ye are complete in Him," Dr. Anderson discussed the necessity of fullness of life, not only in the physical and intellectual realms, but in the spiritual as well, pointing out the pre-eminent place of Christ in the complete response to all human needs. Upon this view of Christ's relation to humanity, he based a strong appeal for Christian education, not as a side issue in the plans of the Church, but as a vital necessity to its success.

At Noel Memorial Church in the evening Dr. Anderson preached another impressive sermon, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. of Centenary. Taking as his theme "The Full Grown Man," he dwelt upon the necessity of a thorough fitting for efficient service to our fellow man, and the complete perfecting of our own character as among the great aims of the gospel. In closing, he declared that the purposes of Christian education were identical with these aims of the Gospel.

In both sermons he took occasion to make a definite and earnest appeal for the thorough equipment of Centenary College for these high aims.

A pleasant feature of the Commencement exercises was the contest in declamation for the medal offered each year by Mr. John B. Hutchinson of Shreveport, a valuable member of the Board of Trustees of the college. The contestants were Mr. Hunter Neal, Jr., of McDonoghville, and Mr. Charles S. Staples, son of Rev. C. F. Staples of the Louisiana Conference. A third contestant was unable to be present on account of sickness. Both young men performed their parts creditably, and the prize was awarded to Mr. Staples.

A number of former graduates of the college met at the college chapel on Monday evening for the annual meeting of the Alumni Association. The annual address was delivered by Mr. R. H. McGimsey, a well-known attorney of Alexandria, of the class of 1883, and the poem prepared by Rev. S. J. Davies, of the same class, was read by Dr. Wynn, as Brother Davies was unable to be present. The Association elected Mr. R. O. Randle of Monroe to deliver the oration next year, and Mrs. Wilbanks, of Shreveport, to read the poem.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees on Tuesday morning carefully considered the affairs of the college, as presented by the report of the President and that of the Treasurer of the Board. These reports indicated a small deficit after the realization of outstanding assets, against which it is hoped that the charges which have not yet fully met the assessment for the Centenary Special will send in speedy returns, and thus enable all claims to be met.

Dr. Wynn was unanimously re-elected President of the college, and Rev. J. G. Sawyer, A.M., B.D., of Arkansas, was secured as Dean. The full faculty for next session has not yet been announced.

Dr. John L. Scales, a former graduate and an enthusiastic friend of the institution, was elected President of the Board, in place of Judge A. J. Murff, who, after several years of faithful service in that capacity, found it necessary to resign. Judge S. C. Fullilove was continued as Secretary, and Mr. John B. Hutchinson was elected Treasurer. Rev. Briscoe Carter, who was unable to be present on account of sickness, but whose interest in the college is well known, was continued as Vice President.

Perhaps the feature of the session which elicited most interest was the offer of Mr. C. W. Blair, of Shreveport, which is noted elsewhere. The Board took action promptly looking to the carrying out of the conditions of the offer. Several members of the Board in the meeting made liberal contributions toward the conditional amount, $600 being subscribed voluntarily by a few of those present. The meeting of the Board was well attended by the local members, as well as by Revs. T. J. Warlick, Felix R. Hill, J. M. Henry, Wm. Schuhle and W. W. Drake from other points, and the spirit of the meeting was the most hopeful that has been manifested for some time.

The graduating exercises took place in the First Methodist Church on Tuesday evening, when Dr. Wynn conferred degrees upon Messrs. I. T. Andrews, of Center, Texas; B. H. Andrews, of Rayville, La., and McVea Higginbotham, of Mer Rouge, La. Mr. I. T. Andrews, as the representative of the class, delivered a thoughtful address on "The Natural Resources of Louisiana." Hon. E. H. Randolph, a prominent citizen of Shreveport, delivered the Baccalaureate Address, and Dr. Wynn delivered the diplomas to the graduates.

At the close of the exercises a brief reception to the graduates was tendered in the parlors of the church by the ladies of First Church. Two of these young men are preparing for the ministry, and the third will take further courses in preparation for farming on modern principles. All three bid fair to render effective service as the result of their equipment.

Dr. Wynn has just published an attractive catalogue which he will be glad to send to any one interested.

"SEND ME FORTH NOW"

A New and Unique Argument.

By Philemathes.

Many reasons are given why we do not for the baptism of Jesus today be performed now. For instance one says: "The word baptize is an example for us to follow;" or as another "Jesus baptized;" "I will be baptized;" "I will be baptized by him;" "because he was commanded;" "in order to fulfill all righteousness" etc. These smaller reasons are being thrown into a wider expression in the real nature of baptism.

The scripture says in plain words that the baptism of Jesus was for the taking of John into the consecration of the Messianic ministry; the formal identification and consecration of the person to the Messiah.

Matthew III 14 explains the reason given by Jesus himself for the baptism. When a reluctant John remonstrated: "I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me?" Jesus answered him: "Send me forth now: for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." Then he suffered him.

The above translation does not express the things the Greek text says which is no longer in the King James translation. Greek professors by many Bible students, especially writers in baptism.

The words of the King James translation, "It is fit for us" to our ears is the original is all "Suffer it to be so." The translation tell us very plainly that the phrase "It is fit for us" was supplied by them.

The American Revised Version translates the word "Suffer it" The marginal translation is "Suffer me." The word "it" or "me" was supplied. The pronoun are being used in the original.

While the pronoun "me" is omitted in the sentence, "me" is evidently understood, because Jesus came to John to be baptized, commanding John to baptize Him, and further down the text above "him" is used. "Then he suffered him," or "Then he suffered him." A literal translation reads "Then he sendeth him."

Attention is called to the fact that the Greek word "Aphiemi" translated "Suffer it" or "Suffer me," primarily means "to send." It means "to send forth," "to cause to send," to send on an errand," "to let go," "to leave alone," "to let fall," etc. It means also "suffer," "allow," "permit" etc. but the primary meaning is "to send."

In Matthew Mark III, it is a literal translation. "Send me forth now." "Then he sendeth him." It becomes as plain as day that the baptism of Jesus initiated him into the great work which he came to accomplish, and completed Jesus' consecration of him. His work had for its ultimate end the satisfaction of God's justice, and the reconciliation of man. "To consecrate or to fulfill (or complete) all righteousness," (or justice.)

The word "righteousness" is a good translation, but the word means "justice" primarily, and it carries the idea of its execution. "Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness." The same word is used. It was that righteousness of faith which satisfied the justice of God, turned aside every punishment, and constituted Abraham sinless and righteous. "Faith" does the same thing today, and, even transforms character.

Since Jesus approached John with the idea of having him consecrate him, or send him officially upon his mission, he could not have used a word to better illustrate the idea than "Aphiemi," in its imperative mood, which primarily means "to send." The word is used about thirty times in the New Testament and at some places it is translated "send," or "sent."

Mark IV, 36: "And when they had sent away the multitude."

Matt. XIII, 36: "Then Jesus sent the multitude away."

Then John took the act of "send" as the word used on any other occasion, namely it is service to or for another, or a purpose to be served by a person. John entered upon his consecration ceremony. His action was the same as if Jesus had said to John "Send me forth now." The formal consecration was at the river Jordan where John baptized with water and when it was finished the Holy Spirit. That was the time it is recorded, and from that hour he was literally the Christ or Messiah.

It was "proper" for John to perform the many reasons as was a proper the act of a priest and the forerunner of the appointment and a fulfillment of prophecy. The work of John's entire ministry was to manifest him. He prepared to manifest him, and to confirm to Israel him.

"Now" is "at this time," and Christ to John. Why was it "proper" for John to send him forth "at that time" Because John's ministry was temporarily finished, and Jesus had reached the appointed age. Everything was ripe for the public baptism.

The word "thus" is significant. "Thus" takes its meaning from what goes before. "Send me" and by sending me we will "fulfill all righteousness." John's part was to send him forth upon his great work of satisfying the justice of God and redeeming man.

It is granted that "permission" or "consent" is the idea of the word in many places, but even where it means permission the thought of "dismissal" "let go" "send" etc., is often present. The idea of expedition and immediate going something, a sending out.

Mark XII, 7: "Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me." We could not do any violence were we to translate it "Send little children" or "Let us little children." Lots of people in modern times seem to "let us little children."

Mark VIII, 22: "Let the dead bury their dead." "Send the dead to bury their own dead."

Mark XI, 6: "What do ye loosing the colt" And they said unto them even as Jesus had commanded. And they let them go." Meant any violence we could say "And they sent them away."

John XVIII, 8: "If therefore ye seek me, let these go this way." Without any violence we could say, "Send these to go their way."

Primarily the word means "to send," and when Jesus said to John "Send me forth now," he requested John to baptize him now, as the necessary ministry, to formally and publicly identify him as the Messiah, and consecrate him to the ministerial priesthood.

It is absurd to say that Jesus was baptized for the reasons the multitudes were baptized. He was not a sinner. John did not treat him as such. He made no confession of sin. There was no need for penitence. He was not baptized because it was necessary for him to believe in a Savior. Nor was he baptized for the reasons mentioned at another place in this article. He was baptized because he was the Savior of the world, and because his baptism inaugurated his ministry to redeem it. Jesus by his baptism saluted a sinful world with every necessary qualification to satisfy the justice of God, and restore fallen man.

"Being baptized and praying." "Praying," not down under the water, where nobody could hear his prayer, but praying a sublime prayer of consecration while being baptized, because he had in mind the great significance of his baptism, and a vivid anticipation of the difficulties which lay before him.

The man who immerses Jesus Christ must sidetrack or interrupt his prayer, or make some special arrangement about his attitude while praying.

If the point be well taken that John sent Christ upon his public mission, it settles the question of

THE HOLMES STORE

OF NEW ORLEANS

is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

made because under the law of Jehovah and the custom of the Jews persons, places, and things were set apart or consecrated by affusion. Scores of passages illustrate this. Priests, many articles, vessels of ministry, gifts from the people, places, people and things were consecrated by affusion. Oil, water, wine and blood were poured or sprinkled.

"And Jesus when he was baptized went up straightway out of the water." "Up" from. If the word does not mean "from" primarily, then we need to change scores of words in the English language. Scores of English words are made up from compound Greek words, words coupled with "Apo."

For instance: "Apology"—"Apo" from, "logos" speech. "Apostrophe"—"Apo" from, and "strophe" turning.

There is no authority for saying that Jesus was immersed, or that he went into the water. It is likely that John administered the rite to Jesus and to the multitudes with the mode common among the Jews. John baptized two or three millions in six months.

"Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the regions round about Jordan," which included the whole length of the river valley, and took in parts of Perea, Samaria, Galilee, and Gaulonitis.

Let us suppose that he immersed one every minute, day and night, and took no time to preach, rest, eat or sleep. How many could he immerse in six months? 259,200.

Even then he greatly falls short of the number he probably baptized. But it is not reasonable to keep John in the water longer than an hour, or two each day. Therefore, he could not immerse more than a few thousand in six months, and either live, or keep his health.

Immersion is inconsistent with thought and reason. By the method which the Jews purified and consecrated, (which the New Testament calls baptism-) John probably baptized thousands in a day, and took time to preach, eat, sleep, and rest.

THE VILLAGE CHURCH BELL.

Virginia Bransford.

What sounds upon the morning air, with tones so clear and sweet?
'Tis the village church bell ringing, the Sabbath day to greet.
Another week of work has passed, another Sabbath come;
The voice of the old cracked church bell is a welcome sound to some.

The aged grandsire cometh in answer to its call,
So slowly and so feebly his tottering footsteps fall,
That he leans upon the arm of the wife he has loved so long,
While children, and grandchildren make up the happy throng.

The Squire, young and rich—he, too, has heard the old church bell;
What caused the rosy flush that o'er his features fell?
Is it for sin with which his heart is riven?
Ah, no; he meets to-day one to whom his heart is given.

And lassies too and lads will come from o'er each distant hill,
With sparkling jest and merry laugh, like music of the rill.
Let us hope the love that fills their hearts to-day
Will only strengthen the love for Him who is the "Life, the Truth, the Way."

THE PLACE WE FILL.

The minister had just sung a closing hymn, and dismissed his audience. He was a great singer, whose wonderfully beautiful voice touched the hearts of his hearers with an earnest desire to go out and labor for God.

"Oh, I wish I could sing like that," said a young girl. "How much good I could do!"

A lady who heard turned to her with a smile. "Miss Sheldon," she said, "I remember once expressing a wish similar to that, and an old lady told me this story: 'When I wish to be something God has not permitted me to be, and think my life and its talents amount to nothing, I always recall a poem that was on the first page of my reader when I was a child at school. A tiny buttercup became discontented, and longed to be a tall and beautiful daisy, and the answer was given to it: "But God wants a buttercup—just where you're growing."'

"So," the woman continued, "whatever place we fill, God puts us there, and it is a part of his great unerring plan."

The girl listened, with a smile coming to her lips. "I'll not forget that," she said softly. '"God wants a buttercup—just where you're growing."'

KILLING THE DRAGON.

A little boy, four years old, was much impressed by the story of "St. George and the Dragon," which his mother had been reading to him and his sister, and the next day he said to is father:

"Father, I want to be a saint."

"Very well, John," said his father, "you may be a saint if you choose, but you will find it very hard work."

"I don't mind," replied John. "I want to be a saint and fight a dragon. I am sure I could kill one."

"So you shall, my boy."

"When can I be one?" persisted the child.

"You can begin to-day," said the father.

"Where is the dragon?"

"I will tell you when he comes out."

So the boy ran off to play contentedly with his sister.

In the course of the day some presents came for the two children. John's was a book and his sister Catherine's, a beautiful doll. Now, John was too young to care for a book, but he dearly loved dolls, and when he found that his sister had what he considered a much nicer present than his own, he threw himself on the floor in a passion of tears.

His father, who happened to be there, said quietly, "Now, John, the dragon is out."—Central Christian Advocate.

OPENING HIS EYES.

A certain young minister, serving in his first parish, was hard pressed to find teachers enough for the Sabbath school. So he went over the list of church members until he came to the name of Judge Andrews, who, he had been told, was considered the most learned lawyer in the State.

After some days of timid self-questioning, the minister found courage to call upon the judge.

"I have come to see you," he said, "about a class of boys in the Sabbath school. They have recently lost their teacher, and I wish you would take them."

"What! I take a class of boys in the Sabbath school?"

"Yes, sir. You could hold the boys. They all respect you greatly. You have no idea what a hero you are to them."

"But—but I teach a class of boys? No, no; I could not. It's a very busy term of court."

"But it is the busy people, judge, who do the best work, and we need a splendid teacher for that class. Won't you try it?"

"Couldn't think of it. No, no. I couldn't possibly."

And the judge closed the interview rather abruptly.

But Sabbath morning the minister was surprised to receive a call from Judge Andrews. He began with strange hesitation: "I have called to say that I will try that class. I thought it all out after you left. It was sheer pride made me refuse. I thought I was too great a man to teach a class of boys. I tell you, sir, I am a hypocrite. I have tried to play the 'distinguished Christian gentleman,' and I have been worthless in the kingdom. Put me to work. I do not know how to teach boys; I am too ignorant. But I mean to learn."

At the close of his first year in the Sabbath school Judge Andrews said to the minister: "Teaching that class has been the greatest thing that ever happened to me. I never had any conception of service before. I shall never cease to thank God for opening my eyes to see myself as I really was."

DR. JOHNSON'S PRESCRIPTION.

"But I haven't time to enjoy anything outside of my work," said a girl complainingly. "Office work is monotonous, and one needs leisure in order to be happy, you know."

"Not according to Dr. Johnson's prescription," said her friend.

"What doctor is that?"

"Oh, I mean old Samuel Johnson, whom Boswell wrote about. He was very hard working and very wise, you know, and he set down the ingredients of happiness in one of his essays. One of them was, 'A little less time than you want.' That prescription has always helped me. When I look around, I don't find that the leisurely people are happy. It's usually the busy people. They enjoy things all the more because they have to plan how to fit their pleasures in. If you always have something ahead that you would like to do if you could find time for it, to-morrow is always interesting to you. Then from that idea, I've gone on to others. A little less money than you want isn't a bad thing. It keeps you active and planning, and saving and self-reliant. A little less goodness than you want keeps you up to doing better and striving harder every day, and never lets you sit down in self-righteousness to criticize other people. When you're satisfied with your own amount of goodness you're in a very bad way. It's the going on, the getting away from stagnation, that makes for happiness."—Unidentified.

A SAVIOR'S LOVE.

By J. Preston Nash.

Let praise within my soul abound,
Since peaceful Jesus I have found;
He cleansed my heart from scarlet stain
And bade the love of God remain.

I sought the great Redeemer's breast
To dwell in sacred, holy rest;
I gazed into his smiling face
And felt a Savior's warm embrace.

Let peace within my soul reside
As Christ is ever near my side;
The Holy Spirit leads me on,
To view the Resurrection dawn.

Sometime—I know not when 'twill be—
My great Redeemer I will see,
To reign upon the golden shore
And greet my friends of earth once more.

Meridian, Miss.

IT MIGHT HELP.

Mr. Sherwood Eddy is a serious speaker, seldom indulging in humorous remark. The other day, however, in speaking of the manner in which Russia is opening to the presentation of the gospel, he drew a contrast. "Not long ago," he said, "if one was to deliver a discourse upon Christianity the police captain of the city took his place upon the front seat to see that the speaker kept to his text." Aside, Mr. Eddy said to the audience: "Such precaution would not be bad in this country." The ministers and laymen received this suggestion with a smile that was quite audible.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

OUR ARMY OF DELINQUENTS.

A few days ago we reminded that there were about 900 delinquent subscribers on our mailing list which would soon have to be dropped unless they were renewed. This list is growing smaller at a painfully slow rate. What is the situation in your charge, brother? Have you done anything to assist us? If not, will you not take up this important matter at once? This does not concern the Advocate alone, but also the welfare of the Church in your community. Can you afford to let the Advocate pass out of the homes of your people?

OUR NATION'S WEALTH.

The Federal Census Bureau, which for the past two years has been engaged in computing the wealth of the United States, has completed its work, and has announced that the returns foot up the enormous sum of $187,739,000,000. These figures are for 1912, when the returns upon which they are based were secured—it has taken about two years to tabulate them. It is stated that this calculation includes "only tangible wealth, such as lands, buildings, live stock, machinery, merchandise, etc.—not bonds, stocks, and speculative values."

The New Orleans Times-Picayune, in comparing the wealth of our country with that of other nations, says: "The United States has for the last twenty years been the wealthiest country in the world. It is to-day more than twice as rich as the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and nearly three times as rich as Germany or France. All the other European powers, Russia, Austria-Hungary, Italy, Belgium, Spain, the Netherlands, Portugal, Switzerland, Roumania, Servia, and Turkey, have together less than two-thirds of the wealth of this country."

The most striking fact to be learned from the study of the returns showing our Nation's wealth in succeeding decades is that most of it has been piled up within comparatively recent years. In 1850 it was $43,642,000,000, and in 1900, $88,517,000,000, an increase in twenty years of 100 per cent. Since 1900 the rate of gain has been even larger, amounting to 112 per cent. The per capita wealth has also steadily increased. In 1850 it was $870; in 1900, $1165, and in 1912, $1965. The only ugly feature of this census exhibit is that of our property accumulations of more than $187,000,000,000, only about one-third of it is shown on the tax rolls of the country.

In view of the rapid increase of wealth in the United States within the past thirty years—an increase which Mr. Munhall, the noted English statistician, says is without a parallel in human history—is not our boasting about the larger liberality of this generation to religious and philanthropic causes, as compared with the generations preceding it, somewhat discredited? That our people are giving more in the aggregate for such purposes now than in the days agone is undoubtedly true; but are they giving more proportionately? The wealth of the Nation has more than quadrupled since 1880; has our giving increased more than four-fold? Here is a question for our religious spread-eagleism!
